The Congress will be more than usually important this year because of the labour conditions caused by the war and by the possible return of the Canadian soldiers in the near future. Speaking on this point the President of the Dominion Good Roads' Association, J. Duchastel, says: "When the war is at an end the condition in Canada will be a very serious one. We will have our returned soldiers to look after as well as a large influx of immigrants. Very little employment will be available in industrial centres because our factories which are now producing munitions of war will have to seek other fields for their product and there will necessarily be some delay while they are retransforming their machinery to the production of the articles that will be required.

"There will also be little employment available on the railways because this work has been so extensively carried on in the past few years that there are not likely to be any big extensions for the next few years. Therefore the only employment on a large scale that men will find will be road construction which should be undertaken not only by the Provincial Governments, but by the Federal Government, for the country needs good roads if it is to develop properly. Well constructed highways, properly maintained, as a benefit to all classes of the community and the rural districts will probably benefit more from them than any other section, for good roads should always be built with the idea of acting as feeders to the railway lines or to the large commercial centres, thus allowing the farmers to haul their produce to these places at a minimum cost.

"The Congress in Ottawa this year is held with the main idea of appealing to the rural district. We want to have plain heart to heart talks with the farmers to show them the benefits of good roads from their point of view and to disabuse their minds of the idea that good roads are built mainly for the convenience of the motorist. This idea has been dispelled in those districts where good roads have been built, and the agriculturalist has proved to be the greatest beneficiary from them. I believe the ottawa congress is going to be a great aid in educating the rural population in this direction and the splendid list of speakers already announced will ensure that the information given will be of practical value to all public bodies that are concerned with the problems of road maintenance."

Tuesday evening, April 10th, meeting of the Dominion Good Roads' Association, with President J. Duchastel in the chair, to consider the proposed Dominion charter.

Wednesday evening, April 11th, annual dinner of the Association, at the Chateau Laurier.

Friday evening, April 13th, annual meeting of the Ottawa Valley Motor Car Association.

Saturday, April 14th, annual meeting, receiving of reports, consideration of resolution and election of officers of the Dominion Good Roads Association.

DOCTORS ADVISE IRON FOR THE BLOOD

Anaemia, pale faces, nervousness, stomach troubles, watery blood, etc., are sure signs of thin blood. Dr. Mainerine says he can take any of these cases and cure any one of them in ten days by giving Iron for the blood, and Phosphorus for the nerves, "called Bonised Phosphorus with Iron." I have found that 99 per cent. of all stomach, liver, kidney, bowel, nerve, etc., troubles are traced right back to the blood. Just as soon as Bonised Phosphorus with Iron is given it is almost immediately absorbed by the system the blood taking the iron while the nerves are soothed by the phosphorus, making you eat better, feel better, look better, digest better, and finally you will be made 100 per cent. stronger. Do not be taking all sorts of patent medicines and laxatives which only ruin your system; go to the root of the trouble and start taking Iron and strengthen your blood, restore your nerves, and your digestion and will so change your whole system with new life Bonised Phosphorus with Iron is dispensed by one druggist in each city. F. G. Weber dispenses it for Peterboro.

Music & Drama

ROBIN HOOD.

With the same splendid caste as last season, the De Koven Opera Company scored a tremendous hit at the Grand last night, in a striking representation of De Koven's delightful comic opera "Robin Hood." From the standpoint of vocal ability the Company was one of the strongest that has appeared at the Grand. The beautiful music of the De Koven's score was interpreted in most charming style by principals and chorus. James Stevens, as Little John, Herbert Waterous as Will Scarlett, and Cora Tracy as Alan-a-dale, carried off the vocal honours. Mr. Stevens' magnificent baritone was displayed to fullest advantage in the number "Brown October Ale," which was the hit of the evening, and was rapturously applauded. Miss Tracey's clear sweet contralto made her execution of the delightful song "O Promise Me" a vocal gem, while Mr. Waterous sang the "Armourer's song" in magnificent style, displaying a rich and resonant basso that was admirably controlled. Ivy Scott made a delightful "Maid Marian," and Ralph Brainard did good work in the title role. To Phil Bronson as the Sheriff, fell much of the comedy of the evening, and he made good use of the opportunity ably assisted by David Andrands as "Guy of Gisbourne." Too much cannot be said of the singing of the chorus, which was most effective throughout and which reached a climax in the wedding bell chorus in the last act. The scenic effects were adequate and the costuming delightful, although the hat and gown worn by Maid Marian, in the forest scene, looked a trifle too modern for Sherwood Forest.

Fixing Up the House For Spring

Nowadays, when everyone is stirring to give an individual touch to the decorations of the home, the consideration of wall paper hangings and combinations, engage much attention. There are many dainty decorative motifs for rooms among the patterns shown at C. B. Routley's store, whose reasonable sale has brought many buyers. Assistance is given to buyers in selecting the decorative schemes intended for particular rooms, and advice given which is calculated to harmonize and accentuate the desired effects. Then the window blinds and room mouldings have their relative value in fixing up the room. These are also to be found in large variety at Routley's, and the sacrificing prices which have been marked on all goods have proven to be inducements to those buying now for spring renovating and beautifying.

The same saving of money lies between paying highest prices for everything, and watching the newspapers for good buying chances where they appear. There should be no improvidence this year. Buy your necessities and buy them where you can buy the best values. The wise saving of money is a fine art, and when we invest we should have both pleasure and profit by our investments, which appears to be the rule with Routley's shoppers just now.

Foreigner Murdered On Street

MONTREAL, March 28.—Fred Prss, aged 36 years, a Ruthenian, is dead, and his body is at the morgue. The police are busy on the case, alleging that he died as the result of a blow over the head delivered by some unknown person, as the victim was hurrying home from a shop on St. Urbain street where he had bought a loaf of bread.

Prss boarded at 124 Wolfe street Covered with blood, he staggered into his room about 7 o'clock, and collapsed on the floor. A doctor was summoned, and he soon found that the man's skull had been fractured. In a few minutes the Ruthenian was dead. Later the body was removed to the morgue. An autopsy was performed and the police ordered to make a sharp investigation of every phase of the case.

It is claimed that Prss went into a shop to buy a loaf of bread. There it is said he found a woman engaged in an argument with the clerk on the price of bread. Prss took the woman's side of the contest. He had not gone far on his way home when he was hit on the head.

SUGAR FOR WOUNDS.

German army doctors are using sugar with great success in the treatment of wounds, it is reported. The method is simple. The wound is dressed with granulated sugar, and then bound. The sugar does not act as a disinfectant and must not be applied until the bleeding has stopped. But when applied to a clean wound surface healing proceeds with astonishing rapidity.

No washing of the wound is necessary when redressing, which is merely a matter of renewing the application of sugar every second or third day.

St. George's Day at St. George's Church

The arrangements for the celebration of St. George's Day in Peterborough are now nearly completed. It will begin with a service at St. George's church on the eve of the Patron Saint's Day, viz., April 22nd. The preacher will be the Rev. Canon Cornish. The service as in former years, will be of a special character, suitable for the occasion. This will be followed by a service at St. John's church on the evening of St. George's Day, April 22nd. The special preacher will be the Ven. Archdeacon Cody of Toronto. This service will also be of a special character. Further announcement will be made in these columns as to the special music arranged for this National Service.

As on the former preceding years, Red Roses will be supplied by the Ladies' Guild of St. George's church, and already arrangements have been made to organize the city and it its suburbs for the sale of this National Emblem.

A large number of willing hands have already undertaken the task of thoroughly canvassing the town and to push their sale to the utmost. This work will be done on Saturday, April 21st. Our readers will remember that the Red Roses were always distributed on the Saturday preceding St. George's Day.

The proceeds will be given in aid of St. George's church, which has suffered through the war much more than any other church in the town, according to the number of its congregation. Nearly all of its eligible man have enlisted.

CITY GARDEN CLUB FORMED FOR GREATER PRODUCTION

After the Egyptian campaign a great number of men were out of employment and as a measure of relief Mr. Joseph Chamberlain proposed the Allotment Act which expressed the popular cry "give every man five acres and a cow." In America Philadelphia has gardened vacant lots for twenty years, Cleveland five, Minneapolis six years The movement was begun in Toronto in 1915 by the Rotary Club, of which Mr. Robson is president. The splendid results attained have been largely due to his efforts, and after listening to his message last night it is easy to understand the immediate influence of this inspiration..

First Consideration.

Lots to be used should selected for their area, clearance and accessibility. There should be an agreement with the owners who for unforseen conditions might require the land before the crop is gathered. Avoid too different plans Mr. Robson advised. Better results would be obtained through intensive instead of extensive work. Lots should be selected where a number of men can work together. It provided the joy of community effort, it made for harmony, was less expensive in ploughing and harrowing.

For the working man who can give only the early morning and evening one-eighth of an acre was a large enough lot. In Toronto identification cards were issued and a change of one dollar made to prevent some people from attempting more than they could carry out. The card system kept other persons from laying claim to vegetables that didn't belong to them, and provided an exact record of the workers. This tallied with a blue print of the locations. The police, boy scouts and neighbours were instructed to ask strangers on any lot for their identification cards. By this means, Toronto had practically no produce stolen.

After the allocation of lots follows the distribution of seeds. The Rotary Club provided for each gardener ten tomato plants, fifty cabbage, and a peck of tomatoes. One market gardener donated 4,000 tomato plants and it was proved that the free gardening did not injure, but rather helped the business of the professional gardeners Toronto had 130 plots with 462 men, women and children working them in 1915 with a harvest worth $5700. Last year there were 264 plots producing $9,000 worth of vegetables.

In Dayton, O., the work was extended to the planting of nasturtiums along the main street, a feature that stimulated civic interest. Vacant lot gardening created a broader spirit of industry and honesty. Last year sixty four returned soldiers took up the work in Toronto. If then many of them bearing permanent injuries, could make a success of the work every man, woman and child should be able to duplicate it, Mr. Robson said. He urged that the movement be considered from the imperial standpoint this year.

The eyes of a large district were turned toward Peterborough to see what was going to be done here. It was encouraging that the City Council, Trades and Labour Council, Y.M.C.A. and churches and other bodies had already shown their interest. In closing Mr. Robson referred to the effect of community gardening, the broader humanities and the abiding lessons taught through the association with nature.

A vote of thanks was tendered the speaker on motion of Rev. Dean McColl, seconded by Chief Howard. Dean McColl complimented Mr. Robson for his fine address. It was gratifying that the government had extended to cities the assistance formerly confined to rural districts. Gardening should exert a beneficial influence upon children occupying their time, providing exercise and the spirit of emulation.

Questions were presented by Mr. J. Kinnet, Mr. N. Mills, Mr. Meserve and others were taken up by Mr. Robson, and it was upon Mr. Meserve's suggestion that immediate action be taken to form an organization.

Mr. J. E. Smith of Farm and Dairy who is assisting in the Y.M.C.A. movement, Mr. Walter Oke, M. J. Maher, and Mayor Duffus supported the proposal and the appointment of a nominating committee was moved by Mr. Meserve, seconded by Mr. John Primeau.

The meeting last night disclosed the fact that there is a wide interest in home gardening in Peterborough and the future preparations should attract everyone who desires to assist in this summer's production scheme. Mr. Robson, particularly emphasized the help that women can give and advised that they be encouraged to participate in the work.

PRESENTATION AND ADDRESS TO FRASERVILLE COUPLE

The members of Fraserville Methodist Sabbath school, the League and choir, gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Lewers on Monday evening, March 12, to congratulate and bid adieu to Miss Edythe Lewers and Mr. Harry Deyell on the eve of their approaching marriage.

The following address was read by Mrs. W. A. Kidd, and a kitchen shower presented by the choir and Epworth League where the young couple have both been valued workers.

Dear Edythe and Harry.

It is with deep regret that we learn of your removal from our midst and we feel that when we can not let you go without showing in some way our appreciation of your labours in our choir and League. We have found you ever ready to assist in any worthy cause, and we look back over the years you have been in our midst we have pleasant recollections of your associations with us as workers in the Master's service.

As a slight token of our appreciation of your work and esteem will you accept these tokens from the Fraserville choir and League.

As you sever your connections with us be assured that you carry with you our best wishes for the prosperity, health and happiness of you both, and in making new friends in your future sphere of life. We trust that you will not forget the old ones. Although you are leaving our immediate neighbourhood we are glad that we shall occasionally meet you from time to time. We pray that God may ever prosper you through the years to come.

Signed on behalf of the choir and League.

Mrs. Wickett.
Mrs. Kidd.

Later in the evening they were again called forward and Mrs. J. White read the following address, while Mr. Willard Waterman presented a handsome leather rocker from the members of the Sabbath school.

To our Dear Friends, Edythe and Harry—

We, the members of Fraserville Methodist Sabbath school have learned with regret, and yet with joy, of your intended removal from our ranks as a teacher and secretary of our school, but we are comforted with the fact that our loss will be the gain of another community and church.

It is however, with mingled feelings, that we assemble in the house of your parents, to not only bid adieu, but to express to you our very best wishes, for you future happiness and prosperity and to express, though in a small degree, our appreciation of your faithful efforts in every direction of the church activity, and especially in our Sabbath school.

Therefore we ask you to accept this chair as a silght token of your faithful labours and your willingness to assist in every good word and work, which had for its aims the betterment of the community along the lines of intellectual, moral and spiritual development.

And with the token of love and appreciation as a school, we offer a prayer that the blessing of God, which maketh rich, and added no sorrow thereto, may be showered upon you in your new home, which is indeed, the foundation of the church and state.

May you each be a tower of strength for righteousness and your home and home life a centre of religious influence and activity, that at last when your work is done and you rest from your labours, your works may follow you. That it may be said of you. They build greater than they knew.

James White, Asst. Superintendent.
W. Waterman, Asst. Secretary.

Although very much taken by surprise both made suitable replies, and a pleasant evening was spent in music and games, refreshments were served and after singing 'God be with us till we meet again,' the gathering dispersed in the wee sma' hours with all good wishes for the future of the young couple.

Harvard Ready To Aid The Government in War

Cambridge, Mass. — Harvard University has announced the steps which it had taken to prepare for war. A committee of the faculty appointed on Feb. 12, has been actively at work on all the arrangements for military preparedness, it was stated, "to the end that the facilities at Harvard may be used to the fullest advantage in the event of war."

Although it is not contemplated that during the coming academic year the regular courses of instruction shall be suspended, it has been suggested that all men who may enter the government service will be allowed to take a special examination and end their studies, with credit for the work performed. As the reserve officers' training corps now numbers 1200 men and approximately 500 others are enrolled members of the National Guard, naval reserves or aviation corps, a considerable part of the students and younger instructors would be affected by the provision in the event of a call to arms.

For the next academic year, the Harvard authorities announced, they were prepared to offer the same courses of instruction in all departments as in other years. "Consistent with this the university will be ready to render such service to the government as lies within its power."

It was stated that there had been no request for the use of the university as a camp during term time, and that there had been no decision regarding possible use of the university for that purpose during the summer months, although if the government requested the use of the dormitories as barracks during the summer "it is reasonably certain they will be available."

Submarine Warfare Cannot Succeed Says Leader of a Reichstag Party

STOCKHOLM, March 28.—Dr. Albert. O. W. Suedekum, one of the best known leaders of the majority Socialists in the Reichstag, in an interview here with the correspondent of the Associated Press said that whoever thought the submarine war was going to bring England to starvation in six months was deceiving himself. He declined to hasard a prediction on the result of the possible participation of America in the war on the side of the entente, but added:

"Anyhow, America has been virtually in the war practically since the beginning. If it had not been for American ammunition the war would have ended in 1915."

In reference to a statement attributed to former Ambassador Gerard that the food situation might effect Germany's military strength, Dr. Suedekum said: "There is not the slightest danger of that, even in the improbable event of the war lasting a year or two more. If other foods fail, we can increase our meat rations. We have 17,000,000 swine to-day and the normal number before the war was only about 19,750,000. We have about 7,500,000 cattle against a peace normal of about 1,000,000 or 1,500,000 more.

"If necessary we could butcher all but a minimum of brood animals. It is true we are short of food, but we are not starving."

In regard to the split in the Socialist party, Dr. Suedekum said: "The small minority which broke away from the old party is merely a sort of safety valve for blowing off the pressure of discontent. There is bound to be a certain number of disgruntled individuals and malcontents in every part, even in normal times, and naturally much more so in time of war. These people must have an outlet for their discontent, and the seceding Socialists furnish this outlet. The secession movement is of no consequence, the seceders themselves being split up into various groups. I predict these divisions will disappear with the coming of peace."

8 BOXES CURED PSORIASIS

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Gananoque, Ont., writes: "Three doctors described my trouble as psoriasis, and one said could never be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head, and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment and am entirely cured—not a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise this Ointment enough."

ITALY'S FUTURE IN THE WAR NOT ALL ROSY, MANY PROBLEMS REMAIN TO BE SOLVED

London, March 28.—It is believed that the conference in Rome several weeks ago, at which Mr. Lloyd George was, by common consent, the dominant figure, did a good deal to put the question of Italy's contribution towards the common stock of the allies' effort on a more satisfactory basis.

At the same time, there are several questions which still give rise to serious apprehension.

The first of these is the stranglehold which German financial intrigue had succeeded in establishing over Italian commerce and finance. German control of this kind has been very rapidly liquidated of late—mainly owing to Great Britain's assistance. It is gratifying to learn that the Italian Government has formulated a number of measures designed to expedite the complete closing down, or absorption, of enemy banking and other financial institutions. Still a good deal remains to be done.

Then there is the question of the rise in the rate of exchange, which is very serious. At the beginning of the war the exchange against Italy did not exceed one per cent. To-day it averages forty-five per cent.—about three times as high as the highest figure it has previously reached in the country's annals since unification took place. The chief causes of this are excessive paper circulation, brought about by the very general hoarding of gold; the fall in exports, and the increase in imports. The first of these causes can be largely removed if only the Italian Government will take the necessary steps to requisition the hoarded gold, and also foreign securities. And at the same is true of the third cause, if only the Government will adopt a policy of restriction on imports.

The mercantile marine situation has not been grappled with. The opportunity of purchasing vessels from neutral countries has been neglected. Work in the harbours, to expedite the loading and unloading of ships, has not been organised, and in this regard it is said that sinister influences have been responsible for a good deal of the dilatoriness.

Finally, there is the question of the food supply, which is intimately linked up with the other matters mentioned. Prices are soaring, and yet no adequate steps are being taken by the Government either to increase the production of the soil, or to proceed to a rational distribution of foodstuffs generally.

POISONED PRINCE TO AID POWER OF MONK RASPUTIN

Petrograd. — The superstitious belief that the health and even the life of Grand Duke Alexis, the young heir apparent, depended on the presence of Gregory Rasputin, the mystic monk—a notion which is generally known to have accounted for Rasputin's tremendous influence over the imperial family—is explained in the following extraordinary manner by the Russky Slovo.

Rasputin, according to the newspaper, stated in confidence to friends at convivial moments that he was able to fortify this superstition with the help of Madam Virubova, lady-in-waiting to the Empress, and that Badmader, the court physician, until the Empress was absolutely convinced that the life of her son depended on the monk. Whenever Rasputin was absent for any length of time from the court Madame Virubova, according to the monk's story, as given by the newspaper, obtained poisonous powders from the physician and contrived to place them in food brought to Alexis. The result was that during Rasputin's absence the delicate health of the young heir apparent grew gradually worse until Rasputin was summoned back to the court, when the powders were stopped and Alexis became immediately better.

Rasputin always announced that 40 days after his death Alexis would fall ill. This prophecy came true with startling accuracy being caused, the newspaper declares, by Madame Virubova administering another powder to the little Grand Duke in the hope of continuing the tradition of Rasputin's influence over the Imperial family and preparing the way for a successor to him.

SARNIA WORKMAN WAS ELECTROCUTED

MEETS ALMOST INSTANT DEATH WHILE IN BOILER.

SARNIA, March 27.—Arnold McDonald, an employee of the Mueller Brass Company, was almost instantly killed while cleaning out a boiler at the company's plant. Electrocution is believed to have been the cause of death, but under the circumstances, the coroner, Dr. William Logie, who was summoned, has ordered an inquest.

McDonald was in the interior of the boiler, and requested a fellow-employee to provide more light in order that he could see his work. An electric light on a cord was handed to the unfortunate man, and it is presumed that the dampness of the boiler and the man's body formed a short circuit that brought death.

McDonald was 28 years of age, and lived at 123 Capbel street. He had been employed at the Mueller plant for the past year and prior to that time with the Imperial Oil Company. His home is in Wallaceburg.

ICE AND SODA FOR TROOPS IN MESOPOTAMIA

Mr. Edmund Candler, in a dispatch from Mesopotamia, describes how the army, whilst it was demobilized by the winter mud, was anticipating the dust and flies of June.

All through the last hot weather, he writes, we were fighting conditions which, filled England with convalescents, I have mentioned the gradual improvement of tentage. Preparations are in hand which, it is hoped, will materialize into the provision of ice plants at all the big stations on the line of communications, soda water factories, calculated to turn out so much per head per day, frozen meat, to be conveyed upstream in insulated barges, vegetable gardens of over 3,000 acres, grass farms for hay ,to save transport, chopped straw presses, a chicken farm at the base, dairy farms, provisions for sterilized milk, a more systematic arrangement for the purchase of fresh meat and local produce, labour and transport saving apparatus, such as gravity rollers and atta mills and field force canteens with their special staffs and their own transport barges and steamers. Tenting will be improved, and more matting roofing, and hut shelters provided.

All this should improve the health of the troops, though ,of course, no transport in the world can bring in material to eliminate the toll of the sun, or to make them as comfortable here as in cantonments.

That we have occupied over 300 miles of this inhospitable country, and still hold it, is a matter for which those who are responsible have not received the credit which is their due. We on the spot who sometimes read in the home papers of the "Muddle in Mesopotamia" and the lamentable hardships we have to endure, remember that this blessed country is a very long way from Europe, that it contains little or nothing of the elemental material out of which the necessities of life are contrived, that fuel has to be imported everywhere, and even water in certain spots, where our troops bivouac and that the conquest of the country is not Great Britain's only preoccupation. If we curse a bit as we kick our shins against one obstacle after another we are none the less confident that the god in the machine is doing all he can.

ASK ELECTORS TO APPROVE PAY FOR ALDERMEN

Verdun Council Decides to Send Question to the People for a Decision.

MONTREAL, March 28.—If the majority of property owners of Verdun who are municipal electors approve, both by numbers and values of their holding, of the by-law given its first and second reading at the meeting of the Verdun Council, then the Mayor and aldermen, to be elected on Monday next, will receive salaries for their labours, the mayor $1,000 a year, and the aldermen $500 a year each. The by-law was adopted unanimously on the motion of Alderman Bougie, seconded by Alderman Cohn, and will be submitted to the property owners within thirty days.

The proposals to install the Gamewell system of fire alarms and police patrols, and a new system of street lighting, as outlined by Aldermen Dawe and Maybury, respectively, at a former meeting, were held in abeyance until the new council would come into power, the aldermen mentioned stating that as the elections were now in progress they did not consider it fair to go ahead with these matters.

City Gets $3,500 of Insurance For the Court House Loss

At a meeting of the special building committee of the County Council yesterday afternoon the city's share of the $18,700 insurance was fixed at $3,500. The money has not been paid over by the insurance companies yet, but the adjustment of the amount was settled only recently. The county's interest in the Court House was $48,044 with $27,000 insurance, and the city's $9,782 in the building with $6,000 insurance. The county retains $15,200 of the insurance covering the fire loss and in the rebuilding the two corporations will have to make arrangements covering their participation in the work.

Address By The Rev. R. A. Hiltz

Rev. R. A. Hiltz, M.A., gave a most interesting and instructive address last night to the Anglican Sunday school teachers of Peterborough, in the Parish Hall of All Saints' church. The subject of the address was, 'New Conception of Sunday School,' and was of a general inspirational nature. He showed the development of Sunday schools and pointed out the greater opportunity Sunday schools of today offered.

After the address dainty refreshments were served and a solo by Miss Quartermaine very much enjoyed.

Toronto Penny Bank Flourishes

60,389 Pupils Have 31,646 Accounts —A Summary

TORONTO, March 27.— A total of 60,389 pupils in Toronto schools have 31,646 accounts in the Penny Bank. The percentage of pupils with accounts is 52.4. Grade Junior 2 has the highest percentage, 69.1, whereas the highest grade the Senior 5, has the lowest, 6.87. From "a summary of information" just published, it is seen that deposits are taken to the bank by principals in 9 schools, by principals' assistants in 5, pupils in 66, and by "others" in 3. A similar system is used for returning the books from the bank to the school. The average cost of carfare per month is 8 cents, paid in 25 cases by the penny bank, in 2 by the principal, and in 4 by the Board of Education.

Stomach Troubles Due To Acidity

So Says New York Physician.

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, belind, stomach-ache and inability to retain food, are in probably nine cases out of ten simply evidence that fermentation is taking place in the food contents of the stomach causing the formation of gas and acids. Wind distends the stomach and causes that full, oppressive feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate linings of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the excessive secretion of acid and the fermentation of food. Such fermentation is unnatural, and may involve harmful consequences if not corrected. To stop or prevent fermentation of food contents of the stomach and to neutralize the acid and render it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of diluted magnesia, perhaps the best and most effective corrector of acid stomach known, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water immediately after eating, or whenever wind of acidity is felt. This stops the fermentation, and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments. Fermentation, wind and acidity are unnecessary. Stop or prevent them by the use of a proper antacid, such as diluted magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist and thus enable the stomach to do its work properly without being hindered by gas and excessive acids.

Voice of The People

Correspondence under this heading, containing or involving attacks on individuals or violent or extreme statements, must to secure insertion, be signed with writer's real name, the owner of which thus assumes the responsibility.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—The letter from an officer of the 93rd, now doing duty in France, which you published last night ought to be rebuke enough for the people who stay at home and enjoy themselves and criticise some of those belonging to the good old 93rd, for not doing what these people are doing. Believe me, there is no boy belonging to the 93rd doing the kicking, only people who never belonged to anything but what had some fun in it, nothing more dangerous than euchre the 93rd, has no complaint, it was well trained and has done well and no man of it, from the Colonel down, sacked out of doing what he enlisted to do and what he earned, and when the government and people at home expect a whole lot more, they are unfair and they are the ones most to blame. Be loyal to your town's battalions and stop grouchin. The men ain't grouchin.

ONE WHO KNOWS

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In last night's Review Mr. A. H. Stratton, the Editor of the Review, suggested that certain persons were responsible for the mayoralty campaign of a year ago this winter, and that the Liberals generally had played fast and lose with the candidates. Mr. Stratton was a Liberal then, and it would be illuminating to know which one of the three candidates he voted for, as the story has gone abroad, that he was supposed to be supporting each one of the three, and as he only had one vote it might be fair as he has questioned the loyalty of some other persons, to know what he did with that vote.

Yours truly,

CIVIS.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I was pleased to see that Mr. Burnham put himself right that he was not responsible for the editorials in the Review. A great many persons think as Mr. Burnham is a member, that he inspires and countenances, not the general policy of the Review, perhaps, but the political side of it, and I am pleased to learn that he has not been behind or responsible for the Review's attacks upon the Band of the 93rd Battalion, certain officers who tried to get to the front, and did not succeed, and the attacks that have been made upon various men of prominence in the city.

Yours truly,

Liberal-Conservative.

Union Bank Offers 20 Acres For Use By Amateur Gardeners

Mr. Stocker announced at last night's meeting in support of a greater production movement that the Union Bank had offered through Mr. C. H. Pennefather twenty acres of good land in the south end of the city. It is becoming more and more apparent that the present efforts will provide more land than workers.

Spiritual Exhaustion Of The German Masses

"Spiritual exhaustion of the masses is, in my judgement, the gravest problem before the German leaders today. There is no doubt that the majority of the people is woefully fagged. Their patriotism has lost its fervor, its eagerness. The great body of the wage earners sees no end of its privations and sufferings. Ruin, decay, want and sadness oppress one on every hand. War has turned one of the happiest, busiest, brightest lands I know into a misery-drenched nightmare. The resulting exhaustion of spirit is a cancer gnawing at the strength of Germany's war machine. It sends its impulses from the ranks of the sufferin~ poor to dru~ the energies of the whole nation. Its progress can only be stop~ed by lightening the gruelling pressure that the working people have been called upon to bear."

A. Curtis Roth, American Vice-Consul at Plauen, Saxony, thus sums up that which he hold to be the most important phase of Germany's situation. By reason of his wide acquaintance and long residence among the Germans, he has been a privileged observer since the beginning of the war. Counting his friends among all classes of the people, he has been freely admitted to share their sentiments, their hopes, their opinions.

"UTTERLY WEARY OF WAR."

"Germans of all classes are utterly weary of war. The working people are becoming rebellious toward the conditions of their sufferings. Once the present struggle is ended, in my opinion, it will be impossible to move the people who remember the horrors of the last two years to take up arms again. They will make short work of their war agitators in the future as long as the appalling memories of wholesale death and maiming, of ugly famine, of the drudgery of tender women and children, and of the uncanny silences of factories and stores remain with them.

"Germany went to war as though to a national picnic. An avalanche of laughing, jokin singing, flower-bedecked troops poured through my district for the western front throughout the first eleven days of the war. Men fought to enlist, and flushed strained faced women cheered each crowded train that thundered through the station. There were flags, music exultation. 'Merry friends said 'Good-by till winter.' The war was to be a short war and was to make Germany's position secure once for all.

"All this confident, exuberant spirit is gone now. The change came when the wounded and the men on furlough brought back the news of the debacle on the Marne. The change from enthusiasm to depression was accelerated by the reports of unfavorable neutral opinion, by the startling casuality lists and by the shutting down of numerous mills and factories dependent on export trade. The numbing monotony of a growing hunger completed the change.

"Now the spirit of the people in general is of weary resignation. The spirit of the laboring people, however who have borne almost to the limits of their endurance, is becoming one of sullen protest. The home atmosphere reacts upon the soldiers back on furlough. In the beginning, the hurried eagerly from their homes to go to their duty in the field. Now they go with dread, with reluctance, with foreboding. The faces in the ranks marching out to entrain to-day are overcast or expressionless. The wreathes around accoutrements, are missing; the songs are missing the uniforms are frayed and patched. And beside these sombre columns, stream red eyed, fearful women and children, crying over last farewells to a soldier husband, father, son. It is not a pretty sight.

"Ruin, misery, privation, stares one out of countenance everywhere in Saxony. Even upon the spectator apart, the atmosphere weighs like a leaden thing. What makes this atmosphere Street filled with white-faced, hollow eyed, brooding women in black, with piteous, hunger-pinched poor, with sightless, legless, armless, evil scarred war cripples, mirthless figures where formerly all was life, deserted stores and roadbeds free of traffic, empty factories,drawn blinds the dry sobbin~ of the newly widowed, set faces, fearful faces, vacant faces.

FEAR ECONOMIC CHAOS.

"Even the intensely patriotic well-to-do are filled with dread before an approaching financial chaos. I have listened to many appreciative discussions as to how the staggering war costs are to be borne and the frightful economic wounds healed. To-day every semblance of a luxury remaining to the nation bears its war tax The tax collector is bringing into the coffers of state every pfenning that a bloodless land can spare. I believe the government will be forced to take up the war loan without interest and that the people will content themselves with the repayment of the principal.

"War business is not a profitable business, at least, not so far as Saxony is concerned. It has brought about a stagnation of industry, a marked diminishing of the land's income, an accentuated disequalization of incom, and the piling up of an enormous debt. All building and construction work has been at a complete standstill for more than a year. Even much of the necessary repair work is neglected. War industries boom and throb but the life giving industries of peace are wasting. The greatest business in my district to-day is that of charity, a ceaseless outpouring of pittances in vain endeavour to staunch an ocean of miserable want that threatens to overwhelm the land.

SOLDIER MATERIAL SCARCE.

"Soldier material is becoming very scarce. The young men are gone. The married men are gone. The fathers of families are gone. The physically-fit men, who at first were passed by the military authorities on account of being needed in their civilian employments, have by now practically all been replaced by wives, daughters, old men and prisoners.The bureaus of city, country and State government were slowly taken over by the women, and the male clerks, messengers and petty officials thus freed, were hurried to the insatiate battle fronts. The police have been replaced by old men. Boys and young girls clean the streets, and coll~t the dirt. Women drive the post wagons and the street cars. Russian prisoners repair the roads and farm the fields. The manhood of Germany has but one task, that of fighting and dying.

"I am not imaginative and my nerves are good; but the continual living in the midst of this barren life of tears, of hunger and decay, almost drove me frantic.

"I cannot imagine that life upon the firing line can be as trying as life among the dumb, suffering, waiting, helpless people back home. To relieve the strain, I spent a brief vacation in England at the end of 1915. There the air I breathed was different. The resolution of the people there was buoyant, hopeful, cheery. The contrast was one of black and white. It was soul healing."

AIDED BRITISH BUSINESS.

Mr. Roth, on the occasion of his trip to England, received marked courtesy from the English officials who had learned of several energetic actions he had taken in behalf of their countrymen in Germany. He obtained after difficult negotiations a lightening of the burdensome regulations affecting the English women in his district. He effected the release of a number of English boys under the age of 17, and at the beginning of the war it was due to his insistent representations that the English were not confined in a jail but in a hotel, pending the preparation of the interment camp at Ruhelehen.

"Every one in trouble came to the Consulate sooner or later," he said. "There was a rush of young Germans to the office with their first American papers when the war broke out for passports. Of course we could not help them. Among those who sought our help was the famous Russian 'cellist, Cassini. He went through some bitter experiences trying to get out of Saxony at the beginning of the war. He and his priceless instrument are now waiting, disconsolately, unfeted and unbefriended, in Plauen for the ending of the war.

"Germany's food stores will undoubtedly hold out until the next harvest. It is astonishing with how little one can get along and exist. One gets weak and despondent, but bread, potatoes, turnips and salt, and occasionally herring, suffice to maintain life. The really problematical question is, Will the German spirit endure?"

THE KAISER'S SENSE OF HUMOUR NOT DEVELOPED

Even in those dear dead days beyond recall, when the Teuton was held in much higher repute than he may ever be again, his admirers were obliged to confess that he was sadly lacking in the sense of humor. Says a writer in the Glasgow Herald. A little of the "saving grace" would they acknowledge, have prevented him sometimes from making himself ridiculous.

Lack of humour, however, is seldom if ever accompanied by realization of its want. The German was and is sublimely unconscious of his defect. It is sometimes the one humorous feature of the situation. He protests indignantly against what he regards as a slander. No humour! Why, just listen to those Homeric bursts of Teutonic daughter! Which reminds one that there are comic journals in Germany which produce Rabelaisian jokes with such elephantine lightness of touch as to cause Germans to rock and roar.

If one, in view of this, admits the "humour" he is bound at least to classify it as sui generis. Moreover, the German's mirth is never spontaneous. His is not, as Hans Muller Lisenow has confessed sorrowfully a gift of the gods, arising out of the exuberance of being." His attempts at jocularity are always clumsy and usually ill-natured. The jokes he appreciates are those associated with horseplay and with the infliction of pain.

Kaiser's Crude Ideas.

The Kaiser, who in his time has left few domains untouched, has adventured in that of humour—without adorning it. In this respect as in others he is worthy of his people. It is true that an admirer once credited him with "a highly developed sense of humour"; but one finds that this alleged "highly-developed sense" finds expression chiefly in puns of superlative badness, in jokes of more than ordinary stillness, in laughing at persons falling or being knocked down, in the enjoyment of hurting other persons' feelings by remarks which etiquette prevents the victims from replying to, in inventing nicknames, and in laughing boisterously at his own "jokes."

The Kaiser's "humour" is also witnessed in his habit of pinching the ears of members of his entourage —both sexes sharing the distinguished privilege. In regard to this more than one person, however, has commented wickedly on His Majesty's lack of originality. It is difficult to believe that the imitation of the First Napoleon is unconscious.

In the theatre subtle humour was always lost on the Kaiser. The humour required to be broad and obvious. Farce appealed more readily to him than comedy. It was noticed that when he, along with King George and Queen Mary, attended the "command" performance of 'Money' in the Drury Lane Theatre the only time he laughed was when Sir Herbert Tree produced his ridiculous black-bordered handkerchief.

In a recently published volume of "Memories of the Kaiser's Court' the author describes one of the Princess Victoria's Luise's accomplishments—the schoolboy trick of making with the mouth and cheek the "pop" of a champagne cork and the subsequent gurgle of the flowing wine. She acquired the trick from "Papa." This sort of thing perpetrated in the bosom of his family may be forgiven the Kaiser, but it is interesting as an example of the sort of fireside humour cultivated by the All Highest.

FUN OR INSULT.

The Kaiser used to make a point of being present at the annual Herrenabend (gentlemen's night) at the Naval Officers' Club at Wilhelmshaven—having a peculiarly strong liking for the "humour" on tap there. Only naval officers were admitted; the programme of comic songs conjuring tricks, and theatricals was furnished by officers; lieutenants dressed as bluejackets handed round beer and cigars, and other officers dressed as policemen patrolled the hall. The theatricals consisted of sharp, ill-natured parodies of some of the naval events of the year, and the foibles of some of the higher officers were mercilessly portrayed and broadly exaggerated. Sometimes the victim lost his temper and endeavored to leave the room, in which case he was marched back to his seat by mimic policemen, greatly to the delight of the Kaiser. His Majesty occasionally lent his personal assistance in these performances, which he enjoyed immensely, and which, indeed, could not have been conducted but for his encouragement. They were by no means relished by the Admirals. There have been no Herrenabend theatricals since the outbreak of the war! The last were held in January, 1914.

On the occasion of one of His Majesty's provincial tours an incident happned which was regarded by Germans as illustrating the Kaiser's keen sense of humour, but which may suggest rather to others his lack of good manners and equal lack of feeling. The Burgomaster of the town had the honour to be invited to dine with the royal party. The number of Germans who know how to use a table napkin is infinitesimal and the Burgomaster tucked his under his chin in the most approved Teutonic fashion. "Do you want a shave?" inquired the All Highest, pleasantly; and the Court roared with laughter at the magnificent joke."

The Kaiser did not have the justification of one of his predecessors who was appealed to by two ladies of the Court in a silly dispute as to precedence. "Let precedence be given to the more foolish of the two," declared the Prussian monarch with a sardonic grin. Possibly he had heard of the more witty decision of Charles V. of France in a similar dispute. "Let the elder go first," said Charles. The two decisions mar ka distinction between French wit and even the best Teutonic "humour."

On one occasion when the Kaiser was travelling by train with a few intimate friends he suddenly noticed in the royal saloon an impressive male servant in livery with whose face he was unacquainted. "Who is that man?" he demanded of his secretary, "and what is he doing here?" On inquiry it was discovered that the man was a reporter who in some extraordinary way had managed to introduce himself on the strength of wearing the imperial livery. It was a variant of the old story of the value of a uniform. The Kaiser at first looked as if he would have liked to order the offender to instant execution, but gradually a grim smile broke over his countenance. He ordered the train to be stopped, and the journalist was deposited on th railway track some ten miles from the nearest station. The War Lord spent the next ten minutes in continuous bursts of laughter, and the "joke" kept him chortling for the rest of the day.

The Kaiser once gave great delight to a large gathering in Munich by his "jocularity." There had been a gymnastic display which elicited his warm commendation, and at the close he delivered a eulogy on gymnastics—declaring them to be both amusing and agreeable. He was asked for his autograph, and consented to give it. To enable him to sign with comfort a table was brought and was placed on the platform. It was then the Kaiser delivered himself of his brilliant joke "I thought" he remarked, "I should have to jump over the table and I was just about to take my coat off."

BOWLING NEWS

Last night in the league game the Sugar Kings sprang a surprise on the Printers, the league leaders, taking two out of the three games, and also giving them a very close run for the third game.

The Printers certainly had a night off, as none of their men reached the 500 mark, while Heard and Outram for the grocers were the only players who passed the 500 mark.

Hard spares were made by Moore and Wilson of the Printers while Heard, Outram and Fitzgerald pulled off the same stunts for the grocers. Score:

Engineers Won From the Factory.

The engineering staff of the Can. Gen. Elec. played a friendly game with a team picked up from the factory at the Water street alleys Monday night.

The game was quite interesting and caused some anxiety at times. The Engineering Staff won two of the three games. The factory team had the high game in the second game and rolled up a count of 851 pins, which was the only game over the 800 mark.

BOY SHOT BY YOUTH AS DOG FIGHT SEQUEL

St. Thomas Yougster Was Seriously Wounded.

ST. THOMAS, March 28.—Wilfrid Skelding, 15 years of age, was shot in the right leg and seriously wounded while playing in the ravine near the Wabash Railway bridge on Sunday. One of his companions, Dick Archibald, a lad of 17 years, discharged a gun while it was pointed at Skelding.

The boys with several companions were playing in the ravine. Both Skelding and Archibald had a dog. When the dogs started fighting one of the boys wanted to separate them, but Archibald, according to Skelding, threatened to shoot anyone who attempted to stop the fight. Skelding would not permit the dogs to continue, and Archibald, it is alleged, drew his gun and fired. The first shot went wide of the mark, but Archibald reloaded and fired again, the bullet entering Skelding's right leg.

The boy was carried home by his companions and a physician summoned. Skelding will be laid up for several weeks.

German Flyers Drop Deadly Objects on Northern France.

PARIS, March 28.—The newspapers of Besancon say that German aeroplanes are dropping on French territory objects quite inoffensive in appearance, but which are in reality of the utmost deadliness.

Candy containing germs of epidemic diseases, fatal to any person eating it, and hand bags and pocket books filled with dangerous explosives which detonate on contact, have been cast down by German flyers, these newspapers declare.

VIVIAN MARTIN

IN THE GREAT DRAMA ENTITLED

"HER FATHER'S SON"

VIVIAN MARTIN in "HER FATHER'S SON"

The sweet winsomeness and endearing charm of VIVIAN MARTIN are alone enough to guarantee the worth of productions in which she is starred.

Add to these a splendid story, admirably suited to her wonderful personality and a combination is effected which will delight and entertain everyone.

In "Her Father's Son" Miss Martin plays a dual role, both charming and exciting. Romance is cleverly interwoven with drama and fun in a story enacted in an atmosphere and locale of historic Southern chivalry and tradition.

There are many phases of interest to this remarkable offering.

First, is Miss Martin as Frances, the only daughter of a poor planter. Then after her Father's death she masquerades as Francis, a boy, and goes to live with her father, brother, wealthy and proud. Then Betty, his only daughter almost falls in love with the pseudo Francis. Finally Francis still in the guise of a boy confronts her sweetheart, Lieut. Harkness, on the "field of honor," challenged after she had seemingly insulted him.

His amazement at the discovery that she is Frances, and not Francis, and the thrilling climax to this original situation leave a pleasant sensation of thrill and delight.

45 Horses Bought By Invading Dealers In the City To-day

The first horse fair held in the city to-day had few of the vivid elements of Rosa Bonheur's celebrated conception. About fifty buyers were present and at 3 o'clock forty-five horses had been purchased. The prices ruled from $60 to $190 for the animals and with better weather it was felt that even a better showing would have been made. The next sale will be held on the last Wednesday of April. Farmers having horses for sale are reminded of this opportunity. The sale to-day was advertised for the market but the buyers wandered out on to the streets and dispersed to Ashburnham and other sections of the city, holding up practically every farmer that came into the city, and offering to buy his steeds. Several of the buyers expressed their satisfaction with the local sale, blamed the weather man for the bad roads and admitted that the approach of the plowing season is not the most suitable time of the year for horse sales.

Another Council Meeting To-night

Another Council meeting to-night. One continuous whirl of enjoyment for those of the aldermen who "hate" themselves, and particularly regard their voices as discordant and displeasing sounds. Those who are sincerely concerned with advancing the city's business without blowing all around the compass are positively weary of what they term unnecessary meetings. Vacillation with the single exception of fixed attention upon the great question to some of the Council "What will people say" are blamed for the numerous meetings, the continuous action and the limited progress. Another well-worn record will be turned on again to-night.

WEDDING BELLS

MARSH—WHITFIELD

A charming military wedding was solemnised yesterday afternoon in the Springville Presbyterian church when Bertha Irene, second daughter of Mrs. Jane Whitfield was united in marriage to Sergeant James W. Marsh, 227th Battalion, Hamilton, son of Rev. Dr. Marsh, Holstein, formerly of Springville. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Marsh, assisted by Rev. Mr. Craw.

The church was beautifully decorated in military fashion with flags and bunting by friends of the contracting parties.

The bride who was unattended, entered the church to the strains of the wedding march, played by Miss Helen White, and looked very lovely in a tailored suit of navy blue, wearing a small grey hat with pink roses, and grey shoes and a huge bouquet of bridal roses. She was given away by her uncle, Mr. Wm. Whitfield. During the signing of the register, a solo was rendered by Miss Henry. After the ceremony the happy couple left by the 3.45 for Toronto and points west. They will reside in Hamilton, corner of Carrie and Main streets until Sergt. Marsh leaves for overseas.

FRENCH HATRED REVIVED.

PARIS, March 23. —As the tide of the Allies' victorious advance continues to sweep forward with unhoped-for swiftness, redeeming towns, villages, and entire departments, the joy of victory is chastened by anguish at the ruthless devastation wrought by the retiring Germans. The people are beginning to realize that the smiling French provinces which were invaded in 1914 among the richest in France, are for a great part waste desert land strewn with ruins, that many villages and townships are but a name upon the map. And the old fury of hatred against the invaders revives and the anger glows to white heat. It seems as if the accumulation of the world's animosity was not sufficient for the German high command, who are evidently bent on leaving an indelible mark on the sites which witnessed the beginning of the retreat.

The historic towns of Peronne, Bapaume, and Roye are mostly in ruins. Houses were pillaged from roof to cellar. But worse than the destructions in the towns is the havoc wrought in villages and the surrounding country, where everything has been laid waste, fruit trees felled, fields and roads mined, so that it appears an earthquake has passed. The only town which was left nearly intact was Noyon, where, strange to say, the population was almost double what it had been before the war, owing to the concentration of the inhabitants of surrounding villages..

As the good news of the continued advance flows in it finds the strongest echo among the refugees from the liberated districts who are now in Paris. In the Palais Royal, where the inhabitants of the Oise Department are installed, great excitement prevails, people flocking to the galleries and gardens, discussing the war bulletins, speculating on the chances of a speedy return to their homesteads. Impatient refugees throng the various bureaus representing their provinces, asking when they will be able to return.

Despite the efforts of some writers to present the German retreat as a flight, competent critics fully realise this is not the case, and that the Germans are carrying out a methodical plan the object of which is not yet apparent, although it is generally believed they will establish themselves on the line formed by the canals and rivers south of Arras to the Forest of Saint Gobain.

BRITISH STILL ADVANCE ON WESTERN FRONT

THE GERMANS ARE UNABLE TO HALT AND "DIG IN"

The Blockade Will Have Effect On Final Outcome

Is Producing Discontent Among the German People, Says Lord Robert Cecil—All Possible Being Done, Says Sir Edward—Satisfied There is No Leakage.

CLOSE CO-OPERATION

LONDON, March 29.—William A. Hewins and Carlyon W. Bellairs, Unionist members of the House of Commons raised the question of the effectiveness of the British blockade and the difficulties of enforcing it. Mr. Bellairs said the difficulties had been largely removed when the United States "the most powerful and most critical neutral" came in the side of the Entente Allies.

Closest Cooperation.

Lord Robert Cecil, Minister of Blockade assured the members of the House that the closest co-operation existed between the Admiralty and his department, Admiral Sir Dudley de Chair, formerly in command of the blockade squadron in the North Sea, having been appointed to advise him as to the views of the Admiralty and the Admiralty as to the views of the Foreign Office.

Lord Robert, in reviewing all the steps that had been adopted in connection with the blockade, emphasized the value of rationing by an agreement with some body in a neutral country as more smooth and effective than compulsory rationing.

He said the system of letters of assurance which had been arranged with the United States had been enormously important in smoothing over difficulties with that country, enabling the Government to know exactly what was going on concerning exports from the United States to neutrals and permitting the United States without unfairness or injustice to regulate supplies of these neutrals. In his judgment the measures adopted had succeeded completely in stopping overseas importations into enemy countries.

Satisfied no Leakage.

Lord Robert then produced a number of figures which he contended proved there was no leakage. He still felt, however, that everything necessary had not been done to complete the blockade of Germany. There was the question of the home produce of border neutrals, which was a most difficult subject. He said he had arrived at the conclusion that the only way to deal with this matter was by securing agreements with neutrals to stop or diminish such trade.

The Blockade Minister went at great length dnto the difficulties surrounding any attempt to compel neutral countries to sever all trade relations with Germany. The technical and military positions of those countries had to be considered, he said. Concerning Denmark, Lord Robert said the Government believed the agreements with Denmark had been honestly carried out and that there was no reason to modify the present blockade policy as affecting Denmark.

Effect Will Count.

Lord Robert concluded by saying that it would not be practicable to transfer the administration of the blockade to the Admiralty. He had never claimed, he said, that miracles could be achieved with the blockade but he believed there was a very great shortage of food in Germany, and a considerable shortage of other things as a result of the blockade.

"I cannot disregard or disbelieve repeated well authenticated statements of food riots," said the Blockade Minister, "as indicating profound discontent on the part of the German population with the prevailing conditions. I believe the war will only be won on the battlefield, but when we come to the final battle the effect of the blockade will count greatly."

Not Fight Everybody.

Sir Edward Carson, First Lord of the Admiralty, characterised the demand that the blockade should be left to the navy, as suggested in the House of Lords by Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, as absurd. The Cabinet had laid down the policy, and the Foreign Office, by negotiations and the navy by action had to carry out that policy. Sir Edward added that the adoption of a doctrine for the seizure of every neutral ship and its cargo would mean that Great Britain should go to war with everybody.

The Admiralty, Sir Edward continued, was satisfied with its relations with the Foreign Office and the present policy of the Cabinet was the only possible policy having regard for the complications that would ensue if the Government adopted a more aggressive attitude toward friendly neutrals. The First Sea Lord had told him, Sir Edward said, that he was aware of no other system than the existing one of blockading Germany through neutral countries. The Admiralty department was in thorough agreement and was working harmoniously with the Minister of Blockade and he believed everything possible was being done, Sir Edward concluded.

ALDERMEN GOING ON STRIKE UNLESS CITY CLEANS THE STREETS

Montreal Delegation Asked For $100,000 to Make Streets Presentable—Board Only Voted $15,000—"We Will Show the Mayor," Declares Ald. Turcot as He Announces Aldermen Will Not Appear at Special Meeting To-day.

MONTREAL, March 29.—"We intend to show Mayor Martin that he cannot boss the council. We asked him to vote $100,000 to clean the streets of the city which are in a most deplorable condition and to-day we learn that $15,000 is all the Board of Control has been able to scrape up. That is not sufficient, therefore we go on strike Thursday.

This was the declaration yesterday morning of Ald. N. Turcot, M.P.P., representing Laurier ward, after a visit to the private meeting of the Board of Control to learn what provision had been made as requested for cleaning up the streets. The aldermen came from the Board meeting with Mayor Martin close at his heels, but instead as expected of following the Mayor to the latter's private room he came straight towards a group of newspapermen and in reply to a query as to what transpired with regard to the street cleaning vote he delivered himself as quoted above.

The possibility of there being another aldermanic strike, the second in a week is certain. In addition to Ald. Turcot other members of the Council, including Ald. Lariviere, the leader, Alds. Hushion and O'Connell and Lamarre stated that the understanding was that if the Board of Control did not vote "a substantial sum," to put the streets in proper order the Mayor's watch which records the civic time might run to long after the sixteen minutes allowed at Friday's meeting before any of the aldermen put in an appearance to attend the special meeting which has primarily been called by the Mayor to discuss his letter recommending that the recent motion of the Board of Trade favouring the immediate operation of the Militia Act be protested.

MAYOR SAYS NOTHING.

Mayor Martin had nothing to say about the street cleaning vote after he left the meeting, beyond that the $15,000 was all that was available at present, but that some more would be voted s soon as possible.

This, however, does not at all satisfy the aldermen.

"It is not enough," said one this morning. "What can be done on streets in their present condition with $15,000? We need at least $50,000 to make a good start, and another $50,000 to clean up good. $15,000 is of no use, and the aldermen simply will not attend to-morrow as a protest."

Ald. Turcot did not hesitate to declare that the aldermen would strike to-day. He repeated several times the reason for the alderman's decision, and he said that he for one would not appear. The aldermen added that little or nothing was being done to clean the streets in Laurier Ward and as this district is comparatively high lying, it can be imagined what the feelings of aldermen like Ald. Hushion and O'Connell whose districts in the south-west end receive from the hills the mud and water melted off the higher elevated thoroughfares.

Therefore, to-day, it would look as though there would be no Council meeting owing, like Friday last, to the absence of a quorum. As the city controller has tapped several funds in order to find credits to make up the $15,000 and as this is the last cent that can be secured just at present, the fact of the strike becomes more assured.

Unity of Purpose of All Classes in Russia to Fight For Victory Against Germany

A MODEL PRISONER

Evidence is accumulated of the unity of purpose of all classes to fight for victory against Germany. Workmen of the munitions factories, in order to speed the war, have voluntary relinquished their demand for an eight-hour day.

One of the large life insurance companies that does a world-wide business has just completed a list of its death claim for the second quarter of 1916:

Disease of the arteries	120

Blood poisoning, anemia, etc.	41
Typhoid fever	27
Old age	10
Nervous prostration, congestion of the brain, etc.	10
All other causes	413
Rheumatism	9
Spinal diseases	5

Of those who died 183 were under 30 years of age; 403 were between 30 and 40; 553 were between 40 and 50 664 were between 50 and 60, and 657 were over 60 years of age.

That all of the money paid out by life insurance companies does not go to the beneficiaries of the dead is shown by the fact that this same company during the second quarter of 1916, paid out $8,000,071.88 in death claims, and $12,290,950.70 to living policy holders in the form of dividends, cash surrender values and annuities.

BOMBS MADE ON LINERS.

NEW YORK. — Hundreds of fire bombs, to be secreted in ships leaving this port carrying food for the allies, were constructed on board of the interned German liners in Hoboken, according to the testimony in the "bomb plot" trial.

During the trial of George Von Kleist and five others for conspiracy, John J. Gruguevitch, a special agent of the Department of Justice, testified that he had translated the statement of Geo. Praedel, the engineer of the steamer Friedrich der Groch. Praedel was arrested on board the vessel at her berth.

Praedel said he sawed off lead pipe in bomb lengths and fitted partitions into them. The main part of the bomb was filled with sodium nitrates. Sulphuric acid was placed in another chamber. By corrosive action the acid would eat into the nitrate chamber and start a fierce fire when the vessel was a few days out at sea.

Was Troubled With Shortness of Breath

When the heart becomes affected, there ensues a feeling of a choking sensation, a shortness of breath, palpitation, throbbing, irregular beating, smothering sensation, dizziness, and a weak, sinking, all-gone feeling of oppression and anxiety.

The nerves become unstrung, you dread to be alone, have a horror of society, start at the least noise and are generally fatigued.

On the first sign of the heart becoming weakened or the nerves unstrung, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills should be taken. They are just what you require at this time. They regulate and stimulate the heart, and strengthen and restore the whole nerve system.

Mrs. C. M. Cormier, Buctouche, N.B., writes: "Since two years ago I was troubled with a shortness of breath, and sometimes I could hardly breathe. I went to see several doctors, and they said it was from my heart and nerves, but they did not seem to do me any good. One day I got one of your B.B.B. Almanacs and read of a case similar to mine.

"I bought a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after taking it I noticed such a change that I kept on taking them until I had used four more boxes, when I was cured."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box, three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

COMMANDS IN EGYPT

General Younghusband Remembered as a Great Practical Joker

In command of the British forces in Egypt is General Sir George John Younghusband, who for over thirty-six years has fought for Great Britain. He first came into prominence in the Afghan War, when he gained a medal and clasp. Later he served in the Soudan campaign, the Burma War, the Spanish-American War, and in South Africa. In the latter campaign he was severely wounded, and was in hospital when he learned that he had been awarded both the Queen's and the King's Medal.

In his younger days Sir John Younghusband was known in military circles as Johnny Wag. He was an inveterate practical joker, and was especially clever at drawing humorous caricatures of his brother subalterns, which decorated the walls of the officers' mess. Some years ago he spent six months' leave in travelling 1,800 miles through Burma and Siam.

Sir John wrote a very humorous book after his Burma travels, and it included many amusing drawings from his pen. They caricatured the people he had met, and possessed such underlines as "A chief with scrubby whiskers, of which he is very proud"; "One of the ugliest old gentlemen I have ever met"; "A gentleman who followed me like a shadow—a lady who did not."

Sir John Younghusband has his serious side, and he has written several valuable military books.

On one occasion Sir John during his travels was cleverly victimized by some natives. At a village where he was encamping the dusky inhabitants brought to his tent a number of sapphire-like stones, which they stated had been dug up at a spot some distance from the village. Sir John was convinced that he had luckily hit on a treasure mine, and bought every stone the natives possessed and obtained full particulars of the place where they had been found. "I had dreams of boundless wealth," said Sir John, when relating the story, "and on my arrival at Calcutta I hastened to have the stones valued. 'Lovely color, light perfect, not a flaw, worth fifty guineas apiece—if they were not made of Birmingham paste,' was the expert's crushing criticism."

Countess Destroyed Wine

Rosalind Countess of Carlisle, who was for many years one of the foremost total abstinence advocates in Britain, ordered the destruction of the whole of the contents of the wine cellars at Castle Howard, her Yorkshire seat. There were 1,500 bottles of old vintages, and it is understood that for thirty years the cellars had been sealed. A large hole was dug not far from the mansion and the contents of the bottles poured into it. The countesses' action caused much comment. Lord Carlisle, a grandson of Rosalind Countess of Carlisle, was an officer in H.M.S. New Zealand.

BRITISH DASH AND FURY PLEASE FRENCH

"A Vision Terrifying and Splendid," Wrote the Matin—Boches Enraged at Tanks

The French correspondents on the British front speak with undisguised admiration of the intoxicating dash and fury of the attacks of our troops. The Matin's special correspondent says: "I saw from the starting trench one of these waves of assault launch itself over the top, a vision terrifying and splendid. The men crouched in the mud, all the springs of their souls and muscles stretched to the utmost tension, their features rigid as marble. Then at a signal came an onrush of human forces like undammed waters.

Battle of Kangaroos

"Men dashed with ringing cheers, and there followed a wild race amid a hurricane of shells, five projectiles to the second. It was a race broken by voluntary prostrations face to ground, of sudden flattening and sudden risings, a dash at once cautious and grandiose, as if the earth from all around had suddenly set itself to running. A wounded man summed it up as the battle of kangaroos.

The Merry Tanks

"The tanks behaved well, as is their habit. One remained for a time stuck fast by I know not what hitch. The Boches hurled themselves at it, and, yelling like maddened Red Indians, danced a scalp dance round the monster. Sublimely indifferent, the tank closed its portholes, lowered the curtains, and shut the doors, and then waited philosophically for the end of the shower, not without letting loose from time to time some saucy broadsides from machine guns to kill time and, incidentally, a few Boches.

"Grenades glanced off its carapace like bubbles on the back of a whale, and if the Boches had been able to lend an ear they would have heard the whale and all its Jonahs roaring with homeric laughter. Soon after a detachment dashed up to help the tank, which then blithely once more pointed its nose towards the enemy."

HELPING WIN THE WAR

Inventors' Paradise Found in Ministry of Munitions

The Ministry of Munitions has an Invention Department, the business of which is to see that no invention or suggestion that may help towards victory is refused. Since its inception the Department has dealt with 29,000 projects—many of them belonging to the category of the obviously impossible. On the other hand, if the invention contains even the nucleus of a useful plan, the author has placed at his disposal the advice of examiners, who are all specialists drafted from the Patent Office, and of the military advisers of the Department. He is given the facilities of the drawing office and workshop actually on the premises, together with those which are afforded by the experimental ground. He has also the resources of various scientific laboratories placed at his service, and generally is afforded an amount of technical assistance which it would be impossible for him to obtain elsewhere at the present time, even at great expense.

The Department also has an organization for keeping in touch with the actual requirements and problems that are encountered in the field, and with the similar work to its own that is carried on by the French and Russian Governments.

LONDONERS ARE LIONS; NEED GREAT REVIVAL

Words From Sir William Robertson and Bishop of London—"Blood Again Redeems the World"

The Bishop of London, who preached at a service at St. Michael's Cornhill, in memory of the men from offices in the parish who had fallen during the war, read the following letter from General Sir William Robertson: "This is to wish you complete success in your national mission work. I fear that even yet too many of us are putting an undue amount of trust on 'chariots and horses.' We may confidently rely on our soldiers and sailors fighting bravely, and count upon having abundant ammunition, but we must not stop at that. I am old-fashioned enough to think that this great war, like those of which we read in the Old Testament, is intended to teach us a necessary lesson, and if this be so it follows that we ought to examine ourselves and take the lesson to heart.

"Seek Divine Help"

"A serious determination on the part of the nation to seek and deserve Divine help would, we may hope, enable us to take a true perspective of the war, and it would undoubtedly furnish valuable help to our gallant sailors and soldiers at the front, as well as lighten the heavy burden of responsibility now carried by the various authorities at home and abroad."

Bishop on His Londoners

There, said the Bishop, was their answer to the frothy demagogues who talked and did nothing; who tried to substitute jingoism for patriotism and foster a spirit of national swagger instead of humble confidence in God. This was what the men thought who did the work. The great heads of the city firms had discovered something they hardly knew in this way, and that was the marvellous manhood and courage of their young clerks, a race of heroes. A fine saying had come from the battlefield: "A Londoner has the heart of a lion." Two thousand men from that parish were serving and 200 had laid down their lives. He believed that this world was again being redeemed by precious blood.

SUBMARINES DESCRIBED

Latest Type of U-Boat Equipped Also For Mine-Laying

The latest U-boats, as is well known, are much larger than their predecessors, writes the London Daily Mail. One sometimes sees them described as submersible cruisers. Whether that description may be regarded as accurate or not depends upon what one understands by "submersible cruiser." There is no evidence that Germany has yet sent out U-boats to which a naval man would apply this name. But this must not be taken as implying that her under-water craft are to be lightly regarded. Quite the other way about. So much has their displacement been increased that they are capable of a wide radius of action, and by husbanding their fuel supplies can keep the sea for a long time. Moreover, they possess high speed (high for a submarine, which, of course, must be judged by standards different from those applied to surface ships), and they can dive very quickly. Guns equal in power to those carried by some destroyers are now being mounted in them. These weapons are placed on a disappearing mounting; that is, are raised from the interior when she dives. Over the gun emplacement is an armored hatch which lifts with the gun and forms a strong, protective hood above the gun and its crew while the weapon is in action. As the gun lowers, so this hatch automatically sinks back until it falls into place again as a part of the hull. Their torpedoes are mostly short-range weapons loaded with a very heavy explosive charge. Shortness of range enables them to carry a much more powerful war-head than they would be able to do if they were engined to travel a longer distance. On their boat-shaped bows is fitted a cutter designed to enable the boat to shear its way through any obstacle it may encounter. They are equipped also for mine-laying and, in fact, include this among their regular activities. With a view to enable them better to resist attack, they are built with two hulls, one outside the other, somewhat like a steel cylinder enclosed in the hull of a boat. And living conditions for their crews are far better than they were in the earlier types of U-boat.

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys If Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyses the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Of course, you can buy cheaper teas, but is undoubtedly the most economical and what appears to be "dear" in price will prove to be extravagant in use. The fresh young leaves of "Salada" will yield you generous value for your money.

Weak, Nervous, Anaemic School Children

Are Quickly Restored to Health and Vigour by the Upbuilding Influence of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

PETERBOROUGH, Ont., March 12. —It is only necessary to watch the children coming out of school in order to learn what a large proportion of them are weak, anaemic and nervous. One indication of exhausted nerves is the large number who wear glasses.

The school age is a most trying time because of rapid growth and development both mentally and physically and the added strain of examinations and class rivalry.

Because of its gentle action and great blood forming qualities, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is admirably suited as a restorative for anaemic, nervous school children.

Mrs. M. E. Robson, 170 Dublin street, Peterborough, Ont., writes: "When about the age of 14 or 15, my daughter was on the verge of a nervous breakdown. She had a very poor appetite, lost all her colour, and at times had a twitching of the nerves in her limbs. I secured some of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and gave her a treatment, using five or six boxes. The results were splendid, entirely curing her of her nervous trouble and restoring her appetite. I find Dr. Chase's Nerve Food a splendid spring tonic, and best results to be found by taking some of the Kidney-Liver Pills at the same time."

Mrs. James Pearce, 220 Dublin street, Peterborough, Ont., writes: "Three years ago I noticed that our children seemed to be suffering from bad nerves and poor appetites, and were inclined to be anaemic. Knowing the good of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, I started to give them a treatment of this medicine. I found it built them right up, made them bright and cheery and restored their usual good health. I have also used the Nerve Food myself, and found it very beneficial for nerves and heart. In fact, I have found Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to be such a valuable medicine for general family use that I have recommended it to many of our friends and acquaintances."

Many advertisers are constantly trying to think up "Something New" or "Different" and the results are startling to be sure, but certainly not convincing nor conducive to increase in the business of the advertiser.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

MAJOR CROFOOT'S GALL

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Major Crofoot, grand promoter of a dozen different fraud enterprises, had his things carried out of the office and downstairs to the sidewalk by a deputy marshal because of a nonpayment of rent. His clothes cleaner, who had his place near by, took him in out of pity, although he had owed the cleaner a debt for two years and was still able to owe it.

"My dear man," said the major when his lame old desk had been installed among the coats and trousers hanging up, "this is comforting—it is exhilarating. This smell of benzine goes right to my heart. You of all in this great city have shown sympathy and been good to me, and you need have no fear of your reward."

The grand promoter promoted for four days, and then he took a walk. He walked half a block to his old office, and he saw the sign of "To Rent" which his old landlord had tacked up. He also saw that no new tenant had come in. He therefore took down the sign and carefully dropped it into the street. Then he went upstairs and found the door of his old office wide open that any one could inspect the room at his pleasure.

"This appears to be a fine room," mused the major as he walked about and looked at the old, familiar walls. "I think this will just suit me to a T. I do not know what the rent is, nor do I care. I will take my chances and move in."

Fifteen minutes later he had hired two men for 2 shillings apiece to carry up his old desk and his two chairs to his old home.

When they had gone he went down and invited the clothes cleaner to step up and view his recovered office. The cleaner did not want to step, but was cajoled into it.

"My friend, I feel that I can unbosom myself to you without reserve. A millionaire in Chicago has drawn on me a very heavy draft, which I shall have to pay before 12 o'clock. If I don't meet this draft I shall be dishonored at the bank. If I do meet it I shall be left penniless. A business man like you can readily see the situation. Therefore I find myself obliged to call upon you for the loan of $1—just $1."

"But how vhas it?" asked the cleaner. "You vhas owing me $2.75. Your landlord turned you out. I took you in and made no charges for rent. You comes back here mitout pay, and yet you want to borrow $1 more of me. It don't seem right."

"It is as right as gold," soothed the major. "That is the way they do business in Wall street, but, of course, you don't understand."

"Vhell, I try you once more." And the dollar was produced and handed over, and the cleaner went away looking very doubtful.

The major was undisturbed for the next two or three hours.

"Well?" inquired a voice, which the major recognized in an instant.

It was the voice of his old landlord, who had missed the sign that had been hanging at the street door and come softly upstairs to make an inspection.

"Come in! Come in!" called the major without turning to see who his visitor was. "Ah-ha, oh-ho! Is it you, Mr. Cramps? I am glad to see you once more! How is business with you? You are well, I hope?"

"See here, you old fraid and swindler!" said Mr. Cramps as he entered and took a chair. "Will you tell me what in thunder and blazes you are doing here! Three or four days ago I had your furniture set on the sidewalk and put up a sign that this office was to rent, and now I find you have come back and taken possession as cool as ice!"

"Yes," replied the major. "This office has got to be like a home to me. and I could not bear to leave it. I was passing by this place, and I saw it was unoccupied. A great yearning came to my heart, and I was forced to return. What did you say the rent was to be, Mr. Cramps?"

"Why, you scoundrel; you owe me $40 for back rent!" shouted his landlord.

"Every cent of which will be paid in due time, my dear friend," was the reply. "Will the rent be the same as usual and shall we date it from today? I have just invented the greatest thing of my life. It is a table dish called 'Cinnamon Scented Applesass,' and in a week I shall be selling tons of it at 50 per cent profit. It is a dish that kings will buy, and it will keep 200 men busy making, packing and shipping. I wish I had some of it here that you might taste it. You would never buy canned goods or jams afterward. You see"—

"Yes, I see," laughed the landlord. "You are the same sort of a soapy fraud you always were. Major Crofoot, you are a deadbeat, trickster and fraud, not to say gigantic liar, from head to heels. You are the whole menagerie and a circus besides. I ought to throw you through the window this time and pitch your old furniture after you, but I won't do it. I shall let you stay on until somebody wants the room."

And when he had gone downstairs the grand promoter drew a long breath and murmured to himself:

"Well, that is off my mind. I think I can stay here another year, rent free, and before the year is out who can say that I shall not be ready to occupy the whole of the tallest skyscraper in the city?"

Prepare This for a Bad Cough—It's Fine

Cheaply and Easily Made, but Does the Work Quickly.

The finest cough syrup that money can buy—costing only about one-fifth as much as ready-made preparations—can easily be made up at home. The way it takes hold and conquers distressing coughs, throat and chest colds will really make you enthusiastic about it.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth). Pour this into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Shake thoroughly and it is ready for use. The total cost is about 54 cents and gives you 16 ounces—a family supply—of a most effectual, pleasant tasting remedy. It keeps perfectly.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the inflamed or swollen throat membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough will disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, whooping cough or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with guaiacol and is known the world over for its prompt healing effect on the throat membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Baseball Player At the Front

ALTHOUGH the names of athletes that have figured most prominent in the war reports from the Canadian front have been most those of oarsmen, Rugby, lacrosse, and hockey players, there is one outstanding exception to that rule. At least one exponent of the national game of the United States has been doing splendid work with the Canadian forces. Lieut. William O'Hara, former member of the Toronto baseball team of the International League and outfielder with the New York Giants of the National League, has returned to Toronto direct from the Somme on a brief leave of absence. "Bill," as he is popularly known, left the world of sport for the world of battle about eighteen months ago. He enlisted in the Royal Naval Air Service, completed his course at the Curtiss Aviation School with high honors, and went overseas. After several months in the aviation game, "Bill" transferred to an infantry battalion, going into France with the 24th. And now, after six months of continuous duty in the Ypres and Somme sections, exposed to the most severe gruelling that the Canadians have yet received, he is back, safe and sound, and in the pink of condition.

"Bill" not at rest many of the reports that have been in circulation concerning his activities at the front. The most persistent one—that he had been wounded and his eyesight affected — was stoutly denied by O'Hara. Another report that he had been taken from the infantry and placed in charge of a bombing squad was also declared to be erroneous. "I went into the 24th as a lieutenant in charge of a platoon," said "Bill," "and there I stayed until I was given leave of absence. I met many Toronto boys over there that I knew when they were engaged in different lines of sport in Canada. Art Dissette, the old Parkdale football player, has made a great reputation for himself. He passed his examinations in the aerial service with high honors and developed into a high-class aviator. Jack McCamus, the old St. Michael's hockey player, is also doing splendidly. The Canadians are popular wherever they go, and are accorded the best of treatment."

During his first two months in the trenches O'Hara was stationed in the Ypres salient, and was within a few miles of the town of Ypres. Although the Canadians lost heavily in the salient fighting, they were successful in inflicting heavy losses on the Germans. "Bill" explained the method employed by the Germans in disseminating the deadly poisonous gas. The gas is contained in long, heavy cylinders and stationed about fifty yards apart along the front desired to be effected. When the wind blows in the proper direction small taps are opened, and the gas drifts toward the enemy in great dense clouds. The use of poisonous gas, however has been discontinued to a great extent. There is always the possibility that the wind will change and the men using the gas will suffer accordingly.

"I do not think that the Canadians ever used gas in their attacks," said O'Hara.

"Bill" painted a graphic word picture of the immense tanks and their activities.

"If they could only make a little more speed they would be of invaluable assistance," he said. "They are gigantic steel cars that plod steadily along over everything. They are operated by five men and carry machine guns and 13-pounders. They drop into holes as big as an ordinary house, turn over on their sides, right themselves, and pull right out of the holes. They are heavily armored and will withstand ordinary gunfire, although a 'fair' hit from German artillery would demolish them. A shell can burst within ten feet of them without doing any harm. They drop right into trenches, slip over on their sides, and the caterpillar wheels pull them out in great shape."

After two months at Ypres, "Bill" was moved over to the Somme, and during the past four months has passed through some of the most severe fighting of the war. The Canadians suffered especially heavy losses, but were successful in accounting for large numbers of Germans, and taking many prisoners. "The Allies are gaining ground every day," said O'Hara, "but it is slow work. It is certainly a battle of endurance. And when it comes to staying in the game right to the limit, none of them have anything on the Canadians."

While in London previous to his departure for Canada, "Bill" met Dr. M. M. Crawford, who is attached to the Orpington, Kent., Hospital. The doctor is in fine fettle, and although kept very busy, is enjoying his life. Colonel "Dick" Greer, Capt. Tom Flanagan, and other members of the Sportsmen's Battalion, were also encountered by Lieut. O'Hara during his stay in London. The Sportsmen have been broken up, and while some of the officers are in France, many still remain in England.

This splendid record indicates that a man can become proficient in the national game of the United States without losing his Canadian spirit.

Had Bronchitis FOR YEARS

Bronchitis comes from a neglected cold and it, if neglected, will surely turn into pneumonia. The first symptom is a short, painful, dry cough, accompanied with rapid wheezing and a feeling of oppression or tightness about the chest.

The phlegm raised from the bronchial tubes is at first of a light color, but as the disease progresses it becomes of a yellowish or greenish color, and is very often hard to raise.

Dr. Wood's Norway is just the remedy that you require as it loosens the phlegm and heals the lungs and bronchial tubes

Mrs. Chas. Brean, Amherst, N. S., writes: "I was troubled for years with bronchitis, and could not find any relief. I was especially bad on a damp day. I went to a druggist and asked him for something to stop the constant tickling in my throat. He gave me a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, which I found gave me instant relief. I think it is the best remedy for bronchitis that I know of. I now take care that I always have a bottle on hand."

"Dr. Wood's" is the genuine, put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, price 25c and 50c.

KING FLEW UNDER FIRE.

LONDON, March 29. — King Albert of Belgium on March 18th, made a long aeroplane flight under fire over the fighting front, according to La Metropole, a newspaper published here. While visiting a new flying ground the king expressed a desire to act as the observation officer. Accordingly he ascended with the famous Belgian airman, Capt. Jacquet. Preceded by a squadron of the fighting aeroplanes the king flew over the whole Belgian Yser front at a height of 3,000 to 6,000 feet. He made many observations and took photographs with success.

German anti-aircraft guns kept up a sustained fire but no German airmen ventured in the way of the king's airplane. Subsequently the king discussed his observations with the general staff.

Retaliation

By ETHEL HOLMES

Hodkins & Co. was the name under which a large dry goods store was run. There was a great deal of what is called leakage in the store—that is, a certain proportion of all the goods brought into it was taken out, not by legitimate process.

One evening in a pile of paper that had been used for wrapping and that had been tucked under a counter to be carried out were found some valuable laces. They were of light bulk and readily concealed. The counter was attended by Helen Sayre, a girl of nineteen. The morning after the discovery she was sent for by Mr. Watkins and accused of having placed the laces where they were found with a view either to hide them to avoid detection or to take them away later.

The girl could not explain how the laces—she sold laces—came to be where they were instead of in the boxes where they belonged. She was bewildered and tongue tied. Watkins turned her over to the police and prosecuted her for theft. Since no one had seen her take the goods he did not expect to convict her; he simply desired to make an example of her by disgracing her. She was acquitted, but every clerk in the store knew that her arrest was a bitter punishment and a warning to them.

"What can I do for you, sir?" asked Watkins.

"You can give me $10,000"

"What for?" asked the dry goods man in amazement.

"A wedding present for Helen Sayre, whom you have publicly disgraced. You may call it a 'wedding' present or an atonement or anything you like, but the money must be forthcoming. The real thief, being conscience stricken, has confessed by letter that she stole the goods in question and, seeing a floorwalker approaching, mixed them up with some castoff wrapping paper and threw them under Helen Sayre's counter."

"If Miss Sayre has such a letter as that she will be restored to her position and the thief will be prosecuted."

"You will not be permitted to see the letter. Helen Sayre does not intend to return to her position. She will be married to me this evening. I will be pleased to take her the wedding present I have mentioned."

"Nonsense, man! If you have come here to bluff me you may take yourself away or I will call a policeman to eject you."

"I came here to make a demand," said the young man, rising, "and I venture the prediction that in less than one year you will comply with it."

With this the speaker withdrew.

Six months passed, and Mr. Watkins had forgotten the incident when his daughter, eighteen years old, was walking through the aisles of Hodkins & Co.'s store, when she was accosted by a woman, who said she would like to speak to her in private. Miss Watkins, surprised, followed the woman to a secluded place, where the latter relieved her of her reticule, opened it and removed several boxes containing articles of jewelry. To the astonished girl she said:

"You were in Nevins' jewelry store this afternoon, were you not?"

"I was."

"You stole these articles. I happened to see you take them. I know who you are. You are the daughter of a member of this firm. He would not like the matter made public. If you will go home you are welcome to do so. Tell your father that he will receive a visit this evening from one authorized to arrange to keep this matter quiet."

The woman left the girl, taking the reticule and its contents, and Miss Watkins hurried to her father's office and, bursting into tears, told him what had occurred.

"Oh, papa," she cried, "don't condemn me! Indeed, I am innocent."

Mr. Watkins called a conveyance and took his daughter home.

That evening a man called on Mr. Watkins. He said that he was from Nevins' jewelry store. A woman had reported that she had seen Miss Watkins take certain articles of jewelry from Nevins' counter and slip them into her reticule. If the jewels were returned the matter would be hushed up.

But both the reticule and its contents had passed from Miss Watkins' possession.

"What are the jewels worth?" asked Mr. Watkins.

The man handed him a memorandum of the articles, with prices footing $10,000.

Watkins saw that either he must pay for the lost jewels or his daughter would be published and prosecuted as a thief. He would have hired detectives to ferret out what he knew to be a conspiracy, but the representative of Nevins' told him that the matter was without their control and unless the property was paid for those who had accused his daughter of the theft would publish it at once, and they had plenty of evidence to send his daughter to the penitentiary.

He paid the bill.

The jewels were eventually returned to Nevins & Co. in exchange for $10,000.

WHY NOT?

An Appeal to the Opponents of Union

By the Rev. HUGH PEDLEY, D.D., of Montreal

Rev. Hugh Pedley, D.D.

FOR over fourteen years the question of the fusion of the Presbyterian, Methodist, and Congregational Churches to form a United Church of Canada has been a subject of earnest and practical discussion. During that time a Joint Committee of over one hundred men have been at work with a view to discover a comprehensive and practical basis of union. They have met with unexpected success. The basis of Union fully framed represents practical unanimity on the part of the framers. This is a very significant and important fact.

But an opposition has sprung up in one of the churches—the Presbyterian—whose object, boldly avowed, is to frustrate this endeavor after union. It is much easier to explain this opposition than it is to justify it. But it should be justified and by the men involved. What the objectors call the burden of proof lies with them. The question they have to answer is, Why should not this Union be consummated? Why not? and the answer must be such as to take into account at least five considerations.

The first is that the New Testament is in its entire spirit and outlook on the side of Union. I defy any one to read the Gospels and rise from the reading with any other conviction than that Jesus was on the side of Union. I challenge any one to read the letters of Paul to the Corinthian Church and not be impressed by the horror with which he regards the tendency to break up into sects. It startles him as if a fire were about to break forth or a nest of snakes to be hatched.

The second is that the mature judgment of the world is behind the principle that strength lies in unity. "United we stand, divided we fall," is a maxim that has its roots striking down into generations of experience.

The third is that negotiations have been carried far forward, have involved patient labor and large expense, and at two pivotal points received their determining impulse from Presbyterian leaders, Principal Patrick of Winnipeg, whose words had the impartiality of a newly-arrived but well disciplined mind, and Principal Caven of Toronto, whose utterance had the weight of a lifelong experience in Canada. They assume no light responsibility who seek to render futile all this mass of thought, effort and prayer.

In the fourth place there is a very serious practical problem involved. That problem was inadvertently introduced by one of the speakers at a recent meeting of the anti-union party in Montreal. He was referring to the next General Assembly, which is to meet in Montreal, and he parenthetically exclaimed, "Thank God not in Winnipeg." And why "thank God not in Winnipeg?" Because, and this is the significant thing, the West is in favor of this Union, and the Anti-Union men feel that their cause is a lost cause on the other side of the Great Lakes.

What is the condition of things out there? A vast and thinly settled country; three great trunk lines of railway, each of which is like a necklace on which beads of various sizes are threaded, each bead a collection of human beings; communities that by the very conditions under which they are brought together are driven to emphasize a type of life in which tradition counts for little and practical values count for much. This is what you find in the West.

Now, this people in the West are asking themselves the question, Why should we not worship together? We need God out here—the universal Father—we need Jesus Christ, the friend and helper of struggling folk. We need all the help and fellowship we can get in shaping this new life to that which is high and noble. Why not get together? Why not worship together? What have the opponents to say to that? They say to these people, you can do it in a certain way and on a limited scale. They say that you may do it in one place by the Methodists becoming Presbyterians and in the other place by Presbyterians becoming Methodists. But the men of the West say Why have this partial and ineffective method? Why not unite in every community? Why not find what the Methodists, Presbyterians, Congregationalists have in common, and worship and work on that basis? Why not? And they have a right, a right you may be sure they will exercise to the full, to say to the opponents, Why not? and to demand a satisfactory answer.

In the fifth place the proposal to unite has awakened interest that goes beyond the three negotiating bodies. I am quite convinced that the thinking Christian public of Canada, both Protestant and Catholic, are watching for the outcome of this endeavor after unity. I know that in Britain, in the United States and in far-away Dominions and foreign lands there are expectant eyes turned in this direction. We have gone a good part of the way towards the consummation; why not go the rest of the way. Why not let Canada have the joy and the honor of opening up a new chapter in the history of the church? Why not? This is a serious question and I hope those who up to the present have been opposing union will appreciate its significance.

I have nothing to do with the motives which have led men to oppose this union. It would be impertinent and uncharitable to call them in question. But I do say that in view of the considerations advanced, the opponents are assuming an enormous responsibility, and must be prepared to give this question, Why not? an answer most comprehensive, most weighty and most conclusive.

LONE BRITON FOILED FIERCE HUN ATTACK

Unsupported He Shouted, "Come On, Men," When His Firing Failed —French Account

The Paris Liberte's correspondent in Northern France gives an account of a simple but impressive ceremony at P——, not far from the Somme front, where General W——, in the presence of a large number of high British and French officers, presented the Military Medal and the War Cross with palms to a British private who, by his coolness, courage and resource frustrated a German attack. The correspondent, who gives the soldier's name as "Jack," says: "Jack belonged to a battalion which had arrived in the sector of —— to relieve two French companies in the trenches. The operation proceeded at first without incident, the Boches confining themselves to shelling freely the communication trenches, but when the French troops were getting out, after wishing their British comrades 'Good luck,' the Germans hurled half a battalion to the attack.

Faced Waves of Them

"Jack by this time was in an advanced post well beyond our line, to which he had gone as a volunteer to watch the German lines. When the Boches came over the top Jack sent up a flare to give the alarm and prepared to sell his life dearly. Crouching behind his parapet with his rifle he calmly awaited the first wave. Jack allowed the attackers to come within thirty yards and then opened fire, killing six Germans. The wave broke, but there was still danger, for a second wave came on. Jack once more proved himself an excellent marksman, accounting for three Germans.

"Nerve Did Not Fail"

"Now, however, the post was being surrounded and the solitary guardian gave up hope. But his nerve did not fail him. He dashed from his shelter and shouting, 'Come on, men!' as if he were leading troops to the assault, the Boches, fearing an attack in the rear, fell back hurriedly. They soon saw how they had been fooled and returned to the charge, but this time our 75's mowed them down, the splendid coolness of the British private having given them time to come up and smash the enemy's attack.

"Some time later a patrol went out to the post and found Jack lying in front of the parapet with a bullet wound in his breast. He is now well on his way to recovery. At the ceremony he was supported on either side by two of his comrades."

BREAK GERMAN FRONT

Sir Douglas Haig's Confident Prediction—The Decisive Year

Sir Douglas Haig in giving an interview to a London newspaper correspondent, spoke on the outcome of operations on the Western front as follows: What we have been doing and are mainly doing now in England is a great effort to ensure that the army behind shall be equal in power to that in front. Already in the matter of the production of munitions we have reached the output we had wanted. On that count we have every security.

What we want now in greater quantity are guns and railways. We shall never have too many guns. The same with rails—that invaluable auxiliary of the armies in the field. Some time ago our network of railways behind our lines was notoriously inadequate. The disproportion between the tonnage landed at our base and the tonnage which our railways were capable of carrying was of a character to hamper our operations. At my request directors of the English railway companies came over to investigate our requirements, and they all told me, "Whatever you want we shall give you." Indeed, I got everything I asked for and even more.

We are furnishing material of all sorts to our friends, and particularly Russia, Italy and Roumania. Unity of front and a solid front is the principle. There is another matter which must not be lost sight of and it is that the Western front is and will remain the principal front of operations. I am convinced that the decision of the war will take place on the Western front, and that is why we must devote all our pains to making that front defensively and offensively the best.

The HOME CIRCLE COLUMN

Gossip. By gossip we do not mean friendly words with a neighbor about our friends, but unkind remarks, innuendoes, the telling of some cruel thing that Mrs. E. said to Mrs. A. If you have nothing kind to say about a neighbor acquaintance, say nothing at all. A story grows with each repetition until at last "behold how great a matter a little fire kindleth." Let not our tongues defile our souls by distilling deadly poison, but let the words of our mouth be worthy, kindly, helpful, noble.

* * *

Is it not highly amusing, if not provocative of wrath, to hear a man complain of his home being cheerless, when he adds nothing to its happiness? A man is greatly responsible for the atone of his home. The day to his wife may have been one of unusual care and hard work, but if the husband comes in cheerful from the field or his work outside, the weariness and careworn look will disappear from his wife's face. A few sharp words we can always excuse, for we always attribute them to the overtaxed nerves but we can find no plausible excuse for sullenness on the part of the husband.

A proffered hand to help us fight the crush,
A cheerful word that smoothes a heavy heart—
Have you these small things assumed your part?

* * *

God bless the children! They are a world of care and tronble; they bring pain and weariness and sorrow, but are worth it all. Do you remember after that weary day when you were harsh and irritable and they went to sleep with a sob, what bright fresh faces they brought to you in the morning? How full of tenderness and forgiveness children are! How quick to forget unkindness! How fine is the intelligence with which they look beneath the surface and know that the irritable, nervous creature of the night before is not the real mother, but the serene gentle woman of the morning, whom they love with deep devotion. They are the beautiful examples of the truth that sorrow may endure for the night but joy cometh in the morning. By their love and brightness they repay us hourly for every struggle we may endure for them.

PASS ON THE PRAISE.

"You're a great little wife and I don't know what I would do without you." And as he spoke he put his arms about her and she forgot all the care in that moment. And forgetting all, she sang as she washed the dishes and sang on as she made the beds, and the song was heard next door, and a woman there caught the refrain and sang also, and two houses were happier because he had told her that sweet old story of the love of a husband for a wife. As she sang the butcher boy who had called for the order, heard it, and went out whistling on his journey, and the world heard the whistle, and one man hearing it thought here is a lad who loves his work, a lad happy and contented.

And because she sang her heart was mellowed, and as she swept around the back door the cool air kissed her cheeks, and she thought of a poor old woman she knew, and a little basket went over to that home with a quarter for a crate or two of wood.

So because he kissed her and praised her the song came, and the influence went out and out.

Pass on the praise.

* * *

A word and you may make a rift in the clouds, a smile and you create a new resolve, a grasp of the hand and you may repress a soul from hell.

Everyone feels at home in the presence of a joyous, cheerful, genial spirited person.

CAR TIME.

It's Ford-time when the autumn woods
With flags of red and gold,
Are signalling the swift approach
Of biting frost and cold.
What joy beneath the branches then
To smoothly speed along,
And feel the bracing breezes blow,
And hear the motor's song!

It's Ford-time when the frozen snow
Is piled along the road,
And every leafless bough is bent
Beneath a pearly load.
To buck the drifts and leave behind
A wake of flying white,
And scurry by the horse and sleigh
Is then supreme delight.

PARALYZED LIMBS.

To-day it is sleeplessness, headaches, digestive trouble, and irritability. Next thing you know some form of paralysis has developed. Mr. Alex. Hawthorne Moore Street, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "Nervous trouble developed into paralysis of the limbs so that I became helpless. Doctors failed me, but after using ten boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I resumed work and now feel better than I did for twenty years."

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S ONE-PIECE DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

The pursuit of the ideal—if the ideal is a one piece frock—is easily attained if one chooses such design as this for her new spring dress.

With a generous measure of style the garment is cut with front and back panels and yokes in one piece. The side sections are laid in plents from the yoke and pressed to the lower edge. A wide belt arranged at normal waist line prevents any effect at overfulness. The sleeve fulness is massed at the elbow and below; the buttoned cuff effect shows the newest sleeve finish. The short bell sleeve is also offered and the closing at front may extend the full length if desired. The popular sailor collar finishes the neck—in the picture it is of silk in opposing color. Narrow bands of contrasting goods may be added above the hem to enrich the skirt, if one likes the effect.

Serge, satin, silk, gabardine, poplin and like weaves on the fashionable list for spring will give a stylish dress. Your interest in patterns is sure to last if you decide to make the garment from the pictured pattern.

The dress pattern No. 8,146 cuts in sizes 36-42. To make in size 38 requires 6 yards 36 inch material, ¾ yard 36 inch contrasting goods, ⅝ yard 22 inch silk. To obtain the pattern send 10c to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.
Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Love, Honor And Obey

By WILLIAM CHANDLER

"This fuss over taking the word 'obey' from the marriage service," said Charlie Webster to the wife he married a couple of months before, "is the most unmitigated nonsense I ever heard of."

"When we were married I didn't notice that the word was in the service," said Mrs. Webster.

"How can a woman love and honor a man unless she is willing to obey his commands?"

"I don't exactly see that."

"In some instances a command is necessary. Suppose, for instance, I should notice that you were permitting too frequent attentions from one of your old flames. I ask you to desist. You pay no attention to my request. I command you to desist. Isn't that right?"

"You might rather say, 'Dearest, Mr. So-and-so's attentions to you are attracting attention, to your and my injury.' That would be sufficient. I would act upon your warning."

"But suppose you didn't?"

"Then a command would do no good."

"H'm. It wouldn't, eh?"

"Suppose, on the other hand, I asked you to drop some old flame of yours and you paid no attention to my request. Would it do any good for me to command you to drop her?"

This staggered the young husband, but not for long.

"It wouldn't do any good, and probably it wouldn't do any good for me to command you, but the right to command is on my side. There must be one head to everything. There is a head to all government. Marriage involves government. Government, to be effective, cannot be with the weaker—it must be with the stronger—party. Man is stronger than woman; therefore he is the natural governor."

"When a man and a woman love each other, what's the need of government?"

"How about the children?"

"The children? Oh, the mother naturally governs the children."

"Oh, she does? You may as well understand now as later that if we have a boy I shall not permit you to make a milksop of him by coddling him, as some mothers do of their boys."

"And you may as well understand that you shall not give him the harsh treatment Joe Tucker gives little Ben."

"I shall teach our son one thing—obedience."

"Obedience to both of us?"

"Certainly."

"Suppose you tell him to do one thing and I tell him to do another?"

"Aha! There you have proved my case. It will be your duty to yield to me in the matter—in other words, to obey me. How can our child expect to obey me unless you set him the example? It's my opinion that these divines, instead of taking the word 'obey' out of the marriage service, should make it stronger. It should be printed in capitals and with a dozen exclamation points."

"If I were to marry you again I would insist on the word 'obey' being left out."

"Then you wouldn't marry me."

"And we wouldn't have any son for you to abuse."

"You mean you would make a Miss Nancy of him."

"I'm sorry I married you at all. I now see in you what I have never seen before, the disposition of a tyrant."

"And I see in you what promises to be a rebellious wife."

"Very well. If we can't get on together we'll have to separate."

That was the end of the fracas, for she flounced out of the room, leaving her husband gaping after her.

"I wish those confounded ministers," he said to himself, "had left the marriage service alone. What difference does it make whether the word 'obey' is in it or out of it? Mand didn't consider it of any importance till those divines brought it up."

He was miserable for an hour, and his wife was in the same condition. Then he gave excellent evidence as to who was master. His wife being the weaker party, it was his part to offer the olive branch to her, not she to him. He went to her, kissed her and said:

"Sweetheart, it seems to me that you and I quarreling about the management of a boy who may never be born is like fighting for the sky for a pasture."

"It was all my fault," she sobbed. "If we ever have a boy I shall expect his father to take the lead in managing him, of course."

One day three years later Mr. Webster was in the library with his son Billy. Billy deliberately took a tumbler from a table and smashed it on the floor.

"Billy," said his father, "if you do that again I shall punish you severely."

His father was about to take him over his knee for a spanking when there was a swish of skirts on the stairs and Mrs. Webster dashed into the room, took Billy in her arms and disappeared like a retreating whirlwind up the staircase.

"There's a lesson in obedience for you," said Webster to himself. "Our ancestors who put the word 'obey' in the marriage service knew what they were doing. But in these degenerate days it doesn't make any difference whether it is there or not."

If your Christianity will not last all the week and stand the wear and tear of every day things of life, you may be sure that you do not possess the real article.

ANOTHER CRUSHING DEFEAT FOR TURKS

FRENCH CAPTURE MUNITIONS DEPOT

The Turks Are Badly Beaten In A Great Battle In Palestine

Egyptian Expeditionary Force Defeat Turkish Division 48 Miles South of Jerusalem, Capturing Eleven Hundred Prisoners Including Whole Divisional Staff---French Capture German Munitions Depot and Are Everywhere in Contact With the Enemy.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, March 29.—The defeat of a Turkish force of 20,000 men south of Gaza was reported officially from the Egyptian expeditionary force to-day. Heavy casualties were inflicted on the enemy including the capture of eleven hundred men. One entire divisional staff was captured including a German major-general. Gaza is a city of Palestine, about 48 miles southwest of Jerusalem.

(By Ed. L. Keen, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

LONDON, March 29.—German Imperial Chancellor Von Bethmann Hollweg may strive to stave off the growing sentiment for the democratizing of Germany to-day by a new peace offer. At the very least he is expected to announce sweeping reforms in Germany's governmental structure, permitting more active participation by the people. Herr Scheidemann, Socialist leader who has heretofore supported the Government's war policy, was understood to have warned Von Bethmann Hollweg that the democratising of Germany must start at once. Despatches from Berlin even hinted that the Socialists are demanding the immediate institution of a constitutional monarchy like Britain, claiming that Germany is the only autocratic government now left alive.

The Socialists demand for the abandonment of all plans of conquest by Germany are expected to receive support from other quarters. On March 14 the Chancellor declared important reforms would be granted to this end. Since that time the Chancellor has been reported as deciding that these reforms ought to be made at once.

PARIS (French Official Communique), March 29.—The capture by advancing French forces of an important munitions and material depot is reported to-day. The War Office said there was an intermittent artillery duel from the Somme to the Aisne during the night, the French everywhere being in contact with enemy lines. German forces bombarded Soissons with big calibre guns.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—The immediate construction of an additional step at the New York Navy Yards suitable for the building of battleships has been authorized. The Navy Department announced to-day awards to two private shipyards for the construction of an additional batch of submarine chasers have been made by the Navy Department.

LONDON, March 29.—The Spanish Cabinet has decided to suspend all constitutional guarantees according to wireless advices received here to-day. The act means the institution of martial law throughout Spain. Labour troubles are responsible.

VANCOUVER, B.C., March 29. — A Tokio despatch says a German raider sank a Japanese cruiser in the South Pacific.

LONDON, March 29. — Austin Hoy, whose mother and sister were among the Americans who perished on the Laconia, forswore his allegiance to the United States to-day and joined the British army. He is a member of an officers' training corps with the rank of cadet, and is practically assured of a commission later in the heavy artillery branch of the service.

NEW YORK, March 29.—"German submarines" off Montauk at the entrance to New York Harbour reported early this morning, and causing an issue of "extras" by the New York papers, turned out to be Uncle Sam's underwater boats out for exercise.

OTTAWA, March 29.—The statement that the Government was imposing a head tax of $8.00 on all Canadians leaving Canada for the United States, was officially denied to-day. But it is thought here that the United States Government may be making some such imposition for entry to the other side.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—The abrogation of all existing treaties between the United States and Germany because of Germany's gross violations in taking American lives and sinking American ships, was advocated to-day by Senator Saulsbury of the Foreign Relations Committee.

NEW YORK, March 29.—Local war official statements from all belligerents to-day indicate that the German retreat on the western front is apparently reaching its final stages. From now on the fighting will probably be of masses of men on both sides, not of the type heretofore exemplified in the warfare of hurriedly advancing forces clashing in comparatively open order with rearguards. To-day's battle front despatches, including the Paris official statement reporting French forces in contact everywhere with the enemy lines, indicated the changing character of the conflict. The British front despatches indicates Haig's troops have not approached as close to this German line as the French, as the British are still making use of armoured cars and cavalry, useful only in open fighting. General Murray reported a success in the British movement toward Jerusalem, with the defeat of a big force of Turks south of Gaza. The British are endeavouring to strike a second blow at Turkish morale by an advance on Jerusalem comparatable to their capture of Bagdad.

LONDON, March 29. — Appealing for more men to man the fighting lines Chancellor of the Exchequer Bonar Law to-day declared the "prospective fighting casualties will be terrible. The casualties so far this year had been less than expected," he asserted. Bonar Law introduced the re-examination bill providing for another medical examination of all of England's males to comb out those physically unable to fight. A million men are affected by the bill.

Smokes For The Boys At Front

Last week the Tobacco Fund Branch of the Overseas Club remitted 30 pounds ($150) to the Overseas Club in Britain to be spent in Tobacco and Cigarettes for our soldiers. This makes a total of 455 pounds (ꝑ2275) Sterling that has been sent during the past year and represents practically 455,000 cigarettes and one and one-quarter tons of tobacco as well as corresponding supplies of papers and matches.

While this branch of the Overseas Club has not been receiving much publicity in connection with their work, still the above facts will be apparent that a great deal has been accomplished. The club is in need of funds to keep up the regular supplies going to our boys in the trenches and subscriptions may be left with Mr. Dunsford of the Bank of Commerce or Mr. Walkey at the Bank of Montreal.

TICKETS ALL TAKEN FOR CITIZENS' DINNER TO SENATOR NICHOLLS

Will Be Held To-night at the Oriental Hotel as Peterboro's Expression of Pleasure in Recent Honours Conferred Upon the Guest

AN INFORMAL BANQUET

The success of the citizens' banquet to Sir Frederick Nicholls at the Oriental Hotel to-night is foreshadowed by the fact that all the reservations had been taken up yesterday afternoon. It was expected that the attendance would reach a figure between 75 and 100, but it was announced to-day that special accommodation for one hundred and eleven covers has been provided and that these were snapped up yesterday. The spontaneity of this response is a convincing testimony of the high respect in which Senator Nicholls is held by the people of Peterborough. The banquet will be entirely informal and will be practically an intimate, chummy gathering to express the pleasure and gratification of the citizens in the honours recently bestowed upon the president of the Canadian General Electric Company.

The Company's Work.

Although he deprecated the idea of referring to the company's work on this occasion, Sir Frederick responded to the Examiner's request for a sketch of the C.G.E. Company's participation in providing the sinews of war. In the first month of hostilities a detachment of twenty-five elec-

PREMIER HEARST'S APPEAL FOR GREATER PRODUCTION

Dear Sir,—I earnestly commend the gardening movement to every patriotic citizen. Greater production of food is one of the means, an important one, by which we can contribute to win the war.

Surely we Canadians who enjoy the security and comfort which our brave men are purchasing for us with their life's blood, will do our duty in this regard. From what I know of my fellow countrymen I am confident that they will not fail.

Let us realize that a great national effort is required and that every piece of uncultivated land where conditions will permit of profitable cultivation is a loss to the community as well as a help to the enemy. It reduces the supplies we ought to have to enable us to carry this war to a successful conclusion.

If all of us understood how important food now is to the Empire and how great is the help the small producer can afford in the aggregate, it would not be necessary to urge a response to this appeal. I make the appeal with the utmost confidence to every person in this province regardless of age or sex, to do something, be it small or great, to provide for the needs of our Empire and our Allies.

It should be a great privilege to help in this way to win the war, and by the blessing of Providence and our own patriotic efforts we can all do something for our country and community.

Yours sincerely,

W. H. HEARST.

LIEUT. J. A. HARSTONE OF PETERBOROUGH IS ON WOUNDED LIST

57th Regiment Officer Officially Reported To-day--Famous Pte. Beatty of Cobourg, Pays Visit to the Armouries and Talks Over Experiences at the Front---To-day's Orders and General Military News.

Mr. Robert Harstone, 565 Water Street, received an official message from Ottawa this morning that his son, Lieut. John A. Harstone, Canadian Infantry, was wounded on March 24th. No further particulars were given in the message from Ottawa. Lieut. Harstone, who was a subaltern in the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers, went overseas as a lieutenant with the 77th Ottawa Battalion, and after reaching England was transferred to another Canadian battalion at the front. His sister, Miss Jean Harstone, whose articles over the non de plume of "Canadian Overseas" have frequently appeared in the Examiner, is also on war service in France.

Pte. "Jim" Beatty of Cobourg, one of the best known members of the rank and file of the 1st Canadian Division, was a visitor at the Armouries this morning, paying his respects to Lt.-Col. Ackerman and Major O'Flynn of the 247th, under whom he served in France. Pte. Beatty was also with the 2nd Battalion until last December, and is now home on furlough, leaving for overseas again on May 1st. His visit was greatly enjoyed by the two officers who were able to get a lot of information about their old comrades from Pte. Beatty, who is acquainted with practically every officer and man in the Battalion. Very few of the original battalion who left Canada with the 2nd, are still on duty.

"The war will be over this summer, by October, at least," remarked the genial Cobourg soldier.

Pte. Beatty gave an interesting description of the German dugouts on the Somme, which were scooped out deep into the earth and equipped with stairs, bunks and electric lights. In one of them the Canadians found a notice reading something like this: "It took us two years to build these trenches. It will take you ten to get us out."

Lieut. Frank Shaughnessy, the famous "Shag" of the Ottawa Canadian League Baseball Club will be in Peterborough in a day or two to recruit for the Divisional Ammunitional Column which is attracting a very fine calibre of recruits. Gunner Hugh Carmichael of Peterborough is looking after the recruiting here and is making his headquarters at the Y.M.C.A., where he will be glad to give any information about the D. A. C. Lieut. Shaughnessy will receive a warm welcome from his many admirers in Peterborough.

The Kingston Whig says:

That reinforcements for the soldiers overseas are urgently needed is proven by the requests from the British War Office to rush over every available man. A FREE MARKET WAS VOTED DOWN

Mayor Duffus Cast the Deciding Vote in the Free Market Issue —Merchants Represented by a Deputation.

THE DISCUSSION

The free market scheme has passed beyond the realm of realization. At a special meeting of the City Council held last evening it was decided to adopt the report of the Property committee recommending the acceptance of the tender of Walter Fisher for the collection of market tolls for the year commencing April the first. The contract price is seven hundred and twenty dollars.

It was the vote of Mayor Duffus that laid the free market proposal cold and low. The Council split fifty fifty on the division and it required the vote of the Mayor to break the deadlock.

"The more taxes that are imposed only serve to increase the ultimate cost to the consumer," said Mr. T. C. Elliot, representing a deputation that waited on the Council in support of a free market.

Other members of the deputation were Mr. J. Maher, Mr. Harry Cressman, Mr. J. Crowe, Mr. R. Kingan, Mr. Caldwell, Mr. Fitzgerald and Market Clerk Maloney and his assistant.

Mr. Maher expressed his approval of a free market. He cited the case of Hamilton, which he regarded as a successful example of a free market.

Ald. Stratton asked that Mr. Crowe be heard as a representative of the Trades and Labour Council. Ald. Stratton favoured a free market.

"A Free Market."

Ald. Saunder asked Ald. Stratton to define the meaning of a free market.

"The term free market is a little ambiguous," said Ald. Stratton.

"Thats' the word," prompted Ald. Dobbin.

Continuing Ald. Stratton said that a free market as he understood it, constituted the removal of market tolls with the possible exception of the fees collected for weighing produce, and also the fee imposed on hucksters, auctioneers and others.

Ald. Saunders said he had failed to find one person in favour of a free market outside of the deputation before the Council. Ald. Saunders said the farmers laughed at the idea of a free market.

Out of Season.

Ald. Langford claimed to have given the matter some consideration. He was opposed to a free market. He contended that the farmer was well able to spy the tolls now charged. Ald. Langford said it was no time to introduce a free market. He was of the opinion that the matter should be submitted to the ratepayers, whom Ald. Langford claimed would promptly vote it down.

Ald. Duncan said that ninety per cent of the people were opposed to a free market. He did not approve of a free market.

Mayor Duffus read the list of mar-

MR. T. A. S. HAY WELL KNOWN CITIZEN HAS PASSED AWAY

WAS HIGHLY RESPECTED

The commanding presence and genial, courtly salutation of T. A. S. Hay, will be henceforth missed from our streets. He died at the family residence, 192 McDonel street, last night after a long illness. The late Thomas Alexander Stewart Hay, C.E., was born in Peterborough 68 years ago, and was educated and reared here, and his his adult years has had a conspicuous and creditable place in the activities of Peterborough. He is best known and remembered in his professional capacity, through his association with railway and municipal service.

He was for a great many years engineer and Chief Engineer of the Midland Railway, giving that corporation, as he met every other professional responsibility, efficient, faithful and conscientious service. A little later the special line of his ability was recognised in his appointment as Chief Draughtsman of the Trent Canal. In that capacity he designed the masonry and "lay-out" of the embankments of the Hydraulic Lift-Lock at Peterborough, in a way that gained the admiration of the entire engineering fraternity.

Upon his resignation of this position he was appointed city engineer of Peterborough, a post he occupied for nearly seventeen years. His record as such is known to us all, and the splendid work he has done for his native city will remain an enduring monument to skilled and faithful service. The life-lock, the solidly, elegant and substantial Smith street bridge, his work in the several parks and the sewerage system of the city, up to a couple of years ago, represent a record of service of which any engineer could be proud. He was a chartered member of the Canadian Society of Civil Engineers.

But Mr. Hay's interests and sympathies were not wholly absorbed by his professional duties. Earnestly and faithfully as he discharged them, he found time to devote himself with quiet, yet persistent and effective energy to other phases of civic betterment. He was for many years the mainstay of the Historical Society, and it is to his interest and exertions that we largely owe the establishment, the beginnings, of the museum now housed at the Public Library. He became its first curator. He was very intimately and prominently associated with the Masonic fraternity, a member of Corinthian Lodge, having held every important official responsibility. He was for several years treasurer and trustee, and active in all the interests of the order.

He also took a keen interest in military matters. During a temporary residence in Toronto he was a member

A GOOD CITIZEN GONE.

In the death of T. A. S. Hay, C.E., the city loses one of its most prominent, and beyond the usual significance of the expression, one of its most highly respected and esteemed citizens. Born in Peterborough, educated and reared here virtually his whole life was spent in his native city, in the numerous forms of activity, that brought out all his high qualities as a man of large human sympathies and keen interest in the promotion of the welfare of the city and its citizenship.

In another column is found in more detailed form a partial record of his public and partially public activities, but it does not need reference to these to keep them alive in the hearts and minds of those of our citizens, who, during the past half century of Mr. Hay's adult life, have seen and known, and in many cases experienced, the benefit of his active association with all good works; and have been influenced by the high example of his sterling manhood and good citizenship. Born among us, he is almost universally known, and his name, familiar to almost everybody, is associated with knowledge and recollection of his personal and professional relations and excellent services in numerous capacities. It is held in peculiar honour and will long be quoted as a synonym of high personal character, phenomenal integrity and unflagging interest in the promotion of the welfare and happiness of his fellow citizens and fellow men, that realized in an unusual way and to an unusual degree, the Scriptural injunction, to love one's neighbour as oneself.

WOMEN IN POLITICS.

It seems evident that the concession of the voting right to women, involving equal political privilege, is not to be regarded as a mere feminine adornment, a frill or furbelow, but something to be taken into account by politicians; a force to be reckoned with. The Liberals of Haldimand County are the first to give official recognition to women in politics by admitting ladies to share a political convention. Women were present at a party convention and took part in the work of selecting a candidate. Out of 400 Liberals present at the convention fully one-third were women; and though many of them had brought their war knitting with them, they also got down to their "knitting" by taking an active part in the proceedings. At Conservative conventions, too, though women were not present in the body, their new status as a factor in practical politics, provided a subject of serious discussion.

Women as voters and politicians are an unsettling element in political calculations and forecasts. Nobody knows just where they stand in party politics; and their influence being an unknown quantity, speculation as to the results of a contest will be largely idle. It is safe to say, however, that if the party politicians do not know the attitude of women to public matters of interest to party politicians, there is little doubt that their vote and influence will be generally exercised on the side of public interests; and that they will use the franchise with as much judgment, and much more patriotism, and much more honesty of purpose, than the average male voter.

HELP GREATER PRODUCTION.

Solving the problem of production is contributing one of the most essential conditions of winning this war. Latest despatches state that four or five thousand German soldiers have crossed into Holland in search of food. If this is true it shows a serious weakening of the German power of resistance, not to speak of aggression. Soldiers who are not fed well cannot fight well.

Obviously the home population of the United Kingdom cannot do its best work, the nation can't maintain the necessary efficiency to carry on the war with the vigour of victory; without an adequate supply of food

This war has resolved itself into a war of endurance, a war of resources, and the victory will come to the side whose resources in money and men will last the longest.

Britain's money resources are ample, and her man power is potentially adequate; but to get the best out of her man power at home, and in the field, there must be adequate food supply. Britain's food supply comes to a very limited extent from home sources, but these resources as to production have been thoroughly organised. Canada is one of the chief sources of Britain's outside food supply, and the call comes to Canada to bring about by food supply through production one of the most urgent needs of the mother country at the present time. To meet this emergency there must be united, concerted and, above all, organized action.

In Ontario this latter consideration, which involves labour help in agricultural operations is sought to be met by a committee charged with the duty of organizing resources to promote production beyond any point the country as a whole has yet reached. The same problem in another form confronts the Organization of Resources Committee as confronted the Gospel campaign two thousand years ago—"the harvest is great, but the labourers are few;" that is to say, we in Ontario have the land, we have the seed, but what is lacking is labour for conducting production operations—hoc labor; hoc opus est.

Our constituency of readers is appealed to in the premises; and with all the more confidence because the public sense of the necessity of increased production is stirred by the local campaign to promote production through home gardening. This sense of necessity for wider range of production is shown by the organization of a Peterborough Branch of the Organization of Resources Committee. The Speakers' Patriotic League has resolved to resolve itself into a branch of the new service designed to mobolise the labour resources of the city, county and district, to provide the help the farmers must have if they respond with any degree of effectiveness to the appeal for greater production.

The Organization of Resources Committee is acting promptly and will at once institute an advertising campaign to promote its objects. Advertisements will soon appear in The Examiner, and earnest heed to their facts and appeal is bespoken. Their is need for the promptest kind of action. Spring is at hand and the time of seeding is the critical time in the work of increased production. We must have the widest area of seeding if we are to have the greatest results. The urgent need is the need of the farmer for help in seeding. If that is adequately done we shall have a breathing time to prepare for the further help the harvest will demand.

WATCHING AGAINST WASTE

A large part of the expenditures in connection with municipal administration are unproductive in that, among other things, there are no permanent results. Included in this are street cleaning and keeping sewe s clear. Of course these things have to be done, but is it not possible to reduce the expense somewhat by a little better oversight and foresight? Every spring we spend considerable money to clean our streets, and remove, what is in no inconsiderable part, the earthy material in the form of a poor quality of gravel that washes into the gutters (or what pass for gutters), interfere with surface drainage, and tend to destroy street foundations. One way in which cost of cleaning may be lessened is by narrowing the street surfaces between curbs. Thus we shall be able to have the streets completely gravelled or otherwise treated between curbs, and the labour and expense of keeping streets clean and in good condition will be lessened proportionately with the reduction of unnecessarily wide driving surfaces.

It is evident that paying for building, maintaining and cleaning unnecessarily wide driving surfaces, is a form of waste which is easily avoidable. It may be considered small as related to the whole volume of civic expenditure; but it is the accumulation of small expenditures that makes the big bills, the big expenditures, and the big taxes. One of the first cares of a successful and well conducted business is to keep down the expenses of operation. One of the first cares of a city administrator should be to keep down the small leaks, and avoid the scores of small expenditures that foresight and oversight might avoid.

At a moment's notice we cannot point out the department or authority of the city that should look after or prevent a form of "waste"—in a literal sense—that is causing the expenditure of considerable money that might be spent otherwise to good advantage. A certain sewer is being cleared of obstructions, said to be caused by allowing "waste" from a factory to enter it. It is said that city workmen have had, and are having, a good deal of trouble, and spending considerable money to remedy the results of carelessness of, no doubt, a subordinate in a factory, by permitting to enter a sewer waste or refuse which no sewer was ever intended to carry off. Here is where oversight and prompt action are necessary. It would only need civic authority calling attention to the carelessness of some workman, who is causing a civic expenditure of a comparatively large amount of money.

This circumstance illustrates the wisdom of the policy of the most careful oversight, not only in cases like this but in every department of civic administration. We pay a large amount to make and maintain streets and we lose the benefit of this expenditure—which benefit is represented by having good street surfaces for driving purposes—if we fail to carefully notice deterioration, and fail to make prompt repairs, which in thousands of cases would cost so little that it could hardly be put into figures. If neglect to keep streets in good repair destroys the effects of spending money on them, it is a form of waste which is all the more censurable because it is easily avoided.

CONSERVATIVE LEGACY OF LIABILITY FOR RAILWAY WASTE IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

If a thorough inquiry into the relations between the Pacific Great Eastern Railway and the late Conservative Government in British Columbia takes place some astounding revelations are promised. According to the Hon. Mr. Oliver the Minister of Railways in the present Government, the entire cost of constructing the road thus far has been financed by the province. All the moneys raised from the sale of guaranteed bonds, exceeding $20,000,000 have been released to the company. This includes an overpayment of $5,700,000 in defiance of the statute. The promoters were permitted to divide the capital stock of $24,000,000 among themselves without putting up a cent for it, another flagrant violation of the law. The bond of $225,000 given by the contractors was permitted to lapse.

Last year the Legislature authorized a loan of 86,000,000 to the company, a considerable part of which has been paid over. The chief engineer of the Railways Department says more than $10,000,000 will be required to complete the road to Prince George. The Province is paying interest on the bonds guaranteed by it to the amount of nearly $1,000,000. The Pacific Great Eastern Railway Company awarded the contract for construction practically to themselves without competition, in certain known respects at excessive prices. Charges of falsification of returns also have been made.

Will the Borden Government permit this proposed investigation to take place? They have recently established a precedent which would seem to indicate that they will endeavour to hush up this scandal. For instance on February 16 last the Minister of Railways for British Columbia served notice on the Canadian Northern Pacific to produce certain papers and books. Four days later a Dominion Order-in-Council was passed placing the line in British Columbia under the Railway Commission, and taking it away from provincial control. "We have the fact demonstrated," says the Hon. Mr. Oliver, "that we have railway corporations in British Columbia which can get the Government of Canada to do their bidding at practically a moment's notice." Is the Pacific Great Eastern one of them? We shall see.—Montreal Herald.

LAKEFIELD ITEMS OF INTEREST

Miss Ethel White of Cobourg spent a few days last week in the village, visiting her sister, Miss Ella White.

Mr. W. B. Sloane of Toronto is relieving Mr. D. H. Morison, Manager of the local branch of the Royal Bank, who is spending a short holiday at Saskatoon, Sask.

Miss Mona Fortier spent a few days last week visiting friends in Peterborough.

Pte. Harry Hampton, who was wounded in the left leg, in France, some time ago, has been invalided home and arrived in Lakefield last week.

Pte. Wm. Hampton of Kingston is also in the Village visiting at his home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Fawcett moved on Saturday into Mr. Richardson's house on Strickland street.

Rev. T. J. Robinson has resigned his charge of the Lakefield Presbyterian Church, the resignation to take effect the last Sunday in April. Mr. Robinson intends going to Vancouver, B.C., to take a position in the London Life Insurance Co.

Mr. Clarence Crawford left on Friday last for the West, where he intends spending the summer.

An exceedingly pretty wedding was solemnized at St. John the Baptist Church at half after one on Thursday last, when Miss Ella White was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Howard Webster Beavis, both of this place. The ceremony was performed by the Rector, Rev. A. W. Mackenzie, before a large assemblage of friends. Miss Atwood presided at the organ, and Miss Bloomfield's beautiful hymn "O Perfect Love" was sung by the choir. The bride, who was attired in a very becoming suit of blue taffata, was attended by Miss Maude Beavis, sister of the groom, while Bandsman Allen Clark of the 247th Battalion, assisted the groom. At the conclusion of the ceremony the happy couple drove to Peterborough, en route for Toronto, Niagara Falls and other western points. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Beavis will take up their residence at "River View Farm," Smith. The many handsome and costly presents which were received testify in a great measure the bride's well-deserved and widespread popularity.

MARRIAGE BY PROXY

Privilege For Australian Soldiers and Distant Sweethearts

In the House of Representatives in Australia Mr. Hughes introduced a Bill legalizing marriage by proxy among Australians on active service. The system of marriage by proxy had been in force in the French army for some time and had been found to work well. Australian soldiers in London, however, were puzzled to understand the meaning of this legislative move and declared that they would rather not marry at all than by proxy. "When I marry I am taking my girl to the altar myself," remarked one mischievous-eyed Anzac. "I am not troubling any pal to act in my place."

An Australian staff officer who belonged to the original Expeditionary Army, remarked that he had never had any demand from his men for marriage by proxy, but there was not the slightest doubt as to the meaning of the proposed legislation. "It is," he said, "to get Australians to marry Australian girls. When an Australian comes over to England he may be tempted to forget the sweetheart he has left behind him and marry an English girl. That is all very well from his point of view, but it is jolly hard on the lass waiting for him in Australia and worrying her heart out whether he will be killed or not.

"There have been so many cases of Australians marrying English girls and disappointing their own sweethearts that I suppose the Australian girls in self-defence have been making representations to the Commonwealth Government. On the other hand, one of our boys, badly wounded and with an even chance of dying or recovering, may feel he would like to marry his sweetheart and secure to her the pension to which the widow of an Australian soldier is entitled. Thousands of miles away, his only chance of achieving his desire is to marry her by proxy. Again, there are any number of Australian soldiers who would, no doubt, welcome the opportunity of marrying their sweethearts and making sure that no rivals estrange their affections."

LESSER OF TWO EVILS.

Why Light Beer is Sold in Canadian Canteens in England.

OTTAWA, March 28.—So long as the British authorities allow public houses to sell hard liquor at points adjacent to the Canadian camps in England, it is considered impracticable to close down the wet canteens where light beer is sold. Apropos of a statement yesterday by the British Under Secretary for War that these wet canteens had been instituted at the behest of the Canadian authorities, it was explained at the Militia Department to-day that such canteens have been in operation in the Canadian camps dating from Gen. Alderson's command. At the beginning the canteens were "all dry." Meanwhile the public houses flourished in the neighborhood, selling hard liquor to soldiers. Light beer was then permitted.

But Vienna Had Plenty of Money for Civic Purposes.

BERNE, Switzerland, March 28. — Persons from Vienna report that the Austrian Government, instead of being pleased at the result of the recently concluded Vienna municipal loan— 1,000,000,000 crowns was subscribed instead of the 250,000,000 asked — was unpleasantly surprised to learn that such a plethora of money did not make its appearance on the occasion of the last war loan. Public Reception Tendered To An Omemee Soldier

Private McInnes Returns Home in an Incapacitated Condition — Items of Interest From Omemee

OMEMEE, March 28.—On Wednesday evening last a public reception was given to Pte. Rev. J. P. McInnes in the Coronation Hall.

Reeve Parsons occupied the chair and after the meeting had been opened by "The Maple Leaf Forever", the following address was read and presented by Mr. H. Lamb.

To the Rev. J. P. McInnes, Omemee Ont.

Dear Sir,—It is with great pleasure, we welcome you home to our town, to your church and family.

We are sorry to see the condition you are in physically incapacitated and still in the doctor's hand. We sincerely hope you will soon be restored to your previous health and strength.

Your ill-health is due to the severe training and hard work you have voluntarily undertaken for the sake of King and Country. When the call came you did not hesitate, though you were above military age and were not liable for service, but showed the spirit that was in you by enlisting in the ranks as a private soldier and we all know that you were anxious to go to the front to "do your bit."

We are certain that your only sorrow is that you have not been able to enter the trenches and fight against the common enemy of mankind and that you do not bear in your body, wounds received in battle. We know it was your earnest desire to give yourself freely for your country's need, and like the Scotchmen of old Scotia, you are at all times ready and willing to do your part, and to show to the world that the splendid blood of fighting forefathers still flows in your veins.

You have given up your profession and left wife and family and home, at an age when most men are only too anxious to be quiet and comfortable, to take up the hard and strenuous training of a soldier.

You did good work in recruiting before you left for England and it was largely due to your energy and example that the ranks of the 109th battalion were filled by men from the township and community. Furthermore it was owing to your zeal in building suitable accommodation that it was possible for the platoon to spend the whole winter in the village.

You have done your duty to the best of your ability and you sacrificed yourself and your future for your country's cause. We can only hope and pray that you will soon be restored to health and strength and that you will be spared for many years of usefulness to your family, your church and your country.

Signed on behalf of the citizens of Omemee.

T. J. Parsons, Reeve, J. W. Smith, Walter L. Howden, L. Windrim, H. Lamb, F. G. Sandy.

Bicycle Has Invaded The North Country

The bicycle has invaded Canada's North Country. Bicycles are being used for health, pleasure and business in the so-called hinterland of Ontario—six hundred miles north of Toronto. In a number of new centres in the Nothern Clay Belt of the Province there are bicycle dealers and wheels are already being used generally. There are three bicycle dealers in Timmins, which is located in the mining country, while bicycles are also being sold to the new settlers at Iroquois Falls and other places.

In Manitoba an old and widely-known trading company took on the bicycle recently after new Provincial legislation made it impossible to handle liquor any longer.

The bicycle is frequently seen in the Peace River District, which has been called Canada's Last Great West. Wheels are also in use in remote and mountainous sections of British Columbia. At Grand Forks, British Columbia, the blacksmith of the village opened a distinct bicycle store to meet the demand for wheels.

During 1916 a deaf and dumb bicycle dealer at Cap Rouge, Quebec, a French-Canadian settlement of 300 people, sold twenty-five new bicycles locally.

Trade statistics also show that many people in the coal and iron mining districts of Nova Scotia and Cape Breton ride bicycles.

It is interesting to note that practically every person in the whole country will know of the holding of the second annual Bicycle Week, March 31st to April 7th, as the official opening of the 1917 cycling season.

Coal Prices Cut Fifty Cents Now

NEW YORK, March 29.—The Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company yesterday announced a reduction of fifty cents a ton in the price of coal to become effective April 2. The reduction applies only to stove, egg and nut sizes.

According to custom ten cents a ton will be added to the price of these sizes each month until September 1.

Coal dealers say they believe all the producing companies will follow the lead of the Philadelphia and Reading, notwithstanding earlier predictions that on account of unusual conditions this spring the customary reductions would not be made.

Funeral Service At The University

The Toronto Telegram says: Last night at McMaster University Chancellor McCrimmon, assisted by Prof. Farmer and Capt. (Dr.) Young, conducted the funeral service for Clarion J. Baker, 4th year arts student, of McMaster University, who died in his 21st year at his home in Peterborough, Ont., after an illness of a couple of months. He was a son of Dr. W. A. Baker, of Peterborough. The remains were brought to McMaster University last night, and after special service, were conveyed to Aylmer, Ont., this morning for interment.

The Man Who Wins

Some men seem to have all the luck. If there are any good things going these men seem to get them. They mak other people do their will—they are leaders. If they are business men they are successful; if they are workmen they get the foreman's job. They have the power of influencing people.

The same thing is true of women. Some have the charm that makes men seek them out; others are always neglected. But this is not luck. It is due to a personal gift—vitality. Men and women of this sort are never weak, puny invalids. They may not be big, but they are full of life and energy. The whole thing is a matter of good blood, good nerves and good health. Everyone would wish to be like this and the qualities that make for vitality and energy are purely a matter of health. By building up the blood and nerves sleeplessness, want of energy, weakness of the back, stooping shoulders, headaches and the ineffectual sort of presence which really comes from weakness can all be got rid of. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have made many weak, tired men, vigorous and healthy, and many pale, dejected girls and women plump, rosy and attractive, by improving their blood and toning up their nerves. If you are weak, ailing, low-spirited or unhealthy, begin to cure yourself to-day by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

You can get these Pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

BY JOHN W. S. McCULLOUGH, M.D., D.P.H., CHIEF OFFICER OF THE PROVINCIAL BOARD OF HEALTH.

INFANT WELFARE—ARTICLE No. 1.

THIS subject is of the first importance to a new and growing country like Canada. The care of children is of increased importance in view of the depletion of our country of its male population by reason of the war. The death rate among babies in this Province is much too high. In the first year of life we lose 12 per cent. of the babies born. While this is exceeded by some of the other provinces of Canada, it is higher than such countries as Norway, Sweden, New Zealand, and Australia, whose death rate among babies in the first year of life is 65, 72, 57, 72, respectively. Why is it that Ontario's death rate is 102 instead of 50 or 60? Why is it greater than that of other countries?

Cause of Infant Mortality.

A good many things enter into the cause of the mortality of infants. There is the general health of the mother and of the father, their material prosperity, whether the mother works away from home and particularly the care she has before the baby's birth. Then there is the knowledge of the mother regarding the proper care of the new-born baby, as to its food, clothing, etc. Some mothers are too young to have the responsibility of motherhood thrust upon them. Others kill their babies with kindness, feed them too frequently, and others again either wilfully or ignorantly decline to nurse the baby from the breast, forgetting or ignoring the fact that Nature's food is the best for the baby.

It has been shown by the experience of other countries that the fact as to whether or not the mother is obliged to work out before the baby's birth has a most pronounced effect upon the physical strength of the baby. Similarly if the mother works away from home after the birth, thus depriving the infant of her nursing and care, the death rate will be higher. This factor has been found to be of greater importance than that of poverty, though the latter is a cause of infant mortality of no small proportions. In certain sections of London it has been found that the infant death rate is considerably greater where the mothers work out and where poverty is not a factor than in other and poorer sections where the mothers are at home.

In many European countries insurance is provided against sickness, including that of childbirth, and in Australia the Government gives a premium of £5 for every birth. What can we do to lessen the infant death-rate in Ontario? If we can do no more we can at least endeavor to educate the mothers regarding the baby's care. In this column a series of articles will be presented from time to time upon this subject. The Provincial Board publishes a booklet upon the care of the baby which may be had upon application.

Education in Infant Welfare.

The Provincial Board of Health realizes that one of the most important factors in promoting the prevention of disease is Education. Consequently the Board has established a Bureau of Public Health Education including the promotion of Infant Welfare. The Bureau is under the direction of Miss Mary Power, a graduate of the University of Toronto, whose energies are directed towards the education of the public as to how they may keep well and avoid disease. The Board has a large number of pamphlets upon various public health topics which will be sent on request. The Bureau will be glad to answer questions relative to Infant Welfare or other Public Health topics.

In the next article some of the factors in the protection of infant life will be taken up and discussed, and from time to time in this column, simple rules regarding the care of the baby will be a feature.

Watch for this column next week.

What a Ragamuffin Did on Christmas Morning

By F. A. MITCHEL

Dr. Tourniquet, the famous surgeon, was sitting before his desk on Christmas morning looking over his accounts, though his principal work was making up his bank account. When the door was opened a little ragged boy entered.

"How did you get in here?" asked the doctor.

"The door was open and I walked into the house. Then I opened the next I came to."

"Well, what do you want?"

"Me mudder in next door to dyin'. Me fadder sent me for a doctor. I seen the sign and came in."

The doctor pushed aside the pile of checks before him and, swinging around in his chair, said:

"Your father didn't tell you to come to me?"

"No, sir. He said to go to any doctor I could find that would come. I've been to three before yous. They axed me if I had any money to pay, and when I said no they showed me out."

The doctor continued to gaze at the boy meditatively, then took up a phone transmitter and ordered his car brought to the door. Telling the boy to "come along," he got into the car and directed his chauffeur to drive to the address the child gave. He found a wretched home, wretched on account of poverty, on account of the woman being ill, but especially wretched to the doctor, whose patients usually lived in luxurious homes. He pictured houses he had visited the day before and the preparations for Christmas he had seen.

The woman was in a state of collapse, but a little treatment brought relief, and she was told that her trouble would disappear and was not likely to return, though the doctor left some medicine for her to take. This done, he took up his cases and was going out when the boy stepped up to him and, holding out a handful of coppers and nickels, said:

"Here's yer pay, doctor—me savin's for Christmas. I reckon I'll have to let Christmas go till next time."

Again the prosperous man looked at the ragged boy. What was the doctor thinking of? Was he picturing children of his clients who were loaded down with gifts on that Christmas morning, denied nothing, while this poor boy was handing him his savings for that anniversary which children love best? Did he take in his mind's eye the pile of checks he had left on his rosewood desk in his office? Did it occur to him that he was going back to his home to finish getting ready those checks to send to the bank in the morning, to dine sumptuously, leaving this family without a morsel of Christmas comfort?

Diving into his pocket, the doctor brought out a roll of bills and without counting them said to the invalid, her husband and their boy:

"Why it is that I am given so much and you so little is one of the great mysteries of the world. Take this," handing the boy the roll, "and buy whatever you need for your mother, your father and yourself. Remember this is Christmas morning. It's late to provide, but do the best you can."

"Oh, doctor," exclaimed the sick woman, "how good you are!"

"Good! Don't call me good. You don't know me. I'm selfish and mean. I live on the top wave of prosperity. I visit only those who are prosperous as myself. I'm not called on by the poor. I am considered too high and mighty. Had not some one left my front door ajar your boy would not have effected an entrance to my resplendent presence. Had he rung the bell my butler would have turned him away."

"We must all take care of ourselves, doctor," said the man. "If we don't nobody will take care of us."

"Some of us who have more than we need are in duty bound to take care of those who are suffering. I take care of no one."

"But you are kind and generous with your children, doctor."

"What credit is that? I once shot a bear's cub. The mother bear showed as much grief at the death of her offspring as I ever saw in any woman, and I have seen hundreds of parents at the deathbeds of their children."

"But you have begun to be good to the poor this Christmas day and will"—

The doctor turned away and went out without hearing what he would do in future. He knew he would do nothing. He believed it was his duty to do that which he and the world considered practicable. Suppose from that moment he should devote his time to those who could pay nothing for his services. Where would he be by next Christmas? His children were growing up in luxury. There must be a sudden cutting down of the family expenses. They must move out of their palatial residence. If he told the world why he made these changes, it would consider him demented. If he did not, the world would infer that he had lost his grip. He would no longer be called to the homes of the rich. He would lose caste with his fellow medical men. In time not only he, but his family, would be reduced to poverty.

Nevertheless the ragamuffin's visit made a change in Dr. Tourniquet. "If I can't do these things myself," he argued, "there are others who can." After that the doctor was a liberal giver to those associations that do the work of ministering to the poor.

The Weekly Market Report

A Montreal report says:

The tone of the market for eggs for the most part of the week showed firmness which was attributed to the fact that there was no marked increase in the arrivals of Canadian stock, consequently dealers have had to continue to import from the United States to supply the shortage. The demand has been good and quite an active trade has been done which resulted in all offerings being cleared up daily, and sales of freshly gathered stock were made in some instances as high as 40c per dozen, in a wholesale jobbing way, but the bulk of the business was done at 38c to 39c. The tone of the market to-day was easier owing to the milder weather which has prevailed throughout the country and the prospects for increased receipts of Canadian stock next week, and prices were reduced at the close 1c per dozen, and the market will open on Monday on the basis of 37c to 38c per dozen. Owing to the near approach of Easter when there is generally a large consumption the indications are that a very active trade will be done during the next two weeks.

With reference to the foreign markets, recent cable advices from Liverpool reported a drop in prices for eggs, which was the result of increased local supplies and in sympathy with the Canadian and American markets. That Canadian eggs will be a factor on the British market this year is indicated by the increased inquiries from the different English firms. The scarcity of tonnage and the high freight rates on eggs, viz., $1.20 a cwt., approximately 10c per dozen is now being added, has caused some concern among the Canadian shippers, but the feeling here is that when navigation opens from the port of Montreal more tonnage will be available and conditions will greatly improve.

Government Engineer Inspected Local Harbour Conditions

Following a request from Mr. J. H. Burnham, the Chief Engineer of the Department of Public Works sent an engineer, Mr. Wilson, to examine the conditions of the Peterborough harbour and report to the department. No arrangement had been made for the development of the harbour according to the records of the department, but Mr. Burnham said he hoped to show Hon. Robert Rogers when he returns from Europe that the Government should make a contribution to the Hunter street high level bridge in lieu of maintaining a swing in a street level bridge. The city will proceed with its bylaw, but the Government's contribution will be considered upon the report of Mr. Wilson. He was accompanied to-day by Mr. Burnham, Mayor Duffus and City Clerk Armstrong.

Two Lieutenants Give Up Commissions, Enter Ranks

Now on Way to Join Their Battalion at Eastern Point.

LONDON, March 29.—Lieuts. M. Wilson and P. Turnbull of the 186th Battalion, have obtained permission to resign their commissions and to go overseas with their battalion as privates. When the battalion, last week, left Chatham, where it had been quartered during the winter, they applied for permission to go as privates. The permission has been granted and they are on their way to overtake their battalion at an eastern point, where it will receive further training before proceeding overseas. Two other officers, Lieuts. T. C. Odelle and G. S. Wright also applied, but were refused permission owing to physical unfitness.

Potatoes Due For A Drop

Likely to Come Down to Twenty-five Cents a Peck in Toronto

Farmers are caught napping. Quantities of old vegetables which have been held up in pits throughout the country are now coming into the Toronto Market. "We are not anxious for old vegetables now," say the dealers. "It is imported stuff that is in the demand."

According to reports from the market, farmers are having some difficulty in disposing of their potatoes and carrots. One farmer alone has over 100 bushels which he is anxious to dispose of. Potatoes which are now selling at 60 cents a peck it is predicted will drop to 25 cents by the end of the week, and carrots the same.—Toronto Star.

Only Seven Vacancies Left in the Platoon Of Motor Cyclists

Sergts. Lloyd and Baxter were agreeably surprised last night by the number of young men who interviewed them in connection with the work and requirements of the Motor-Cycle Corps that is nearing completion at Kingston. It was an evidence that there are fellows who realize the special attraction of this branch of the service, and of the fact that there are numbers who require only some little urging to get them into khaki. Sergeants Lloyd and Baxter have rooms at the Y.M.C.A., and will be there every night for a time. They ask the Peterborough chaps that desire to join a good unit to come up and talk over the matter anyway, sort of get acquainted with the details of the Motor-cyclist platoon and feel the attractions it is bound to exert. One man signed up last night, only seven places left.

This cut shows the manner in which the 207th Battalion proceeded to enlist its men. This Ottawa Battalion went overseas under the command of Colonel McLean.

Mr. T. C. Elliott Says Courtesy of City Council is Appreciated

An Examiner reporter interviewed Mr. T. C. Elliot this morning, with reference to the action of the Council last night.

He expressed himself as being highly gratified at the courteous treatment they invariably received from the City Council. The genial, kindly, gentlemanly courtesy accorded them at all times by the Mayor and Ald. Saunders, chairman of the Property committee, is fully appreciated.

"We hope to renew the pleasure of our meetings with them again on the same errand next year," said Mr. Elliot.

Appointment Is Not Confirmed

In connection with the item in yesterday's Examiner regarding the appointment of Miss Clinkscale as school nurse, it is stated that the appointment will not be made until the meeting of the School Board, which will be held next Tuesday.

While Miss Clinkscale commenced duties yesterday, she is only substituting until the appointment has been made from a number of applicants, of which Miss Clinkscale is one.

WOUNDED INSTEAD OF KILLED

From the field hospitals of both the British and French armies comes the news that the soldiers in them who are suffering from wounds in the head are now several times more numerous than they were before the troops began to wear steel hats in form some thing like the helmets of other days.

The natural, or at any rate the first deduction made by most people on hearing this will be that the partial revival of a defensive measure that was abandoned when fighting with swords and arrows went out of fashion was a mistake and that the steel hats should be abandoned. But the deduction would be the mistake, not the steel hats, for though now the hospitals have in them more men with head wounds than before, it is only because so many at present escape with hurts more or less serious, whereas formerly they were killed. And, of course, it is wounded men, not dead men, that are taken to hospitals.

The new helmets are far from giving perfect protection, but they do give a very appreciable amount of it and are credited with the saving of many lives. They are the one part of armour the wearing of which is either useful or practicable in the conditions of modern warfare. As the pictures show, they are ugly things, but they serve soldiers in the trenches so admirably that our own military authorities might well be preparing to provide them for our troops. Perhaps they are already doing so, but it has not yet been reported.—New York Times.

INSPECTION POINT FOR MUNITIONS ESTABLISHED HERE

Peterboro' Will Be Inspection Headquarters For This Part of the Country

Peterborough is to be made an inspection divisional point under the authority and jurisdiction of the Imperial Muntions Board. Up to the present Peterborough has been subject to the chief inspection department of Toronto or Montreal, and if any trouble arose in connection with local munition contracts it was necessary to refer the matter to Toronto for adjustment. A number of new inspection points have been formed throughout the country and Peterborough is included in the list. Inspection headquarters will be established here and surrounding towns such as Lindsay, Belleville, Port Hope, Cobourg and other munition manufacturing points will be under the direction of the Peterborough inspection headquarters.

Daylight Saving For Peterborough

Matter Will Be Introduced Into the Council on Monday Evening Next

Back from the salt sea breezes of Atlantic City, Ald. E. Worth last evening witnessed the official execution of the free market scheme. In fact the West Ward alderman was in at the killing. Up until last evening it was a matter of speculation as to how Ald. Worth would vote on the question. For the past two weeks he has been summering at Atlantic City and has missed much of the comedy that has been enacted by the Council in that time. At the close of the free market discussion Ald. Worth intimated his desire to submit to the Council a daylight saving scheme. Mayor Duffus said that he would give Ald. Worth an opportunity of bringing up that question at a Council meeting to be held on Monday evening next, as last night's meeting was called for a specific purpose, namely, the disposal of the free market question.

A proposal to introduce daylight saving legislation was brought to the attention of the Council a year or so ago, but was turned down. Hamilton, Kingston and a number of other cities repealed the daylight saving measure after it had been in force for a time, claiming that it was not practicable. The railways refuse to change their time, and confusion results.

FEW DROPS AND CORN LIFTS OUT

Says There is No Excuse For Cutting Corns and Inviting Lockjaw

Sore corns, hard corns, soft corns or any kind of a corn can harmlessly be lifted right out with the fingers if you will apply directly upon the corn a few drops of freezone, says a Cincinnati authority.

It is claimed that at small cost one can get a quarter of an ounce of freezone at any drug store, which is sufficient to rid one's feet of every corn or callus without pain or soreness or the danger of infection.

This simple drug, while sticky, dries the moment it is applied and does not inflame or even irritate the surrounding tissue.

This announcement will interest many women here, for it is said that the present high-heel footwear is putting corns on practically every woman's feet.

of the Queen's Own Rifles. He was also a member of the 57th Rangers, saw service in 1866, and was a member of the Veterans of '66 Association of Peterborough.

For many years Mr. Hay was a member of the Board of Directors of the Little Lake Cemetery Company, and in many ways his public spirit found expression in general concern in all interests that make demand upon the exercise of good citizenship.

In politics Mr. Hay was a Conservative, and in religion a Presbyterian, a member of the Board of Management.

In 1861 Mr. Hay was united in marriage with Louise (daughter of the late Rev. Charles Roux, Anglican, of St. John's, Quebec), who survives him, together with two daughters, Mrs. (Dr.) Crawford, of Marmora, and Miss Isabel at home.

The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon, March 30th, from the family residence, 193 McDonel street, at 2.30 p.m.

AIRPLANE FIRE PATROLS.

They Will Be Experimented With in Quebec Forests.

MONTREAL, March 28.—The inauguration of aeroplane fire patrols in Canadian forests was announced by Ellwood Wilson, prominent timber limit owner, after a lecture given by the aviator, J. A. D. McCurdy. The new patrol service will be tried out in the St. Maurice Valley and flying men returned from the front will take up the work.

trical engineers was raised by the C. G.E. for the duration of the war. All their expenses are paid out of the company's funds. These men, including Major Hazen Ritchie of Peterborough remain on the company's payroll, but their service is rendered to the country. The C.G.E. took $250,000 of the first war loan and $500,000 of the second just closed. The company has made as wide a range of munitions as any industrial enterprise in the Dominion. In addition to the forgoing it has supplied other manufacturers, it has machined shells of the various sizes used at the front, and turned out brass cartridge cases and primers in large quantities. Senator Nicholls stated that the Munitions Board would not permit him to state the details of the quantities of the war material manufactured by the local factory.

"Manufacturing at the present time has to contend with numerous difficulties. There is the difficulty of obtaining raw materials, delay in transportation and other trying conditions, but it has been a matter of pride that we have been able to keep our Peterborough plant as busy as possible under these circumstances. It is also a matter of gratification that we have been able to contribute to the progress of this city during the past twenty-five years. Our payroll shows the number of men we have employed and it must have been of some slight benefit to Peterborough."

Of Senator Nicholls' personal work in connection with the organization and administration of funds that have arisen out of the needs of the war it is known that he is a member of the Central Executive of the Patriotic Fund of the Executive Council of the Toronto Branch of the Fund and Vice-President and Chairman of the Executive committee of the Toronto Branch of the Red Cross Society.

Ebony Stick To Sergt. Brown From Police

Not a "Night Stick" But Gold Headed Walking Stick

Sergt. Brown was presented with a gold-handled ebony walking stick and an address by the members of the Police Department this afternoon on the eve of his departure for Sudbury where he assumes the duties of Chief Constable on April 1st. The address beautifully executed by T. Q. Quartermaine was read by Chief Thompson and Sergt. Reid made the presentation. The address follows:

We, the members of the Peterborough Police Department are gathered together this afternoon to show the respect in which we all hold you, and to offer you our sincere congratulations on your recent appointment as Chief Constable of the town of Sudbury.

While we regret your departure from our midst we are nevertheless proud that you have reached the top of the ladder of our profession.

We cannot let you leave without acknowledging the kindness you have always shown us, and also of marking our appreciation of your devotion to duty whilst a member of this department for more than five years.

We ask you to accept this walking stick as a slight token of the goodwill and best wishes of every member of the department for your future welfare.

Signed on behalf of the Peterborough Police Department 29th March, 1917.

NEW YORK, March 28.—A news agency despatch from Petrograd says: Evidencing the new spirit in the army, despatches from the south western front to-day told of a great demonstration accorded Gen. Brusiloff on his taking the oath with his troops of loyalty to the new provisional Government. Brusiloff personally reviewed his troops and witnessed their repledging of fealty. Then his men carried him on their shoulders to army headquarters. There great red shields were brought out, inscribed: "Those in the rear conquered a dynasty; we at the front will conquer the enemy. Long live Brusiloff, the nation's hero."

Marie Doro At The Empire

A Fine Picture Programme For the Balance of the Week

The inhabitants of the little Island of St. Ba'tiste still mete out justice as their forefathers did two centuries ago. There are no jails, judges or juries in the Island, but punishment is administered by the "Prefect" or Governor, with a long, many-thonged whip.

This is the theme for the Jesse L. Lasky production of "The Lash," which will be the paramount attraction at the Empire on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with the beautiful and captivating Marie Doro as the star.

How one of the daughters of this quaint little Island, now a favourite of fashionable society, metes out this punishment to one of her own sex who seeks to steal the affection of her husband, is depicted in a graphic and startling manner.

In addition to "The Lash" there is a good comedy entitled a Seminary Scandal, and on Friday and Saturday, Mutt and Jeff.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—If our city authorities would use their influence with our School Board to have them close the Collegiate Institute early in April, as Toronto is doing they will be doing the parents a far greater good than giving them a free market.

This cutting off the revenue of about $2,000 from our market is like burning the candel at both ends. Taxes mounting up revenue cut off. Leave the market as it is and see to it right away, quick, that the big squad of young boys are liberated from our high school not later than April 15th.

Yours truly,

Impudent Demands Made On Roumania

Germany Asks Immediate Release of All Interned Germans There.

LONDON, March 29.— An official despatch received from Jassy Roumania, says the Swiss Minister there has notified the Roumanian Government on behalf of the German Foreign Office that unless Roumania releases by April 14 all interned Germans, including those of military age, Germany will seize more hostages in the occupied districts of Roumania and will deport these new hostages to Bulgaria and Turkey.

The despatch adds that no reply to the demand has been made, but that it is not likely that Roumania will accede.

Lonely Trapper Dies Alone With Dogs

Francois, Unknown and Friendless, Dies in the Woods.

MONTREAL, March 29—Francois, the old trapper of the St. Maurice, is dead. Searchers found him dead on the floor of his little shack in the lonely wood the other day. The pack dogs that had been his companions in his solitary life, were dead too.

Who Francois was, where he came from ,and who were his friends, is unknown. He was one of the uncommunicative mortals of the wilderness.

Last fall with two great dogs he went out with his traps many miles behind St. Maurice. On his way back he carried a bag in which were a number of small dogs. He led two great hounds. These were to be his companions and assistants in the winter's work.

What happened after he went into the woods no one knows, but one day last week Francois' dead body was found on the floor of his shack—his dogs lay dead around him—and there was every indication that death had occurred three weeks erlier.

A coroner has gone to conduct an investigation.

POLICE ARE TRAILING THE "TANGO LIZARDS"

Thus far they have found seventy-six; sleek, slender, immaculately tailored, pasty faced, effeminate and ennuied youths who leech a luxurious livelihood from dance crazy middle-aged married women who dope their husbands as Mrs. Elsie Hilair duped hers. Mrs. Hilair was found strangled in a downtown hotel.

These devils of the dance are a new type; distinctively the product of the big city's hot house gaiety. Hundreds of them are employed by hotels and cafes to cater to the passion for excitement of married women past the bloom of youth.

Anyone with a mind to may see them at work. In the big Oriental and tropical garden-like tea rooms they "snare" their prey, the "tango bugs" who jump out of bed in the morning, get their husbands' breakfast, kiss them goodbye, put the house in order and hurry away afoot, in street cars and in limousines, to spend the afternoon dancing and hurry home before dinner in the evening.

The "lizards" are not to be arrested. But they are known to the police; and some of them are said to have most unsavory former records. Many of them, the police say, were recruited to "lizardry" from the ranks of pool room trouts and petty criminals.

"Should you wish to keep cream for future use add two or three lumps of sugar, cover and set away in a cool pantry.

New Mace Presented To Premier Borden

Ex-Lord Mayor and Sheriffs of London Made Presentation in Guildhall.

LONDON, March 29.— Sir Robert Borden, with Hon. R. B. Rogers and Hon. J. D. Hazen, proceeded from Buckingham Palace to the Guildhall, where the Premier received from the late Lord Mayor, Sir Charles Wakefield, and former sheriffs, Sir George Touche and Sir Samuel Ahead, the new mace for the House of Commons in Ottawa, which they jointly presented to replace the one destroyed by fire.

The donors often visited Canada and each have important business connections with the Dominions.

The ceremony was brief, but most pleasant, Sir Charles Wakefield speaking with respectful appreciation of the part Canada had performed during the last two years and expressing confident hopes of her high destiny in the future.

The new mace is almost a replica of the old one, and what was saved of the former mace has been incorporated in the new one.

The acting Magistrates were Squire Macklin and Mayor Dr. Stevenson.

up his wounds. He is now able to be out and is receiving lots of invitations from people living near the hospital where he is a patient.

In the list of the officers of the Peterborough branch of the Great War Veterans' Association, published in the Examiner, yesterday, the name of Pte. Ernest Mealey of the 2nd Battalion, was inadvertently omitted. Pte. Mealey was elected as one of the members of the Executive Committee.

Ottawa, Ont., March 28.—The announcement that in future no more commissions will be granted in the Canadian Expeditionary Forces in Canada brings to a head a situation which has been developing for some time in connection with the large surplus of commissioned officers in Canada. There are estimated to be 400 surplus artillery officers alone, and in infantry, the engineers, the mechanical transport and other branches there are also many young Canadians with commissions, but no appointments.

Where formerly battalions or batteries were sent over with their full quota of officers now under the draft system, there are only two officers to every hundred men. The custom of sending over drafts of officers to England has also been discontinued, though it will be continued if such officers care to drop their commissions and go as privates.

It is understood the various officers' training schools will also be discontinued. A proposed school for engineer officers at St. John's, Que., has been cancelled. So has a siege artillery school at Halifax. It is understood the next Kingston field artillery course may be the last for a long time.

The Soldiers' Wives' and Mothers' Club have received the following letter:

Dear Friends,—I beg to acknowledge receipt of the parcel of socks you sent me for distribution to the boys in this battalion, and I thank you very much indeed, for the boys and for myself. Socks are very welcome, owing to the wet weather and mud, so the boys were glad to get a new pair.

Wishing every success to your club and again thanking you for the socks, I remain,

Yours sincerely,
W. C. SIMMONS.

Mrs. Wm. Stanley, 455 Stewart street, of the Soldiers' Wives' and Mothers' Club, has received the following letter:

Dear Friend,—Many thanks for your letter dated Feb. 1st, which I received a few days ago.

Received one bundle of socks with much appreciation, and thanks. I have asked quite a few Peterborough boys if they require any. They all seem to have lots of socks; the trouble is they don't want to have too many; it means carrying them around, on the move; they have quite enough to carry. I will ask the rest of them, then I will use my own judgment in giving them to boys who do need them, even if they come from the other end of the world; it is the only thing to do. One thing I have noticed, Peterborough boys are well looked after by the women of our dear city. We have got to be thankful for that. Last year I got socks quite a few times; I always found that the Peterborough boys had lots of socks, so had to give them to other boys who needed them I will see the Sergeant gets a pair of socks, with your regards.

It was with deep regret that I read of how the 93rd boys were being cut up. It will cause many sad homes and hearts in Peterborough. They all have my deepest sympathy.

I was not surprised to hear you had not the heart to write after the sad blow you had sustained. It takes a long time to get over it. We have to wait and trust in God for His strength to bear us up, after such a blow.

The weather out here has been rather cold lately; it is what we expect at this time of the season.

Hoping this finds you in the best of health, as it leaves me at present. Thanking the Wives' and Mothers' Club for their kindness, sending us the socks; wishing their Club every success this year.

Yours always,
WM. McKINLAY.

Must Buy This If You Get That in London Now

NEW TRADE LEAGUE MAKES IMPERATIVE CONDITIONAL PURCHASING.

LONDON, March 28—There's a new league in London. It's called the No-This-Without-That League.

Old Man H. C. of L. is the honourary president, and if the trusts ever hear of it—good night. Your grocer and his fellow conspirators, the butcher, the baker, and the candlestick maker, are all active members. You are the goat.

When Mrs. Housewife of her hubby goes into a store to make a minor purchase the man behind the counter informs her or him that he or she can't have any of this unless he buys some of that.

TOBACCONISTS STARTED IT

The tobacconists here were the first to adopt the idea. No matches sold to customers who don't buy tobacco. The grocers weren't more than a jump behind. No sugar unless you bought groceries. Then the butcher got it—no beef unless you buy a bone.

If there was such a thing as free lunch in this country they'd probably be a sign out, "No free lunch except you buy a drink." Which, as any one knows, is foolish, because the men who buy drinks hardly ever look at the free lunch.

ELEPHANTS WITH FLEAS

Dame Rumor has it that the barbers are going to join the league. You know—no shave unless you get your hair cut. This may be exaggerating things a bit, but here is what is said to have happened:

A well known London animal trainer has a weakness for fleas—performing ones. He went to an animal store in the city, whose proprietor, unbeknownst to the prospective purchaser was a charter member of the league, and tried to buy a pair of the diverting insects. "Yes," said the man behind the counter; "we have a team of performing fleas for sale. But, owing to the demand for these little pets, we had to make it a rule never to sell fleas except to those who will buy a pair of elephants.

Free Market Scheme Voted Down By The Council

ket tolls for the benefit of Ald. Worth. His Worship asked Ald. Stratton to state what items he would place on the free list.

Elaborate Speech.

Ald. Stratton said that was a matter for the Council to decide. He did not know why the weight of that responsibility should be placed on his shoulders.

Ald. Stratton enumerated a number of items that he would continue on the list of articles subject to tolls.

Mr. Maher said the deputation did not question the ability of the farmer to pay tolls.

Would Lower Prices.

Mr. Harry Cressman was of the opinion that a free market would create a larger volume of trade. More farmers would patronize the market and the larger quantity of produce would tend to reduce prices to the consumer.

Mr. Caldwell said that it was not the farmer who was accustomed to attend the market that would be influenced by a free market. It was the farmer who did not attend the market who might be induced to come in if the market tolls were removed.

Mayor Duffus, in anticipation of casting the deciding vote, did not think that the present tolls constituted a detriment to the market. His Worship said he was speaking from experience, as many a day he sold produce on he market. He said that if a free market would lower prices it would tend to keep the farmer away. He contended that the present tolls were sufficiently large enough to keep order on the market. He failed to see how two, three, five and ten cent fees would keep anybody away from the market.

Ald. Stratton suggested that Mr. Maloney, the present Market Clerk, be invited to speak.

Ald. Duncan intimated that Mr. Maloney had been invited to attend.

"That's a pretty strong statement," observed Ald. Weir.

GOVERNING COMMITTEE FOR THE GREATER PRODUCTION MOVEMENT

Officers Elected at a Meeting Held Yesterday Afternoon —Mr. Walter Stocker Elected President—Each Member Will Pay a Fee of Fifty Cents to Cover Incidental Expenses.

Yesterday afternoon a meeting of the special committee named at the meeting in the Council Chamber, the night previous, and which committee was appointed as a nominating Board to further select a general, or governing committee for the Greater Production Movement, in this city, was held. It was decided to prepare a list of names, comprising not more than twenty, and submit this, with the names of officers for the season, to those in attendance at the meeting to be held in the Opera House on Tuesday night, April 3rd.

A general discussion was had in reference to the whole scheme, and suggestions were brought forward. These were set aside pending the acceptance of the slate, as indicated above. It was decided, however, that a fee of 50 cents per member would be charged, to cover incidental expenses. The nam by which the local movement will be known was not decided but will await further action. In the meantime suggestions for a name are invited.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

Following is the slate as completed, subject to revision and approval. It is possible that names be withdrawn, and if so others will be substituted, it being understood that the whole number may not exceed twenty. Further on sub-committees will be named, each to take charge of the details, and of this further announcement will be made.

President—Walter Stocker.

Vice Pres.—Rev. Dean W. J. McColl.

Sec. Treas.—F. H. Dobbin.

General, or Executive Committee—F. E. Ellis, (Farm and Dairy), R. S. Parsons, W. Henry, Jos. Wearing, R. M. Glover, W. R. Breyfogle, Jos. Crowe, W. J. Kennedy, William Lytle, Roland Denne, Harry Quiney, Joseph Begley, W. A. Howard, Walter English, Young, J. E. Smith.

A suggestion was put forward that the Utilities Commission be asked to afford the use of water, free, for purposes of the production. That is that those who are using lots and can reach a water supply be allowed to use it for purposes of irrigation.

GERMANS FAIL TO BREAK BELGIAN SPIRIT

MONTREAL, March 29.—News received here from a correspondent who until recently had been living in Rochefort, Belgium, having been there from the time of the German invasion, is to the effect that the morale of the population resists all sufferings. He proceeds: "The heroism of our King and his army, the proud and noble attitude of the clergy and of the leading classes, sustains and comforts the people in these difficult times. The odious policy of Germany, which seeks to break the spirit of the people by the diffusion of false news, and by the suppression of all communication between the families remaining in the country and their soldiers, has not only failed conspicuously, but has had the effect of fermenting a hatred which centuries will not extinguish. Our compatriots, proudly and heroically resigned, await with absolute confidence the success of the Allies. They hope it will be soon, but they are willing to wait any length of time if waiting be the price of the triumph and glory which complete victory will bring.

That is the spirit of the Belgian people whom Canadians, in common with other fortunate nations, are being asked to help out of their abundance. These people, so proudly and heroically resigned, are facing absolute starvation, and will starve unless the relief coming to them through the Belgian Relief Commission is kept up and increased. With all industries closed down by the Germans, with the ordinary food supplies of the country requisitioned, and with German taxation that is bleeding them white, they are powerless to help themselves. Every day their need increases.

There is a big shortage in the funds available for this work, despite administration that sets a new record for efficiency and economy. Strong neutral commission is carrying on the work of distribution hitherto under the direction of disinterested Americans. Canadians are invited to take a bigger share in the splendid work of providing funds to keep the Belgians from famine while awaiting deliverance. Subscriptions are most earnestly invited. They may be sent to the Central Belgian Relief Committee, 59 St. Peter street, Montreal, or to any local Belgian Relief Committee.

Trinity Church Choir Entertained

The members of Trinity church choir were entertained last night at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. MacNab, 528 Gilmour street. The occasion was taken to hold the weekly rehearsal after which a social evening was spent in music and games, etc.

During the evening Miss Taylor, who has filled the position of soloist at Trinity church for the past year with much acceptance was presented by the choir with a supply of table linen. Miss Taylor will conclude her engagement with the church on Easter Sunday and leave shortly afterwards for her new home in the West.

MERCHANTS ARE NOT OPPOSED

Mr. T. C. Elliot authorizes the Examiner to state that the merchants are not opposed to the construction of an overhead bridge on Hunter street. A misunderstanding arising out of the suggestion that the matter should "receive grave consideration" gave rise to the rumour that some of the merchants would oppose the expenditure.

U. S. FARMERS FOR ENGLAND

LONDON March 28.—"Five thousand skilled American farmers on English soil would go a long way towards combating Germany's plan to starve us into submission through her submarines Sir Arthur Lee, head of the newly formed Food Production Department, told the Associated Press correspondent, adding that he hoped to attract at least that number.

"We will, of course," he said "get some skilled agricultural help from Canada—from the great northwest—and we are already benefitting to some extent by the labour of Canadian farmers who have come over to fight for us. But we cannot have too many. Skilled farm labour is our crying need at this moment."

Sir Arthur said the introduction of the American tractors on the large scale contemplated would also wit- of women on the land.

Auto Pirates Made Harvest of Fords

WITH GIRL AS MEMBER OF THE BAND THEY STOLE 31 CARS IN THREE STATES.

TRAPPED IN JERSEY TOWN.

PRISONERS SAY MOTORS WERE DISPOSED OF THROUGH AN AGENT IN MANHATTAN.

PATTERSON, N. J. — Three men and a 21 year old girl were committed to the Passaic County Jail after the police said that they had confessed to stealing thirty-one automobiles in Connecticut, New York and New Jersey. Although held in default of $1,000 bail each on charges of grand larceny, the young men may face additional charges under the Mann Law, according to Captain of Detectives John Tracey, who said the confessions furnished enough evidence to support such complaints.

The nominal leader of the band is said to have been Vincent Brady, who gave his address as 347 Washington Street, Newark. Besides Brady those held are Raymond Foote of Norwich, Conn.; George J. Fox, of 289 Baimbridge Street, Brooklyn, and Mabel C. Van Arsdale of 259 West 116th Street, New York. Miss Van Arsdale, the police allege, had passed as Brady's wife.

The capture of the band resulted from the wariness of Samuel Friedman, proprietor of an automobile accessories store at Ellison and Patterson streets. At 8:30 o'clock last night Friedman found his new Ford car missing. Touring the city in search of it Friedman saw one that looked like it standing in front of the Manhattan hotel. Despite the fact that the auto bore a different license tag Friedman talked with the man at the wheel and by this ruse was able to identify a rug in the rear of the motor.

At police headquarters, Brady's admissions caused the detectives to hurry to the Manhattan, where the others were arrested. Ten hours grilling by the police established the fact that ten automobiles were stolen in Newark, ten in New York, five in Springfield, Mass., three in Norwich, Conn., and three in Bridgeport, Conn. According to the police the band worked only at night, stole only Fords, changed the license tags, and disposed of the machines through a New York tailor, whom the police expect to arrest shortly.

The Van Arsdale girl told the police that she had known Foot, since he was 14 years old. They were engaged, she said, but she did not marry him, although her parents believed that when she left home two years ago, it was to become Foote's wife. Foote would say very little about himself, except that he and Brady had become acquainted while working together as drug clerks.

Arraigned before Recorder William Young, the prisoners said that up to March 13 they had lived in a rooming house in Bank street, Newark. Mrs. William McGibbin, who conducts a furnished room house at the address given, substantiated this, but added that she had put the four out because she was suspicious of them. Her suspicions, it developed, arose from her observing that the three men invariably went out only at night, and were careful to remain out of sight during the day.

ARTILLERY MOVED GERMANS.

Dr. Pike Says British Shell Fire Responsible for Retreat.

NEW YORK, March 28.—Dr. Melrose Pike, who returned yesterday on the Cunarder Andania from Liverpool, with two other doctors and three nurses, forming part of the Harvard unit which left New York five months ago, said that when he left France, three weeks ago, the military hospitals at the front were emptied of patients, to make ready for the big offensive next month. He added that from what he had seen and heard the Germans withdrew because their positions were no longer tenable on account of the continuous shell fire of the British artillery.

Officers of the Andania said they did not see any submarine on the way. The liner brought 77 passengers and 2,000 sacks of mail, which detained her in quarantine for two hours and a half. Captain Arthur H. Rostron, who commanded the Carpathia when she rescued the survivors of the Titanic, was in command.

Brown Rot On Plums And Peaches

There is one phase of fighting this disease which is hardly ever given enough consideration — the destruction of the old dried-up, rotted fruits, or "mummies," which hang on the trees through the winter. Researches by the officers of the Division of Botany, Dominion Experimental Farms, have demonstrated beyond question that these mummies will readily carry the fungus over the winter, and even if they are covered with spray in the spring spraying, the fungus will readily grow out through the spray coat on the dried-up fruit. The resulting spring infection is quite important, not only because it starts the fungus again for the summer but because it is apt to cause the destruction of a large number of blossoms. Damage from this cause was quite prevalent in both 1915 and 1916, and especially in the latter year this factor acted in conjunction with shortage of bloom and poor setting conditions to lessen the fruit crop materially.

Plum mummies may be shaken or knocked off the trees at any time in the winter and this work may be conveniently done along with pruning; but in the case of peaches they should be taken off as soon as the fruit starts to rot, that is, at picking time. This early removal in the case of peaches is necessary because the juice from the rotting peach passes back into the branch, which is thus killed for distances up to two feet or more. The loss of the twig or small branch in this way is not so important as is the danger of having cankers started on large branches where the twigs are killed back into them.

In large commercial orchards the only practicable way in which to dispose of these mummies is to have them ploughed under, but in small orchards or in garden plots, they may be raked up and burned or buried; and it is well worth while to do this when cleaning up in the fall.

For a more complete account of this disease, see Bulletin No. 24, Second Series, obtainable on request from the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

GERMANS MUST GO HUNGRY

LONDON, March 28.—Adolph Von Batocki, president of the German Food Regulation Board, in a statement to the Reichstag committee, admitted that the compensations for the reduction of the bread ration were not sufficient, but declared no other solution was possible, according to a Central News despatch from Amsterdam. Despite all the experience the food administration had gained and the knowledge of conditions they had acquired, the supplies had been too highly estimated, but the seriousness of the situation did not justify either sharp criticisms or Utopian proposals.

The supplies of pigs were not sufficient to permit the slaughter of the number which strict necessity required, and therefore the reserves of cattle would have to be drawn upon considerably. Increased production was impossible, owing to the lack of labour, leaving out of consideration the enormous difficulties of transportation. In any case it was impossible to live without potatoes and bread, and the agriculturists must be made fully aware of their obligations.

GRIEF KILLS AGED SENATOR.

Was Being Taken to Germany As a Hostage.

PARIS, March 28.—Charles Sebline, Senator for the Aisne Department, is reported to have died of grief and privation while being taken to Germany as a hostage. Senator Sebline, who was 71 years old, remained in his home at Montercourt among his constituents throughout the German occupation. He was forced to accompany the retreating Germans after seeing his house and sugar plant destroyed and his estate ravaged.

Asquith For Woman's Vote One-day Polling

LONDON, March 28.—Former Premier Asquith said in the House of Commons to-day that the House would not be unprepared to hear that he and other members no longer regarded the question of woman suffrage from the standpoint they occupied before the war. Mr. Asquith made this statement in moving the adoption of a plan for electoral reform.

Mr. Asquith said his opposition to woman suffrage always had been based solely on consideration of public expediency. The women had now worked out their own salvation. The war could not be carried on without them. What moved him especially, he added, was the problem of reconstruction after the war. He considered it to be neither just nor expedient to withhold from women the power of the right to make their voices heard directly.

BITTER MEMORIES

The fact that for three years there had been no resurrence of the "detestable campaign which had disfigured our public life," said Mr. Asquith, would make it impossible for anyone to say that in changing their position in regard to suffrage he and his associates had yielded to force what they had refused to yield to argument.

With the exception of the actual bearing of arms in the field, there was hardly a service which had contributed to maintenance of the cause of the allies in which women had not been as active and efficient as men. Wherever one turned might be seen, women, who, without detriment to the prerogatives of their sex, were performing work which three years ago would have been regarded as falling exclusively within the province of men. After the war questions would arise with regard to women's labour functions and activities in which the women must have a voice.

ONE-DAY POLLING.

Mr. Asquith also supported strongly the other proposals for electoral reform, and expressed the opinion that the recommendation that all elections should take place on one day, dealt with one of the greatest reforms which could be introduced. He understood that the life of the Parliament would be extended further until the end of November, and hoped that a new register on the lines of the reforms suggested would be ready, should an election be necessary at that time.

LLOYD GEORGE ENDORSES.

Premier Lloyd George followed with a declaration in favour of suffrage. The Premier said he welcomed the resolution in favour of women suffrage which was made in the programme for electoral reform moved to-day by former Premier Asquith.

The other reform measures also were approved by the Premier, who said that in the opinion of the Government it would be a national waste if the results of the conference, on which the reforms, were outlined should be thrown away. He favoured a generous extension of the electoral franchise by reducing to a trimester (three months) the period for qualifying for voting, and by assuming the qualification of every soldier and sailor.

THE HUNS MADE A BIG SWEEP

Inhabitants of Evacuated Territory Were Forced to Work on Them.

(By William Philip Simms.)

With the British Armies Afield, March 24.— Not only did the Germans sweep that part of France they are relinquishing clear of homes, supplies, and roads, but in many cases they swept it clear of its womanhood. In some districts women between fifteen and fifty were forced to go back into the interior of Germany. The inhabitants left behind were given to understand they were being forced to work for Germany. At Rouy le Grand to-day I was told over 400 women and girls between those ages had thus been driven to the interior for work. When I asked why, the refugees merely shrugged their shoulders.

An old man—he said he was 65—told me in a quavering voice as he stood on a ruined street at Rouy le Petit: "I have lived three miles north-west of St. Quentin since a year ago, when the Boches made me dig trenches along with hundreds of other Frenchmen. They paid us 50 cents a day—and it was script money, which Lille and other French cities had been forced to print for the invaders."

New Line is Strong.

"The new German line, on which we worked, is extraordinarily strong. I am positive the Germans intend to hold it if they can. It is about a mile wide, counting the support lines and communicating trenches and roads, and with enormous fields of entanglements.

"Months ago the German forces came there with numbers of other old folks like myself and children. Both men and women of from 15 to 50—and, in some districts up to 60 — were forced to work for Germany."

There is no doubt of the strength of the new German line on which this old man and scores of other civilians had worked. As the Franco-British forces approached nearer to it to-day the fighting became stiffer and stiffer. The British and the French are pinning the retreating Germans tighter against the Arras-Cambrai-St. Quentin-La Fere-Laon line.

Evidences multiplied to-day that the Germans regarded the territory over which they have now retreated as permanent property. The fact that they had to give it up after viewing it as their own for some time, may, in a degree, account for the great ill-humour of the destruction on all sides.

Evidences of Permanency.

Among the evidences of this idea of permanency the invaders must have had was that many cemeteries were carefully constructed and permanently decorated with solid marble tombstones and crypts.

One hears America mentioned everywhere in the desolation —for it was American supplies which enabled the French civil population to exist. All speak gratefully of American aid.

"Please have some coffee," said a woman near Ham early to-day, as we passed through. "It's American coffee, sweetened with American sugar. This bread is American bread. We have American salt, American lard — and pepper and vinegar—and everything. I don't know what we would have done without this food.

"Before the Germans left we were allowed to draw enough food supplies to last us for three or four days. I understand some did not draw this advance —and these are now the hungry ones."

The woman who spoke had a six-months-old baby in her arms and was with four other children — all hers — and her grandmother. All these were driven from the region of St Quentin by the Germans. The woman's husband was forced to leave for the interior of Belgium or for Germany to work. The family had not heard from him since.

PROOF OF HUN BARBARITY.

Commission of French Officers to Secure the Facts.

PARIS, March 28.—General Nivelle, at the request of Rene Bernard, Under Secretary for War, has appointed an officers' commission to report on the devastation caused by the Germans in the evacuated portions of France. The commission is instructed to "inquire into and draw up detailed reports with proofs attached, of all acts of barbarity and devastation committed without any military necessity and with the sole object of ruining one of the richest regions of France."

HOW WE KNOW WHEN OUR LORD WAS BORN.

It must not be supposed that last Christmas was the 1,916th anniversary of the birth of our Lord. Christmas is the day set apart by the church for the commemoration of His birth, but the church does not pretend that he was born on December 25th.

And although most of us think we count our years from that in which He was born the best authorities, religious and scientific, assure us to the contrary. Prof. Pio Emanuel, Astronomer to the Vatican Observatory, is one of the greatest authorities on the chronology of the New Testament, and this is what he has to say about the date of Christ's birth:

"According to the best and most recent historical and scientific researches, our Lord was born either in the year 6 or the year 7 B.C. That he was born before the year 4 B.C. is historically certain, from the simple fact that Herod the Great, some time before his death ordered the massacre of the boys two years old and under, in order to make sure of Jesus being included in the slaughter. Now, Herod died, according to the testimony of Flavius Josephus in his 'Antiquities of the Jews,' a few days before an eclipse of the moon.

"Here astronomy steps in to establish the date of this eclipse and makes certain that it must be referred either to that which fell on March 23 of the year 5 B.C. or to that of March 13 of the year 4, both of which were visible in Jerusalem. The illustrious astronomer Elia Millosevich director of the Observatory of the Collegio Romano, holds that the second date is the more probable.

"It being settled that Herod's death was in the year 4 B.C., it follows that Christ must have been born one or two years before; hence in the year 5 or the year 6 B.C., when we consider the historical details that followed His birth, such as the coming of the Magi, the flight into Egypt and the Massacre of the Innocents.

"It is therefore to be observed that the present era, the Christian era, has not as its beginning the date of the birth of Christ but the year 753 of the foundation of Rome, as it was fixed in the sixth century by the famous monk Dionysius Exiguus."

SOM(M)E DREAM.

From the Somme to Piccadilly
Is a dickens of a way,
Though it took me just a second
In my dream the other day.

I was sleeping in my dug-out,
With my ears bunged full of clay;
Yet I thought I heard a whisper,
"Special Whitstables'! this way."

I was "phizzing" it at Prince's
With a golden-headed girl,
And her smile just drove me 'balmy,
And my heart was all a whirl.

Then I danced to "raggy" music
As I held her to my side.
I was just about to kiss her,
When I woke and d—— near cried.

'Twas a rat that spoiled my slumber
And woke my happy rest,
By a-nibbling at my whiskers
And a squeaking on my chest.

THE WEATHER.

The heavy fall of snow last night brings the total for this winter up to 56 inches, and while late, is not unusual. Every year, without exception, we have falls of snow in April, and on May 4th, 1907, we had a full six inches of snow, which beginning to fall the previous night, did not cease until 10 a.m. of that date. The snow plows had to go their rounds. Again on the 28th of May, 1907, snow fell to the depth of one-half inch. This was a very backward spring, and the maples were not in full leaf until June 7th of that year. On May 20th, 1903, there were also flurries of snow.—W.P.

SHIPBUILDERS ARE BUSY.

Have All the Work They Can Turn Out This Year.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 28. — The speeding up of shipbuilding operations in Canada was the subject of a conference to-day between Sir George Foster and representatives of the different ship construction companies engaged in turning out tonnage for the British Government in Canada. Through the Imperial Munition Board, contracts for upwards of twenty-five million dollars' worth of commercial ships have already been placed. For other purposes, the orders are for an even larger amount The idea of to-day's conference is to systematize operations in order that the contracts may be completed with the least delay possible. The only limiting factor among some builders is the difficulty in securing steel. In that respect satisfactory arrangements are now being made. Canadian yards are assured all the business they can take care of this year, and it is hoped that in a few months several new industries will develop.

ELECTORAL REFORM FOR GERMANY PERHAPS.

Chancellor Seems Looking For Increased Democracy.

NEW YORK, March 28.—A special cable to a news agency from Berlin says: Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg may decide to grant electoral reforms in Germany, looking toward increased democracy in the empire before the end of the war, according to a significant hint contained in the Cologne Gazette today.

The Gazette declared that the Chancellor's speech of March 14, in which he declared in favour of an extension of popular control, and promised such a readjustment after the war should end, was not made as a result of the revolution in Russia, because it was impossible he could have heard of the democratic movement there at that time.

OBITUARY

MISS J. D. ROSS.

A tribute to the memory of the late Miss J. D. Ross, formerly of the Turnbull Co., Peterborough, who came to Canada from Glasgow, Scotland, about six years ago, and who passed away at the St. John's Hospital, Toronto, on Saturday, Feb. 10th, 1917, and was laid to rest in the Macnab family plot at St. John's cemetery, Claremont.

She was a girl of inestimable character ,and by her kind and loving disposition, she made a great many friends during her short stay in Peterborough, and her happy, cheerful manner will be greatly missed by those who were closely associated with her.

The more we love the better we are.
And the greater our friendships are,
The dearer we are to God.

JAMES E. ROBERTS.

Mr. Roberts was born in Leeds, Yorkshire, 39 years ago, and for the past few years has made his home in Anstruther. He came to the city a few weeks ago to work at the Henry Hope Co. and lived with his sister, Mrs. Harry Everett, Braidwood Avenue. He was a member of the Anglican Church.

CLARION JOEL BAKER.

Clarion Joel Baker who died at the home of his parents, Dr. W. A. and Mrs. Baker on Monday of this week was a young man of unusual promise. He was twenty-one years old at the time of his death. He was the only son and only child of his parents. Had he lived six weeks longer he would have graduated B.A. of McMaster University. Dr. Gilmour who came to the funeral as the representative of McMaster Faculty said in his brief address at the home that the Chancellor and Faculty had agreed unanimously to ask the Senate to confer the degree in absentia and that in all probability the name of the deceased would be enrolled among the graduates of the University, where his conspicious talents were known and appreciated.

Four students came to the city from McMaster to represent the student body, Messrs. E. S. Cole, M. Fawthrop, Ibra Connors and Lepofsky. Mr. Cole who is the president of the student body spoke for ten minutes expressing the sympathy of the young men and women of McMaster, who felt this death that had come so suddenly as a personal bereavement. Arrangements were made to have the body lie over Tuesday night in the chapel of the university before being taken on Wednesday to the town of Aylmer, Ontario. The floral tributes were many and beautiful, the faculty of McMaster University and the students being represented in this way as well as by deputation.

The service at the home was conducted by Rev. J. R. Webb, the pastor of Murray Street Baptist church and the pallbearers were Messrs. W. Scott, Jethro Graham, Carl Browne, Meldrum Fawthrop, Leon Webb and Charlie Lapp.

Dr. and Mrs. Baker have the sincere sympathy of the entire city.

FARM BRIEFS.

A good rule when asked to put our money into a strange business is to think of something you can do on your own farm with it.

More shrubbery and flowers about the farm house, as Farm, Stock and Home truly says, improves both the living and the selling value of the property.

Are the harnesses oiled and the snaps renewed, are the traces sound and the bridles good; are whiffletrees ready, the clevises there, the plow lays sharp and of rust all bare?

Uruguay, says a writer in Farm, Stock and Home, is only about the size of North Dakota, but it is estimated that this little country owns ten million head of cattle, half a million horses, twenty-five million sheep, and possibly half a million hogs.

"PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE"

Only Actual War Is Talked of in Official Circles in Washington—Cabinet Meets This Afternoon

PATRIOTIC WAVE

(By Robert J. Bender.)

WASHINGTON, March 30. —Only actual war was talked here generally to-day. Chancellor Von Bethmann Hollweg clinched the idea. President Wilson and his cabinet, booked for a late afternoon session, were expected to shape the last details of what will mean the entry of the United States into the conflict in some fashion to be decided by Congress. The Cabinet and President were expected to shape the last of the details of the President's 'war message' to-day. The main thought of it, strong, active defence of America's rights, according to the authorities, has been crystalized long since. That President Wilson is rapidly turning more strongly in favour of some form of universal military training is the view of officials who have followed events closely.

The Pacifist element in Congress will be swamped beneath a patriotic wave, according to unofficial canvasses to-day. Congress will uphold President Wilson to the last ditch. That the President in his speech will make Germany's guilt entirely evident, is regarded as a foregone conclusion.

The Crisis Is Not A Military One But One Of Adequate Food Supply

Increased Crop Production Is Being Emphasized as Never Before—Food Supply of the World is Very Low—What An Acre of Beans Will Do.

FOOD AND MORE FOOD

The importance of increased production is being emphasized as never before. We are told that the food supply of the World is very low. The producers of farm foods are becoming less and the non-producing consumers are increasing. Wide sections of country which were formerly productive are being trampled by armies and large quantities of food materials are now being lost in transit The food situation is becoming increasingly serious. This is emphasized by the following quotations from the public press of recent dates:

Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, stated in the House of Commons on Friday, March 16th, that "The British Government regards the production of food of greater importance at the present time than the sending of additional men into the army."

Lord Devonport, Food Controller for Great Britain, stated in the House of Lords on Thursday, March 22nd, that "It might be necessary to resort to compulsory rationing which would be a national calamity."

The Duke of Devonshire, Governor-General of Canada, stated in Brandon on March 6th, that "The supply of food was not only important but perhaps the most important problem which the Empire had to solve."

Mr. R. B. Bennett, M.P., Head of the National Service Board of Canada, recently declared that "The crisis is not a military one, but one of food supply."

Hon. Martin Burrell, Dominion Minister of Agriculture, stated in January last that "A vital factor will be an ample and unfailing flow of food to England and to France."

Mr. N. W. Rowell, Leader of the Opposition in the Ontario Legislative Assembly on March 9th "Urged that steps should be taken to insure that the lands of the Province were made to produce every ounce of food possible."

More than one-half of the cropping lands of Ontario is now in grass and the grass lands of the Province have been increasing at the rate of fully one hundred thousand acres annually during the last four years. During this time there has been a decrease in Ontario and in the whole of Canada of live stock, including dairy cattle, beef cattle, sheep and swine. In the last four years there has been an actual decrease in the acreage in Ontario of twenty-three per cent. in beans, fifty-seven per cent. in peas, seven per cent. in winter wheat, ten per cent. in turnips and twelve per cent. in potatoes. In 1916 eighty-three per cent. of the beans, eighty-four per cent. of the peas, eighty-two per cent. of the fall wheat and thirty per cent. of the potatoes in Canada were produced in Ontario.

An Acre of Beans.

It is estimated that an average acre of beans produces as much real food material as is usually obtained from five to fifteen acres of pasture land in the production of either meat or milk. With slight exceptions, the most

"UNSAFE THRONES"

Note of Doubt as to Germany's Future is Heard in Reichstag Speeches—"A New Foe"

BERLIN DESPATCHES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

AMSTERDAM, March 30.— For the first time since the start of the war, a note of doubt as to Germany's future has crept into Reichstag speeches, according to dispatches received to-day from Berlin.

Member Sphan was quoted as declaring, in a debate to-day, following Imperial Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg's speech that he "hoped Germany was prepared to fight a new and powerful foe." The Socialist member, Noske, bitterly censured Foreign Secretary Zimmerman's Mexican-Japanese scheme against America, and declared that the Prussian system of government must be abolished."

Spahn asserted that all the Entente rulers were now sitting on unsafe thrones.

Making Money Out of Hogs

Bacon Hogs Are Not Expensive Feeders—Barley as a Hog Feed —Steady Production Is What Counts For Profit

The man who makes the most satisfactory returns out of hogs is the man who is in hogs all the time, and only to the extent that his farm will conveniently carry. An "in and out" policy does not pay. The hog, as Prof. Geo. E. Day has pointed out, in a bulletin dealing with the subject, is essentially a by-product of the farm and a means of turning to valuable account commodities which would otherwise be largely wasted, such as whey or skim milk, small potatoes, grain shelled in the field. The hog, like other meat animals, also renders it possible to make a double profit out of coarse grains—one profit in a real "home market" for the grain itself, and another in the manure produced in feeding.

For Ontario farmers, the bacon type of hog is beyond question the type to be produced. That is the type which both the home and the English market calls for, and for this type these markets will pay a premium.

Bacon Hogs Make Economical Gains.

Moreover, contrary to the opinion sometimes expressed, the bacon type can be produced at least as cheaply as the thick fat. At the Ontario Agricultural College Farm four experiments were made by Prof. Day with six breeds of hogs. These included the York, and Tam, which are preeminently the bacon breeds; the Berk and Chester White, which may be classed as semi-bacon type; and the Poland-China and Duroc-Jersey, which are of the thick fat class.

In the first experiment the amount of meal used for 100 lbs. of gain in the different breeds was as follows: Berk, 398 lbs.; Tamworths, 400; Poland-China, 417; Duroc-Jersey, 424; Chester White, 452; York, 468.

In the second test, Berk used 327 lbs. of grain per 100 lbs. of gain; Tam 331; Poland-China 338; Chester White 340; York 341; Duroc-Jersey 350.

In the third test, York came first with 350 lbs. per 100 lbs. of gain; Berk second with 370; Duroc-Jersey 376; Chester White 378; Tam the same; Poland-China 393.

In the fourth test, Berk at 409 lbs. for 100 lbs. gain; York 422; Duroc-Jersey 436; Chester White 438; Tam 462; and Poland China 474.

In all cases, save one, a thick fat was at the foot of the list. In three cases Berks came first in economy of gains; in one case York was first; in two cases Tams stood second, and Yorks and Berks were second in one case each. In no case did the thick fat get better than third place. The Berk, on the whole, made the best showing in point of economy of gain, and the Berk crossed with a York or Tam makes an excellent bacon hog.

Barley One of the Best Feeds.

For the production of the bacon type of hog, one finished at 175 to 200 pounds, barley is one of the best of feeds, and will give a greater gain for the amount of feed used than will corn; but barley should be mixed with other grain to increase its palatability. In a general way oat chop is the best grain for growing hogs; and barley and corn and shorts for finishing. Milk in all cases adds to economy in production.

The cheapest gains are the early gains. At Guelph Agricultural College 310 pounds grain were required for 100 lbs. increase for hogs weighing 54 to 92 pounds; 375 for those weighing 96 to 115; 468 for hogs from 115 to 140, and 455 for hogs from 140 to 170 pounds. For hogs from 200 to 250 pounds in weight American experiments show that from 492 to 532 pounds are required to produce 100 pounds of flesh.

Editor, Examiner:

Sir,—In your report of the lecture in St. Paul's church last Friday night by Rev. Mr. Turnbull you omitted, what I consider, an important part. If my hearing served me right, the lecturer, after reading Gen., 1:1-2, said that "the world had been previously inhabited, and the devil was responsible for the earth being without form and void." This was rather startling doctrine to me, and as there are to be other lectures, would it not be well to let us have some further light as to the inhabitants of the former world, and the devil's part in it.

Mr. Pogue, at the close of the lecture, said, "we should thank God for being privileged to listen to such an able discourse; he had learned more of the devil than he ever knew before."

With all due respect to the rev. gentleman, I am not quite sure that we should thank God for listening to such an elaborate display of Satan. Paul says in Rom., 16:19-20, "I would have you wise unto that which is good and simple concerning evil. And the God of Peace shall bruise Satan under your feet shortly." However, I believe the general public would be pleased if these transient preachers will be a little more explicit on their new doctrine, such as the world prior to the account in Genesis.

Sincerely yours,
R. J. TODD.

IS YOUR HEALTH WORTH $5.00?

Woman Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health.

Lima, Ohio.—"I was all broken down in health from a displacement. One of my lady friends came to see me and she advised me to commence taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I began taking your remedies and took $5.00 worth and in two months was a well woman after three doctors said I never would stand up straight again. I was a midwife for seven years and I recommended the Vegetable Compound to every woman to take before birth and afterwards, and they all got along so nicely that it surely is a godsend to suffering women. If women wish to write to me I will be delighted to answer them."—Mrs. JENNIE MOYER, 342 E. North St., Lima, Ohio.

Women who suffer from displacements, weakness, irregularities, nervousness, backache or bearing-down pains, need the tonic-strengthening properties of the roots and herbs contained in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

BRITISH AND AMERICAN TRADE POLICIES.

(New York Times)

The United States has followed England in passing from the agricultural to the industrial stage, from that to the financial stage. It is difficult to foretell England's next stage or our own. The result to both will depend upon how far we make good our claim to be world bankers. England accumulated the immense wealth which is amazing even herself by freedom of trade. Reversion to protection, as some English authorities propose, would be a backward step. There are those who would propose the same policy for ourselves. That is only a little less desperate. Protection of the exclusive sort is a confession of incompetence for the future which is within our attainment. We must regulate imports not by duties, but by domestic production both for consumption and export, and we must invite imports that are to our advantage. Thus trade will be illimitable, and the profits will help us to assist with the world's financial problems when they may be referred to us. The alternative is to retreat behind our defenses, shrivel trade by prohibitory statues in the name of protection. Thus we should resign into other hands the duties and the profits which trade conditions have thrust upon our astonished men of business, many of whom have yet to be born again into sympathy with world affairs.

Germans Aroused By Juvenile Crime

HEAVY INCREASE IN LARGE CITIES DESCRIBED IN BERLIN JURIST'S BOOK.

PREACHING HATE A FACTOR.

ABSENCE OF PATERNAL RESTRAINT AND REDUCTION OF POLICE ALSO AMONG THE CAUSES.

Within a few months after the war started items began to appear in the German press telling of a remarkable increase in crime among the children and the youths of the empire. In connection with these reports, which were reprinted in the newspapers of the allied and neutral countries, accounts were given of the stern measures being taken by the various district commanders to repress the criminal activities and it was openly stated by some German writers that while the main causes of this condition were to be found in the absence of paternal restraint and the reduction in the police force, the preaching of hate toward the enemy nations was in no small degree responsible.

In February two things occurred which indicated how far the lawlessness of the German youth had developed during the war. The school authorities of Berlin held a special meeting to consider the situation, and adopted a resolution which The London Times translates as follows:

"In view of the fact that numerous cases, mentioned at this meeting, have proved that the behaviour of the school children is becoming exceedingly bad, we request that orders shall be given (1) for the police and the guardians of order and the law to take energetic measures on their own initiative against all shamelessness, mischief and roughness on the part of children in the streets; (2) to prevent any restriction of the lawful right of punishment which belongs to the teacher; (3) that the educative influence of the school may make itself felt in their behaviour to older persons who have the courage to take action against the insubordination which is exhibited by the young every day in the houses, courtyards, and streets of our city; and (4) to see that the school police intervene much more speedily and energetically."

Almost coincidentally with the news of this meeting there arrived in London copies of a book by Dr. Albert Hellwig, a well known Berlin jurist, and author of many legal works called "The War and Crime among the Young." Dr. Hellweg sent the last sheets of his work to press on June 27, 1916, so that his disclosures of the heavy increase of crime among the German children between the ages of 12 and 18 cover nearly two years of war.

BOOK ON JUVENILE CRIME.

"To get his materials the author scoured German newspapers, obtained numerous reports from institutions and societies which care for the young and wrote direct to the police authorities in several hundred German towns. The material thus obtained, together with his own comment and conclusions, goes to fill the 282 pages of his books.

In Berlin in 1915, there were twice as many crimes among the young as in 1914. Munich reported that in the first three months of 1915, the number of young criminals equalled the total for 1914. From Stuttgart came the news that crime had very considerably increased especially with those of school age. Frankfort rejoiced in a decrease of 55 per cent. of minor offences, but an increase of 40 per cent. in serious crimes. The author is amased at a long list of such reports, especially as hundreds of thousands of youths from 16 to 18 years old were not at home but in the German army as volunteers.

His conclusion is:

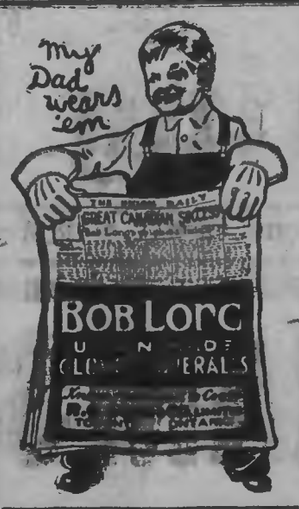
"From all these figures it is evident that crime among the young diminished in some places during the first six months of the war. But afterwards the increase was all the greater—at least in the larger towns and as regards crimes tried before a Judge and jury."

In order to strengthen his own verdict, Dr. Hellwig quotes a lecture which Professor von Liszt of Berlin University gave last year. The professor said:

"With regard to the young between 12 and 18 years of age, the statistics which have been kept since 1882, show that crime among them has constantly increased. In that year alone the number of young people sentenced for offences and crimes was 30,719 in Prussia alone. By 1912 the number had risen to 54,949, a number which continually increased till the war broke out. Further it must be remarked that minor offences are not included in these figures, otherwise we should have to multiply the numbers by three. From 15 to 17 per cent. of the above had previous convictions."

MURDERS DONE BY CHILDREN.

Among the major crimes listed in Dr. Hellwig's book, are the following: A servant girl, aged 15, was tried by court martial at Greifswald, and sentenced to three years for setting fire to a granary. Two Potsdam youths waylaid a beer wagon, battered the driver senseless with his own beer bottles, and obtained $60 in loot. In Munich on May 1, 1915, a nine year old boy killed his sister, one year old, by cutting her throat. At Oels (Silesia), a boy of 17 heard in December, 1915, that a neighbor (her husband serving in the army) had sold her horse and had the money at home. He went there but the woman was out—after stealing the money he got an axe and murdered three children who had witnessed the theft. His arrest followed but during the whole trial he showed not the slightest regret for the crime. His sentence was the highest possible—fifteen years penal servitude. In Berlin, the same month,



Helene P. killed her sister with a kitchen knife in order to steal her savings. At Hamburg, on July 14, 1915, two girls, aged respectively 17 and 15, entered the dwelling of a woman in the Elsastrasse, murdered the woman, and then stole what they could find.

Dr. Hellwig gives the following reasons for the increase of brutal crimes, the class which shows the greatest increase: Economic conditions—poverty in the first period of the war, and high wages afterwards; anti-educational influences—fathers absent from home, slackening of school discipline, trashy war books and films; fewer policemen, caused by the mobilization, and the amnesty for youthful criminals decreed in the early days of the war.

In view of the fact that the Prussian government has gone on record against the anti-hate propaganda in the schools, started by some of its subjects about a year and a half ago, Dr. Hellwig, as is noted in the reviews of his book appearing in the London newspapers, is rather chary in his treatment of that phase of child criminality. The last six pages of his chapter on "Causes," are devoted to hate. He writes:

"The excessive excitement of the childish imagination by the events of the war, especally as they are depicted in trashy literature, is one of the brutalizing influences acting on our young people in war time. To inoculate the children with hate would breed lust for revenge and could only bear evil fruit."

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

Time can be profitably spent just now in giving the seed grain one more cleaning.

At the Menie District combination sale of Ayrshires prices ran from $105 to $382.50.

Sheep will turn to profitable account more waste products than will any other class of farm animals.

Feed is high, but it is not so high that one can afford to ruin a good pasture by turning stock on it too early.

At St. Louis British buyers are picking up 3,000 army horses weekly and French buyers 2,500 more. And still Ontario is overlooked.

Finderne Mutual Fayne Valdessa, a ten months' Holstein calf, sold for $21,500 at the Portland, Ore., sixth International Live Stock Exhibit.

Britain's overseas trade in pedigreed stock for January was one of the best ever experienced. All told, $366,000 worth of stock left the country.

A sheep has a low nervous organization and once neglected gives up with little effort. But kept in thrift with good care it will be as hardy as any other animal.

Whatever other crop may be neglected do not let the corn area be lessened. No crop will produce as much feed, in proportion to labour expended, as will corn.

On behalf of Lord Lonsdale and Henry Overman, two Percheron stallions and a number of mares have been sent from France to England. These men will begin a new stud book in England.

Labour on the diary farms this year is going to be hard to get, and undoubtedly will cost all it is worth. It is a condition that will start many dairy farmers thinking about mechanical milkers.

Uniformity in market stuff is becoming more popular every day, and the time when one could see traces of twenty of more different breeds in a carload of lambs, hogs or cattle will soon be past.

If the average farmer could get one assistant as easily as the Ontario Department of Agriculture can hire a score of "experts" production might be greatly increased in this old Province in 1917.—Farmers' Advocate.

The earlier calves are taught to eat the better. If the calf is given a small handful of ground oats, with th hulls sifted out, in the bottom the hulls sifted out, in the bottom up the milk he will be eating chop before he knows it.

Hogs will eat alfalfa hay, and pay well for it. That was proved the past winter on many farms where economy was practised by substituting hay for part of the corn and tankage or other millfeed which it was customary to feed.

Grade Percherons from the United States have done so well in the British artillery service that the powers that be are looking forward to the Percherons being widely used in England for the future raising of artillery horses.

The general indifference of horse breeding at present in some farm sections offers all the more encouragement to those who follow the less popular course and raise horses before they are actually at a premium on the markets.

"Astonishing how my

Strength and Fitness

"It was astonishing how my strength and fitness came back," says Mr. G. C. INMAN, of 330, HARGOURT STREET, STURGEON CREEK, WINNIPEG, for many years a well-known man in the business life of Canada. Mr. Inman continues: "It is about three years now since I first used Dr. Cassell's Tablets. I was terribly run-down and weak. Sometimes I felt I should have to leave off altogether, my work was such an effort to me. I ate little. I had no appetite, and I suffered if I forced myself to eat.

"My nerves of course were in a bad way, and my sleep very disturbed. Everything, in fact, pointed to a nervous breakdown. It was then a friend told me about Dr. Cassell's Tablets, and I got some to try. The first result was that I could sleep at nights, and then my health rapidly improved. It was really astonishing how my strength and fitness came back.

"I may add that some time ago my mother was very ill with pernicious anæmia. I urged her to take Dr. Cassell's Tablets, but she would not, so I crushed them down and gave them in food without her knowing. She was confined to bed before she had the Tablets, and now is about again well and bright."

Mr. Inman is now in England, having had to return there some little time ago to take control of the well-known firm of A. W. Inman and Son, Printers and Publishers, Leeds. Letters will reach him there.

Japan Working For Monroe Doctrine For Eastern Asia

SYDNEY, N.W.S., March 26.—If we closely follow the movement of the Japanese policy since the close of the Russo-Japanese war, we can come to but one conclusion, and that is that Japan aims to establish a Monroe doctrine in Asia.

Japan wishes to preclude the possibility of any other Power getting the upper hand in Eastern Asia, and to bring this about she desires to secure for herself the hegemony of the Far East, so as to become the potential political and territorial arbiter of her own and China's destiny.

Compared with the world desires of other nations, Japan's motive is not so arrogant or selfish as would at first seem. So far, there is nothing to suspect that Japan desires to make a dead set against China, or launch out on a career of conquest.

For the present it seems as if her policy is one of defence. The happenings of Western Europe have taught her that unless she guarantees the safety of the East, she runs a fair chance of losing her own independence. And Japan has put aside the idea of trusting her future welfare to the favour and mercy of the western nations.

So, at a time when the leading nations of the world are coming to the point of accepting a policy of humane internationalism, in which no nation is wholly independent of the other Japan is planning for complete independence of the West, using alliances only to promote this end.

Following Example of Others.

In bringing about this attitude, Japan has but followed the example of Great Britain and the United States. According to Jap idea Great Britain could not allow the predominance of any one power in Europe—hence the present war. And the Japanese figure out that Heaven has called them to a similar destiny as regards Asia. She is virtually the Great Britain of the East, and just as Great Britain would not tolerate the ascendancy of a menacing power along the coasts of Europe, neither can Japan along the coasts of China.

Japan believes that the inhabitants of Asia should direct their own destiny, and by efficiency, orgaization, political stability, industrial resources and military and naval strength, Japan plans the championing of the Oriental Monroe Doctrine.

East is East and West West.

As is well known, several western powers have their eyes on China, and Japan fears that they are trying to get the better of her in that country. And Japan has the idea firmly in her mind that the supremacy of any western nation in China must inevitably mean the doom of Japan. Japan for some time past has had the idea too, that western powers have been a constant menace to China. She has seen the leading powers of Europe secure bases along the Chinese coast—England at Wei-hai-wei; France at Saion; Germany at Teing-tao, and Russia at Port Arthur.

These inroads appeared to Japan but the setting up of so many alien bases of operation before her gateways of empire. She would have prevented these intrusions if she could, but at that time she was new and ignorant in the counsels of nation, and lacked the prestige and the armaments to threaten the intruders. Then she awoke of the possibilities of relief, resolved on reform and got busy to set her house in order. For thirty years she exerted her whole strength on the establishment of national defence and the acquirement of sufficient wealth to support them. Her every system was completely transformed, and directed towards a policy of national independence.

The army and navy were re-organised and placed on a modern footing with an efficiency second to none It is not too much to say that the whole process of modernizing in Japan has been diverted towards consolidating the national policy of independence and the establishment of a Monroe Doctrine for the Orient.

During th years of her rehabilitation, Japan's fight with China tried her fighting efficiency, and the machine worked well. In this one-sided fight, Japan got the island of Formose, which she had long coveted, as a base to guard her southern gateway. Having thus first assumed herself that she was in a position to dicate terms o China, Japan made up her mind that the time had come to put into operation her policy for the hegemony of East Asia.

Russia Was a Menace.

Japan's task was now to block the progress of the Western Powers in the East. She took things as they came, and went about the business in the most practical manner. The first obstacle was Russia, whose policy in the East was directly detrimental to Japan as far as China and Korea was concerned. Japan recognized that once Russia got the upper hand in Korea, it would be all up with Nippon, while at the same time Japan could not hope to check the Slav movement eastward unless she secured a base of operations on the mainland of Asia.

Thus in checking Russia and in getting Korea, Japan killed two birds with the one stone, and the sword that hung so long over the head of Japan was seized by herself, and turned against the aggressor, just as it will continue to be turned against all who menace the Monroe Doctrine of East Asia. Having defeated Russia, and gained Korea, Japan was in a good position to consolidate her eastern policy. And for the last ten years this process has been quietly but surely going on.

At the present it can only be said that Japan's move makes for the territorial and political independence of China and herself. But it also prevents the Western powers to acquire interests superior to those of Japan or that threaten the sovereignity of China.

TO CHECK A COLD.

It is easy to check a cold if you begin in time. Frequent doses of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine loosen the cough loosen, allay the inflammation, and so prevent it spreading to the bronchial tubes and lungs. Mrs. A. M. Moore, Shortsved, B.C., writes: "I wish to state my gratitude for Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, for it cured a cold which a friend said would soon put me in the grave."

TOMMY HUNTS THE HUNS

Brilliant Raiding Shows Careful Study of Terrain

We must congratulate the men of the British army on the vigor with which they conduct their very strong and effective feelers into the enemy lines, writes M. Marcel Hutin in the Echo de Paris. A close study of the raids accomplished shows with what care the local commands have studied the terrain and made their arrangements for attack. Having chosen the sector to be raided—the extent of which varies between 400 and 600 yards and is selected with a view to the elements of the enemy trenches demolished by rapid and efficacious bombardment being reached at small cost by the charging infantry—over the parapets come the men like a hurricane. The surprised enemy, not having time to start a barrage fire for fear of bombarding his own men, resigns himself to the inevitable, and the Tommies "regain their lines like men returning from a football match, bringing back with them prisoners and numerous trophies."

Britain's Modern "Drake"

Admiral Sir John Jellicoe, among his other accomplishments, is an expert on the ice, says a London paper. He was admitted a member of the London Skating Club, after going through the rigid and exacting qualification test demanded by that exclusive body. The picture of Jellicoe skating while the Germans are devising new methods of frightfulness is quite in the spirit of Drake's famous game of bowls.

A man who refused at Shoreditch, England, to sign on under the substitution scheme was ordered to join the army at once.

BILL WOULD BAR SMOKING ON STREETS OR WHERE CHILDREN ARE.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.,—March 28.—Hi there, smokers! Look out! Kansas is after you. And when Kansas goes after anything it sometimes gets it. Don't you dare pollute the atmosphere of Kansas with your cigars and pipes. And as for cigarettes—self-rolled or factory made—they are an abomination in the nostrils of Kansans.

The same men who made Kansas the prohibition capital of the United States are now going after the 'weed' in every shape.

Representative O. P. Jewett of Dighton has just introduced a bill in the Kansas legislature to restrict the use of tobacco. And while some smokers laugh at the bill, others, remembering the tenacity with which Kansas sticks to its ideas, are inclined to fear that sooner or later the anti-smoking measures will be hammered through some legislature and will become the law of the state.

SOME MEN CAN ESCAPE

The Jewett bill is sweeping in its provisions. If you happen to be a bachelor and can go down to the club—which, by the way, must have a special room for smoking and the name "smoking room" must be on the door—you can escape its provisions.

And if you are a married man with out any "incumbrances" you can smoke to your heart's content—provided you stay within your own doors. But if you happen to be one of those home loving fellows who after a hard day's work like to spend their evenings home with wife and children and a pipe or cigar you are in trouble if this bill goes through.

For you can't smoke if there are any children in the house; and that's all there is about it.

NO SMOKING ON STREETS.

And you cannot smoke out in the street, no matter who you are. Nor can you smoke in the caboose of a freight train. In fact you can't smoke on a train of any sort, a street car, a taxi, an omnibus, a public park, or any other public place, nor in "any room or building where children are kept." And if you do ou will be fined $10 to $25.

And furthermore, if the custodian of a building or a watchman or a policeman sees you smoking and fails to arrest you he is subject to the same fine as the smoker.

After the anti-smoking bill becomes a law in Kansas it is the intention of its backers to spread the doctrine into other states, they say.

So watch out, you smoker. Kansas is after you.

Old Artilleryman Dead

The death occurred at Wimborne (Dorset) at the age of 91 years of Mr. William Zebedee, who served as a gunner with the Royal Marine Artillery in the Baltic in 1854, in the Crimea, 1855, and was present at the capture of Sebastopol, Kinburn, and the operations in the Sea of Azoff.

PERMANENT HABITS OF THRIFT

Success of the Sale of Canadian War Certificates.

OTTAWA, March 28.—Sir Thomas White, referring this morning to the success of the sale of war certificates said that the demand for certificates has greatly exceeded his expectations when the scheme was first put into effect. He expressed the belief that the sale of these certificates would lead to the formation of permanent habits of thrift on the part of the people of Canada. These good results have been brought about, Sir Thomas stated, by a quiet and persistent propaganda among all classes of the community, in addition to newspaper advertising. Sensational methods of advertising have been avoided because, while such methods may be attended by success, they are usually followed by reaction.

SOLDIERS SANG AS THEY CALMLY WAITED FOR DEATH

"Cherished Traditions of the Birkenhead" Nobly Upheld By British Troops Aboard Transport Tyndareus, Which Strikes a Mine Off Southernmost Point of Africa—Graphic Story of Escape.

TWO WARSHIPS TO THE RESCUE

CAPE TOWN, March 29.—Almost at the identical spot where the troopship Birkenhead, famed in song, story and picture, sank after striking a reef off Cape L'Agulhas, on February 26, 1852, the heroism of the soldiers and sailors on that vessel has been duplicated by a battalion of the Middlesex Regiment and the crew of the troopship Tyndareus, which on February 9 struck a mine while rounding the Cape, inbound. But, whereas 358 soldiers and 87 sailors of the Birkenhead went down to their death, lined up in prefect order, and calmly watching the sharks that awaited them around the sinking ship, every man on board the Tyndareus was saved, and they took five dogs ashore with them. Moreover, the troopship was towed into Simon's Town, where she now lies moored.

Young Men, Not Veterans.

The cool courage with which these soldiers, not veterans, but young men recently taken from the factories and offices of London, faced unexpectedly what appeared to be certain death, has added further laurels to a regiment that had won glory on many historic battlefields, and has aroused intense enthusiasm throughout the Union of South Africa.

The previous day at 11 o'clock in the morning the steamship Cicillia, a 3,750 ton collier of the Marwood International Line, Whitby, had also struck a mine off Dassen Island. Tugs from Cape Town went to her assistance, but she sank while being towed in, all of her crew, however, being saved and brought here.

The Tyndareus was putting into Table Bay for fuel and supplies, in a strong southwesterly gale. The vessel had just passed the steamer Oxfordshire and the soldiers for the most part were amusing themselves by watching another troops ship the Eumaneus, which was following her, when a terrific explosion shook them, off their feet. What happened then is recounted in a local newspaper:

Sing "The Long Trail."

"The assembly was at once sounded, and the troops, each man wearing a life belt, lined the decks in perfect order. The ship was settling down by the head with the propellers hanging well out of the water, and it appeared almost certain that the vessel would sink before assistance could reach her, but though they must all have realized their imminent peril the demeanour of the men suggested, not that they were facing death, but that they were parading for leave.

"As soon as the roll had been called and the order 'stand easy' had been given, someone started 'The Long Trail,' and in a few seconds the whole gathering from end to end of the ship had taken up the haunting refrain of the latest marching song. Then came the oldest favourite, 'Tipperary,' and for half an hour afterward, while the ominous decline of the dock toward the bows became more and more noticeable, chorus after chorus swept along the lines and over the sea, where both the Oxfordshire and Eumaeus were racing to the rescue.

Saves Regimental Dog.

"The vessel's wireless had not been damaged, and S.O.S. signals were immediately sent out, whilst boat after boat was lowered to the water. One of them was upset in its descent, but a young seaman, without a moment's hesitation, jumped overboard and succeeded in righting it; and the same man a little later distinguished himself by diving from a lifeboat and rescuing the regimental dog, Paddy.

"Another example of pluck was given by half a dozen of the troops who, engineers by profession, volunteered, to assist in the engine-room, and, exchanging khaki for overalls, did splendid work in the most dangerous spot in the ship.

"Six boats had been lowered when the Oxfordshire arrived, followed a few minutes later by the Eumaeus, and the work of transferring the troops was begun. Though a strong wind was blowing and the sea was very choppy, it was carried out without a mishap in a little over an hour, and the rescue vessels turned for port.

Two Warships to Rescue.

"Meanwhile two warships had responded to the call for help, and took the crippled liner in tow. It appeared to be an almost hopeless task, as she was then well down by the bows, but wonderful seamanship on the part of the officers and crews on all three vessels triumphed, and the Tyndareus was brought safely into port."

The troops who were landed and sent into camp at Wynberg are enthusiastic in their praises of the officers of the Tyndareus. The captain, who they say was magnificent, found time while directing operations to cheer and encourage the men as they stood singing choruses on the deck. "Keep it up, lads," he kept shouting to them. "All's well," while the troops cheered him again and again in return.

"The behaviour of the —— Battalion of the Middlesex Regiment on board the steamship Tyndareus after the accident to that ship, there being a large quantity of water on board and the ship apparently sinking by the head in a heavy swell, was most praiseworthy, and equal to the Birkenhead tradition of the British army on the same spot. It was only due to this that no lives were lost in the boat. The ship was saved by the coolness and perseverance of the captain, officers, engineers and engine-room staff."

King George's Message.

In reply the appended message from King George was transmitted through the Admiralty:

"Please express to the officer commanding the —— the Battalion of the Middlesex Regiment my admiration of the conduct displayed by all ranks on the occasion of the accident to the Tyndareu. In their discipline and courage they worthily upheld the splendid tradition of the Birkenhead, ever cherished in the annals of the British army.

Suffered From Severe Headaches
FOR TWO YEARS

Headaches are many and varying; but when the head starts to ache you may be sure there is some chief cause. The stomach may go wrong, the bowels become constipated, the blood may not circulate properly, but the presence of the headache clearly shows that unless the cause is removed some other baneful disease is liable to assert itself.

Burdock Blood Bitters has, for the past forty years, been curing all kinds of headaches and has proved itself to be a remedy that cures where others fail.

Mr. I. N. Potersben, Dnieper, Man. writes: "I am only too glad to be able to state that I derived wonderful benefit from Burdock Blood Bitters. I suffered from severe headaches for two years. I was treated by several doctors but received no benefit until by chance I heard of B.B.B., and I at once procured two bottles and in a short time I was completely cured. I am and always will be grateful for what Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. I am glad to recommend it to all who suffer from headaches.'

B.B.B. is the oldest and the best known blood medicine on the market to-day, having been manufactured for the past forty years by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed With Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe and folks are again using it to keep their hair good, even colour, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

IN JAPAN'S MUNITION WORKS.

More Than 80,000 Toilers Turning Out Supplies for Russia.

More than 80,000 Japanese munitions makers are working day and night turning out ammunition for the Russian armies. This statement is made in the March issue of the Japan Magazine, in an article on "Making Munitions for the Allies." The article, written by M. Hyodo, and approved by the Japanese Intelligence Office, says:

"In the Koishikawa section of Tokio there is a huge arsenal daily engaged in turning out munitions for the allies of Japan. Here thousands of hands never cease operation; and the smoke above the giant works is like a cloud from a volcano.

"The new arsenal first showed what it could do in the way of meeting the needs of the army during the Russo-Japanese war, after which there was a lull in output until the demand came to help Russia instead of withstand her. After war orders began to arrive from Russia the 2000 workmen in the Tokio arsenal increased manifold until now no less than 15,000 hands are busy there from day to day.

The Crisis Is Not A Military One

economical sources of food materials in Ontario in the past winter were obtained from the following groups; 1st, farm crops—oats, wheat, corn, peas, beans, potatoes; 2nd, dairy products—milk, butter cheese; 3rd, meats—beef, mutton, pork; 4th, fish—salmon, cod; and 5th, eggs. According to recent determinations and prevailing prices, as much valuable food material for human consumption could be obtained from the purchase of beans with twenty cents as from the purchase of cheese with forty-three cents, of beef steak with seventy-nine cents and of eggs with one dollar and sixty-one cents.

Field beans approach animal foods in nutritive value. They contain a high percentage of protein and in this respect surpass the cereals commonly used as food, such as, wheat and oats. There is a higher percentage of protein in beans than in the best cuts of meat, but it is not quite so completely digested. Protin is a nutrient which serves to build and repair body tissues as well as to furnish energy. It performs essentially the same part in nutrition whether it is from beans, peas, wheat, meat, milk or cheese.

Skilled labour throughout the Province is very scarce. The farmers of Ontario have an exceedingly difficult task ahead of them if they are to increase the production of the most valuable kinds of food materials in 1917. The following suggestions are offered in the hope that they may prove helpful:

1. Carefully plan the crop production for the season at an early date.
2. Thoroughly clean and grade the grain so as to procure the large, plump, sound and well matured seed.
3. Test the germinating power and the vigor of the seed before time to sow.
4. Overhaul implements and machines so as to be ready to start seeding early and to sow each class of crop at the best time for highest result.
5. Arrange for at least a small amount of such cultivated crops as beans, potatoes, turnips and corn.
6. Watch and destroy the weeds before they are able to make much headway.
7. Economize man labour by using three and four horse teams when possible.
8. Plan so as to make the best use of the unskilled labour which is available.

Copies of bulletins on "Farm Crops," "Field Beans" and "Potatoes" may be obtained from the County Agricultural Representatives or from the Ontario Department of Agriculture, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

Let us do our part as best we can for the good of humanity and for the prevention of a world's famine in essential food materials.

A WONDER WORKER.

"It heals like magic!" is a favorite expression when Dr. Chase's Ointment is used. It works quickly stops all itching at once, often heals in a single night. For eczema, salt rheum, barber's itch skin irritations or eruptions, it is a most satisfactory treatment. Being antiseptic it prevents blood poisoning.

SIR SAM ADMIRES VILLA?

Advices United States To Send Him To Europe With 50,000 Mexicans.

"Were I in the United States, and if I had the power I would be only too delighted to offer Villa a commission of brigadier-general of 50,000 or 60,000 Mexicans and to send him over to the trenches in Europe to fight the Teuton. The Mexicans are much like us Irish. They must fight, and when they have no one else to fight must fight among themselves."

In his address Sir Sam said that if Germany had been fully aware of the state of unpreparedness of the English and French, the war would have lasted only three months, and Germany would have been the victor. He urged universal military training as the only bulwark of democracy.

OVER-WORKED MINISTER

Tells How Vinol Restored Strength and Vitality.

Peterorough people will realize that we could not publish such letters as the following if they were not genuine and truthful statements of facts. The Rev. Mr. Hughes, Holly Springs, Ark., says:

"I am a Methodist Minister, and suffered from broken-down nerves, loss of appetite and sleeplessness. I was weak, my circulation was very poor, and I was not able to do my duty in my Parish as I felt I should. I had tried various remedies but did not seem to get any better. Through Mr. Gatlin of Bearden, Ark., I learned of Vinol, and it built me up. I regained my appetite, can sleep better and do more work."

There is no secret about Vinol, it derives its power to build up the overworked, brokendown, nervous system from beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptonates, and glycerophosphates, etc., which it contains.

Anyone in Peterborough who wishes to try Vinol can do so with the understanding that we will return their money if they are not satisfied.

Carried Off The Captain As Hostage

German Sub. Was Afterwards Captured By British Ship

WASHINGTON, March 29. — Between the lines of what at first appeared to be a conflicting State Department cablegram, naval men today patched out a story of how a German submarineo torpedoed the British bark Neath, took her captain hostage, and then herself was captured by a British ship.

A message from Consul Frost at Queenstown, said the captain had been taken prisoner and also added later that he landed at Queenstown the following day. What at first seemed to be a conflicting statement, however, convinced naval men that the Britons had bauged the U-boat and freed the captain.

Two Americans were aboard the Neath when she was torpedoed, but no lives were lost. Frost's message read as follows:

"British bark Neath with auxiliary steam power, 4,690 tons, bound from Mauritius to Havre with sugar, torpedoed without warning 8.45 a.m., 27th, 26 miles south of Fastnet; sank in seven minutes. No losses or injury. Captain taken hostage by submarine. Neath carried no gun or wireless. No attempt to escape or resist. Weather fair. Boats picked up by Admiralty vessels three miles off Baltimore, England, 6.30, 27th. All saved. Captain landed Queenstown, 2, to-day (March 28.)

"Two Americans, Clarence Bloom, boatswain, 2309 Stewart street, San Francisco, and Peter Webster, negro seaman, Pensacola, Fla."

Correspondent Warns Canada War Is Not Won

(By Stewart Lyon, Special War Correspondent of Canadian Press Ltd.)

Canadian Army Headquarters in France, March 30,— Officers just out of the trenches who are in a position to judge of actual conditions here, strongly deprecate what they speak of as the undue optimism recently voiced in some Canadian journals and by public men. The only possible result of this optimism, they point out, is to make the people at home think the war is won and that there is no need for more men than are now in France and England.

The truth is that during the period of relative inactivity on this front the wastage pace has been going up and down the lines, and one can see the result in the relegation of elderly men to work behind the lines. Young Canada will face the foe on this part of the front in this year's operations and young Canada must pay the price.

Some battalions doing their first turn in the trenches may have in their ranks a certain number of men ranging up toward forty, but they do not last and from the point of view of staying power they are not a good investment.

FINELY MILLED BREAD SEEMS THE BETTER.

Commenting on the recent order of the British Board of Trade that in milling wheat 80 per cent. of its weight must be recovered in flour, instead of 70 per cent. as formerly, Nature remarks that bread made from 80 per cent. flour is not so nutritious as that made from 70 per cent. flour, and it adds:

"Although 80 per cent. bread contains on the average rather more portein than 70 per cent. bread, the digestibility of the protein in the former is rather lower so that the actual weight of protein digested by the average individual from one pound of 80 per cent. bread is rather less than the amount digested from one pound of 70 per cent. bread. Again the energy value of 80 per cent. bread is rather lower than that of 70 per cent. bread."

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

By planning now to seed part of the fields allotted for grain production with emmer and buckwheat both the seeding season and the harvest season will be prolonged and a greater crop area can be provided for without increase of help.

University of California Jock, the massive champion of the Aberdeen-Angus division at the Chicago International, was a son of Boswell of Meadowbrook, a bull of Bradfute breeding, with Barbara's Rosegay and Lucy's Prince as grandsires.

Alfalfa is adapted to a wide range of soils, growing well on loose, sandy soils, as well as upon heavy soils. It succeeds best of soils of medium texture that permit deep penetration by roots and are well supplied with lime and the mineral plant foods.

At a conference of wholesale and retail potato dealers at Newcastle, Eng., it was decided to ask the Food Controller that steps be taken to force farmers to put on the market some portions of their potato stocks in March at the rates prescribed for that month.

Another important feature in favour of the milking machine, says a correspondent of The Nor'-West Farmer, is that when one comes from the field, tired and hot, it is easy and cool to let the machine do the work, as compared with sitting down among a bunch of cows.

A few years ago it was considered a normal thing for cows to give 2,500 to 3,000 pounds of milk in a year. Today yields of twenty to twenty-five thousand pounds pass almost unnoticed. Animal husbandy has become one of the most important and progressive vocations.

The best potato soils are loose and friable, varying in texture from a fine sandy or gravelly loam to a silt loam. The light-working soils produce potatoes of better quality and appearance than heavy soils, and both tubers and tops produced in such soils are freer from disease.

California Favourite, the grand champion at the Chicago International, was sired by the Hereford bull, Prince Lad 11th, a son of the famous Van Natta show bull Prime Lad 9th, and had for a dam the California-bred Shorthorn heifer Glenbrook Marvel, by Glenbrook Marquis.

Many potato diseases are carried over from one year to the next in the seed. It is, therefore, important that seed be used which is as nearly free from disease as possible. When there is any evidence of common scab or russet scab, blackleg, etc., the seed should be disinfected before it is planted.

A Wisconsin cow at 19 years of age produced 427 pounds of butterfat for the year. She had been fed silage all her life. There, says The Breeders' Gazette, is the answer for the occasional skeptic one still hears sometimes saying that silage is not a success, that the acid destroys the teeth, and eats out the lining of the stomach.

The Guernsey cow Belladia, owned by Walter H. Dupee, Santee, Cal., has, says The Breeders' Gazette, completed a record of 19,631.9 pounds of milk and 934.03 pounds of butterfat in one year. This entitles her to seventh place in the aged cow group of the class leaders in the production of butterfat, and fifth place in the production of milk.

More Enthusiastic Reports On Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Peterboro' People Are Putting This Great Restorative to the Test—Two Interesting Letters To-day

Peterborough, Ont., March 13.—The people of this city were never so interested in any medical treatment as they are to-day in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. The Examiner has been reporting cures daily, and this has kept the people talking about their experiences until everybody seems to know about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food as a most satisfactory restorative for a run-down system.

Almost everybody feels the need of restorative treatment at one time or another. The business man and school boy, as well as sister and mother at home join in praising this well-known medicine.

Mrs. Craig, 45 Macdonnell street, Peterborough, Ont., writes:

"Several years ago when my family was small, I became run down and weak and was bothered with palpitation of the heart. I commenced using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and found such good results that I continued the treatment until I had taken about four or five boxes. It helped me and made me feel better afterward.

Since then, when I feel that I need a tonic, I take two or three boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, finding the same good results each time. I can also speak highly of your Kidney-Liver Pills. I have great confidence in the use of Dr. Chase's Medicines as family remedies, and we always keep some of them in the house."

Mrs. J. Freeman, 532 Patterson Street, Peterborough, Ont., writes:

"Last spring, my daughter, aged eleven years, had a serious attack of heart trouble. For three weeks she was in bed under the Doctor's care. After she got up and was going around, we found she did not sleep well at night. We decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with her, so I procured some and commenced giving it to her. We found it benefitted her greatly, and that she did no wake up frightened in the night, as she used to. I continued the treatment, and at present she is still taking them. She sleeps splendidly, and has not had any trouble with her heart since she commenced this treatment. I have recommended the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to many of my friends."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Tyrant Man Kicks Back

By EDWARD T. STEWART

A crowd was emerging from a hall where a votes for women meeting had been held. Suddenly a lady plunged forward, pushing aside those in front of her, and caught a man by the sleeve.

"Give me my pocketbook!" she cried.

"Your pocketbook! What do you mean?"

"You were sitting by me in the meeting. I have lost my pocketbook. What can be plainer than that you have taken it? See the slit in my reticule, made by some sharp instrument!"

"If I stole your pocketbook, madam, I must have passed it to a pal, for I haven't got it."

"I say you have!"

The man, who was well dressed in a check suit, looked over the heads of the crowd and, seeing a policeman, called to him.

"One moment, please. Madam, you have accused me of stealing your pocketbook, your accusation being based on your own deductions. If you prove me guilty you will have done a duty; if not, you will have to pay well for all the inconvenience and injury you may cause me."

The woman declared that she was ready to take the consequences of her act. The policeman led the man away. At the station the culprit insisted on being searched. Nothing except his own belongings was found on him.

"Tom Nolan," said the man at the desk, "we've been looking for you ever since you made your escape from the penitentiary six months ago. Up to your old tricks, I see. You look more prosperous than when you were sent up. What's become of that beautiful mustache you used to sport?"

"I'm not Tom Nolan."

"You'd better send to your pal for the lady's valuables; you'll get a lighter sentence."

"If you think I'm Tom Nolan or any one else than myself, prove it."

"Dead easy. Your photograph was taken and graces the rogues' gallery."

The photograph was produced, and if it was not a likeness of the prisoner it was the very image of him.

"All right," said the prisoner. "I want a messenger."

He sent for a lawyer and for bail. Then he was suffered to go, being ordered to appear the next morning.

The lady was in court, supported by half a hundred of her sister workers in the cause of justice for women. She made her charge, told her story, showed the cut in her reticule and stated the amount of her loss. The identity of the prisoner was proved by the photograph of Nolan, who had robbed many women in much the same way that the "accusing angel" had been robbed. The prisoner was permitted to make his statement. It was this:

"Your honor and gentlemen of the jury, this affair occurred at a meeting of women with a sprinkling of men which I attended last evening from curiosity. I listened to accusations of men for their barbaric treatment of women from Adam and Eve down to the present day. I contend that men have received as much unjust treatment from women as women have from men. I am now suffering from such treatment. My accuser has made circumstantial evidence a basis for bringing upon me what will be a great injury. I propose to punish her for doing so. She should have given me an opportunity to explain. I could have convinced her that I am above stealing ladies' pocketbooks, for I am in receipt of $500 a week salary. As to my being mistaken for this man Nolan, that is another matter for which the lady is not to blame. But I shall make her pay for what she is to blame."

The accused's lawyer then put the manager of a film company on the stand, who swore that the prisoner was Alonzo Devereaux, a prominent movie actor, and that he—the manager—was paying him $500 a week for his services as an actor. The next move of the defense was to hang a screen, darken the courtroom and show the photograph of Nolan greatly enlarged. The prisoner's picture was then shown—a "closeup"—and considerable difference appeared in the two pictures. That of the prisoner showed a minute globule on the lower lid of the eye. The jury were called on to examine the real globule with a magnifying glass, and they found it to be in place as shown in his photograph.

The prisoner was discharged and at once brought suit for $50,000 against the lady who had accused him for injury done him in his profession by the accusation and its consequent publicity. Since he had all the money he required to press the suit and the lady had none, even though he should lose his case in the end, he could appeal and appeal till she was tired out and at a loss to pay lawyers' fees. Though advised to make the best terms she could she decided to fight the suit and did so till it had been twice appealed. Then she called for what her opponent would ask in compromise. She was surprised to receive a written statement for her to sign, making an apology for not giving Mr. Devereaux an opportunity to defend himself without publicity and acknowledging that the unjust acts of men to women were no greater than those of women to men. As to a money consideration, Mr. Devereaux asked nothing, he agreeing to pay all costs.

The lady signed the document. She had been fighting the suit for two years and was on the eve of collapse.

ZAM-BUK

Everyone Should Drink Hot Water in the Morning

To feel your best day in and day out, to feel clean inside; no sour bile to coat your tongue and sicken your breath or dull your head; no constipation, bilious attacks, sick headache, colds, rheumatism or gassy, acid stomach, you must bathe on the inside like you bathe outside. This is vastly more important, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do, says a well-known physician.

To keep these poisons and toxins well flushed from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, drink before breakfast each day, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from your pharmacist. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless, except a sourish twinge which is not unpleasant. Drink phosphated hot water every morning to rid your system of these vile poisons and toxins; also to prevent their formation.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood, nerves and muscles became saturated with an accumulation of body poisons, begin this treatment and above all, keep it up! As soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening, and purifying, so limestone phosphate and hot water before breakfast act on the stomach, liver, kidneys, and bowels.

The Longest Speech

A Man Who "Single-Handed" Talked His Way to Victory in the B. C. Legislature

(Guelph Mercury.)

A preacher who delivers an hour's sermon nowadays is not in favor. If he can boil his stuff down, and make his points "firstly, secondly, thirdly, and in conclusion," in half an hour, so much the better.

People in British Columbia are fond of telling of the great speech in the Legislature of that province some few years ago, that for length probably heralds the record. The Toronto Star is the authority for the following account of it:

Apropos of the recent filibuster in the United States Senate, which killed President Wilson's armed neutrality bill for the time being, it is interesting to recall that the longest speech on record is believed to have been made by Amos de Cosmos in the Legislature of British Columbia, when a measure was pending, the passing of which would take from many settlers their land. De Cosmos was in a hopeless minority. The job had been held back till the eve of the close of the session. Unless legislation was given before noon on a given day the act of confiscation would fall. The day before the expiration of the limitation, De Cosmos got the floor about 10 a.m. and began his speech against the bill. Its friends cared little for they supposed that by 1 or 2 o'clock he would be through and the bill could be put on its passage. One o'clock came and De Cosmos was speaking still—had not more than entered upon his subject; 2 o'clock, he was saying "In the second place." Three o'clock he produced a fearful bundle of evidence, and insisted on reading it. The majority began to have a suspicion of the truth—he was to speak till next noon and "kill the bill." For a while they made merry over it, but as it came on to dusk they began to get alarmed. They tried interruptions, but soon abandoned them, because each afforded him a chance to digress and gain time. They tried to shout him down but that gave him a breathing space, and finally they settled down to watch the combat between the strength of will and weakness of body. They gave no mercy, no adjournment for dinner, no chance to do more than to wet his lips with water, no wandering from his subject. Twilight darkened, the gas was lit, members slipped out to dinners in relays and returned to sleep in squads, but De Cosmos went on. The Speaker, to whom he was addressing himself, was alternately dosing, snoring and trying to look wide awake. Day dawned and the majority went out in squads to wash and breakfast, and the speaker still went on. It cannot be said it was a very logical, eloquent or sustained speech; ther were digressions, repetitions also. But still the speaker kept on, and at last noon came to a baffled majority, livid with rage and impotence, and a single man, who was triumphant, though his voice had sunk to a husky whisper, his eyes were almost shut and were bleared and bloodshot, his legs tottered under him and his baked lips were cracked and flaked with blood.

De Cosmos had spoken for 26 hours and had saved the settlers their lands.

SUES CITY OF GUELPH

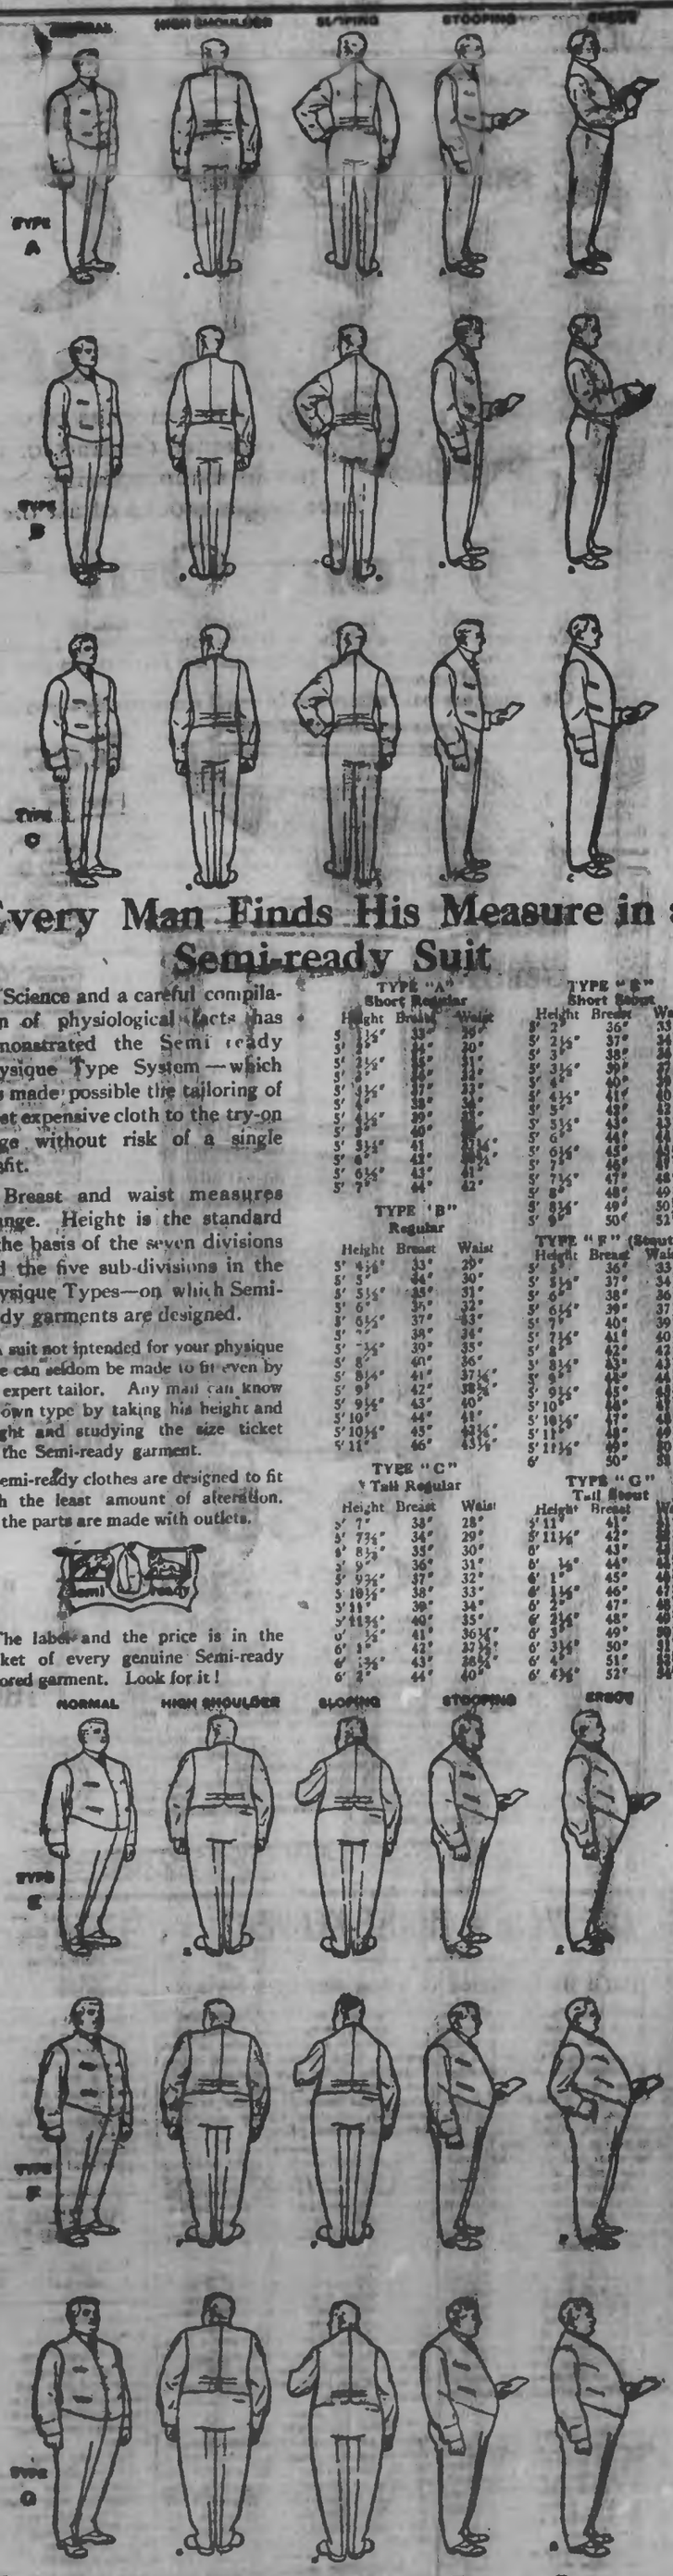
GUELPH, March 29.—Ex-Mayor Harry Mahoney is suing the City of Guelph for unstated damages for injuries received on March 31, 1916, when he sustained a fracture of his left leg on the occasion of the blowing up of Pressant's Dam by dynamite in order to save the bridge below from being carried away. Mr. Mahoney was confined to his bed for many months, and he still walks with a slight limp.

Several weeks ago Mr. W. E. Buckingham wrote the City Council asking what they intended to do about the matter, but after due consideration by the Sewerage and Public Works Commission and the Finance Committee it was decided to take no action so Mayor Newstead was yesterday served with the writ claiming damages.

BRIDGE ON I. C. R. COLLAPSES

Ice Pressure Too Much For It; Trains Stopped in Time.

QUEBEC, March 29.—An iron bridge on the Intercolonial Railway near Ste. Germains, Drummondville county, collapsed at 7 o'clock yesterday morning through the ice pressure. Trains were stopped before reaching the bridge, thus averting any accidents.



Every Man Finds His Measure in a Semi-ready Suit

Science and a careful compilation of physiological facts has demonstrated the Semi-ready Physique Type System—which has made possible the tailoring of most expensive cloth to the try-on stage without risk of a single misfit.

Breast and waist measures change. Height is the standard—the basis of the seven divisions and the five sub-divisions in the Physique Types—on which Semi-ready garments are designed.

A suit not intended for your physique type can seldom be made to fit even by the expert tailor. Any man can know his own type by taking his height and weight and studying the size ticket on the Semi-ready garment.

Semi-ready clothes are designed to fit with the least amount of alteration. All the parts are made with outlets.

The label and the price is in the pocket of every genuine Semi-ready tailored garment. Look for it!

ARE YOU A HOUSE-KEEPER?

Then You'll Be Interested in These War-time Savings

The Homekeeper Person has discovered many little economies for these days of thrift, and many of them will doubtless prove useful to some of her sisters, therefore she was prevailed upon to give them.

"The other day I made an apple pie," she says, "which looked a perfect success, but, alas, when I attempted to slip it off the plate I found that under crust had not baked well. As the top crust was beautifully brown, I simply turned it upside down, scraped off the undone crust and covered the apples with a nice meringue, and the members of my family were delighted.

"When I use half a lemon I place the remaining half on a small saucer, cut side downward, and cover with a tumbler. I also warm a lemon before squeezing, and I find that I get more juice. As potatoes grow old I add a teaspoonful of lemon juice to the water in which they are boiled, and they do not grow dark while cooking.

"We do not use stove polish on our stoves, as we find it economical to save all our old stockings, sew them together and use them moistened with coal oil for cleaning the stoves. Care must be taken, however, that the stove is not hot when cleaned.

"When I put hominy away for frying I add a little flour to it, and it does not break apart or sputter when frying. I also find that bacon does not cook hard and dry if I put it on in cold water, bring it to a boil, pour off the water and fry slowly; it then turns a light brown soft and crisp. This time of the year lettuce is high, but I can keep a head a week by placing the leaves in a glass jar after washing, covering tightly and then setting in a cool place.

"Store candles six or eight weeks or freeze them and they will last longer and burn more brightly. Should the candle be too large for your candlestick hold it in boiling water for a minute and it will slip in and remain firm.

"When I put my roast away to serve cold I wrap it while warm in cheese cloth; both the flavour and the moisture are retained, and, speaking of cheese cloth, if you will wrap a double piece, wet in vinegar, around the piece of cheese, when you get ready to use it again it will not be hard, mouldy or dry.

"Omelet is cheaper and much more tender made with water than milk. Before eating canned foods put a bright, clean, steel knife into the can as soon as opened. Leave for a minute, and if ptomaine is present it will be seen on the knife. Throw the contents out and you will escape poisoning.

"In making croquettes always use three tablespoons of boiling water to one egg in which to dip them. Beat the water and egg well together and you will find that it answers the purpose just as well as two eggs. Cut your stale bread up in small pieces and crisp in a corn popper, and your croutons will be made.

"It is not necessary to use a lot of tea in order to have it strong; just add a teaspoonful of sugar; this opens the leaves and makes it stronger. When a fowl seems tough I add a pinch of soda or a little vinegar to the water in which it is cooked, or I cover it tightly and bake it a whole morning in a moderately hot oven, after adding lard, boiling water, salt and pepper and sprinkling with flour."

PUT CREAM IN NOSE AND STOP CATARRH

Tells How To Open Clogged Nostrils and End Head-Colds.

You feel fine in a few moments. Your cold in head or catarrh will be gone. Your clogged nostrils will open. The air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more dullness, headache; no hawking, snuffling, mucous discharges or dryness; no struggling for breath at night.

Tell your druggist you want a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head; soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane, and relief comes instantly.

It is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer needs. Don't stay stuffed-up and miserable.

LEGISLATURE TAKES UP ALLEGATIONS AGAINST A SENATOR

ALBANY, N. Y., March 27.—The State Senate has decided to summon Mayor Mitchell, of New York, before the Bar of its members and demand proof of his recent charge against Robert F. Wagner, of New York City, Democratic leader of the Upper House, in connection with the Rockaway Point fort site legislation. The Mayor stated that, in blocking plans for the acquisition of this site by the Government, Senator Wagner apparently was working more in the interests of Germany that of the United States.

A special committee composed of three Republicans and two Democrats, appointed last night, formulated rules to-day to govern the inquiry and probably will report to the Senate to-morrow. It is expected that a subpoena for the Mayor will be issued immediately after the reception of this report.

Mayor Mitchell has said that he will be "more than pleased" to come to Albany at any time and explain.

BERLIN ADMITS ANOTHER DEFEAT BEFORE THE ADVANCING BRITISH

Fell Back Before Superior Forces Reads the Official Statement From German Sources---Berlin Also Claims a Canadian Battalion Suffered Heavy Losses in Four Successive Night Attacks on Huns' Positions--Ottawa Has Not Been Informed of the Battle.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, March 30.—The Berlin admission to-day of a retirement of protecting troops in the face of superior British forces advancing north of Peronne indicates preparations for massed attacks of French troops in the Champagne sector. On the Aisne and Marne Canal the Berlin report also told of preparations by the Allied troops for attacks.

These attacks and preparations for attack at various points are presumably designed by the Allies as feints to keep the German troops busy and to cloak the real forward movement and attacks on the Germans on their line of retreat from Arras to near Laon.

BERLIN, March 30.—A Canadian regiment attacked German positions east of Neuville St. Vaast, four times during the night, and each time was repulsed under heavy losses, some prisoners remaining in German hands, said to-day's German official statement.

Encountering stronger British forces the German troops northeast of Peronne and north of Roisel gave way on the line from Ruyalcourt to Sorel, to-day's official statement asserted. Elsewhere, particularly at points near Neuville and Marqival and east of Neuville St. Vaast Franco-British attacks were boldly repulsed, the statement said.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 30.—No word has been received here of the action in which the German statement says a Canadian battalion was engaged and was unsuccessful after all night fighting. The casualty lists received during the last few days are normal and do not indicate very special activity.

PETROGRAD, March 30.—The Grand Duchess Maria Pavlovna was arrested at Kialivodak following the seizure of a letter which she had written to the Grand Duke Boris.

PARIS (French Official Communique), March 30.—No important activities on the western front were detailed in to-day's official French statement.

NEW YORK, March 30.—The American flag which Captain Nordberg of the American steamer Algonquin left flying when with his crew he abandoned the ship, was pulled down by the crew of the submarine before they sank the vessel.

PETROGRAD, March 30.—Russian attacks with asphyxiating gas and the bombardment of enemy trenches with chemical shells, was reported in to-day's official statement, as the principal activity on the northern front in the region of Goldovetchi.

PETROGRAD, March 30.—Admiralty council has made formal oath of allegiance to the Provisional Government, it is announced to-day.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., March 30.—National Guardsmen guarding the plant of the Hydraulic Power Co. below the river bank, were fired upon apparently from the Canadian side last night. One bullet whistled close to Pte. Hessing's head while operating a searchlight.

WASHINGTON, March 30.—President Wilson to-day passed up his usual early morning golf game and worked all forenoon in his study. It is understood the President is putting in tentative form his message to Congress. He excluded himself of all callers.

Will Repeat "Our Minister's Honeymoon" For Returned Soldiers

The young people of Knox church will repeat "Our Minister's Honeymoon" on Wednesday next in Victoria Hall under the auspices of the W.A.B. in aid of the returned Soldiers' Club. This production made a hit in its two recent performances and should attract a large audience on Wednesday next.

GARDEN HILL 'PHONE RATES TO BE RAISED $2 PER SUBSCRIBER

Ontario Railway Board Held Session at Court House This Afternoon Revealing Affairs of a Divided Village

TAKES EFFECT MAY 1

At a session of the Ontario Railway Board at the Court House this afternoon, the application of Dr. A. C. Beatty of Garden Hill, for permission to increase the telephone charges to his subscribers from $10 to $12.

After hearing the petitioner's case, Mr. D. M. McIntyre, K.C., chairman of the Board, stated that in view of the evidence and from the fact no subscriber was present to offer objections, the Board had no hesitation in approving of the application and would issue an order sanctioning the increased charges as soon as possible.

Mr. McIntyre said that the Board had received a letter from one subscriber complaining that Dr. Beatty's rural service needed improvements.

"Thats W. B. Campbell," said the Doctor, who evidently knows his subscribers well. "He has no cause for complaint. He has five 'phones which he put in himself and all he is charged for the service is $15 a year. He has a grudge against me because I have been opposed to the changing of the name of Garden Hill station to Campbellcroft, whichever it is. But there is apart from telephones, but brought out in the evidence. According to Dr. Beatty, W. B. Campbell is the leading citizen of Garden Hill or Campbellcroft, wrichever it is. But there is nothing strange in finding a Scotchman on the top of any community heap.

Garden Hill was a straggling hamlet extending two miles from the municipal centre to its distant annex at the station. But it was all Garden Hill. There were two post-offices for this village, one at the station and the other over town. It was proposed to close one of them, and at that stage W. B. Campbell headed a petition to change the station name from Garden Hill to Campbellcroft. Dr. Beatty said that men signed it as the easiest way to considering the matter with Mr. Campbell, and now the former rambling Garden Hill has two names, of which the station settlement is known as Campbellcroft. "But there is a lot of dissatisfaction over the change," said the Doctor. "There are fifteen stations in Canada of which Campbell forms a part of their names. A lot of our shipments go to Campbellford, and even Mr. Campbell has suffered from this diversion, but he doesn't mind under the circumstances."

"Does he own the town?" asked Mr. McIntyre.

"But that's why he doesn't think much of me," said Dr. Beatty. "I have been active in trying to have the station name changed back." The G.T.R. did not desire to change the name Garden Hill, but the Doctor intimated that political considerations were the moving factor.

Special to The Examiner:

GOOD PROGRAMME FOR TO-NIGHT'S SMOKER OF 247th BATTALION

Bull and Gallagher of Toronto Riversides Will Furnish the Feature Attraction--Last Seven Recruits Who Tried to Enter the 247th Rejected---To-day's Orders and General Military News.

There promises to be a big crowd at the Armouries to-night for the smoker under the auspices of the 247th Battalion. There will be four boxing bouts, including a six round feature match, between Bull and Gallagher of the Riversides, Toronto, and a clash between Sergt. Giorno and Bandsman Daflin for the 135-pound championship of the 247th. Sergt. W. E. Tully, of Toronto, well known as an entertainer will assist in the programme and the 247th Band will be in attendance. There will be seats for anybody.

The difficulty in building up a battalion under present conditions, is illustrated by the experience the 247th Battalion had this morning, when six recruits presented themselves for examination and all six were rejected for one disability or another. Still another recruit was turned down, making a record of seven rejections out of the last seven applications.

TO-DAY'S ORDERS.

Daily Orders by Lieut.-Col. C. H. Ackerman, Commanding 247th O. S. Bn., C.E.F.

DUTIES.—

Next for Duty Saturday, March 31st, 1917—Lieut. C. G. Shaw.

A. E. BRITTAIN, Lieut. Adjt. 247th O. S. Battalion, C.E.F.

The Kingston Whig says:

"Compulsory service or something of the kin dis coming sure" said an officer to the Whig on Wednesday, and it certainly looks as if at last the authorities had decided to do something to assist the struggling recruiting sergeants and men in their work.

From various sources it is learned that the Militia Department has been making arrangements lately to send overseas at the very earliest possible moment every khaki clad man who can go. Every unit of every branch of the service has been called on to send a draft to the very limit of its ability. Kingston units are to be practically cleared out, a good example being the 58rd Queen's University Highlanders. This unit (not half way up to strength) is on the list to go at whatever strength it happens to be when arrangements for its transportation can be made. The draft of 200 from "C" Battery, R. C. H. A. is the biggest yet called, and will almost completely deplete the depot of men.

In this "clearing of the slate" it is felt that the new Canadian Deference Force scheme will be tried out with a fresh start. Every trace of the old regime will be wiped out and without regard to previous medical examinations, excuses, reasons or anything else the National Service Commission list will be used and the voluntary system gven its most complete try-out. So far it has been used unsuccessfully with the old system. Now it will be tried out with the new scheme, and to give it every advantage a fresh start will be made.

If the new Canadian Defence Force scheme fails—authorities are agreed that it can come to nothing else but failure—then compulsory service of some kind will most assuredly be brought in. Taking into consideration the National Service Commission's lists the popular cry for the Militia Act or some form of conscription, and now the calling of all the men overseas whether they are trained or not, the feeling generally is that the voluntary system is coming to an end within a very few weeks.

Mrs. George Ralston, wife of Col. Ralston, commanding the 10th Brigade, Canadian Field Artillery, on the west front in France, has announced her intention of making her estate, Hill and Dale, Port Hope, on Lake Ontario, a sanitarium for invalided Canadian soldiers.

Mrs. George Dwyer has received word that Pte. Geo. Dwyer, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion, and was transferred to another battalion at the front, is now in a military hospital in France, suffering from rheumatism. The message came from Pte. Sam. Rathwell, who also went overseas with the 93rd Battalion.

OTTAWA, March 30.—It is now stated that an inquiry is being made by the Militia department as to the nature of Captain Recruiting Officer S. S. Dancey's remarks which did not please a Cornwall audience. Recruiting officers have been advised by the Department to avoid harsh criticism of those who have not enlisted.

Proposed by Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M. L. A.

Responded to by Mr. J. H. Burnham, M. P.

SONG, M. E. HANRAHAN

A GREATER PETERBOROUGH

Proposed by Ald. A. H. Stratton

Responded to by Mr. Ivor Brock, Mr. E. F. Mason, Mr. J. J. Hartley and Mr. T. F. Matthews.

THE NATIONAL ANTHEM

"WHERE IGNORANCE IS BLISS

'Tis folly to be wise," but that does not answer where the eyes are concerned, as a man proved just lately, having lost the sight of one eye, and seriously injuring the other, through wearing glasses not suited to him. Don't take chances if you want to be sure about your eyes. See Dr. Lacey, 410 George street.

The Banquet To Senator Nicholls

LIEUT. J. M. WATT, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion, and is now at the front with the 18th Battalion.

General Manager of the Canadian General Electric Company Was Proud of His Peterboro' Associations—"No Telling What Will Happen After the War."

PETERBORO'S SENATOR

Lieut.-Col., the Hon. Frederic Nicholls, Senator in the Dominion Senate, President and General Manager of the Canadian General Electric Company, was the guest of honour at a banquet tendered last evening in the Oriental Hotel by the citizens of Peterborough. If Senator Nicholls had any doubt as to his popularity in Peterborough it was dispelled last evening when, in the words of the Senator, he was "overwhelmed with the cordiality of his reception." Prior to the banquet an informal reception was held in the reception parlour of the Oriental hotel, where Senator Nicholls was given an opportunity of meeting a number of friends and incidentally adding a few new ones to his already large list.

His Worship Mayor J. J. Duffus was chairman, while Ald. A. H. Stratton and Ald. G. H. Duncan were vice chairmen. The first toast on the list was to "His Majesty the King," which was proposed by His Worship Mayor Duffus and responded to in the usual manner. "The British Empire and its Allies" was proposed by Mr. G. A. Gilleapie, M.P.P., who referred to the magnitude of the task that is now being undertaken by the Empire and its Allies in an effort to bring the war to a successful and speedy conclusion. In response, Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., congratulated Senator Nicholls upon his elevation to the Senate. "Two years ago I could not have proposed this toast because Canadians were then colonials, said Mr. Burnham. A year ago last January there came into force the great naturalisation act which means that British subjects the world over are British subjects. Prior to that we were just Canadians. We have now become of age. Canada is now in a position to aid the Empire and enable her to battle with the fiery Hun and hold him down so that in future we can not only hold the freedom of the seas but the land as well. That is a privilege and heritage for which we are fighting. On behalf of Great Britain and its Allies I am much obliged at the kindly way in which you drank her health," said Mr. Burnham in conclusion.

OUR GUEST

Mayor Duffus in proposing the toast to Senator Nicholls referred to that splendid local industry of which Senator Nicholls is the presiding head. Mayor Duffus commended the judgment of the Government of Canada in selecting Senator Nicholls and also congratulated the Senate on its new addition to the ranks of legislators. Reviewing the history of Peterborough, Mayor Duffus carried his auditors back to the time when Peterborough was first established. "Peterborough has not always existed, said the Mayor. In three years we will celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of the arrival of the first settler. Wild birds and animals then held sway on the banks of the Otonabee River. "Otonabee" is an Indian name meaning "mouth water." Later came the Peter Robinson emigration and it was after the leader of the band of pioneers that the city derived its name. A citizen now residing in East City remembers the time when he picked berries on the site of the Orintal Hotel in which the banquet was held. Further on in the history of Peterborough, a body of men of which Senator Nicholls was the head came to Peterborough and as a result of their negotiations the Canadian General Electric Company was established here."

SECOND IN COMMAND.

When a boy of twelve years of age the Mayor was second in command of a horse and cart used in digging trenches on the site of the electric plant. The speaker related an amusing incident in which the cart and horse was overturned in the ditch.

CONSIDERABLE WORK AHEAD OF GARDEN MOVEMENT COMMITTEE

Owners of Vacant Lots Will Have to Be Cravassed For Permission to Use Their Property For Cultivation Purposes

NOTES OF THE CAMPAIGN

The committee of the Peterborough Garden Movement, if such is to be the name, has its work cut out for it, unless signs fail. The preparatory work has to be handled well and quickly. It will devolve on the committee, so soon as possible after Tuesday night next, to come together and do some things. For instance.

From the city clerk's office have been sent out over seventy letters to owners of lots and properties, seemingly available for use and cultivation. So far there has been response in only eight cases. That is hardly ten per cent. Does this lack of assent indicate an unwillingness to place the ground at disposal for use. Or is it a careless apathy that puts off writing even a post card, saying that the lot or lots may be used. The only way is to go and see. That will be the joyous duty of the committee.

That is where the sincerity of the promoters of the movement will be tried. The committee will have to be split up into couples or threes and a canvas of the holders of lots made. Then we shall get at the facts. So the gentlemen who have been nominated must stand ready to prove their inferred worth by their works.

Here is a running comment on what has been learned

The Henry Hope Co. will cultivate the vacant lands of the factory site. Good.

J. Scruter's lot on Lansdowne street, has been rented.

H. Cruickshank offers lot 14, plan 120, on Lansdowne street. Offer fyled for use and selection.

A lot offered by Mrs. Skilleter, on Braidwood avenue, has been taken by two women who will get after feminine directed agriculture.

A call from J. Kennett for a half-acre, fairly convenient to where he lives on Boswell avenue.

J. J. Devlin offers a lot on Sophia street; and part of a lot on Wolsley, street. Good. First blood for the East Ward.

Harry Evans, being busy with digging and other work for the city, which we wish him to be, offers two lots on Charles street.

W. H. Bradburn offers two lots on

SENATORS AND SENATORS.

Peterborough does not envy Hon. Frederic Nicholls and Toronto, the gift of a senatorship, as shown last night by the hearty spirit in which the congratulations of the city were showered upon the new senator. Senator Nicholls, though we should be proud to own him as such, is not a full-fledged citizen, only a citizen in the higher sense; we congratulate him both upon the honour of the fact, and upon being the medium of the honour to the city of having even a partial citizen made a senator. But Peterborough has a sort of reasonable preference for being honoured by itself in the person of one of its own citizens, to being honoured by proxy, even when the proxy is as big and estimable a man as Lieut.-Col. Nicholls, of Toronto.

It looks as if the government which handles the distribution of senatorships, has a grudge against Peterborough, and doesn't appreciate the service of the county and district in sending it two supporters in Parliament. This should count as things go in the distribution of government favours or rewards. Our representatives do not seem to be losing much sleep over pushing the recognition of the right, or at least legitimate claim, of Peterborough to territorial and personal representation in the senate. We may not have as big men in Peterborough as Toronto magnates, but we have some good men who could as gracefully fall asleep, and sleep as soundly in the Senate chamber, as many of the present members; men who, in a word, have as much ability and capability as the most of the present members and who can measure up to the chief qualication upon which senate appointments are based—faithful and successful service of the Conservative party. Of course, if a senator were to be appointed from Peterborough he would be a Conservative, and even on such terms, the people of the city and district would hold up both hands for him. There's a bigger thing than consideration of partizanship—consideration of citizenship, and on this ground all of us, irrespective of politics, would be glad to have a senator for Peterborough district—one of our very own, not an overflow of the senatorship flood being poured upon Toronto, even in the person of so fine a man as Hon. Senator Nicholls. We want one who is of our own, and our own.

PRODUCTION AND WASTE.

A local contemporary prints with all the emphasis that a display heading extending over three columns implies, a nice letter from "Premier Hearst, Acting Minister of Agriculture."

To make the letter and its message more democratic, and more appealing to the special constituency, it is readying to, our contemporary drops the knightly designation of "Sir William," and uses plain "Premier," Hearst.

Our contemporary is not to be blamed but commended for attaching much importance to the Premier's appeal. Amateur farmer, and amateur farmers' ministers as he is, Sir William Hearst strikes the right key when he exhorts the people to increased production.

Increased production, especially in connection with the home garden, has long been a "fad," and was so of the Examiner, long before the exigencies of the war, and the assault of high food prices, made inevitable demand for increased production.

In the abstract the home garden and its results are a type of the important way in which small things constitute in the aggregate the essence of great things. Every little bunch of greens raised in the home garden is an item in the tremendous food total it takes to feed the Empire.

Canada as a food producing country, as a contributor in other ways to helping on the war, in taking and maintaining her place in the Empire, and in the world, needs to mobolize every resource of production, practice every economy and effectively learn to save in order to give the highest service. We must learn to avoid waste in every form, either in work, or food use or use of money.

This war is appealing to make us more saving, more serviceable — the appeal of the Minister being to help win the war. But the war won is not an end—only a means to an end, and that end is the providing of national equipment to measure up to the new conditions that will meet our regard in almost every respect, from another point of view.

We shall have new obligations, new responsibilites. We shall be plunged into a tremendous depth of debt—by millions after the war where we had only thousands before the war. We shall be a new people, and will have to live and do things in a new way.

We shall need to practice new economies and save by thrift what we now destroy by waste. If we could save by the universal teaching of saving and thrift what we now waste, we could save enough every year to pay the interest on the increasingly big after-war debt that we shall have to pay—or repudiate.

We must pay it; and we can be helped to do it in two ways, by greatly increased food production, and by saving, as munitions of production, every cent we now waste.

If we had had, a generation ago, the advantage of Penny Banks in all the schools, we should to-day have had a population trained, drilled like good civilian soldiers in the essentials of the highest citizenship, saving and thrift. It would have learned that production can mean prevention of waste and saving money for useful and productive purposes.

By nation wide habits of thrift the back of the nation would be broadened to the new burden it will have to bear after the war.

Our contemporary, in common with everybody else, applauds "Premier" Hearst for calling for "more production," while in common with nobody, or few but itself, it condemns as a "fad," another appeal made in the interests of the Penny Bank, by another minister of the government it gives its support, Hon. Dr. Pyne, the Minister of Education.

Which minister is wrong and worthy of condemnation? Any condemnation of the Examiner as the devotee of a "fad," includes the Minister of Education.

The Penny Bank may be out of favour with statics or reactionaries, but that does not prove that the principle at the bottom of it is not the foundation of national solidity and national progress—the principle that calls for production as an antidote to the form of waste that ignores the proper and profitable use of our resources and capacity for production.

Murray Gov't Out At Last

Hon. Walter E. Foster Likely to Announce Sis Cabinet To-day.

ST. JOHN, N.B., March 30.— One month and four days after their rejection by the people, the members of the Murray Government (Conservative) yieuded the seals of office yesterday, and Hon. Walter E. Foster, leader of the Provincial Liberal Opposition, yet without a seat in the Legislature, was called upon to form a Government.

There are rumours afloat that the resignation of the defeated Government has been delayed for reasons connected with the searching investigation promised by the new Administration and later developments will probably throw light upon this explanation of the unprecedented length of time occupied by Hon. Mr. Murray in quitting office. Public business has been greatly hindered, as it will now be well along in May before the new Government can meet the Legislature.

"We have also learned to love the superintendent of this industry, said Mayor Duffus referring to Mr. E. G. Patterson. In conclusion the speaker referred to the business ability of Mr. Nicholls and expressed confidence that his work in the Senate would be in keeping with the sterling qualities which he possessed.

SILVER ANNIVERSARY.

"The cordiality of your kind reception has almost overwhelmed me, said Mr. Nicholls following a prolonged outburst of applause as the newly appointed Senator rose to speak. Continuing the speaker said, "It is an occasion that will long live in my memory. After hearing your remarks, Mr. Mayor almost thou persuadest me to be a citizen. My business affairs preclude such a possibility. Speaking of anniversaries we might almost call this a silver anniversary because in September next it will be twenty-five years since the Canadian General Electric Company was first established in Peterborough. I have always had a strong regard for Peterborough and in any case where business extensions are considered I have always tried to give Peterborough the preference. At the time when the Mayor speaks of being second in command of one of the tanks' digging trenches, it was a question whether we would be able to utilize all the buildings that were first constructed. There was also some doubt as to the potency of the institution. In passing through the buildings to-day I marvelled at the growth and size and felt almost jubilant when the superintendent said he wished I would authorize the erection of another large building. After the war there is no telling what might happen. At present we are not able to take advantage of our present facilities owing to the congested condition of the labour market, but there is no telling what will happen.

A CANADIAN.

Senator Nicholls referred to a statement made by Mr. Burnham in respect to Canadians. "To my mind there are no better people in the world than the Canadians, said the speaker. I am proud to call myself a Canadian. We have done more as a great nation with a small population than any other country in the world. If prior to the outbreak of war any man had predicted that Canada would raise, equip and maintain an armed force of four hundred thousand men, he would have been relegated to a lunatic asylum. Before the war we were accustomed to borrow three hundred million dollars annually from Great Britain. Since the war we have taken care of that and have raised three hundred and fifty million dollars for the Empire. The time will come when the centre of the Empire will be in Canada.

PETERBOROUGH'S SENATOR

In Quebec Senators are appointed by territorial divisons. That system does not obtain in Ontario. If by courtesy I am to be known as the Senator for Peterborough I will be proud because I will know that I am representing a city known from coast to coast for its enterprise and civic progress. This is shown in your excellent choice of civic and parliamentary representatives and if you will spare my blushes—your senatorial representative. I have had a busy life and have had my trials and tribulations. If I have worked hard I cannot conceive of any higher reward than to be received in such a cordial way by people with whom I have been associated. It is equivalent to giving me a certificate of character and saying—well done good and faithful servant."

"CANADA."

In proposing the toast to "Canada" Mr. H. R. H. Kenner touched on Canada's future in the greater Empire over which floats the Union Jack. The speaker referred to the confederation of the provinces and expressed the hope that Newfoundland would enter the federation.

JUDGE HUYCKE.

In responding to the toast to Canada His Honour Judge Huycke directed the attention of his audience to problems in the path of the Empire's future federation that have been recently sounded by thoughtful writers. Canada was indeed a heritage of which we were justly proud, but in these sad and anxious times it was in the interests of the British Empire and of humanity as a whole that we should stop and ask ourselves "watchman what of the night." The future of Canada and the Empire presents greater difficulties than it has ever done up to the present time. "I believe in Canada and the British Empire," said His Honour, "because I believe in honour, justice, truth and right. Never truer words were spoken than those Lord Roseberry said, when he remarked that the British Empire was the greatest secular force for good in the world and in history."

AFTER THE WAR.

This war would not be in its present hopeful state, the future of humanity would not be so bright, had it not been for the courageous and unselfish entry of Great Britain into the war. And His Honour added that he was glad Canada was at war when Great Britain was at war. But there would be difficulties in this country after the war that had never existed before. If ancient federations of states had never made a great success that did not say that they can't be made successful in the future. To-day is the trying time for Canada. There are more stupendous problems for solution by our statesmen than were before. The true ideal was the federation of the dominions, but some people talk imperially but act provincially. If Great Britain and the overseas dominions were to enter into partnership there must be individual liabilities as well as rights. With a more centralized government we would loose our individuality and it would seem that some of our vaunted independence must go. If we are not prepared to give as well as to take our partnership in the federated Empire with Australia, New Zealand, Africa, Indian and the mother country, cannot be a success. No matter what government may be in power here there may be problems to confront that we are now scarcely able to realize.

BECAME SPECIFIC.

In his endeavour to present the future as it is viewed by close students of the Empire, Judge Huycke became specific. Australia does not look well upon us, in fact is inclined to haunt us in that we promised to send 500,000 men overseas and failed to do so. And in the question of immigration, India was not too well disposed toward us. His Honour cited a recent and significant example of this attitude. He sketched the work of Rabindranath Tagore, India's poet and patriot and of his aid to the Empire. Tagore visited Great Britain and recently the United States, but refused to set foot on Canadian soil and declined invitations to speak in Montreal and Toronto because of his indignation of the treatment Canada had given to some of his fellow citizens. If the great dream of Imperial federation is to be consummated there must be the participation of the British Isles and the various dominions, but we must desire to help and serve rather than to dominate and domineer over others. If the day comes in which we look forward to the supreme consummation of a world Empire for the freedom of its subjects and the protection of its poor, not the least factor in that federation will be our own Canada.

"GREATER PETERBOROUGH"

As proposer of the toast, "Greater Peterborough," Ald. Stratton spoke of the city's advantages that should establish its future greatness. Splendid water powers, a good supply of labour, transportation facilities and other conditions made Peterborough an attractive centre to manufacturers. Incidentally Ald. Stratton remarked that the C. G. E. Company had the happy faculty of associating with the local plant a fine body of men of whom Mr. Patterson, Mr. Magee and Mr. Dobie were representatives.

MR. IVOR BROCK.

Mr. Ivor Brock's reply took the form of a rosy dream of the Peterborough of 1927. He himself termed it a wild and exuberant flight of fancy, but it was also an expression of many hopes the citizens sometimes see as the filing substance of a mirage when the endeavour to peer down the years and bring the future close to the present. Mr. Brock's seance had something of the character of Mr. Lenoock's images, but they were al-

5,000 FARMERS FROM AMERICA TO TILL ENGLISH SOIL

Would Go Long Way to Combat German Plan to Starve the Nation

LONDON, March 30.—"Five thousand skilled American farmers on English soil would go along way towards combatting Germany's plan to starve us into submission through her submarines" Sir Arthur Lee, head of the newly-formed food production department, told the Associated Press correspondent. "I told you recently," Sir Arthur continued, "that we intended to bring from America some two thousand tractor ploughs for night ploughing. We need the skilled American farmers to supplement them."

Sir Arthur Lee was British Military Attache with the United States army during the Spanish-American war, and later military attache at the British Embassy in Washington. He has seen service in the present war. His present post is an outgrowth of the intensified submarine warfare begun on February 1. Sir Arthur is charged with the gigantic task of making every available foot of soil produce its maximum amount of food.

Peterboro's Newly Enlarged 10c. Store Re-opens To-morrow

Store of the F. W. Woolworth Company Doubles Its Facilities and Capacity For Handling Customers—Sales Departments All On One Floor—A Trip Through the Store

A MODEL STORE

To-day the store of the F. W. Woolworth Company, Ltd., is closed to the public in order to facilitate arrangements for the grand re-opening, which will take place to-morrow. New space and new goods are two outstanding features of the large new store. For the past few weeks the store has been in the hands of the artisans. The result must be seen to be appreciated. In the words of one of the Company's officials who visited Peterborough on Wednesday of this week, Peterborough now has one of the finest and best equipped ten cent stores in the Province of Ontario. The floor space has been doubled and nothing has been spared to make the store with the characteristic red front, a model in completeness and convenience. The ventilation is of the improved type and the lighting and hot water heating is in keeping with the many splendid appointments that characterize the store and its equipment.

Ample Aisle Space.

Three aisles running the entire length of the store will facilitate the customers' easy passage among the attractively arranged counters. Two of the aisles are five feet, five inches wide, and the third is six feet five inches wide. Long, roomy sales counters with improved glass cases are arranged in such a way as to handle a volume of trade at a minimum of discomfort to the customer. There will be no upstairs to the present store so far as the customers are concerned. All the sales departments are located on the main floor. The second floor will be used for a stock room for dry-goods, etc., while hardware and other heavy stocks are located in the basement in uniform order. One section of the second floor is used as a kitchen and dressing room for the saleagirls.

Mr. J. G. Gole, manager of the Peterborough store, states that it is the intention of the Company to extend the present stock and also carry a number of additions. A trip from basement to cellar presents tangible evidence of system and order, a fact which makes possible maximum efficiency and service to the customer. It can now be said that Peterborough has a real ten cent store, and the opening to-morrow is being anticipated by a large body of commendatory shoppers.

"Nightmare" Is Mr. G. N. Gordon's Caustic Comment

Mr. G. N. Gordon when asked if he had anything to say about the Review's report respecting his disqualification for the Board of Education, said that it was just the same old story of the Editor of the Review, eating cheese at night. He has been suffering from a series of nightmares, and next day always throws out some wild talk about some person."

Mr. Gordon further said that in another six months nobody will pay any attention to what this Editor has to say, because he always backfires and should be on some job where he would not waste so much ink and paper and people's time."

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

Henry Hope Company To Use Four Acres For Its Employees

The Henry Hope Company's four acres adjoining their factory will be plowed and harrowed this spring under the direction of the management and turned over to the employees. This is a decidedly forward step in the grater production campaign. Mr. A. L. Young, general manager of the company stated to-day that it was intended to engage a man to prepare the ground, plant the seed, and take care of the crops. The scheme has scarcely been worked out in detail and it may be that plots will be distributed among the workmen. But the principal fact is that the land and its produce is to be placed at the disposal of the employees.

Defendant Fined By Judge Huycke For Speaking To Juror

At Norwood yesterday, an interesting case was tried, of Charles Vandeburg vs. Fred Taylor and his son, Clarence Taylor, for assault. The plaintiff claimed against the defendant, $60.00 for damages and Clarence Taylor claimed against the plaintiff $25.00 by counter-claim, for assault. The issues were tried before Judge Huycke and a jury. G. N. Gordon appeared for Mr. Vandeburg and Mr. F. D. Kerr appeared for Clarence Taylor and Fred Taylor. A verdict was brought in by the jury for $20.00 and costs, the favour of Mr. Vandeburg against Fred Taylor, while the counter-claim of Clarence Taylor was dismissed.

Clarence Taylor, during the course of the trial, during an intermission, spoke to one of the jurymen who was sitting near him, and for this he was fined by the Judge for contempt. This is said to be the first fine that has been imposed in this county for this offence.

PORCUPINES NEXT—PRODUCE

A great deal of interest attaches to the resumption of operations at the Newry mill in Porcupine owing to the fact that the plant produced $200,000 in gold from the ore recovered from the main vein under the former management. It is expected that the present company will have no difficulty whatever in maintaining a substantial production basis, as development work has proven the property to be one of the most promising in the Porcupine area.

Newray has always been regarded as one of the most valuable mining holdings in the Porcupine camp. It comprises 321 acres in the great Hollinger-McIntyre-Newray zone, and is directly in the line of strike of the big veins which have made the Hollinger-McIntyre belt famous. It is notable that a straight line drawn from the central point of the original Hollinger holding through the centre of the McIntyre and Jupiter properties, and continued through the Plenaurum, would practically cut Newray in two. From the standpoint of location the company thus has everything in its favour, and the results of diamond drilling have borne out in every detail the favorable anticipations outlined on that account.

At the present time Newray is developing on the 400-foot level, where a cross-cut will intersect the veins proven up by the diamond drilling last year. The face of the cross-cut is heavily silicified, and the rock is well fractured, so that good news regarding the picking up of the first vein should be received any day. Indications are that there are very extensive ore bodies available on this level and the company is sparing no efforts to bring these into sight in anticipation of the starting up of the mill the end of next month.

Newray will be a feature of Porcupine this year, as it will join the list of producers the end of next month. Meanwhile everything points to the fact that it will be numbered among the big mines of the camp in the comparatively near future.

GARDEN HILL 'PHONE RATES TO BE RAISED

Incomplete Bookkeeping.

Dr. Beatty as owner of the Garden Hill rural line partly in Peterborough and Durham counties said he had 124 telephones, of which 124 were paying subscribers. They had been operated since 1895. Over $6,600 had been invested in the service, which had 90 miles of circuit and 53 miles of pole leads. The Doctor said he never did much book-keeping, but the revenue was $1,255 last year, plus about $240 in tolls, and the expenses $1,360. This allowed nothing for depreciation of equipment.

An increase of $3 per subscriber would provide about $250 additional revenue.

Mr. McIntyre stated that Dr. Beatty seemed to be something of a philanthropist in conducting the telephone business as he had done. The chairman advised more careful bookkeeping and collections.

Mr. A. B. Ingram, vice-chairman, and Mr. Francis Dagger, electrical adviser, completed the Board, with Mr. Coo, reporter.

424 GEORGE STREET. OPP. EXAMINER

Why Canadians Do Not Always Get The Parcels Sent Them

TORONTO, March 29.—That there had been considerable delay in Canadian prisoners of war receiving the Red Cross parcels was frankly admitted by Mrs. H. P. Plumptre, secretary of the Canadian Red Cross, when seen with regard to the complaint of Sergt.-Major Thompson, a prisoner at Giessen.

"There has been no delay at this end in sending parcels," said Mrs. Plumptre. "Parcels have been sent from here with unfailing regularity, but our British headquarters have reported that for six or seven weeks Canadian prisoners received fewer parcels than other interned men."

Mrs. Plumptre says that several reasons contributed to the delay. First, the regulations complained of which are Government regulations, and over which the Red Cross has no control, were put into force just before Christmas, at a time when traffic was exceedingly heavy and considerable congestion arose at headquarters. Secondly, the German Government closed the railways for two weeks in December and no parcels could be forwarded. Thirdly, it is now by on means certain that parcels forwarded to Germany for Canadian prisoners will ever reach their destination.

Two escaped prisoners reported to the British headquarters in February stating that parcels were once more beginning to arrive more regularly. They affirmed that the German guards were on short rations, and were only getting the same food as the prisoners themselves, and that the temptation to steal the prisoners' parcels was exceedingly great.

"Although it has never been admitted by the Government," said Mrs. Plumptre, "the submarine menace has done its bit towards delaying parcels. Steamship sailings have been very irregular, so that it was impossible to keep up the regular shipments.

"The trouble is," she said, "that although we can forward parcels, we cannot guarantee that they will reach their destination."

With regard to the ten shillings which prisoners have been asked to contribute towards their parcels, Mrs. Plumptre says that the suggestion originated with the Pay and Records Office as the result of letters received from prisoners asking if they could not use a part o their pay to buy comforts. The British headquarters then sent out a circular to prisoners asking if they would care to pay ten shillings towards supplies. "It was purely optional on their part," she said. "If a prisoner pays this ten shillings the Red Cross goes out and shops for him to that extent. It has nothing whatever to do with the ordinary Red Cross parcels. The money is expended for additional luxuries. Without this payment prisoners receive the regulation parcels just the same."

Mr. McInnes, financial secretary, pointed out that the $21,000,000 referred to by Sergt.-Major Thompson could not apply to the Red Cross. The total funds received by the Red Cross in Canada were $2,266,357, and about $8,000,000 in supplies or about half the amount suggested. "These funds were meant to cover the whole work of the society and not merely for the benefit of prisoners of war," he said.

Drink Hot Water With Meals To Stop Stomach Disorders

A Physician's Advice.

Thousands of unfortunate people suffer almost daily from dyspepsia, indigestion, fermentation, sour acid stomach, flatulence, gases or distress after eating. If they would only form the agreeable habit of slowly drinking with each meal a glass full of hot water containing a half teaspoonful of pure bisurated magnesia they would soon find their stomach so strengthened and improved that they would eat the richest and most satisfying meals without the least symptom of indigestion.

Nearly all so called digestive troubles are caused by an excess of acid and an insufficient blood supply in the stomach causing the food to ferment and sour before digestion can take place. A glass of hot water will draw the blood to the stomach and the bisurated magnesia will neutralize the stomach acids and make the food contents bland and sweet. Easy natural digestion without distress of any kind is the result. Bisurated Magnesia is not a laxative, is harmless, pleasant and easy to take and can be obtained from any local druggist. Do not confuse Bisurated Magnesia with other forms of magnesia—milks, citrates, etc., but get it in the pure bisurated form (powder or tablets) especially prepared for this purpose.

Bridgenorth Club Concert A Success

The annual Club Concert was held in the Forester's Hall, Bridgenorth, on Thursday evening, March 29. The Club succeeded in upholding its reputation for putting on a varied and interesting programme. Among the items was a short play entitled "The Wrong Box." It portrayed some of the difficulties of courtship, when father objects to the suitor. The chief excitement and interest of the story is centred around a box containing a goose, which is sent to the father, each year, and forwarded to the daughter's rich uncle. The young man works out a plan to send another box pretended to contain explosives, a letter announcing this fact and signed "A Friend," arrives just after the goose box has been forwarded to the uncle. While there is some anxiety about the uncle and aunt, they suddenly appear on the scene. The second box arrives. No one seems willing to touch it. The young man arrives in time to render assistance, but before removing the box, demands the promise of the father to permit his marriage with the daughter.

Characters:

Mr. Quiverley, the father—Mr. James Jopling.

Mrs. Quiverley, the mother—Miss E. Nichols.

Miss M. Quiverley, the daughter—Miss F. Jobe.

Mr. Jones, the uncle—Mr. N. Kelly.

Mrs. Jones, the aunt—Miss H. Wheeler.

Cecil Merrie, the young sister—J. G. McKee.

Charity, maid—Miss I. Klinck.

Gregory, servant—Mr. S. Bell.

Several choruses were rendered by the men of the Club, "Pack up Your Troubles," "Smile and be Happy," "Down in Arkinsaw" and "Hip, Hip Hurrah." Prof. Covini and his band gave several selections, more noisy than musical. A quartette by Messrs. H. Jopling, J. Jopling, C. Telford and Mrs. C. Telford was much appreciated. Mr. and Mrs. C. Telford gave a pretty duet.

Readings by Mrs. J. G. McKee and James Jopling were ably rendered as also were solos by Mr. Jopling, Mr. Telford and Mr. McKee and an instrumental duet by Misses Jobe and Miller.

The beautiful new piano, so rich in tone, was loaned for the occasion by the Heintzman Company's Peterborough Agent (Royal Bank Building).

LESSARD OFFERS TO AID BLONDIN IN ANY CAPACITY

French-Canadian General Congratulates Postmaster-General on Patriotic Action

OTTAWA, March 30.—Brigadier-General F. L. Lessard has offered his services to Col. the Hon. P. E. Blondin. He states that he is willing to serve in any capacity. Col. Blondin is naturally very much pleased at receiving this offer from the most distinguished French-Canadian soldier and has accepted. He has asked him to join in a recruiting campaign for the new French-Canadian regiment.

OFFERS HIS SERVICES.

General Lessard writes: "Please accept my heartiest congratulations on the example you have set to Quebec and to Canada. You have filled my heart with so much pride for our race that I now come to offer you my services and follow you in any capacity you may choose to the best interests of our countrymen of Canada and the Empire."

HAD DISTINGUISHED CAREER

General Lessard is Inspector General of militia for Eastern Canada. He has had a distinguished military career. While commanding officer of the Toronto military district he became immensely popular in that city. His headquarters are there now.

On Monday or Tuesday or next week Col. Blondin and General Lessard will begin their recruiting campaign in the Province of Quebec.

Voice of The People

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I am glad to know that our Council have decided to let the market tolls stay as they are. I would suggest that the next time these three or four merchants come before the Council that they be asked to have a petition signed by the farmers saying how much cheaper they will sell their goods if given a free market. If a few more farmers do come to town and leave a little money with these merchants it's all right for them, but what about the rest of us who have to make up the $2,000 loss in revenue.

TAXPAYER

Editor of The Examiner:

One of the speakers for a free market made the ridiculous statement "that a free market would create a larger volume of trade. More farmers would patronize the market and the larger quantity of produce would tend to reduce prices to the consumer." Would he kindly tell us where all these additional farmers and extra produce would come from, or where did he get this unheard of information. I challenge him to name one farmer who would patronize the market, if it were free, and who would not be under the present system.

Yours truly,
ENQUIRER.

Clothing British Army A Stupendous Task

Enough Flannel Shirting Used to Belt the Earth Nearly Two and a Half Times.

The size of the armies recruited by Great Britain is indicated by the report published by the British War Office in which is given the total amount of various materials purchased from Aug. 4, 1914, to Dec. 31 last, needed in the manufacture of uniforms, shoes, and other wearing apparel for the troops at the front. The table, published in The Army and Navy Gazette for March 3, follows:

Boots, pairs	34,624,000
Cap comforters	13,326,000
Drawers—
Cotton pairs	5,699,000
Woolen, pairs	20,595,000
Flannel, pairs	1,037,000
Cotton and woolen, short, pairs	1,584,000
Gloves, woolen, pairs	8,328,000
Socks, worsted, pairs	66,565,000
Vests, woolen	9,401,000
Vests, flannel	974,000
Blankets	21,175,000
Cloth for jackets, yards	42,330,000
Cloth for trousers, yards	23,687,000
Cloth for greatcoats, yards	21,559,000
Barathea, yards	2,380,000
Bedford cord, yards	2,305,000
Whipcord, yards	6,064,000
Flannel for shirts, yards	105,102,000
Flannel for hospital, yards	7,244,000
Duck, (tent, cotton,) yards	38,080,000
Drill, (khaki, cotton), yards	20,870,000
Drill, drab, cotton, yards	40,516,000
Cotton, gray, yards	11,041,000
Jeans, cotton, yards	46,853,000
Flannelette, cotton, yards	23,344,000

An American Army officer who saw this table yesterday, said:

"In a nutshell that little table tells the story of the bi problem that will confront our own army authorities in the event of war with Germany."

"Do you think our Quartermaster Department will be able to successfully handle such a problem?" he was asked.

"Certainly! yit will," he answered, "and for months the Quartermaster Corps has been quietly at work, making preparations to meet just such an issue. It will meet it and solve it, you may be assured of that."

It was pointed out that there was enough flannel shirting in the list to encircle the earth nearly two and a half times.

Brave is the man who will stand within twenty feet of anything a woman throws at.

Mr. Candle Disobeys His Wife

.....No, Mr. Candle, I won't shut up and get into bed.

.....What's that you say? I've been talking for three hours and you don't care if I don't get into bed! No, of course you don't care. Your poor wife can stay out of bed all night and you wouldn't help her. I'm not going to stay out to please you. I'm going to get in bed whether you like it or not.....

.....Eh? Of course my feet are cold and it's your fault. If you had done what I told you I wouldn't have been out in the cold all this time.

.....You can't see what difference it made what store you got the things at! Now, Mr. Candle, are you doing the housekeeping or am I?

.....What d' you mean? You're keeping the house, and I'm the housekeeper.

.....No, you didn't get what I told you. I said oranges at 18c. a doz.

.....Eh? What you mumbling? Yes I know they are the same kind, and you paid 25c. a doz.

.....No, I didn't say the salmon wasn't good you bought. I said it was too dear.

.....What'd you say, Mr. Candle?

.....It was only 20c. a pound! Well if you had gone where I told you it would have only been 12c. a pound.

.....Well, I know you bought the shortening, but you paid 2 cents a pound more for it ,and 45 cents for butter instead of 43c. as I told you.

.....They didn't have it at 43c.! No, but if you had gone where I told you, they would have had it.

.....What? You forgot the address! Hugh! You'd forget me if I let you.

.....What's that? No such luck! You brute!

.....Yes, of course you'll do what I want now you've upset me and made me cry.

.....What's that? You've got a pencil! What for?

.....Oh! to write the address down.

together pleasant ,encouraging and possibly prophetic in some particulars. In the Peterborough of 1927, only ten years hence, he found a great technical school, a suburban electric railway station, the centre of three radiating lines, a civic square, but no council for civic administration was by commission, which was at least trying to conduct the affairs of the city in a business-like manner. And Among the changes, the residential district was graced by the home of Sir Frederic Nicholls, who had decided to centralize in Peterborough All the factories of the C.G.E. Company, employing 15,000 men here But like every dream, Mr. Brock awoke to realities but they were realities plus civic hope and ambition.

MR. J. J. HARTLEY.

Mr. Hartley spoke as a member of the Council in office, when the C.G.E. Company came to Peterborough and intimated that there were men in that day who opposed the assistance to the new electric company. "But I have been proud of it ever since and it has always received my most hearty support." Mr. Hartley emphasized the fact that Peterborough attracted men and there was always plenty of labour. The men were also skilful workmen, and manufacturers were assured of obtaining a sufficient number of men for their plants.

MR. T. F. MATTHEWS.

Peterborough's exceptional advantages in cheap power and water were referred to by Mr. Matthews. Power rates were lower than in 95 per cent. of the cities of Ontario and as low as in any city in the province.

Mr. Matthews referred particularly to Peterborough's efforts in the interests of its people and briefly outlined the beneficient and successful work of the Health Association. There are many cases of persons restored in health through this Association's assistance who might otherwise have been lost to the community. One of the nurses was solely engaged in the direction and care of young mothers attending those girls who were employed practically until the time of their marriage and who on that account required direction and attention.

Mr. Matthews referred to the fact that in 1914 Senator Nicholls had given a large cheque to Peterborough's poor relief fund, this apart from his large patriotic contributions.

During the evening Mr. Ed. Hanrahan sang two solos in his rich tone adding to the pleasure of the banquet which was closed with the National Anthem.

Among Those Present.

BICYCLE WEEK BEGINS SATURDAY

"Ride a Bicycle" and "Time to Buy a Bicycle" are the slogans which are being used by members of the bicycle trade throughout Canada this spring in a movement to encourage cycling for health, pleasure, economy and utility.

Organizations of bicycle boosters have been formed in a number of the leading cities of the country to demonstrate the various advantages of wheeling. The bicycle will be brought to the attention of the general public in every possible manner, including the staging of the second annual Bicycle Week, March 31 to April 7, as the official opening of the 1917 season.

It is confidently believed that 100,000 new bicycles will be sold in the Dominion this year while in the United States, with its greater home market, the bicycle authorities anticipate the sale of one million wheels.

The bicycle is earning more and more staunch supporters every day but the wheel has not come back as a means for a fad or craze, it is pointed out. One reason for this is that there is no tendency to adopt the bicycle for furious or reckless riding while the day of freak performance is over. The old club days will probably never be revived but the bicycle is now being looked upon as a simple and practicle vehicle with which one may obtain exercise and business benefit with very low cost.

One big indication that the bicycle is coming back to stay is that the society leaders of the United States have been using the bicycle a great deal in the Florida summer resorts, during the past three winters. If the bicycle had been classed as a whim of fashion or as a fad, it would have been discarded the second season. The women and men of the exclusive set at Palm Beach and other winter resorts have been making good use of the bicycle although many of them have several automobiles at their disposal constantly.

LIGHT-HEARTED LEGISLATORS

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO, March 30. — Light-heartedness is not the prevailing characteristic of the Ontario Legislature, but this isn't Wm. McDonald's fault. When he chooses to speak, even the bitterest medicine is coated with sugar and gales of laughter blow along the desks. Always, too, underneath the joke is seriousness.

McDonald's methods are well illustrated in his last two speeches, one directed against what he called the "faddism" in the Department of Education, and the other against unfair treatment accorded to the farmers of the Province contrasted with the extravagence lavished on Government House.

The particular fad McDonald was fighting on this occasion was the drawing of foolish things. He quoted a number of actual questions required of the pupils of the Province. "Draw and paint a box of onions" was one of them, and Mr. McDonald's comment on this was: "Why not teach the children to grow onions instead?" "Draw and paint the wild carrot in flower," and on this McDonald asked "Why not have the children taught to pull them out?" The question to which he objected most vigorously, however, was, "Draw the noisy geese that gabbled o'er the pool." "What goose," demanded Mr. McDonald, "put that on any paper?"

"Why not clip the wings of these jackasses," he asked, "who put such questions on the papers?" "You mean the ears," bellowed Sam Carter, and the laugh was on. Mr. McDonald was rather pessimistic. "The teaching of such stuff," he said, "is good for neither this world nor the next."

In Malabel Township in the county of Bruce, the government has cut off a grant of $600, which it has been giving for years for the maintenance of a road. "Fourteen hundred dollars for a Donegal rug for Government House," moaned Mr. McDonald, "and not a cent for the farmers of Malabel." "Seven hundred dollars for a commode for Government House," wailed the member, "and not a cent for the farmers of Malabel." "Four hundred and seventy-five dollars for curtains for the ballroom of Government House," cept McDonald, "and not a cent for the farmers of Malabel."

Then Mr. McDonald went on to enumerate brass poles and garment hangers, heating plants and atriums and all sorts of things in Government House with the constant comparison of the Government's neglect of the farmers of Malabel.

Considerable Work Ahead

Half an acre of the D. W. Dumble five acres up about the Chemong railway right of way, is wanted by Mrs. Jarvis of Conger street.

In all only the property has been only touched as a fringe. Better results should be had and it is up to the committee to get very and earnestly busy.

Several letters have come in expressing doubts as to the feasability of the movement. But these are as nothing. There are a lot of people who habitually have cold feet. It will be the aim of the friends of the movement to discount these and enthuse others. The whole thing will be on trial and the committee in the way of the prosecutor must get the case well in hand and look for a favorable verdict. Opposition must be expected, and the best way is to live it down.

Further news of the movement will be given The papers are very good, and will afford all the free advertising that can be made effective. So help the matter along by talking it up.

"In Walked Jimmy"

Here For a Return Engagement Good Friday

Founded on the old but healthy idea that "nothing succeeds like success," "In Walked Jimmy," which is described as "a comedy with a serious purpose," comes to "The Grand" Theatre next Friday, April 6, with George Summers, a comedian of distinction in the principal role. The play reflects the efficacy of optimism and the utter futility of abandoning the ship when it's sinking simply because the rats are inclined that way. The author is obviously an exponent of that common sense cult known in psychic and philosophic circles as "New Thought," and to this fact most audiences attribute their two hours of wholesome and unalloyed delight while making the acquaintance of Jimmy.

The thing into which Jimmy walked was a broken down shoe factory, when the clerks had all just been fired, when ejection was imminent, and when the proprietor had a pistol at his head in serious contemplation of suicide.

Jimmy, nothing else but plain Jimmy, would have been a mysterious figure had it not been for his matter-of-fact manner, his smile and his everlasting humanness. He didn't tell who the was; in fact it didn't matter. He put the shoe business on its feet, or rather on the feet of several hundred thousand babies, on the heart of the girl clerk, saved the erring brother from jail, escaped that place as a permanent boarding house himself and foiled the villain, all in two hours.

SEA RAIDER DESTROYS NINE SHIPS OF ALLIES

GERMAN SEA RAIDER EXACTS HEAVY TOLL

Allies Lose Nine Ships Including Canadian Schooner "Tress" of Halifax—German "Sea Adder" Flies the Norwegian Flag—Fires on Victims Without Warning.

WHEREABOUTS IS A MYSTERY

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 31.—Four British ships, including the Canadian schooner Tress of Halifax, four French steamers and one Italian—this was the list of the victims of the German raider "Sea Adder" in the neighbourhood of the West Indies, according to stories of 265 men and two women survivors of the passengers and crew of these ships, safely landed here to-day on a French barque.

Count Luckner was commander of the "Sea Adder," and she was a big sailing ship with a gasoline auxiliary, according to the survivors. She always flew the Norwegian flag until close up, then ran up a German ensign and fired on the victims without warning. One British steamer showed fight and killed three members of the German raider's crew before being sunk herself. Where the "Sea Adder" is now, is a mystery.

Heavy Fighting Is Looked For On The Western Battle Front

British and French Troops Have Apparently Arrived Before the "Hindenburg Line"—London Looks For Vast Increase in the Intensity of the Fighting.

ARTILLERY ACTIVITY

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, March 31.—Both British and French troops to-day had apparently arrived before the "Hindenburg line."

From now on London looks to see a vast increase in the intensity of the fighting as concentrated infantry of the Anglo-French forces are hurled against the German positions.

Battle front despatches to-day indicated both the British and French forces were still pounding away at their respective "wedges" inserted into the German lines. Artillery firing is increasing along almost the entire front.

"Glad to meet you," is what one man usually says when introduced to another—but is he?

Cattle Markets.

The week opened with slow markets, and a decidedly easier tone to prices, except for the very choicest butcher and fancy Easter cattle. There was a moderately heavy run of cattle offering, which included a large proportion of poorly finished stuff. Packers were not keen thus, and the result was a slow market, and a little off the previous week's prices. Extra quality Easter cattle sold well at high prices for loads and part loads, while individual baby beef steers and heifers reached fancy figures from $14 up to as high as $17 for one youngster, of extra quality.

Midweek and week-end markets brought light offerings, and the general average of prices again stiffened. With more activity in trade, prices fully recovered the earlier declines.

Stockers and feeders continue in good demand at high prices.

Fat cows and bulls in good demand and firm.

Good market for choice milkers and springers.

Offerings of sheep and lambs were very light, prices holding good and firm. A few early spring lambs were in the market.

Calves averaged about steady, with good offerings.

Cattle Receipts.

Union Stock Yards—Total receipts this week, 437 cars, with 5,633 cattle, 1,627 calves, 14,469 hogs, 219 sheep and lambs, and 331 horses.

British Guns Made Chaos Along The Western Front A Field of 1,000 Shudders

German Soldiers Nicknamed Putrid Corpse-Invested Quagmires Around Bapaume "The Graveyard," British the "New Sahara"—Frenzied Teuton Troops Tripped Over Stark Limbs Emerging From Miry Soil.

DEATH LURKS EVERYWHERE

(By William Philip Sims, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES, March 9.—((By Mail) — With Tomlinson, of the London "News and Leader," Bean, of the combined Australian papers, and an "Anzac" staff colonel, I have just explored the New Sahara, that hideous band of country abandoned by the Germans lest their troopers go mad.

The British gave it the name of Sahara. Crown Prince Rupprecht's men called it by another—the graveyard. But I should give it another still—the Field of a Thousand Shudders; the place where nightmares are made.

Take your map of France and find Bapaume. To the west and south of that place lies the New Sahara. If your map is a large one, you will find it covered with the names of hamlets, villages and towns — but to-day all these are gone. No trace of them is left, and, as one stands in the middle of this blighted country, no sprig of grass, no sign of a tree, no weed, flower or shrub, greets the vision as far as eyes can see. There is only a greenish black soil, freshly churned and re-cratered by explosives ranging in depth from five to sixty or more feet.

Most Awful Quagmires.

Of course one cannot ride through this country. Nor, for that matter, can one walk. One can only slip and slide and stagger along, ever in danger of falling into funnel-shaped quagmires from which escape is impossible without aid. I know of two correspondents who came near losing their lives in just such places, more perilous far than the dread quicksands. Horses and mules, on account of their weight and the difficulty of helping them, once in the toils of the ooze, usually are drawn on down to their death.

Death Lurks Everywhere.

"Look out for the bayonet!" is a common cry of warning as you stumble through the mud for hundreds and thousands of rifles are buried in the ground and frequently only the rusting blades of their bayonets are sticking out. The great waste of war is everywhere evident. Wrought and twisted rifle barrels, splintered stocks, cartridge clips full of cartridges in uncountable number, unexploded shells of all calibres, hand grenades of every size and shape, trench mortar bombs, aerial torpedoes, brass shell cases, abandoned stores of live shells, knapsacks, cartridge belts, articles of clothing, steel helmets, fatigue caps, and whatnot litter the surface of the new Sahara and one can only imagine the amazing quantity of the stuff which must lie beneath it.

Field of 1,000 Shudders.

You might think the view from here depressing enough, and it is, for it was while fighting along here that the Germans gave the country the name of "the graveyard." But the field of a thousand shudders lies further on. Up towards the bloody Butte of Warlencourt, Ligny-Thilloy, and thereabouts, one reaches Hell's own acres.

The water covering the slime in the crater-beds has become gruesomely red exactly like blood, for some uncanny reason, and to the noisesome smell of miles of muck is added an unmistakable stench.

Bodies lie single, in all kinds of attitude, or in groups or hills. They are on mounds or at the bottom of shell holes in fragments or so entire as to resemble merely a very tired and muddy soldier gone to sleep regardless of time or place.

Relief Which Never Came.

Here ran the German lines during December and January following the battle of the Somme. There were no communicating trenches leading back—the British smashed them as fast as dug—and to get into or out of the foremost positions the soldiers had to traverse the open ground at night. Food and ammunition had to be brought up in the same way and, as shells never ceased falling in this area and every now and then the darkness was swept by machine guns, those holding the line often went hungry and spent weary days and nights waiting for relief parties which never came.

Suffocated in Mud.

When a German fell in the open, he lay where he fell. When he fell in the trenches, he was buried in the side of the trench— providing the walls were firm enough; if not, his body was thrown outside. The bodies of soldiers who fell in this sector during November are only now being buried, and by the English—the Germans were unable to get at them.

In the pitch black darkness many a German soldier fell into the awful funnel-shaped death traps in the mud, to be left to suffocate in the terrible mixture probably already holding bodies of previous victims.

Tripped Over Dead Hands.

By day, while shells fell on and about them, killing the living and disinterring the already buried, dead faces stared at the Kaiser's men from every side and at night crisped hands, sticking out of the mud, tripped and threw those who had to venture in the open. Iron-nerved troopers felt creepy. They were afraid to be left alone in the dark. Showers of flares were sent into the air to shed light about the trench, but these only served to throw a horrible glare over the unburied dead. Faces twitched, nerves failed, and, prisoners say, some soldiers went mad.

Work of British Guns.

This new Sahara is the work of British artillery. One often wonders while standing by a clean warm muzzled gun, as it blazes away, what the result is at the other end of the shell's trajectories. I have seen. Immediately the Germans went out I went in and the product of the intensive gunnery, the drum fire of the artillery which I have seen and heard throughout weeks, lay before me—the new Sahara. And in the middle of this hell-awful desert was the Field of a Thousand Shudders, Nightmare Land, the ultimate horror-place in wardom.

Why Germans Retired.

People asked why the Germans retired. Do you wonder why they left? Here you have an inkling but only an inkling of what the British guns are doing—making new Saharas along the German front.

African Force of 46 Held Out 7 Days Against 800 Germans

CAPE TOWN, March 28.—Among the stories of heroism that come in from the East African front in letters home, the following told by Sapper J. Kearnsey of Johannesburg is characteristic of the spirit of the troops. It relates how a wireless telegraph detachment of forty-six men, to which he was assigned, was cut off and captured after a siege lasting seven days by a German force of 800, which having retreated from Tabora, on the Central Railroad, when the Belgians approached that town, was trying to break through the British lines south of Iranga. The detachment, which included four telegraph operators, had been sent ahead from one of General Northey's columns to establish a post at Ingominyi. It was under command of Captain Clarke, of the King's African Rifles, and had two small field guns.

On the approach of the Germans, the detachment took up a defensive position among the hills near a great swamp. The next morning early the pickets were driven in and the enemy opened fire with a machine gun at 1,000 yards.

"We did not wait to argue," writes Kearnsey, "but doubled to a hill to the west, leaving a few men with the wireless outfit. The Germans tried to get to the long grass in the swamp, but with one of our guns we put five shrapnel into them, killing about a dozen and blowing up their Maxim.

"A minute later they opened with another Maxim from a hill to the north of our original position, the range being about 600 yards. They ran off a belt, missing by a few inches our men guarding the wireless. We stuck where we were all that day trying to locate their Maxims, but without success, as their hill was covered by thick bush and it was impossible to detect a single movement on their part.

"That night we stole back to our wireless set, dismantled it and erected it on the hill where we had our camp. About 10 o'clock a white soldier, a straggler from Major Baxendale's command, crept in. He was wounded in the head, arm and back. Nothing else happened during the hours of darkness except an occasional exchange of rifle shots.

"We found the next day that we were completely surrounded on hills higher than our own, from which the Germans searched our position carefully with several Maxims. They kept it up from day to day so that we had scarcely time to snatch a biscuit and a drink of water. On the sixth day they captured two of our men, and Sergt. Major McPherson in charge of the wireless set, got a bullet in the thigh. Another man was wounded and two were killed.

"That night we gave up all hope of being relieved. The enemy were closing in and we knew we could not hold out when the Germans rushed us with their overwhelming numbers. We therefore destroyed the wireless outfit, rendered two guns useless, and said good-bye to each other as we made ready for the final stand.

"About 4 o'clock in the morning the Germans sent up a rocket that illuminated the whole country round about. A bugle sounded and 500 Askaris, commanded by four whites, charged up the hill screaming their war cry. We waited until they were seventy yards from our breastwork then let them have it. This checked them for an instant, then they came on again, swarming all about us. Captain Clarke called out: 'It's not much use, boys,' and we scattered down the hill. Captain Clark and Lieutenant Bones were shot dead before we had gone two yards. I jumped over the Captain's body as I ran.

"Half-way down the hill I caught up with two of our fellows and we hid till daylight. Then seeing that it was useless to try to escape, and that most of the men were prisoners, we gave ourselves up. The Germans were very much surprised when they learned how small our force was. They told us they had figured our strength at 300 men, with two Maxims and two big guns. Their own force was armed with eleven Maxims and several pompoms. They had about 100 casualties. Our own totaled four killed and four wounded."

Subsequently the German force fell in with one of General Northey's pursuing columns, and in the ensuing battle had to abandon prisoners and guns.

Railroad Men Swear By Gin Pills

RAILROAD men are especially subject to kidney disease—in fact, no class of workers has more reason to be thankful for Gin Pills than those men who are constantly "on the road."

Kidney disease often results in Diabetes and in obesity, and brakemen, conductors, engineers and firemen know they must guard against these most serious ailments by taking Gin Pills at the first sign of Kidney trouble.

Mr. Frank Ide, a Buffalo Pullman conductor, suffered intensely from pains in the groins, sore back, and very severely from gravel and sediment.

A friend whose life was despaired of before he had been relieved by Gin Pills, recommended the remedy to Frank Ide, and the advice was accepted and acted upon.

Here is what Mr. Ide has to say as to the result: "The pain left me entirely. I have no trouble whatever in urinating and I feel as well as I ever did in my life. I recommend Gin Pills to everybody in any way troubled with kidneys or bladder."

All good dealers sell Gin Pills at 50c. a box, or 6 boxes for $2.50. Sample free upon request.

sent collectively to the hospitals. The largest number of parcels ever sent out in one day was 496.

Another interesting department is the paper section, where all the newspapers are received. A soldier may ask for a Hamilton paper, and if unobtainable a Toronto one is sent him, or he may be from Calgary, and get a Winnipeg paper. Countess Feroxine, formerly, Miss Molson, of Montreal, is in charge of this work.

Taking the patients out for motor rides is another very well organised work. Large cards are hung in the hospitals telling that if anyone wants a motor ride to communicate with the Red Cross. There are four special cars ready to take them for a run into the country for tea or possibly just to the theatre. A large Red Cross is painted on the windshield. Sir Arthur Lawley supplies a car and chauffeur. Mr. W. H. Cawthra another, which he drives himself. Delightful hospitality is offered the boys by charming English hostesses, eager to shower kindness on the brave Canadians. Mrs. Rivers Bulkley is in charge of the prisoner of war parcels and everything is working smoothly now.

Some idea of the work that many of Canada's smart society girls are doing in London was given when Mrs. Cawthra told of the Maple Leaf Clubs and what they mean to our boys. Lady Drummond is head of this work also, and there are seven of them running, with a possibility of the need for more. Miss Macdonald, daughter of Dr. A. A. Macdonald, is in charge of three in Connaught Place and has eight others associated with her. They do all the work voluntarily, make beds, sweep, wait on table, and help in the kitchen, Miss Ashton, of Montreal, being most invaluable in her work. Breakfast and dinner is served, but no midday meal. On Wednesdays the V. A.D. workers get a day off and the I.O.D.E. go in and work. Lady Allan acts as manager.

Canadian Won Prize.

The first prize in the Economic Essay Contest, conducted by Chicago University, has been won by Duncan A. MacGibbon, of McMaster University, Toronto. Mr. MacGibbon is the third Canadian to take first honors in one of these contests. His prize winning essay was entitled "Railway Rates and the Canadian Railway Commission." The second, third, and fourth prizes were won by students of American universities, the contest being an international one.

Bathe Internally And Keep Well!

Nature has mightily equipped us all, old and young, to resist disease—but she requires that we give her a chance.

We give her no chance if we permit the Lower Intestines to be more or less clogged with accumulated waste. Yet that is a universal condition to-day, as is proven by the number of laxative drugs that are consumed.

You can help Nature in Nature's most effectual way by Internal Bathing, and in an easy, non-habit-forming way keep the Intestines as sweet and clean as Nature demands it to be for perfect health and surer defence against contagion. Over half a million keen, bright, healthy people testify to its results.

Mrs. O. G. M. (name on request) of Strathroy, Ont., writes:

I am pleased to have this opportunity of testifying to the merits of the J. B. L. Cascade. I have been using it now for a year with satisfactory results. I am an old woman, but my health is so improved that I have a renewed lease of life. You are at liberty to give my address to anyone privately who may desire to write to me regarding the Cascade.

Just call at Warne Drug Co., Peterborough and requests free booklet, "Why Man of To-day is Only 50 Per Cent. Efficient." The most efficient device for Internal Bathing. The "J. B. L. Cascade" will also be shown and explained to you if you so desire. If you prefer, write for Booklet to Dr. Chas A. Tyrrell, 163 College street, Toronto.

GERMANY LACKS FOOD

COPENHAGEN, March 28.—The result of the recent stock taking of the grain, potatoes and other foodstuffs on hand in Germany was so unfavorable as to cause general apprehension, according to the Berlin Vorwaerts, which quotes remarks made before the Reichstag Committee on Food by the Socialist Deputy Ebert. The Vorwaerts is the only Berlin paper which carries an account of the proceedings before the committee.

CARING FOR THE WOUNDED.

Red Cross Work Done by Women in England.

Mrs. W. H. Cawthra, of Toronto, who recently returned from London, where she was actively engaged in the work of the Canadian Red Cross Society under Lady Drummond, gives an interesting description of the perfect system that Lady Drummond has organized in her department. It was in the filing and record department that Mrs. Cawthra worked as well as being the authorized visitor of the Red Cross, for two hospitals.

At every hospital in England blue tickets are left with the secretary or O. C. to be given to any Canadian who may be admitted. This is called a "Welcome Ticket" in that it may be filled out by the patient for anything that he needs or wants. And invariably the patient wants his own razor and shaving outfit, for he loses this when wounded. There is also a great demand for Canadian badges, such as "Canada" or the "Maple Leaf" that they lose off their caps and uniforms. If the thing asked for is not at headquarters, it is bought and sent to the wounded Tommy.

The authorized nurse visits him once a week. On the first visit she gets such particulars as name, number, battalion, when wounded, nature of wound when admitted to hospital, and next-of-kin and their address. These particulars are all put on a card and filed. The relatives are then communicated with and all particulars given. Once a week a letter goes to the next-of-kin telling of the progress of the patient.

When he is sent to a Convalescent Home he is then considered able to do this work himself. Miss Clara Hagarty, of Toronto, the well known artist, is in charge of the parcel room, having been there from the start, and never missed a day. The parcels are made up individually and

THE ROAD THAT GOES TO SEA.

(Philadelphia Public Ledger.)

Another case of doing what you resolve to do against expert advice, and winning out in the end is "Flagler's folly." This is the only marine railroad on earth and it joins the mainland of Florida to Key West.

"It will ruin you." "It won't pay." "Only an old man's dream." "It violates all the rules of good railroading."

These are samples of what Henry M. Flagler's engineers told the old Standard Oil millionaire when he announced his intention of building that road.

"Anyhow I shall buil dit," was Flagler's final order, and he did build it. Railroaders laughed and the family saw visions of a wasted fortune. But what is the result?

Why, "Flagler's folly" cannot handle the Cuban business which the northern railroads are sending it. That picturesque salt water line is one of the best paying properties this partner of J. D. Rockefellar ever owned.

If a man tells a woman she has a musical laugh she will fall for any old joke he may get off.

"There is no telling" would be an appropriate motto for a sewing society—if the members would live up to it.

Doctors Stand Amazed at Power of Bon-Opto to Make Weak Eyes Strong---According to Dr. Lewis

Guaranteed to Strengthen Eyesight 50% In One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home

Philadelphia, Pa. Victims of eye strain and other eye weaknesses, and those who wear glasses, will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope and help for them. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored by this remarkable prescription and many who once wore glasses say they have thrown them away. One man says, after using it: "I was almost blind. Could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without my glasses and my eyes do not hurt any more. At night they would pain dreadfully. Now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for 15 days everything seems clear. I can read even fine print without glasses." Another who used it says: "I was bothered with eye strain caused by overworked, tired eyes which induced fierce headaches. I have worn glasses for several years both for distance and work, and without them I could not read my own name on an envelope or the typewriting on the machine before me. I can do both now and have discarded my long distance glasses altogether. I can count the fluttering leaves on the trees across the street now, which for several years have looked like a dim green blur to me. I cannot express my joy at what it has done for me."

It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by the use of this prescription. Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and let it dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation and redness will quickly disappear. If your eyes bother you even a little it is your duty to take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have saved their sight if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Yes, the Bon-Opto prescription is truly a wonderful eye remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. I have used it very successfully in my own practice on patients whose eyes were strained through overwork or misfit glasses. I can highly recommend it in case of weak, watery, aching, smarting, itching, burning eyes, red lids, blurred vision or for eyes inflamed from exposure to smoke, sun, dust or wind. It is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." Bon-Opto, referred to above, is not a patent medicine or a secret remedy. It is an ethical preparation, the formula being printed on the package. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is sold in this city by Warne Drug Co. and Other Druggists.

Nourishing Bread. — At the present time the price of flour, corn and potatoes are probably more expensive than at any time in the history of this country, or even during the history of Europe. During the time of war for which we must prepare, there are many things which enter into the cost of bread and bread making that must be considered. If the baking of bread could be accomplished without the loss of so much fuel there would be a tremendous saving, and this can be done. The use of ovens that conserve and retain the heat for many hours would reduce the cost of baking. The use of all of the grains of wheat in the form of finely ground whole wheat flour would be another great saving and of tremendous advantage from the standpoint of the health.

How to increase the nourishing qualities of bread and at the same time reduce its cost and retain its palatability is therefore naturally of considerable importance and value at this time.

About twenty years ago I conducted a series of experiments in bread-making that could have been put to great advantage, but for the fact that we are the most extravagant people on earth and we do not like to disturb the established order of things merely for the sake of saving a few pounds of flour, coal and some extra labor. The work which I did at that time will now be used gladly, however, and the result will be better health and less expense and labor.

The best bread I have ever eaten was ten days old when served and it had been kept in an ordinary bread box. It tasted fresh and sweet and was very nourishing. There was nothing dry, hard or stale about it. Here is the formula from which I made it:

Barley flour, one pound; rye flour, two pounds; fine wholewheat flour, seven pounds. These were thoroughly mixed and prepared according to the recipe for making whole-wheat bread (the same as given in the Home Health Club book, Vol. 5, except that it requires a longer time in the oven).

It is not very good to eat when recently baked but becomes more palatable daily, after 48 hours. When it is a week or ten days old you will prefer it to the average cake and seems to just melt in the mouth. It is good and palatable either with or without butter and when baked in the old-fashioned Dutch oven, will be fresh and sweet for two weeks.

Dear Doctor: The salt, pepper and vinegar treatment cured my husband of night sweats and since I have begun to breathe through my nose, exercise my lungs and take long deep breaths I do not have to lie awake nights and cough, and since I began to drink water as you advised I have not had to use physic. I am 66 years old and in perfect health now except that my eyes are beginning to fail. I suppose that I should expect that at my age. My husband is 70 years old, and has trouble with his knees. They pain him all the time and after working all day the pain is very severe at night. He has never used strong drink or tobacco. He says it seems as if the cords draw up. He has kidney trouble. We would like your advice, and to have the Book of Lectures. Please tell us the price of same.

There is a cure for hives which I have used with success in my own family, and will give it herewith hoping that it will be of value to someone. Before going to bed drink some hot infusion-ginger tea or some other herb tea, to cause the hives to break out; then wash them with a solution of copperas water; put on an old cloth, for it stains very badly.

Mrs. B. H.

(Answer.) The failing of your eyes can be attributed to most natural causes, and it is not unreasonable to think that your age has a great deal to do with it. Still there are many simple home treatments which would aid in preserving the eyes and some of these are mentioned in the Home Health Club Book of Lectures on the subject of the Eyes. You would be wise to have your eyes examined by a skilful oculist and have suitable glasses fitted. Sometimes this is sufficient to preserve the eyesight for a good many years.

From your description of your husband's case I am inclined to think the trouble in his knee is of a rheumatic nature and am especially led to this conclusion as you say that he has been suffering with his kidneys. These organs are especially important and everything should be done so that they preserve their activity. Rheumatism is a disease the symptoms of which are very different and it is but seldom that they appear the same in two cases. The pains in the knees also the drawn up feeling, is probably caused by uric acid, and this acidity in the system should be expelled. Several home treatments are very valuable aids in doing so, such as a buttermilk diet, which from time to time has been advocated in these lectures. Olive oil would be of excellent and valuable remedy for rubbing in gently and thoroughly once a day over the affected parts. All of the organs of the alimentary canal should be strengthened for which purpose the Compound Gentian is excellent.

The treatment for hives which you mention appeals to me as simple and sensible and well worthy of a trial.

Dear Doctor: What is the cause of Pleurisy, and what is the relief and cure?—J. H.

Answer: Pleurisy is an inflammation of the membrane called pleura which covers the lungs. It is most frequently caused by sitting in drafts of air or chilling the body especiall after being heated. Occasionally it is a serious complication of bronchitis, pneumonia and consumption. There is usually more or less chilliness followed by fever and a piercing pain in the chest as though the lungs had caught against the chest wall, so that taking a full breath increases the pain. One side or both may be affected and the patient wishes to lie either on the back or well side. Coughing always increases the pain. Mild cases present no other symptoms and recover quickly. Severe cases are protracted and develop many aggravated symptoms such as constant and painful coughing and the expectoration of glutinous mucus. Fluids may also accumulate in the sack about the lungs and produce dangerous conditions, sometimes known as dropsy of the chest. Very frequently persons who often suffer from pleurisy, have adhesions of the lung sack or pleura which makes the breathing difficult, and is accompanied by pain which increases upon the least exposure. Quiet in a recumbent position is important. Avoid all drafts and keep the room at a moderate and even temperature. Rub the affected side well with stimulating liniment and place over it several thicknesses of heated flannel or fill a sack with hot salt.

CRUDE THOUGHTS FROM THE EDITORIAL PEN

LOOKING AHEAD.

In little things we must look ahead and think of the future. Perhaps the little deed of kindness, the loving word, the sweet smile, or the wrong act, idle word or angry frown, may not effect our lives nor the lives of anyone else to-day. Let us not only think of the present but looking into the hereafter, see what the influence will be hereafter.

It is in more subtle, and so to speak, higher affairs than these that the wisdom of looking ahead asserts itself.

When Esau, coming in weary and spent from the hunting field sold to crafty Jacob, for a mess of pottage, the birthright which belonged to the elder brother, he simply did what hosts of men have been doing ever since. He did not look ahead but acted on the moment's impulse. For a temporary pleasure, an apparent present advantage, he bartered his heaven bestowed right to dignity, consideration and manhood. And yet today, many of us, to gratify ourselves for the present indulge in some pleasure which perhaps may be our ruin. It is done without thought for the future.

It is a fine thing to stand in the midst of bhay belts and whiling pulleys, with the knowledge of their governing laws in your brain, and the quick control of them in your right hand; but it is finer and grander to stand where any mother may stand if she will, among the living spirits which are to dominate the wheels; pondering the laws of human agency, directing the development of human activity, bearing the supreme weight of human responsibility; doing it all in utter unconsciousness of self or of sacrifice, strong in the wondrous love which alone of earthly emollients is all persuasive and all powerful against the grind and wear and worry of the world.

* * *

A love of home and home life should be planted in every girl and boy, and there is no way so sure of giving this lesson than in making the home attractive and pleasant. Now, to make it attractive is not for the mother to do all the rough work and the daughter to do the trimming, but it is to have your boys and girls share the cares, experiences and labours of the home. Teach them every detail, give them a personal interest. Lay a foundation early for it will be slow work, requiring patience through oft multiplied failures.

* * *

Parents, we would say to you when God has blessed you with good girls, appreciate them. To-day is the time to do it while they are hovered beneath your wings. Do not wait until they are gone perhaps forever, from the home nest. If you love them let them know it. If you have an interest in their welfare, let them know it. If your girls are ambitious and want to gain for themselves a position in life, help them, for it is your duty to do so: If your girls want an education give them all the chance that lies in your power to acquire one.

Melancholy cannot hold its own with perennial good nature. Sunshine is contagious. Smiles are epidemic. One joyous nature will fill an auditorium with good cheer. Despondency is a poor debater. It can bring no argument that sunbeams will not penetrate.

Among all elevating influences, that of a happy home is the most permanent. Every clean home is an influence for good in the community. Every ideal home must possess beauty as well as cleanliness and kindliness. Every happy home should shed its refining influences abroad. Every good home is an educator and adds immeasurably to the sum of human happiness. Every home should be a faithful guardian of public morality, the surest safeguard of the public's future.

* * *

Homes are training schools for citizens, and only as they teach patriotism in the fullest sense of the word are they doing their duty by the country in unstinted measure. The family table is the family rallying place, and it is well therefore that meals should neither be taken in silence, nor occupied with frivolous gossip; they afford the parent and the children a meeting ground where they may come into close sympathy and where they may receive stores of knowledge while the bodily needs are attended to.

* * *

When we see boys on the streets and public places we often wonder if they know the business men are busy watching them. In every bank, store and office there will soon be a place for a boy to fill. Those who have the management of affairs of business will select one of the boys; they will not select him for ability to swear, smoke cigarettes or tap a beer keg.

CURRANT NUT BREAD.

Sift together three cupfuls of flour and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Into the flour work one teaspoonful of butter, and one tablespoonful of lard. Mix to a dough with two-thirds of a cupful of sweet milk. Flour the board and knead for ten minutes, working in one-half cupful each of chopped nut meats, and clean, dried and floured currants. Put into a bread pan, cover and put pan in a cool place for three hours; then roll the dough and put into a shallow baking tin. Let stand ten minutes then bake in a moderate oven for thirty minutes. Let stand over-night, then serve for breakfast with good coffee. This is delicious.

Why Best for Babies?

"Granny" Chamberlain

"I am often asked why Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is best for babies. Well, there are several reasons:

First: It is perfectly harmless and can be given with every confidence to the youngest or most delicate child.

Secondly: It contains no alcohol, opium, chloroform, morphine or any other narcotic.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

But aside from its safety it relieves coughs and colds, is the best remedy known for croup, and when given as soon as the croupy cough appears it will often prevent the attack."

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

GIRL'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

8174

This is the time to visit the shops for the new spring fabrics if you have a girl going to school, for of course she has outgrown last year's frocks and you will need to make a few at least to last her for the hoot term.

A charming example of what is really good style for a girl up to 14 years of age is shown by the illustration. An interesting feature of the design is having the deep yoke and panel cut in one piece, the back being the same as the front. The back and front side sections are gathered where they join the yokes and a plait is made at each seam where they are joined to the back and front panels. The neck opens in a V and is collared in sailor style with contrasting goods; the long sleeve is cuffed to match. Except for a few buttons, the only trimming, if it can be called that, is a belt holding the fulness at the sides—it is of material in harmony with the collar.

Fine cords are a marked feature of the new fashionable cottons; a heavy mercerized cotton poplin with woven colored stripes is a distinct novelty; then the usual linen, gingham and like weaves are also to be seen. Now that nearly all schools teach sewing a girl of 12 years can easily manage a pattern that is named and marked and she will enjoy having a dress like the one pictured grow under her own hands.

The dress pattern, No. 8,174, cuts in sizes 6 to 14 years. To make in size 10 requires 3¼ yards 36 inch material and ½ yard 36 inch contrasting goods or 3⅛ yards all one material.

To obtain the pattern send 10 cents to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Information to that effect is contained in the statement, it is understood. He will appear for sentence for fourteen burglaries today.

Sleepy Time Story About Two Rather Smart Rogues.

HOW ONE FOUND MISFORTUNE.

Meeting in the Woods Enlivened by a Lively Battle of Wits—The Flatterer Gains His Point, but Gets No Pleasure From the Victory.

Tonight, said Uncle Ben to Little Ned and Polly Ann, I am going to tell you about A FOX AND A CROW.

Mr. Crow was a sad thief. He hadn't been very well brought up, and he didn't quite understand that it is very, very wrong to take things that don't belong to you.

So when he saw a nice piece of cheese in a cottage window he wanted it very much. He waited until no one was about, and then he flew down and took the cheese.

Off to the woods he flew, thinking no one had seen him, but in this he made a mistake. Mr. Fox had seen him. Mr. Fox was prowling about the chicken house, wondering if he could not carry off a nice fat hen for dinner.

When Mr. Fox saw Mr. Crow sneak off with the piece of cheese he started right after him. Mr. Fox liked cheese too.

When he reached Mr. Crow he found him perching on top of a tall pine tree with the cheese fondly balanced in his bill.

"My dear Mr. Crow, how are you?" Mr. Fox began. "I'm delighted to see you. You're looking splendid. But, then, you always do look well, and your high spirits seem never to leave you. I heard yesterday you were the life of that charming party in Farmer Gruff's cornfield."

The crow looked so pleased that Mr. Fox went on:

"As you know, I never flatter, but I want to tell you how delighted I was with a little snatch of song I heard as I passed the cornfield. A more delicious voice than yours I have never heard. I wonder if you could repeat that little song for me? I had a little argument about it with Mr. Owl. He was sure the chorus ended with three caws instead of with a long drawn out caw, as I said it did."

"Caw, caw!" began the crow, and the cheese fell right into Mr. Fox's open mouth. He gobbled it down in a second and then trotted off through the woods, laughing to think how easily he had fooled Mr. Crow.

The cheese which the crow had stolen had been fixed by the housewife for the rats that troubled her greatly. She had only laid it in the window for a minute before she took it to the cellar to put in some dark corner to tempt a rat. Inside of the cheese was poison, and when Mr. Fox swallowed it he began to feel dreadfully ill. By the time the crow came along looking for his cheese the fox was too ill to speak. It took a long time for him to get well, and now I don't know whether he hates cheese or crows the most.

Snowflakes.

Filmy snowflakes falling down,
Making for the earth a gown,
White and clean, and, oh, so cold,
Piling dainty fold on fold,
Jewels sparkle here and there,
Gown, Queen Earth may proudly wear,
Oh, I love you, snowflakes white,
Falling through the silent night.

Swift Riding Downhill.

This winter there have been all kinds of weather. Sometimes there are lots of ice and snow, and again the ground will be bare and the ice too thin to skate. It was when snow was lacking that the boy pictured was snapped by

Life is said to be a game of give and take—and most people give a lot more trouble than they are willing to take.

"Be a Sinew in the Colossus of Production"

A call to Sow that we may Reap

Ontario's farms stand in dire need of labor at this seeding time. Results of investigations by the Ontario Department of Agriculture show it. There is about one man per hundred acres left on the farms—not enough! Unless labor is forthcoming in thousands—men and boys—the farmer cannot now sow even a normal harvest, much less the increase the Motherland expects Ontario to produce.

This labor must come from the cities, towns and villages.

The world's available reserves of grain are gone. We are living literally from hand to mouth.

Therefore—this call urges upon all Boards of Trade, Chambers of Commerce, Patriotic Societies, urban and rural Mayors, Aldermen, Councillors, Reeves, retired farmers and others to hold local meetings at the earliest possible moment and determine upon the best ways and means of meeting this great emergency in their locality.

The Central Committee is at your service and will co-operate with suggestions, etc.

Chairman—His Honor Sir John Hendrie, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario.

NAVY MEN CROSS LINE IN FULL UNIFORM

FIRST SINCE WAR BEGAN—OBJECTION TO SOLDIERS IN APPLICABLE TO SAILORS.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., March 29—W. V. Jones, first grade petty officer in charge of the British naval recruiting for Niagara District; H. Roebuck, second grade petty officer in charge of recruiting at St. Catharines, and Philip Meade, third grade petty officer in charge of naval recruiting at Niagara Falls, Ont., were visiting over the river in full uniform yesterday afternoon. They claim the distinction of being the first uniformed British sailors to cross the American border since the present war began. Petty Officer Jones said that they were only over on a friendly visit. They crossed the lower bridge in an auto.

"We had permission from the United States authorities to cross the line," he said. There is a regulation against Canadian soldiers in uniform crossing into the united States, but none against the men of the navy, so far as could be learned to-day.

WHEN BLOOD IS POISON.

The blood must be filtered, otherwise the liver is overworked, and becomes torpid and poisoned. If the kidneys fail to do their work properly, uric acid poisons the blood. By using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you get both these filtering organs working right, and also secure healthful action of the bowels. For this reason these pills are an ideal family medicine. They cure biliousness, constipation, chronic indigestion and [illegible] disease.

It takes a lot of fortitude to follow the dictates of a perfectly good conscience.

THE AUSTRALIAN NAVY.

(National Geographic Magazine.)

Within two months after war was declared the little Australian fleet of five cruisers, three torpedo boats destroyers, and three light gunboats built and manned at the nation's expense, had occupied the German Pacific islands—Samoa, Marshall, Carolines, Pelew, Ladrones, New Guinea, New Britain—broken up the German wireless system, captured eleven of the enemy's vessels, forced twenty-five others to intern, and prevented the destruction of a single British ship in the Australian waters. In the third month of the war the Emden, lying in wait for Australian transports, met its fate before the guns of the cruiser Sydney. Later on the watchful Australian fleet played its part in driving von Spee's squadron from the Pacific into the trap set by Admiral Sturdee at the Falkland Islands.

HURRICANE CAUSES DAMAGE AT TILLSONBURG

Hundreds of Dollars' Worth of Property Destroyed in a Few Minutes.

TILLSONBURG, March 30.— Tillsonburg and district were visited by a hurricane about midnight, which lasted only some five or six minutes, but left hundreds of dollars' worth of damage in its path. The roof of the engine-room and the west wall of the Dominion Linens, Ltd., were demolished, and the company will have to close the plant for a few days until the necessary repairs are completed. A portion of the roof of the Tillsonburg Shoe Company was torn off. Large windows and awnings on Main street were demolished, and trees and fences uprooted. In the country silos, fences and in some cases barns were demolished by the huge wind.

Every man knows about the pebble in his own shoe.

Colds or Coughs

SHOULD NEVER BE NEGLECTED

If They Are, Some Serious Lung Trouble Are Sure To Follow

A cold or cough, if neglected, will sooner or later develop into some sort of lung trouble, so we would advise that you get rid of it before it becomes settled. For this purpose we know of nothing to equal Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. This preparation has been on the market for the past twenty-five years, and has always given universal satisfaction.

Mr. Erwell Bolton, Wilton, Ont., writes: "Last winter I was caught in a storm and had to stay in a barn all night. I caught a severe cold which several medicines failed to cure. I went to some of the best doctors but these failed to do me any good. A friend advised me to use Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I used three bottles and they gave me instant relief."

When you ask for "Dr. Wood's" see that you get the genuine, put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, and bearing the name of The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. Price 35c and 50c.

Sunday Sermon For Those Who Do Not Go To Church

(By JAMES SUTHERLAND)

The Second Coming of Christ: — Quoting from Prof. Fisher's "Beginnings of Christianity." It is said the expectation (of the personal coming of the Lord) is expressed by all the Apostles in terms which admit of no other interpretation. It is found in Paul. Rom. 13, 11-12, 1 Cor. 7, 29-31, 10, 11; Phil. 4, 5. 1; 1 Tim. 4:14. The same expectation is expressed in Heb. 10:25; James 5:3-8; I Peter 4:7; II Peter 3:3; Jude 5:18; I John 2:18; the Apocalypse 1:1; 3:2; 22:7; 20:22. To put any other construction on these passages as if the Parousia to which they refer were anything else than the second advent of the Lord to Judgements, would introduce a dangerous license in interpretation and one which might be employed to subvert the principal doctrines of the Christian system. It is needless to extend these quotations. In regard to many important facts and doctrines of our Holy Religion, devoted and intelligent students of God's word differ. As to the premillennial faith of the apostolic church there is so far as we are aware entire agreement. We cannot but regard this acknowledged fact as establishing beyond question our interpretation of the teaching of the apostles. If the matter were one of minor importance or referred to but incidentally or obscurely the belief of the church might not be regarded as authoritative of final as to the faith of their teachers. The second coming of the Lord, however, is a subject referred to by the apostles prominently and repeatedly—it is presented as a matter of the highest possible moment. It is referred to in terms which imply that it was a subject familiarly known and well understood.

In regard to such a theme and so presented, it is not simply incredible that after all not merely here and there a believer not knowing, but that the whole body of believers, the church in which dwells the spirit promised as a guide to truth, should misapprehend the meaning of their inspired teachers. Is it still more incredible that if by any possibility this were the case they shou'd have been commended by the apostles for their misapprehension. That the apostolic church, including the apostles themselves, was premillenarian, we cannot but regard as established beyond the possibility of a reasonable doubt. If this be true, each one for himself can make the application. Many good people of our own day have this thought and feeling that if you ask them to pray for the speedy coming of the Lord, they reply that they cannot so pray till their loved ones are saved, and who can be blamed for hesitating to pray, 'Come quickly,' if the answer means the end of salvation for the race of man. Such a prayer is at best like an imprecatory psalm, but in these latter days as the Bible has been more read and studied, it has appeared plain enough that the coming of the Lord means salvation, as the Scriptures explicitly say: He shall appear the second time without sin unto salvation. It has been seen that the chief hopes of our race cluster around the coming of the Lord, and that nothing generally decisive and victorious can obtain on earth until He does come.

So freshly and grandly has this truth dawned upon some minds that a party has arisen with the feeling that the spirit has somehow failed to save the world and that the Son must come to do a work for which the Spirit was inadequate, and as the Scriptures are very explicit in stating that there is coming at some time and by some means a period of general righteousness, a period usually styled the millennium, the Christian world is now divided into two parties, post-millennialists and pre-milinnialists the former of which hold that the Spirit will bring the millennium after which Christ will come, while the latter claim that Christ will bring the millennium by his own coming; and as some may have asserted by their mistaken zeal, or others may have referred from their own views, without the aid of the spirit. While we don't expect to be able to solve all difficulties connected with this theme, we are persuaded that a right understanding of the Scriptures and the Spirit's relation to our Lord's return will help in removing some of the obscurities, and assist us in enabling the watchman to see eye to eye, the subject is greatly cleared as are so many difficulties in Scripture, by considering Jesus Christ, the apostle and high priest of our profession. He in is ever blessed person is the way, the truth and the life. If we wish for light on the wide career of his cause in the earth we have but to look at his own personal career, and as we look upon him, what meets our gaze is, that he was what he was, and is what he is, and will be what he will be, by reason of the Holy Spirit. He was conceived by the Holy Ghost, (Matt. 1:20) in order to become flesh. He was annointed by the Holy Ghost Acts 10:38), in order to follow his earthly career. He cast out devils by the Spirit of God. (Matt. 12:28,), in order to show his method of victory. He through the eternal spirit offered himself without spot unto God (Heb 9:-) in order to make the great atonement. He was raised from the dead or quickened by the Spirit (1 Peter 3:18) in order to be fully manifested as the Son of God. He went to heaven to secure the spirit for earth, and as soon as he arrived there he sent some measure or instalment as Pentecost witnessed, which the apostles recognised as earnests or pledges of what should more fully come on the day of his return.

Instead of the spirit being withdrawn at the coming of the Lord he will then be manifested as never before. It is then that the earth shall be baptised as never before. The will occur the proper fulfillment of the baptism of the Holy Ghost and fire of which Pentecost was but a faint earnest. Then will be the restoration of all things material as well as spiritual. To use an illustration from everyday life, if a man should go to some distant land to gain a fortune for his family and while absent should send home few hundred dollars from time to time for their immediate necessities, and should prosper in his enterprise so that at last he himself with all his fortune should return, would we say that when he arrived home his family would have no more money since now they had his personal presence No, indeed. But we should rather say, Now they will have more than ever since he has come with all his fortune. Why, then, talk of the withdrawal of the Spirit at the Lord's return? And why say that earnest looking and praying for the Lord's return dishonors the Spirit? If ever the enemy reversed the truth, it is upon this point, and yet this idea is so firmly embedded in many minds that it may be well to consider some of the reasons why it so firmly holds its ground. One is doubtless that Jesus said when upon earth, If I go not away the comforter will not come, from which saying some may have inferred that the presence of Jesus here was a hindrance to the coming of the Spirit, and that having gone to heaven and the Spirit come to earth, if he should return to earth the Spirit would depart therefrom. But this does not at all follow. It was expedient and necessary that Jesus should go away to heaven to finish the sacrificial work, and so to obtain the fulness of the Spirit for earth; the second idea that many have that the coming of Christ means a day of judgment. Therefore many see in it a day of no salvation. Would anything awaken the careless world to-day like the appearance of the Lord Jesus himself? What does the Christian more need in this world of sin and sorrow and affliction and trial, than spiritual comfort and uplifting in divine things?

Our blessed hope shall then be succeeded by the unspeakable blessedness of paradise restored on earth. He which testifieth these things saith, Yea, I come quickly. Amen., even so come Lord Jesus. Rev. 22:20.

I have endeavoured to impress on those who have read the articles, which have appeared in Saturday's Daily Examiner, the necessity of following Christ's command, to watch and pray and to be ready to meet him at his appearing.

Next week I will take up the subject of the Millennium, (D.V.)

Yours Sincerely,

James Sutherland.

It's the Womenfolks who Worry

"ONLY $760 left after the bills are paid. It will not last long. Then, there's the mortgage. The payments on it must be met or I'll lose our home. If it were not for the children I could go out to work. But what can I do with them? I will have to do something—but what?"

"Exaggerated" you say. Not at all..

All around us we see women and children adrift—left destitute because of man's very human tendency to "put off till tomorrow" a responsibility which involves a little self-sacrifice.

You sir, must realize the coming of that certain day when death or incapacity for work will cut off your present income. The distress of your loved ones if you should be taken—the suffering and humiliation which they might have to face—do you not see it? Do you imagine your wife doesn't see it?

Banish this spectre of worry from your home. Make certain that after you are gone your widow will receive—regularly—every month—as long as she lives—a cheque to provide for her every need and to give your children a proper start in life.

You can do it by means of an Imperial Monthly Income Policy. Today—while you are insurable—ask us to tell you more about it.

PETERBOROUGH PEOPLE

Send in their budget of evidence to prove the remarkable upbuilding, invigorating influence of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. During the last few weeks thousands of Peterboro people have proven to their own satisfaction that there is nothing like this great food cure to overcome headaches, sleeplessness, indigestion, weak heart action and the many ills consequent on thin, watery blood and exhausted nerves.

Sleepless and Restless

Mrs. Chas. E. Wiley, 136 London St., Peterboro', Ont., writes: "About three years ago I was suffering from nervous debility, sleeplessness and loss of appetite. My nerves were so bad that I could not attend church or any place where there was a crowd or excitement. During the night I would lie awake for two or three hours. I had tried several remedies and taken treatments from doctors. The doctor finally said he could not do any more for me, and it was then I started using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I had read in the newspapers of how highly it was recommended, so I secured some and commenced using it. After the third box I noticed an improvement, so I kept on taking them until I had used eight or nine boxes. The results were such that I could sleep and eat well and could go to places where there was a crowd or excitement, without any difficulty. My health was generally benefited greatly. Since then, from time to time, when I am not feeling up to the mark, I take a few of the Nerve Food pills, as I usually keep some in the house. I would recommend this treatment to anyone suffering from nervous trouble of any kind."

Children Benefited

Mrs. James Bogne, 220 Dublin Street, Peterboro', Ont., writes: "Three years ago I noticed that our children seemed to be suffering from bad nerves and poor appetites, and were inclined to be anaemic. Knowing the good of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, I started to give them a treatment of this medicine. I found it built them right up, made them bright and cheery and restored their usual good health.

"I have also used the Nerve Food myself, and found it very beneficial for nerves and heart. In fact I have found Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to be such a valuable medicine for general family use that I have recommended it to many of our friends and acquaintances."

Severe Headaches

Mrs. J. Riedeman, 164 Adeline St., Peterboro', Ont., writes: "I was troubled with nervous headaches, which at times were so severe that I could not do my work. I also suffered from indigestion and pains in the back. From reading in the newspapers of the benefits other people were deriving from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I was encouraged to try it. I began using them, finding good results from the beginning, so I continued the treatment until I obtained great benefit. Now I do not have the nervous head aches so frequently or so severe. My appetite is much better, and in fact I am better in many respects. I would not wish to be without Dr. Chase's Nerve Food in the house now. I have recommended this treatment to many of my friends, who also find good results from their use."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Pa lpitation of the Heart

Mrs. J. D. Craig, 45 Macdonnell St., Peterboro', Ont., writes: "Several years ago when my family was small I became run down and weak, and was bothered with palpitation of the heart. I commenced using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and found such good results that I continued the treatment until I had taken about four or five boxes. It helped me and made me feel better afterward. Since then, when I feel that I need a tonic, I take two or three boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, finding the same good results each time. I can also speak highly of your Kidney-Liver Pills. I have great confidence in the use of Dr. Chase's medicines as family remedies, and we always keep some of them in the house."

Neuralgia Cured

Mrs. W. T. Abbott, 536 Patterson St., Peterboro', Ont., writes: "My system was in a rundown condition, and I was troubled with nervousness and sleeplessness. For some time also I had been bothered with neuralgia, and, although I tried many remedies, it was without success. Upon the advice of a friend I commenced using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and found in five or six days that my neuralgia was cured, and I have not been troubled in this way since. I also find that now I can eat and sleep well, and I give full credit of this great benefit to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I might also mention that I had lost considerable in weight, but after using the Nerve Food I gained back the flesh I had lost. My husband has also found Dr. Chase's Nerve Food of great benefit to him, and uses it when he feels run down from overwork. I have recommended the use of this great medicine to many of my friends and acquaintances."

Run-down Systems

Mr. George Lee, 767 Water St., Peterboro', Ont., writes: "I used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food some time ago when I was in a rundown condition, and found them to be just what I required to build up my system. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food also worked wonders for my wife. She had been suffering from nervousness, and could not get a good night's rest. She would wake up at different times during the night, sometimes jumping right out of the bed. She tried doctors' medicines without success, and finally commenced taking Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. The first box helped a little, the second box benefited her more, so she kept on taking them until she grew strong and healthy. She has recommended this treatment to many of her neighbors."

SNIPING A SNIPER

By PATRICK MacGILL, Author of "The Great Push"

"It's a jolly way of fightin', this," said Spudhole, as he changed his position by the fraction of an inch without removing his eye from the tip of the rifle foresight. "Gawd," he whispered, "I 'ave 'im now. I saw somefin' "I 'ave 'im now. I saw somefin' a round."

"Don't," muttered Bowdy Benners under his breath. "It's no good firing if you're not sure of your man. One shot will give away, and that's the twentieth time you've seen him; each time in a different spot. He's not like a bird; he can't be in two places at one time. What the hell! Don't move!"

"A cramp," groaned Spudhole, wriggling a little. "Gawd, it isn't 'arf giving me gyp! Ooh-whooh!"

The youth kicked out with both legs, raised his head an inch or two then brought it down again to the level of the earth. Benners swore under his breath and cursed Spudhole with vehemence.

"I can't 'elp it," said Spudhole. "I must move. I'd rather 'ave a bullet in the 'ead than a cramp. Wooh! It'll twist me up like a 'edge 'og!"

"Matey," whispered Benners, turning half left and fixing his eyes on Spudhole.

"Wot."

"You know that if you're seen moving you'll get a bullet across here—"

"I don't care a d—," said Spudhole.

"But I do," muttered Benners. "Next time I come out sniping I'm going to take a man with me; one that won't give a position away when he has got a sore tummy—"

"I'm not going to move no more," said Spudhole. "I'm going to be as quiet as a sandbag. Ooh-wooh!"

Both boys lay close to the crest of a rise in the ground which rose behind the British front line. It was now noon, and they had been out there since three o'clock in the morning, lying prone with their heads close to the ground, their eyes fixed on the enemy's trench, which wound slyly as a snake over the levels some seven hundred yards away.

"Gawd, it's a funny business, killin' an' killin'," said Spudhole. "One would think that we enjoys it by the fuss and pypers in England makes about it."

"How's your cramp now?" asked Benners. "Gone, is it?"

"It's 'opped it," said Spudhole wth a laugh. "Blimey!"

Both men cowered to earth giggling nervously as a shell burst near them, scattering a cloud of dust over their bodies. A second shell burst, and a third.

"They must have spotted us," said Benners, frowning at the fields. 'If they have it's all up."

But the shelling ceased as suddenly as it had begun, and the youngsters breathed freely again.

"Cleaning out their guns, I suppose," Benners continued. "Lucky they didn't clean us out of existence. I'm tired of waiting here."

"I'm tired an' 'ungry an' 'ot," said Spudhole. "But we can't get out of this blamed place till night.

They won't 'arf 'ave the laugh on us when we get back."

"Not half, said Benners absently. "And I bet Ginger 'Iggles a bob I'd lay the sniper by the 'eels," said Spudhole. "But it's no go.'

"Well, where can the fellow be?" asked Benners, removing a speck of dust from the backsight of his rifle with a cautious hand. "No man can fire at us from the German trench. It's behind a rise, and even if one of the Boches looks over the parapet he can't see our trench. But still the fact remains that no sooner does one of our boys look over the parapet than a bullet zipps past his ear Where does the bullet come from? The sniper must be between the lines. He must, but where?"

Spudhole shrugged his shoulders helplessly and muttered: "We was roon comin' out 'ere. But 'e 'as done for four of our fellows an' 'e must die. If 'e doesn't.

He shook a cautious little head and became silent. The sun sank down the sky, and its sight slid along the barrels of the rifles from handguard to muzzle whenever the weapons were moved. Benners crunched a biscuit with zealous teeth: Spudhole traced furrows in the ground with his trigger finger, but all the time kept his eyes fixed on the front.

"Our boys are makin' tea now," he said. "It's about four o'clock, I suppose, that suns's in no 'urry, neither. There, he ejaculated suddenly. "One of our boys 'as put 's 'ead over the trench! Wait."

Both men heard it, a smothered shriek like the sound of a drowning puppy.

"E 'as got it in the 'ead," said Spudhole in a fierce voice. "The fool! Bowdy!"

"What is it, Spud?"

"I saw smoke," said Spudhole, speaking calmly. "Just look over. See a little holler near the German lines? Yes! Well, there's a dead man there wiv' 'is knees curled up. Got 'im? That's the place. I saw a puff of smoke and something moved. Look, Bowdy. See someofing shining."

"I see it," said Benners.

"The sun's catchin' the sniper's 'ipe."

Both the youngsters drew their weapons taut to their shoulders and adjusted their sights.

"A little lower, a little lower," said Benners. "Make it four and you'll not be far out. It'll be hard to judge if we hit the dead man. He'll not raise a dust. You aim first Spud."

Spudhole's left cheek twitched and his eye took in the objective. He pulled the trigger. A spurt of dust flew into air a little to the rear of the dead man.

"Aim low, and we'll get him next time," said Benners.

Both rifles spoke together. A figure detached itself from the limp lump which lay in the hollow near the enemy's lines, rose to a standing postion, and beat the air with agitated arms.

Thus for a moment, and then the thing collapsed in an abject heap on the ground.

"That's all," said Spudhole, his eyes full of the pride of an artist who looks on a completed masterpiece. "The boys in the trench are firin' now. They'll finish 'im off if 'e's not done in already.

The rifles cracked spitefully in the trench, which rimmed the base of the rise. The sun sank lower and the shadows lengthened. The two vigorously while they waited for darkness to fall.

that out of every hundred widows only eighteen are left in good or comfortable circumstances, forty-seven are obliged to seek employment of some kind and the remaining thirty-five are left in absolute want.

Facts are cold, stubborn things and statistics such as the above demonstrate beyond peradventure the great need you have for Life Insurance for the protection of your home. If you wish to place your widow beyond the possibility of want you can do so by carrying one of our Monthly Income Policies which guarantees her a Monthly Income for life or your estate twenty years certain.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Guilty Man

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

I was not a tramp, but I had to become the next thing to one in a sense. With my having been ill and out of work for months, with my being penniless and seedy and discouraged, with my asking for a meal here and a bed there as I tramped the highways between London and Liverpool, no one could be blamed for sizing me up as a "professional" and treating me accordingly.

One night, in the county of Warwick, I came upon a farmer who had neither wife nor children, but was living alone on his small holding. His name was Holborne, and, though gruff at first, he finally gave me a hearty supper and the privilege of passing the night in his barn. When supper was finished and he had heard my story, he offered me a pipe, and we sat at his door and smoked and chatted for an hour. It was agreed that I should turn to next morning and work with him in his fields for half a month. While we were chatting, a neighboring farmer named Saunders came up and halted for five minutes, and two others passed on the highway and saluted Holborne with a good evening. It was 10 o'clock before I went to the barn, and, being tired and sleepy, I was soon in dreamland. How long I had slept when I was awakened by the sound of voices in anger, I could not say, but I heard what seemed to be a quarrel between Holborne and another man. The voice of the other was high pitched and had a catch in it. It was not a stammer, but a sort of gasp, as if catching his breath. I was not fully aroused, nor did the quarrel continue long.

It was sunrise next morning when I woke and turned out. The house was only about five rods away, and after looking about to see if Holborne were in sight I moved along to the house. His dead body was on the grass before the open door. He had been struck on the head with a club and killed by a single blow. I was upset by the discovery, as you may believe. After touching his face and finding it cold I started off on the run for the nearest farmhouse, half a mile away. The farmer was milking his cow, and his wife was preparing breakfast, but they returned with me at once, and other neighbors were called, and a boy was sent off to the nearest police station. I told my story to the people, and all believed me, as why should they not when Saunders was among them? And yet when the police came their very first move was to arrest me as the murderer. A tramp had passed the night in the barn. Of course the tramp had murdered the farmer.

If you agree that the police were asses you will agree that the others were fools. No sooner was I charged with the murder than all turned against me. Saunders suddenly remembered that our conversation was heated as he came up. The two who passed by thought they heard me use threatening language. A farmer whom I had not seen at all the evening before claimed to have come near enough to the house to have heard me ask Holborne for the loan of £2. I was angered, but not frightened. I asked the police to investigate my bed on the straw, and they found it still warm. I asked them to look through the house, and they found nothing disturbed. I asked them to note that the body was cold, and the doctor who was summoned said that life had been extinct for seven or eight hours.

I was examined by a magistrate, who said I would no doubt get my just deserts, and the police made no move whatever to find another party. Even the jailer and the turnkeys chuckled over the hanging that must result. I told of having heard the quarrel, but they said I lied. I told of the arrangements made to go to work for Holborne in the morning, but they smiled in derision.

I was almost ready for the assizes and the hanging when a person, whose identity I do not know to this day and who must have been moved by a spirit of fairness, sent me a lawyer and gave the lawyer money to work with. Presto change! Why, a born fool could have picked up the threads of the case and cleared me. Within six hours after I had told the lawyer of the quarrel and the man with the catch in his voice they had the murderer spotted. His name was Jamison, and the quarrel was over the lease of the farm, and the club with which he had delivered the blow, having lost his temper, but not meaning to kill, was found in his house. More than that, he broke down and made a full confession, and when the assizes came on he stood in the dock in my place. Nevertheless, in setting me at liberty the judge did it grudgingly and with a warning that my crimes must sooner or later find me out, and I was scarcely clear of the courtroom when the humiliated and chagrined police overhauled me and said:

"It is just possible that you did not commit this crime, but only because somebody else got ahead of you. We know you had planned to do it and are a dangerous man to be roaming about, and if you are not outside the county by sundown you shall be run in on suspicion!"

Jamison was hanged for the killing, and a long confession was left in writing over his own hand, but there were scores of people who still believed that "the tramp" had something to do in some way with that murder.

For a Pinch Of Snuff

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

In 176— Walter Watherspoon, a student at Kings (now Columbia) college, was crossing the campus, situated in the lower part of New York, not far from the city hall, when he met Gertrude Springstead, the daughter of a China merchant, going to her home on the Battery. The two were lovers and expected to be married after young Watherspoon's graduation, which was to occur in the following June. Before seeing his fiancee coming he took his snuffbox from a pocket in the voluminous skirt of his coat and, placing a pinch between his thumb and finger, crammed it up first into one nostril, then into another, sniffing lustily.

"Oh, Walter," said the girl when they met, "if father knew you snuffed it would be all up with us! He detests the habit and would force me to break with you."

"In that case, Mistress Gertrude," replied Walter, "I must not let him see me snuffing."

"But suppose he hears that you snuff?"

"You are right. I must drop the habit till at least after we are married."

Taking a lacquered box from his pocket, he handed it to Gertrude, telling her to keep it till after the wedding, at the same time promising her that he would not buy another or more snuff till they had been married.

Now, Watherspoon was poor as a church mouse and was obliged to work his way through college, which he did by giving so much of his time as he could spare from his studies to a tallow chandler. Gertrude, on the contrary, was the only child and heiress to what was then a large fortune. Naturally the young man was loth to lose his sweetheart and did not relish losing the fortune she would bring him.

Watherspoon worked hard all winter both at his studies and pouring melted tallow into candle molds. After a few weeks he found that he could get on very well without snuffing and assured Gertrude that there would be no trouble for them on that score. He even declared that taking tobacco into one's nose was a filthy habit, and he would never resume it, which was, of course, very pleasing to her.

A new convert is always an enthusiastic convert. Walter, having thrown off the shackles of a bad habit, called the attention of his friends to its disagreeableness to others than the snuffer. Why should one pause while chatting with another to cram a nasty powdered weed into his nose, making a disgusting noise through his nostrils and leaving his nose smeared with tobacco? His friends listened deferentially to his protests, but paid little attention to them, not infrequently taking out a snuffbox, offering it to him, then taking a pinch while he was speaking.

Walter kept his promise to his fiancee, nobly refraining from the habit he had eschewed. In due time he was graduated from college, and his father-in-law to be had consented that he should go into his counting room on the street facing the East river and begin preparation to take position as manager of the business when Mr. Springstead retired. While learning the business Walter was to draw a nominal salary.

Walter was the envy of all the young men in town. Engaged to a lovely girl and heir to a fine business. Surely providence had favored him.

The wedding day opened bright and beautiful. Walter, after breakfast, went to the Springstead home and was placed in a front room which faced the bay to await the hour for the ceremony. The sun glittered on the wavelets. The islands to the left, the right and in the distance stood out clear and green. Directly in the foreground was the old fort about which the city had grown and prospered. Walter was supremely happy.

The door opened and Gertrude came in bearing the snuffbox he had given her months before.

"I can't leave this here," she said. "After I have left mother will go through my room, and it will be discovered."

"Give it to me," said Walter. "I will take it away with me and get rid of it on our wedding trip."

Gertrude handed him the box and hastened away to be robed in her wedding garments. Walter opened it and held it under his nose. What a delicious fragrance! How pleasant it would be to take just one pinch! Taking a little of the snuff between his thumb and finger, he held it near his nostrils. Then he thought of the risk he would take if he indulged and put it back in the box. But he took another pinch, and again the aroma greeted his nostils.

Mr. Springstead, passing through the hall, heard a violent sneeze. Opening the door of the room from which it seemed to come, there was Walter with an open snuffbox in one hand and his handkerchief in the other. He greeted his father-in-law to be with another sneeze.

When, a couple of hours later, guests arrived to witness the nuptials they were informed that there would be no nuptials. No reason was assigned. Mr. Springstead put a veto on his daughter's marriage, and the groom went to his own quarters.

For a pinch of snuff he had given a bride, a fortune and a splendid business.

Not long after his loss the Revolution broke out, and he joined the continental army. He was killed at the battle of Long Island.

IS YOUR HAIR SLIPPING?

The presence of dandruff and falling hair conveys a warning which it is best to heed. At first the loss of hair may be so slight as to be hardly noticeable. But no matter how little may be the fall each day, it is working toward the same and inevitable result, and that is total baldness.

You may have hair enough today, but how about tomorrow and the day after? Dandruff and falling hair mean baldness sooner or later and demand the immediate regular and energetic use of Newbro's Herpicide. It keeps the scalp free from dirt and dandruff and allows the hair to grow abundantly and naturally. By this means total incurable baldness may be prevented.

Herpicide does not stain or dye and has a most exquisite fragrance which makes it especially pleasing to the ladies. It stops itching almost instantly.

You may be told that there are remedies "just as good as Herpicide." You cannot afford to take chances with nor can you expect to obtain results from "an off brand" article. Insist on having genuine Herpicide, the Original Germ-Remedy for Dandruff.

You can get a sample of this delightful hair dressing and a booklet on the care of the hair by sending ten cents in silver or postage to The Herpicide Co., Dept. S, Detroit, Mich. Try Herpicide once and you will never be without it.

FLIES HATE BLUE AND LOVE WHITE.

The Arabs have long known that flies fear or hate the color blue, and that is why the houses in many of their towns are kalsomined in a light blue tint. Before the French Academy of Science recently Messrs. Galaine and Houlbeert described the results of their observations on the eyesight of flies. The only light that these insects see really well is white; their eyes do not see violet or indigo at all; the vibrations of the blue and green rays are disagreeable to them, and red has the effect of darkness. Yellow alone of all the colored rays is tolerated as well as white.

The solar spectrum as seen by the eyes of a fly begin at green and ends at bright orange. The practical conclusion to be drawn from this is that when a room has blue window panes the flies therein become as inactive as if it were dark. If a slat or a blind be opened to let in a ray of white light the flies will rush toward it and go out through the blind.

Blue is a good color for summer, as it keeps out a large part of the heat rays and makes the rooms cool. In Japan they hang curtains made of beads of blue glass mixed with tubes of painted bamboo at the entrances to the butchers' and pastry cooks' shops. These let the air in and the flies go out through the interstices between the beads but do not re-enter.

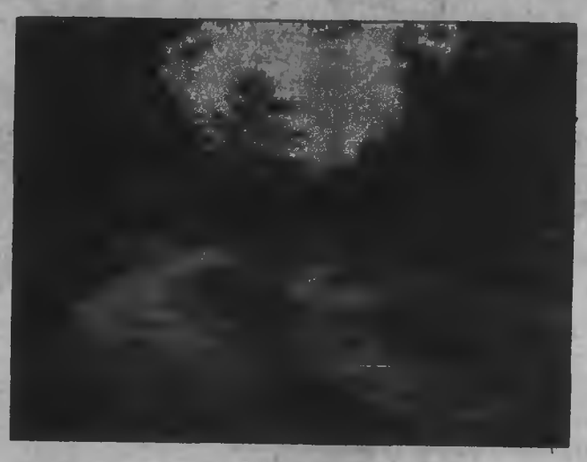
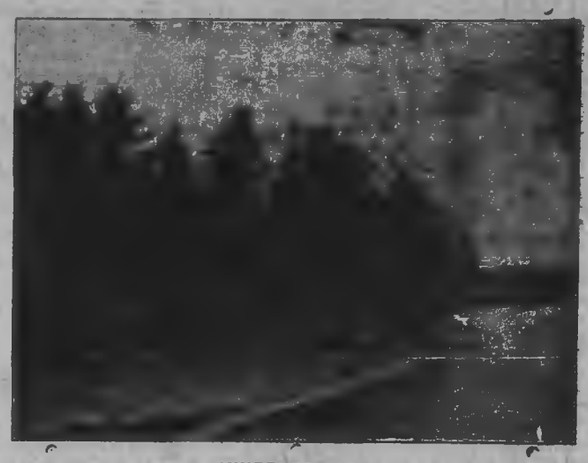
Peterboro's Parks Afford a Public Benefit That Should Be More Dividedly Shared By Citizens



JACKSON PARK

Jackson Park a Gem of many Natural Beauties that are not Fully Appreciated. Has Sanative Qualities that Were Proved by the Peterboro Health Association's Experience



INVERLEA PARK

Peterboro has properly prided itself in the possession of its parks. But our pride has rested largely in mere possession. We have seldom failed to parade our visitors through them, but too often that has been the extent of our own experience. We point to them as to the public library or our churches, but it is extremely doubtful whether, as a city, we are deeply conscious of their advantages. If we were truly appreciative of our parks surely we would use them more freely. After all this is the only criterion of our valuation. If they are not indispensable to us they do not occupy a prominent place in our lives, and it must be admitted that in too many cases our pride of possession is merely superficial.

For we have never known the want of parks. They seem to have been always with us. We obtained them easily and without sacrifice, and are disposed to hold them lightly. If Peterboro were without parks, and on May Day were to open one which we had purchased and prepared at considerable expense, what an occasion we would make of it! Our recent acquisition of Playgrounds bear testimony to the elation that would move us. But because they were for the most part a bequest to the city our attitude is largely one of indifference. We know that they are the envy of our visitors, that few cities in the Dominion are so liberally provided with natural, civic beauty spots, but that knowledge does not deeply impress us.

This indifference manifested by the majority of citizens is not a desirable condition in these days of out of door living. Nor is it a commendable return for the generous benefactions that provided our parks at no cost to the city. Moreover, it would indicate that we are either moving too fast to avail ourselves of the beauties of our parks, not to mention their physical benefits, or that we are lacking the aesthetic tastes that should respond to nature's appeal.

THE BEAUTIES OF JACKSON PARK.

Weekly throngs at summer band concerts afford an inconclusive argument in defense of the public's appreciation of Victoria Park. This is largely a habit, and is not above reproach. If Inverlea and Jackson Parks attracted the citizens as they should, if mothers in larger numbers took their children to these breathing places on summer afternoons, and if there were more families gathering there in the early evenings, then it could be said that the city was availing itself of these splendid advantages. Jackson Park alone should be a special pride of this city. As a natural park it is all satisfying. Its sanativeness was clearly established in the experience of the Health Association. In the first summer of the war the Association cared for sickly children at the park, playing in the stream, and sleeping in the resinous air beneath the old pines, with results that were most encouraging. But this public charity was swept away in new demands the war obtruded. If this community aid for children who need special attention, must remain suspended during the war, its first fruits should prompt individual families to make use of the park, not only for weaker children, but for the strong as well. Among women to-day there is the new slogan or advice, "Get out of the kitchen," and this should be seriously considered by mothers during the summer months. Jackson Park can be recommended to them as a resort that will offer relief from summer heat, and probably add years to the lives of themselves and their children.

But as a city we hold this rich gift so lightly that we have not even provided a tablet to the memory of the donor, the late Mrs. Nicholls, whose generosity, however, is not forgotten by those individuals who in the delights of this natural gem find a constant reminder of her thoughtfulness of the people of the city in which she lived.

INVERLEA PARK'S ADVANTAGES.

With Inverlea Park, as with Jackson Park, there are of course many citizens who frequent them, but their number is not representative. Summer days find waders and bathers along the pebbly beach at Inverlea, children for the most part, but there should be more. Peterboro's pace is not so rapid that its citizens cannot find time to rest, especially where they can find the most comfort. And if we are moving with that haste it were all the more necessary that we should urge the advisability of more leisure, at least leisure that is employed, so to speak, where the results are most beneficial.

THE CALL OF THE NEW SPRING.

In short let us learn to use our parks more often. Just now the buds are swelling, sap is flowing and the birds are back. Nature is again preparing a May day. Let us seek the open when we can. Not all of us can engage in the greater production movement that is preparing so auspiciously. The open spaces will soon be calling, and our parks invite us out of doors after a satiety of winter. And particularly should this call be heard by mothers and children who will find in Jackson Park and Inverlea Park, after the ground has been well dried, sanative resorts that should make them frequent visitors. Nature points the way to new vigour, new health and thereby new happiness. It deserves more devotees, more searchers for that balm that will make our lives more pleasant. And it invites reflection that brings its own rewards.

If our citizens have become indifferent to their splendid inheritance of public parks it is time we were inculcating an appreciative spirit in the children.

Taking on the "Lion's" Teeth - When the Fleet Speaks

"The vast work, the unceasing, silent and watchful work of our fleet deserves at all events a passing word. The grand fleet, though never advertised, is never done watching. I do not think people really realise the calls that have been made upon the navy as the war has expanded."—From a recent speech by Sir Edward Carson. The view is of the crew of H.M.S. Lion taking shells aboard.

The difficulties of a floating workshop are well illustrated above, taken in the harbour at Salonika, as the men repair a gash in the side of vessel caused by a collision.

The fleet is at present assisting in the operations in Mesopotamia, Salonika, Greece and Egypt. The long range guns are exceptionally useful in this kind of warfare. Photo is of one of our latest units when firing her 15-inch guns.

France has always led the world in aeronautics, both in peace and in war, and it is understood that she is turning out on an average of seventy-five to one hundred aeroplanes a day. The illustration is of the interior of one of the largest aeroplane factories in France.

Germany has placed on her aeroplanes a machine gun that is entirely new to the scientific world. The gun is placed alongside of the motor and fires through the blades of the propeller. To prevent the bullets from the gun from shattering the blades it is perfectly timed to fire between the blades. An attachment from the gun to the motor enables the driver to fire the machine gun by simply pressing a button.

When United States severed diplomatic relations with Germany a great many Americans residing in Germany decided to return home with Ambassador Gerard's party. The photograph shows some of these people and Mr. Gerard's luggage on a railway station in Paris.

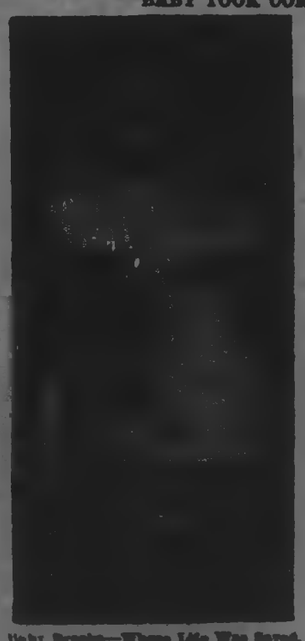
BABY TOOK CONVULSIONS.



Baby Brooks—Whose Life Was Saved.

Toronto, Aug. 18th, 1913.

To whom it may concern: This is to certify that we have used Prof. Mulveney's World Famous Tape Worm Cure with most gratifying results. My baby, two years old, took convulsions, and we discovered she had tape worm. I lost no time in going to Prof. Mulveney to get his cure, which we got and used, and I am pleased to say baby was relieved of a monster tape worm, about 30 feet long, the head and all, in about two hours, without causing her to be sick, and without previous fasting. I have great reason to be thankful, as we realize this remedy has saved baby's life. I am giving Prof. Mulveney her picture, taken a week after being relieved of this monster, which he will be able to show you. I have given him perfect liberty to use it in any way he may deem fit in order that others may learn of this wonderful remedy.

Yours respectfully,

MORE IMPORTANT GAINS BY BRITISH

BIG CHANGES IN LOCAL MILITARY CIRCLES

A BIG ADVANCE BY BRITISH IS MENACING ST. QUENTIN

General Haig's Troops Swept Forward on a Seven Mile Front, Capturing Five Cities and a Number of Villages North of St. Quentin, While French Troops Are Closing In From the South--British Also Score Another Big Victory in Mesopotamia

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES AFIELD, March 31.—British troops to-day swept forward in a mile advance over a seven-mile front in the Hendicourt region, seriously menacing the important German base city of St. Quentin. Five towns were capturgd in this sweep toward the Hindenburg line. The ground gained constitutes an advance of about a mile and a half over the recently won line of battle against the Teutons. The towns occupied by the British in their advance today were Hendicourt, St. Emile, Vermand, Marteville and Soyecourt. All villages lying north-west of St. Quentin have also been taken by the British forces. With the French troops closing in south and south-east of St. Quentin, the position of that strategic point in the new German line is now seriously threatened.

Vermand is the most important of the towns occupied by the British. It lies about midway between Peronne and St. Quentin, on one of the main highways.

PARIS, March 31.—(French Official).—French troops are still progressing against the German line at various points east of Neuville and Vregny, and have captured a number of important positions, today's official statement asserted.

The progress mentioned was in the territory south of the Ailette. In the Champaigne sector the report detailed the repulse of five German counter attacks on positions west of Maisons, which the French by their powerful assault on Friday had recaptured from German hands. The German counter attacks were of the most violent character, and the fighting was bitter. The Germans lost heavily in the French machine gun fire and their curtain of shells. Eighty Germans were taken prisoners at this point alone.

LONDON, March 31.—The British forces are progressing steadily north of Bagdad, and on march 23 occupied Shahroban, on the road to Teheran.

"The Delta Awah Sindiyah was also occupied," the statement said. "The retreating Turks are devastating the country. Towards Paitak Pass considerable Turkish forces were encountered, and we inflicted serious losses on a strenuously resisting enemy, capturing considerable prisoners and taking foodstuff supplies."

RIO JANEIRO, March 31.—The very audacity of plan followed out by the latest sea raider was responsible for her great success in preying on commerce. Instead of being a fast cruiser type like the Moewe and the Emden, the Sea Adder, according to survivors, was a cumbersome looking vessel, innocent appearing in her big spread of sails and with very slow speed. The Germans apparently figured that a slow-moving sailing vessel, with concealed auxiliary gasoline engines, would never be suspected as a raider by ships on which she was sent out to prey.

The total tonnage of the ships sunk by the Sea Adder was 38,100.

NEW YORK, March 31.—The announcement was made to-day that 120 millions will be spent here for new Cunard Line steamships.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—More Americans were imperilled and some perhaps lost in an unwarned torpedoing of the British Booth freight liner Crispin and the British steamer Snowden Range. Many of the Americans aboard the two vessels—were from Baltimore and Philadelphia.

A STRONG SPIRIT OF SELF CONTROL IS APPARENT IN ENGLAND

Big Events of the Past Couple of Weeks Have Been Taken More Coldly Than Were the Smaller Victories Last Year

A THRILL OF ELECTRICITY

By T. P. O'Connor

(By T. P. O'Connor, M.P.)

LONDON, March 31. —In a quiet way one feels a thrill of electricity in the air from the sense that we are approaching, in England, on all sides the greatest moment of the war.

This accounts to a large extent for such a crop of ill-rumours which have sprung up since the last week end, when troops were manoeuvred, for test purposes on the coast line. Because of those troops being connected with the Home Defense Corps, there was a tendency to interpret this movement on the part of many people into confident statements that either one of three things had happened; a big battle in the west which had gone against our troops or that the German fleet had succeeded in running past the British Grand Sea Fleet and had defeated our naval forces in the North Sea or that the Germans had landed a great army on either the coast of England or Ireland.

Yet in spite of all those signs of unrest, there was still a strong spirit of self-control so that even such great victories as have been reported at Bagdad and the forcing back of the German lines on the Somme front and the consequent retaking of thousands of miles of territory in France, which has been under German occupation, were taken more coolly than were the reports of successful little skirmishes last year.

This is but one of the many proofs that indicate that this country has settled down to war as one of the normal things of life. Still stronger is the proof that there remains the same set determination that the war must go on to a great knock-out and that it can end in only one way.

Recent events strengthen these feelings for to the revolution in Russia is added the closer approach of the intervention of the United States on the side of the Allied Powers as a gigantic addition to our forces.

Russian Revolution.

The Russian revolution, except among some of the die-hard reactionaries has been hailed with extraordinary enthusiasm. Its reflective action on this country is seen in the growing acceptance, even by Conservatives, of big democratic changes in the vote of the people and forcible proposals which will agitate against any landlord who will not use his estates for the maximum production of foodstuffs, for which there is, despite the

SPEAKERS' LEAGUE TO TRY TO SECURE HELP FOR FARMS

A House to House Canvass of the City to Obtain the Necessary Men is Suggested by Secretary of General Committee

MEETING ON MONDAY

The secretary of the Speakers' Patriotic League has received the following letter,

Parliament Buildings,
Toronto, March 29th, 1917.

Dear Sir,—Patriotic citizens throughout Ontario have heard the call for men and have assisted in raising the army which Canada has sent overseas. They have also heard the call for money and, as a result, our Patriotic and Red Cross Funds have been well taken care of, and our war loans have been over-subscribed. To-day another call, just as insistent as the calls for men and money, reaches us:

"The Empire Needs More Food!"

We have the land for its production, we have men competent to direct the cultivation of the land, but we are short of workers.

Will your patriotic committee get to work at once and, if you think advisable, call a public meeting to present the need for workers on our farms? Should there be no definite response from such a call, a house-to-house canvass of your community, to lay the need before every man capable of helping, might be desirable.

Immediate action is necessary, for unless men are available for seeding the requisite acreage will not be sown.

Men who have been accustomed to farm work will occur to you as of greatest service, but, in an emergency, men who are simply willing to work can be a great help. We suggest that you ask every man who can give one or more days a week, and that you even go so far as to organize those who can give part of one or more days a week. Twelve men for an afternoon are equivalent, to one man for a week. This possibilty should not be overlooked.

We would suggest that it will also be necessary for you to learn the needs of the farmers in your vicinity, so that the men you are able to secure may be placed locally as soon as their services are required.

This committee feels that it would be both unwise and impracticable to suggest a definite wage basis which would apply equally to all parts of the Province. We, therefore, suggest that the simplest way of arranging this is for the individual man to make arrangements with the farmer or farmers whom he may assist. The one point which this committee would emphasize is that each volunteer should be paid a fair amount for the service he is able to render.

Kindly keep us informed as to what your committee is doing and what success you meet.

Yours faithfully,
"Albert H. Abbott."
Secretary.

The Speakers' Patriotic League has been appointed a local committee for the Organization of Resources and a meeting of the members and the citizens generally is called for Monday, the second day of April at the Patriotic Rooms at 8 o'clock for the purpose of formulating a plan of action

FINANCING WAR

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

NEW YORK, March 31. — The strongest pacifist influence in America suddenly turned to-day from efforts to prevent war to a means of financing it. Simultaneously it became known that a plan put forward by the American Committee on War Finance, headed by Amos Pinchot, to place the entire financial burden of the war upon persons with incomes of more than $50,000 a year has been indorsed in high Government circles. The greatest significance was attached to the sudden action of leading pacifists because of the belief that they were in close communication with Washington leaders. While they insisted that they still "hoped" for peace, their actions indicated that the "hope" is practically dead.

"WHERE IGNORANCE IS BLISS

"Tis folly to be wise," but that does not answer where the eyes are concerned, as a man proved just lately, having lost the sight of one eye, and seriously injuring the other, through wearing glasses not suited to him. Don't take chances if you want to be sure about your eyes. See Dr. Lacey, 410 George street.

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE BOARD OF TRADE

The annual general meeting of the Board of Trade will be held in the City Council Chamber on Tuesday, April 3rd, at 8 p.m. sharp. All persons interested in the advancement of the city are requested to attend. The minimum membership is thirty, and unless this number turns out on Tuesday night the Board will cease to exist, and the advantage of having an institution formed under authority of an Act of the Dominion Parliament will be lost to Peterborough. The Board has existed without cessation for about thirty years and has fully justified its existence throughout the whole of that time until the outbreak of war, when development ceased and the officers decided it would be useless to hold meetings until signs of renewed development appeared. That time is here, and the counsel of every broad-minded citizen is now needed if costly mistakes are to be avoided. Two heads are better than one and two hundred are better than two, so don't leave this duty you owe to your city for some one else to perform. Come to the meeting on Tuesday night whether you have been a member of the Board or not.

Five Officers and All the Non-Coms. and Men to Take Early Departure For Overseas—Lt.-Col. D. Walker Appointed to Command of the 57th Regiment C. D. F.

MAJOR O'FLYNN APPOINTED

The official announcement that Lt.-Col. D. Walker, of the 57th Regiment, will command the 57th Regiment Canadian Defence Force Battalion, and the unofficial but altogether probable report that the 247th Battalion will be leaving Peterborough next month for overseas, are some of today's developments in the local military situation.

The Examiner learns on good authority, although unofficially, that five officers and all the non-coms and men of the 247th Battalion will leave for overseas before the end of next month, in accordance with the general scheme by which all the overseas men in Canada are being hurried across, their places here being taken by the Defence battalions. Only five officers will accompany the unit, and just what disposition will be made of the balance of the staff is not yet known, although some of them may possibly be incorporated in the 57th Defence Battalion.

Major E. D. O'Flynn, who was over at the front with the 2nd Battalion, and is now second in command of the 247th Battalion, has been appointed to command the 15th Belleville Defence Battalion, the announcement having been made from Kingston to-day. Major O'Flynn saw much service at the front.

Col. Walker Appointed.

Lt.-Col. Walker confirmed the report from Kingston to-day that he had been appointed to the command of the Defence Battalion, which is to be raised by the 57th Regiment, assisted by the 40th Cobourg; 45th Lindsay, and 46th Port Hope regiments, and the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons. His appointment was recommended by General Hemming and confirmed at Ottawa, and Lt.-Col. Walker, who has been in command of the Rangers since the beginning of the war has decided to accept. He will have an announcement in regard to the new battalion on Monday, and in the meantime would not discuss the question of the probable staff of the unit.

It is understood that the 57th Regiment will recruit men for overseas as well as for the Defence forces, and that the overseas company will drill with the C.D.F. men. Some definite information along this line will likely be given on Monday.

Another Member of The 93rd Battalion Passes Away Overseas

Pte Harold Coons Dies in France--Two Other 93rd Men on the Wounded List---Captain Hamilton Munro is Appointed to the Command of Ammunition Park--To-day's Orders and General Military News.

The death of one former member of the 93rd Battalion and the wounding of two others are officially announced this morning.

Mrs. Mazie Coons, Bridgenorth, received official notice from Ottawa to-day that Pte. Harold Coons, who enlisted in Peterborough, in August, 1915, with the 93rd Battalion, and went overseas with that unit as a member of A Company., died in France from dysentery, on March 16. Pte. Coons went to France with one of the Canadian Railway Battalions. He was born in Canada and was well known throughout the district. The news of his death will be a shock to all who knew him.

Two other Canadian-born members of the 93rd are on the wounded list, in the persons of Pte. F. E. Post of Havelock, and Pte. M. J. McAuliffe, of Omemee. Both went overseas with Lt.-Col. Johnston's unit and were transferred to other Canadian battalions in France.

Mr. Robert Harstone, Water street, has received some further details in connection with the wounding of his son, Lieut. J. A. Harstone, Canadian Infantry. An official cable to-day states that Lieut. Harstone was admitted to the Duchess of Westminster Hospital at Le Tourquiet, on March 28, suffering from a severe gun-shot wound in the right leg.

Pte. Ernest Sterling was added to the strength of the 247th Battalion this morning.

Word has been received from England that Lt.-Col. T. J. Johnston, who went overseas as O. C. of the 93rd Battalion, is now in command of a Canadian Farming Battalion in England. His unit is engaged in farming work in an effort to increase the production.

PETERBOROUGH OFFICER APPOINTED.

News has been received that Captain Hamilton Munro of Peterborough has been appointed to the command of the Ammunition Park of the Third Canadian Division. Capt. Munro, who went overseas in July, 1915, has seen over a year's service, and has been engaged on the transport and distribution of ammunition for both field guns and heavy artillery. He is to be congratulated on this well-deserved promotion.

Mrs. Cripps, of the Soldiers' Wives' and Mothers' Club, has received the following letter:

Feb. 28, 1917.

Dear Friend,—Just a few lines to let you know I received the socks you sent me and am awful thankful to the Soldiers' Wives' and Mothers' Club for their kindness. They are a handy thing out here, it is so muddy. We have had pretty fine weather this last two weeks. I am in the twenty-first Batt., France, and I am going along fine. I hear you had a cold winter over in Peterborough. I will close with best wishes to all. From,

Expert Practical Gardener From Toronto For The Meeting In Opera House Tuesday Night

Tuesday night's public meeting in the Opera House, which has been planned and arranged by the Y.M.C.A. to further the greater production movement promises above all features to be practical.

One of the speakers will be Mr. Wm. Allan of Toronto, an authority on vegetables and flowers, and himself a highly successful and practical gardener. Mr. Allan's address will be accompanied by illustrated colour slides, entitled, "From Seeding to Harvest." There will also be stimulating slides showing the back yard garden work in Toronto in 1916. Mr. Allan is a thoroughly practical man and is well qualified to give helpful and authentic information to either the first beginner in gardening, the amateur or the expert. Some of the subjects he will deal with are seed varieties, soil preparation, fertilizing, planting care of plants and other details in home and vacant lot production.

Prof. C. B. Sissons of Toronto University, will speak on the subject, "How City People May Aid the Empire in Crop Production."

It is fully expected that the Opera House will be crowded on Tuesday night. It has been placed at the disposal of the Y.M.C.A. by J. J. Turner and Sons for a cause that is moving the Empire. The invitation is to the entire city. This is a community problem in which the Y.M.C.A. is deeply interested and hopes to assist those citizens who intend to undertake gardening this summer and who desire to get the best results from their work.

Citizens who desire information on gardening problems, or direction in the plans they are now forming are asked to come to the Tuesday night meeting prepared to advance their questions. Professor Sissons and Mr. Allan are coming to help the citizens and it is hoped that they will avail themselves of this opportunity.

Keep the date open, Tuesday, April 3rd, at the Grand Opera House.

BARBER SHOP CHANGE

The barber shop formerly conducted by the late S. Baker, at No. 396 Munro House Block, has been purchased by Mr. Kent Throop, who, during the past eight years, has been employed in Mr. J. Lewis' Oriental Barber Shop, Hunter Street. Mr. Throop has always enjoyed the confidence of the patrons of Mr. Lewis' shop, and because of his long experience and skill, his chair has always been a favorite one. As an all-round tonsorial professional, his services were generally preferred, and doubtless will continue to be in the new venture which he has launched out in his own behalf.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

SATURDAY, MARCH, 31, 1917

OUR GOLDEN DOMINION DAY.

This is the golden anniversary year of Canadian Confederation. Fifty years ago, come July 1st, the scattered and constitutionally isolated provinces of Canada became one confederated consolidated whole by decree of the Imperial Parliament.

The day and the occasion will be celebrated throughout Canada; and while the several governments will mark it in their own way, the real significance of its celebration will come from the cooperation of every important town or city.

In this view, Peterborough should take its rightful place in keeping with its importance. The Mayor is the natural leader of the city, and it might be well for him to initiate the steps necessary even at this early date, in order that with due consideration and preparation, the celebration of the great national festival may be worthy of Peterborough.

It is none too early in the year to think over, and act upon, the idea of a celebration; to invite discussion as to the form it will take, to be in keeping with the dignity of the city and the importance of the occasion.

It is suggested by some patriotic and enterprising citizens that the Mayor might at an early date call a public meeting, so that public opinion upon the subject might be gathered and inspiration given to the spirit in which Peterborough should meet the golden anniversary of the wedding of the provinces, and continue the welding process that has been proceeding during the last fifty years.

We can look with pride upon the results. At the close of our first half century, Canada has shown a solidity of national spirit, a spirit and capacity of accomplishment that older countries might well be proud of. We have been the right hand of the empire; we have taken a large, and as far as the gallant deeds of our soldiers go, a glorious part in the preservation and the promotion of the fortunes of the Empire; and Canada can in every way hold up her head, and take pride in her work and influence and place in the empire in the closing years of her first half century of organized history. If in fifty years we have wrought so much we can look forward with hopeful certainty to the fulfilment of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's prophetic utterances that "the twentieth century belongs to Canada." So far in its progress we have "made good"; and we have reason to make the beginning of a new half century of our history a starting point for greater achievement and greater progress.

Peterborough should do her share in marking this starting point with a display of the spirit and temper that a worthy celebration of the close of the final half century of our confederated life would indicate.

DISPROOF OF "CANADA CAN'T" CANT.

It appears that Sir Robert Borden has to go to England to learn of the shipbuilding capacities of Canada.

One of the incidental benefits of the application of the Laurier naval policy—the building of a Canadian navy in Canada—was the tremendous stimulus it would give to merctntile shipbuilding.

When this was urged in Parliament it was laughed to scorn by the Conservatives, and especially Sir Robert Borden, himself. Speaking in Parliament in the session of 1912-13 he ridiculed the idea of building a navy in Canada, and, as reported in Hansard, used these words:

In my humble opinion nothing of an efficient character could be built up within a quarter, or perhaps half a century.

This unpatriotic expression of disbelief in the resources of Canada, was regarded by other members as an insult to the people of Canada. And this characterisation of it was borne out by the speech of Mr. Currie of North Simcoe, one of Mr. Borden's most unscrupulously devoted followers.

He stated in disproof and in practical reproof of Sir Robert's little faith in Canada, that within his own riding of North Simcoe there was a shipyard (at Collingwood) where they had built and launched ships of more than 500 feet in length—about the length of a Dreadnought. He added that a 22-knot ship of 375 feet, was laid down in June and launched in November, within some five months, a good deal shorter time than Sir Robert Borden's twenty-five or fifty years. Mr. Currie flatly contradicted his leader and declared that Canada was quite capable of building ships.

To the credit of Sir Robert Borden's intelligence, it only just to suggest that Sir Robert Borden did not believe himself when he asserted that Canadians would require twenty-five or fifty years to learn how to build ships.

He was so anxious for party purposes to kill the Laurier naval policy, and thereby purchase the support of the Nationalists, that he outraged patriotism and common sense—sacrificed them—to the lower sense of feeling secure in office.

We are now told that one result of Sir Robert's last visit to Britain is the semi-official announcement that an arrangement has been made with the Imperial authorities, by which Canada is to do a deal of ship-building for the Mother Country. It is stated that 60 million dollars worth of shipping to be built in Canadian yards is under contract.

That Canada is able to do so large a "bit" in "saving the situation" on sea, as she did on land two years ago at Ypres, is due to the policy and action of the Laurier Government.

It laid the foundations of a big ship-building industry in Montreal before it went out of office; and Sir Robert Borden, by his plotting with the Nationalists, has not been able to altogether undo it.

As a matter of fact, in his recent arrangement he has been compelled to follow out the course laid down by Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

The circumstances are not only an inspiration to firmer faith than ever of Canadians in the resources—natural, as well as industrial—of the country, and to recognise in the Laurier naval policy the germs and a large part of the kernel of the immense ship-building development now coming.

This would have been sooner had that policy not been bartered for a "mess of pottage"—and a nasty mess it was—the magnificent independence of a Canadian navy, built of Canadian materials by Canadian skill in Canada, and manned by Canadians—swapped for the support of a score of counterfeit Canadians — anti-British, anti-Imperial, anti-naval and consequently anti-everything that a loyal, live, progressive, far-seeing, Canadian Premier should stand for.

We might have had a companion Canadian navy to Australia's own navy, such as we promised Australia and Britain to build. We should have had it on the sea in the shape of cruisers and destroyers guarding our own coasts on both of our widely separated seabourds, and have released Royal Navy cruisers for service elsewhere, as we are now about, it is said, to experience at the hands of United States' ships, which will do guard duty, and permit British patrols to leave for other waters.

And moreover, with our inexhaustible stores of nickel and of coal and iron we could have established an industry that would have been the making of the Nova Scotia, North Ontario and other steel industries.

We should have had ship building yards that with naval vessels built, could have been devoted to building up the mercantile marine of the other Country months ago instead of doing it at this late day.

The policy of a Canadian navy appeals and appealed to every red-blooded, patriotic and self-respecting Canadian, as not only the loyal and manly way, but as the best policy, from a defensive point of view, for both Canadian and imperial interests.

And it would have been the adoption of a part of the only true policy of Canadian development and upbuilding—to make and refine and manufacture our own resources in our own country.

Refine our nickel, our zinc, our copper in Canada so that Canadian employment and Canadian capital should get the last drop of juice out of the national orange. We should gain national strength, as an athlete gains physical strength, by the exercise of our own skill, enterprise and industry in converting to mercantile form within our own bounds all our own resources.

Canada for Canadians, what Canadians are now fighting and dying for, is what home-staying Canadians should fight for both tooth and nail, with all our soul, with all our mind, and with all our strength.

COMIC OPERA ENDING.

"The North Roscommon election has had a comic opera ending. Count Plunkett has since his victory announced that he would scorn to take the seat to which the people elected him by so large a majority. He will hold it, but he will not discharge the duties attached to it. If he had only proclaimed this intention before the polling he would have at least played fair with the electors in this respect. Had he merely wanted a certificate of popularity as the victim of insensate hatred and official stupidity he could have had one from all the voters in the constituency, barring, of course, the Unionists, whose votes, ever ready to do injury to the Nationalist cause, it is believed he got almost to a man. His candidature, with its sequel, looks like a game played by very young children."

There is some resemblance in Canadian affairs to those in Ireland. It is only the fact that we have provinces and practical provincial independence that saves us from extreme difficulties with our fellow-countrymen, the French Canadians. If they were not able to retire into their own province of Quebec who will say what the condition of Canada would be to-day? Provincial boundaries are the safety-valves of empires, made up as our Empire is. Even India has a right to put on a tariff against the United Kingdom. It is this freedom within the Empire that we so heartily approve of. It applies to all parts of the Empire, Canada and Ireland included. The violation of this principle by coercing any one considerable part such as the North or the South of Ireland would be manifestly improper and unthinkable.

IRISH CHAPLAIN PRACTISES MILITANT CHRISTIANITY

"One of the most remarkable incidents of the war has just come to light," says an English paper. "The first public reference to the incident occurred in a speech delivered recently by Sir Philip Sassoon, M.P., aide-de-camp to Sir Douglas Haig, who described it as a story 'that seriously compromises a Catholic parson.' "I am not sure," he continued, "that I ought to tell it but the fact remains that, despite his peaceful avocation, he turned up on one occasion with eighteen enthusiastic Irishmen, and 450 very thankful, if somewhat dejected, Germans.

Since Sir Philip Sasson delivered this speech, the fact has emerged that the priest in question is Major the Rev. Father Thornton, of Cadaow, who is at present home on leave, after having been awarded the D.S.O. for devoted attention to the wounded under shell fire during four consecutive days.

Father Thornton was given a warm welcome on his arrival in Cadaow, where his popularity extends to all classes and creeds. Probably the first detailed account of his exploit was that given to St. Mary's Y.M.C., Paisley, by a neighbouring priest, Rev. Father Gourlay, Shieldmuir, and the deed has since been described in some of the Scottish papers.

It appears that about a score of Dublin Fusiliers had gone on a reconnoitering expedition, accompanied by their Chaplain, Father Thornton. A thick fog lay over the country and rendered it extremely difficult for them to determine their whereabouts. In the obscurity the little party had advanced too far and they were first reminded of the fact by a volley of musket fire from a wood. They were at the time in a little valley and their assailants were on the side of one of the surrounding hills so that their situation was extremely precarious. They did not, however, lose their courage and their presence of mind. They made the best of such shelter as was available and throwing themselves on the ground they poured their answering volleys into the wood with such rapidity and effect that the Germans evidently believed that they were opposed by a large force. Three Germans emerged from the woods with their hands up, in token of surrender. Father Thornton advanced to meet them and deputed one of the three to return to the wood and inform their comrades that their lives would be spared if they surrendered. As he did not return in a reasonable time the "Dubs" ponred in a couple more volleys, which resulted in the surrender of five or six more Germans.

Father Thornton then decided to personally negotiate the surrender of the remainder. He entered the wood and interviewed the officer with the result that the whole of the party—450 in number—surrendered. When they had thrown down their arms and emerged from the wood Father Thornton, in order to maintain the deception, as to the strength of his own party, called for eighteen men to take charge of the prisoners.

The Germans were evidently under the impression that they were liable to be subjected to ill-treatment at the hands of their captors and some of the officers made offers of money and other presents to Father Thornton, which he indignantly rejected, stating that they were "British soldiers and not thieves."

When the little party with their huge capture got back to their own lines, Father Thornton sought the Colonel in charge and requested him to make the necessary arrangements for looking after the prisoners.

The Colonel was quite incredulous when he heard the story and he would not believe it until he saw the line of prisoners filing past. The only words in which his amazement could find expression were: "Well of all the impertinence I ever heard of—!"

The reader does not require a very strong imagination in order to be able to complete for himself a picture of the scene, and to realise what iron nerves that little handful of Irishmen possessed, and what coolness and resource their chaplain displayed.

The Empire's emergency call

Instead of now embarking upon the critical period of the great war-struggle with every confidence of victory, what if we were to-day bemoaning a lost war! Such an unthinkable catastrophe would undoubtedly be ascribed to the food shortage. Help to increase production!

Statesmen and economists agree that the universal food shortage is to-day the most dangerous menace of all! Yet the weapon to conquer it is in the hands of everyone able to increase production. If you have even the smallest plot of ground available, think of your responsibility. Let not selfishness or indifference rob you of this very real duty of rendering to your country a practical patriotic service. Grow vegetables.

Here is the tremendous significance of the present universal shortage as seen by the Premier of Great Britain. Lloyd George declares:

"One year's unselfishness will save the British Empire! It will save humanity!"

The splendid patriotic efforts of those who toil for victory on the farms cannot cope with the vast need. City, town and village dwellers should help. Even then there cannot be too much food production. Grow vegetables this year.

It matters little that you can reap real, worthwhile profits in delicious fresh vegetables on your table, beneficial exercise and even a money profit from any surplus produce. The big, pressing reason for growing vegetables is that great desire in every patriotic heart at this vital moment, to contribute something, even though it be only a mite, to help end this horrible war with victory.

Everyone should help. Let one and all take this appeal to heart. Let the slogan for 1917 be:

The Right Spirit!

"I am going to take Lloyd George at his word," writes a well-known Canadian. "This year I have made up my mind to do all I can in the best way I can. And I shall not trouble myself about profits. I shall be satisfied if the world gets the good of it."

"A Vegetable Garden for every home"

How does vegetable growing help? It saves money otherwise spent for vegetables. It helps to lower the "high cost of living." It sets free for vital war work the labor that would otherwise be engaged in producing vegetables for your use. It increases the surplus for export. Are these not worth-while contributions to victory? Grow vegetables this year!

The Ontario Department of Agriculture appeals to Horticultural Societies, labor unions, lodges, school boards, etc., to take the initiative and actively encourage vegetable growing.

Organizations are requested to arrange for instructive talks by local practical gardeners. If local speakers cannot be secured, the Department of Agriculture will endeavor to send a man. As the number of available experts is limited, arrangements for meetings and applications for speakers should be made at once.

The Department suggests the formation of local organizations to offer prizes for best vegetable gardens, and will assist in any possible way any organization conducting a campaign for vegetable growing on vacant lots.

Write for free literature giving instructions about methods of preparing the ground and cultivating the crops; also plan of garden, indicating suitable vegetables to grow, best varieties, and their arrangement in the garden, etc.

Write for Poultry bulletin.—The scraps from the average table are sufficient to feed hens. You will be highly repaid in fresh eggs. Bulletin gives full directions how to keep hens.

A MESSAGE TO THE CLERGY OF THE PROVINCE

Sunday, April the 1st, Will Be Known as "Production Sunday"—The Empire Needs More Food

To the Clergy of Ontario,—The organization of Resources Committee wants to make Sunday, April 1st, "Production Sunday" throughout Ontario. Will you help, by making special reference in your services on that day to the need of the Empire for food?

The call of the Empire for men to serve overseas reached us over two years ago. The call of the Empire for money has reached us through our various patriotic, Red Cross and relief funds, the Dominion War loan and in the form of special taxes. To the call for men, the Clergy of Ontario have made hearty response. The call for money has likewise met with a response which is both gratifying and extremely creditable to the Province. We must now give earnest heed to a call which is just as insistent as the other two; indeed, in some respects, even more insistent:

"The Empire Needs More Food."

The Province of Ontario should put forth its very strongest efforts to respond to this call for many reasons, any one of which is powerful in its appeal when properly understood.

1. Ontario must produce more food on account of the increasing cost of living at home. Nothing will tend to reduce the cost of living in Ontario itself so much while teh war continues as ample supplies of home-grown products — chickens, grain, vegetables, fruit and live stock. The Department of Agriculture, with the strongest support which this Committee can give, is at present urging this on farmers.

2. Ontario must produce more food because of the need of the Motherland: (a) For food supplies for her soldiers and sailors; (b) For food supplies for her home population. Ontario cannot export what she does not raise; neither can she export unless there is a surplus production above the needs of the Province.

3. Ontario must produce more food in order to supply money for our own war funds. Every thoughtful person realizes that the splendid showing made by Canada in war finance is due solely to increased production since the outbreak of war. Sir Thomas White, the Finance Minister, has shown in many public addresses that the changed standing of Canada from a borrowing to a loaning nation is due largely to the increased activity of our manufacturers and farmers.

When farmers are urged to increase the production of food stuff their reply has been in effect: "We have the land, we "have the implements, we have the men who can direct cultivation, but we "are short of labour."

The call for increased food production, therefore, is obviously a call for more farm labour.

Will you help to meet this difficulty by:

1. Urging upon every person in your congregation capable of assisting to at once place himself, to the limit of his ability at the disposal of the farmers in your community to assist in Spring work, for unless the seed is sown the crop cannot be harvested, no matter how many helpers may be available at harvest time.

This includes boys of high school age, retired farmers, and men who would be released by manufacturers and other employers for a number of weeks, the intention being, in the last case, to attempt to make the service of any farmer continuous. It includes, also, however, men who can give one or more days a week and men who can give a portion of one or more days a week. To utilize this part time labour, organization is needed, but the need, when realized, has always met with a ready response.

2. By urging farmers who need help to let their needs be definitely known, so that the help which is available may be placed to the best possible advantage, Dr. W. A. Riddell, Superintendent of the Trades and Labour Branch of the Department of Public Works, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, is in charge of this work, and farmers should apply to him for the help they need. We feel warranted in stating that farmers can be assured that help will be available for harvesting the crops which they are able to raise.

Principals of high schools and collegiate institutes throughout the Province are assisting, and the Department of Education has modified its regulations to meet the situation. Local patriotic committees, Boards of Trade, and others have been called upon to assist.

You can support the men now active in your community by helping to make the need known.

No apology need be made for laying these facts before the Clergy of the Province, for surely every loyal subject of the Crown who has thought of the cause at issue in our great war will recognize that the great issues of human liberty and justice are, at bottom, purely religious in their nature, and every effort required to bring the Empire through the strife, not merely victoriously but also strong to meet the special problems which the cessation of hostilities will introduce, partakes at once of the character of the issues a stake in the war itself.

Approximately forty million of the world's most productive manhood have either been killed or incapacitated, or are to-day in active service, while twenty million more are behind them, devoting their energies to war work. Is it any wonder that the world's food supply has become one of the most serious problems of the day? In such an emergency, all must help to do the best possible. The world has no precedent for the conditions which exist to-day.

Allot More Potatoes To Poor Than To Rich

Austria Plans New Kind of Food Regulation—Meat Cards and Other Restrictions.

VIENNA, March 30, (via Berne to Paris.— Restricted potato rations, whereby each person receives only one pound a week, went into effect this week. This quantity will prevail until imports can be increased. It is planned in the near future to regulate potato consumption in Austria so that this product will be apportioned according to the financial status of the consumer—small quantities to the wealthy, larger quantities to the poor.

The Food Bureau has ordered the introduction of meat cards, by means of which 120 to 150 grams (between four and five ounces) can be purchased six times weekly, including mutton or lamb at least once. Restaurants and cafes to-day were prohibited from serving sugar with foods or drinkables.

A Great Appeal

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir: A great appeal has emanated from 30 or 40 of the religious leaders in England, calling upon all God's loyalists, as far as possible throughout the world, to engage in a united effort of intercession, on the great day of the sacrifice of the Son of God, universally known as Good Friday. It has been taken up in Canada through the co-operation of a large body of Christian leaders, the heads of the various Theological Colleges, the President of the Bible Society, the Evangelical Alliance, the Bible League, China Inland Mission, Y.M.C.A., etc., etc., a truly super-denominational and Catholic appeal. The appeal asks that wherever possible at some hour of the day, groups of people who believe in the need and the power of prayer, congregate in Churches, school houses, public halls, and the homes, at a given hour of the morning, afternoon or evening, to continue in prayer and supplication, to seek the Lord for pardon for our sins, personal, family, church, and national, and to ask for God's blessing and leading in this great crisis of our Empire, and that those, who like the Anglicans and others, who have special services on that day, offer definite intercession. Never was prayer more needed. No sensible Canadian will be side-tracked from dependence upon God by the successes of the hour, or loose head and heart in the excitement of a transient elation. God is still the First and Final Factor in this war, and prayer is still the final instrument of victory. It was not only the valour and the fighting forces; it was the three men at the top of the hill praying that won the victory that day at Rephidim. Ex. 17:11-12. May we hope that in response to this simple appeal a vast body of Christians will be stirred to co-operate, in this movement of prayer on Good Friday, and in some way as they are led by the Spirit of God, make provision to this end, however simple, in their own Church or district. To-day prayer is the most valuable help that can be given to our Empire. God is waiting for the believing prayers of his intercessors, in order that He may bring deliverance to the Nation, and victory to our righteous cause.

BACK TO POORHOUSE FROM ADOPTED LUXURY

NEW YORK, March 30.—Five-year-old George Bernard Shire, who was originally chirstened Joseph William Petconk, was the centre of a drama in the Supreme Court. His mother had been forced by poverty to give him to the Madonna Day Nursery, and in doing so her pride made her give the name of Borak, and a false address. When she tried to get him back she could find no trace of him.

For four years Mrs. Helen Petconk, who now lives at 898 Union Avenue, in the Bronx, searched in institutions and then in the streets for her missig boy. She looked into baby carriages and peered into the faces of little ones until her friends thought her mind had become affected. Finally at the Bronx Day and Night Nursery she learned that a five-year-old brown-eyed boy, answering to the name that she had given her child when she left him, had passed from that instituton into the home of Leo D. Shire, a wealthy shoe merchant, at 41 West Eighty-second street. Then she got a writ of habeas corpus against the State Charities Aid Association, requiring it to produce the boy in court.

As Mrs. Petconk sat in Justice Guy's courtroom with her other son, 6 years old, neatly though poorly dressed, she saw her younger son wearing a warm reefer, velvet knickerbockers, and leggings come into the room with his foster parents. She cried hysterically: "Look, Judge, can't you see that is my son?"

"There is no doubt about it," Justice Guy replied, and then Mrs. Petconk told him, when her husband was ill, she had to give up one son so she could go to work, how her husband is earning $26 a week, and she pleaded to have her boy again.

The Shires explained that through Mrs. Stephen S. Wise, wife of the rabbi, the little chap was taken by them for adoption last May. The necessary period of probation having passed the final legal steps were about to be taken that would make the boy their heir. He had already received their name.

When Mr. and Mrs. Shire learned th facts and that the mother had never given up her right to the child they agreed to surrender the boy if they might keep him with them for one more night. Little Joseph will change his name, his parents and his home and gain a playmate in his brother.

Suffered With Heart For Ten Years

Would Nearly Smother

There is nothing that brings with it such fear of impending death as to wake up in the night with that awful sense of smothering. The uncertain and irregular heart action causes the greatest distress of both mind and body.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are the only remedy that can give prompt relief and effect a complete cure in cases of such severity.

They strengthen and invigorate the heart, so that it beats strong and regular, and tone up the nervous system so that the cause of so much anxiety becomes a thing of the past.

Mrs. M. O. McCready, Wapella, Sask., writes: "I am not much of a believer in medicines, but I feel that it is only right for me to let you know what your wonderful remedy has done for me, and in a very short time, too. I had suffered terribly with my heart for nearly ten years, could scarcely do any work, and would nearly smother at times. I had many remedies, some only relieving me for a time. I got a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and felt so much better that I kept on using them, and can truthfully say I feel like a new woman.

"I would advise anyone with heart trouble to use them."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Death Claims

One of the largest American Life Insurance Companies (The New York Life) lost by death during a period of only twelve months, the year of 1916, no less than Nine Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty-seven policy holders, a number nearly equal to one half the whole population of the City of Peterborough, through disease and accident as follows: Heart Disease carried off 1,270, Bright's Disease 913, Consumption 882, Pneumonia 810, Cancers and Tumors 802, War 328, Accidents 589, Apoplexy 559, Disease of Arteries 457, Disease of Digestive Organs 315, Paralysis 221, Diabetes 214.

As to ages 689 were 30 years or under; 1,519 were between 30 and 40; 2,471 between 40 and 50; 2,726 between 50 and 60; and 2,416 were over 60.

During the same period, the year 1916, the same Company declined 9,995 applicants for life insurance totalling $20,863,294. It is safe to assume the majority of those 9,995 applicants were at one time insurable risks, but THEY WAITED TOO LONG.

How about yourself Mr. Reader? WHERE DO YOU STAND? Are you still insurable? Perhaps next week or next month YOU may have waited too long. If you are still insurable we can sell you the best policy that money can buy.

FIRST ANNUAL MEETING OF ST. PETER'S PATRIOTIC CLUB

Officers Elected and Secretary's Interesting Report of Year's Activities Presented

The first annual meeting of the St. Peter's Patriotic Club was held at the T.A.S. rooms on Thursday afternoon, March 29th, with a good attendance. Rev. Fr. Phalen acted as chairman.

After the opening ceremonies the reports of the secretary and treasurer were given and the election of officers for the coming six months took place. The officers elected are as follows:

President—Mrs. Bruce Law.
Vice-President—Mrs. Jos. White.
Secretary—Miss Irene Dorris.
Assistant Secretary — Miss Lillian Hurley.
Treasurer—Mrs. J. J. Dorris.
Executive—Mrs. Justus Dunn, Mrs. Frank Eano, Mrs. Fred Shannon, Mrs. P. Tangney, Mrs. M. Tooley, Mrs. Kelleher, Mrs. J. Grisdale, Mrs. McGibbon and Mrs. D. J. Perry.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the retiring secretary, and Rev. Fr. Phalen in presenting the vote of thanks, spoke most warmly of the work done by Mrs. Lehane as organiser and secretary of St. Peter's Patriotic Club.

This motion was carried unanimously.

The secretary's report follows:

One year ago St. Peter's Patriotic Club was organized in order that the Catholic women of Peterborough might have an opportunity to show, in a practical manner, their interest in the brave men, not only of Canada, but of the Allies, who are, at such a great sacrifice, doing their bit for all that the British Flag stands for. In organizing the club the idea was, not only to a Patriotic Club, but also to help the sick and wounded men by becoming a Red Cross Auxiliary and to do this it was decided to affiliate with the local branch of the Canadian Red Cross, whose headquarters are at the Public Library.

That our efforts in Red Cross work have been worth while I think you will agree from the great amount of work done. The result of which is as follows:

Grey Flannel Shirts	160
Hospital Night Shirts	103
Pyjamas	57
Dressing gowns	50
Slippers	8 pairs
Sheets	503
Pillow cases	174
Towels	2,612
Bandages	193
Wash cloths	63
1 House Coat.

As the patriotic work of the club, which consists in supplying socks and other comforts to the men in the trenches, required funds, it was decided to have a tea room in connection with our work room, the members of the club taking charge in turn to provide and serve tea.

That the teas have been a great success was shown by the large number who attended and by the nice sum realized from the tea room.

There were twenty-seven teas given and the proceeds from these totalled $157.83, which was very gratifying indeed.

It was also decided to charge a membership fee of 25c (admission and dues for six months).

In the first six months we had 127 members on our roll, and in the last half of the year we had 24 join, making a total of 151 members.

The members who joined in the first six months were asked to pay 10c dues for the second term.

Three "At Homes" were held and all were well patronized. The money made from these sources has been used to procure comforts for the soldiers of Canada and the Allies, the receipts for the year being:

From the tea room	$157.83
Members initiation fees	57.75
Members' dues	4.20
At Homes	180.70
Donations	7.20
Interest on Bank Account	1.17
Jam sold	.80
Chances on picture	7.50
Total	$397.15

Twenty-two spindles of yarn were purchased and 257 pairs of socks made.

Our first patriotic undertaking was the sending on June 19th, 1916, of 60 pairs of socks to the French soldiers, who were in great need of help.

Our next was the sending of 116 Christmas boxes to the Peterborough boys overseas. These boxes, which we hope have helped to "turn the dark clouds inside out," are still being received, as a letter from Pte. Wm. McPherson, dated March 4th, will show. Letters have also been received in the last couple of weeks from several who have been made happy by the knowledge that they were remembered at home.

That we have been able to help to brighten the lives of these brave men is alone worth the small sacrifice we may have made. Our Club also assisted in raising the 93rd Battalion Fund, by having a booth at the Exhibition Grounds on May 24.

Again on February 7th, 1917, we sent on request of the Secours National, donation of 71 pairs of socks to the brave men who are carrying the heaviest burden of the war.

While busily working for the sick and well soldiers the heroes who laid down their lives were not forgotten, two Requiem Masses being offered for those who went forth so bravely never to return.

That the majority of our Catholic women were in accord with our ideas was shown by the generous way our appeals were answered at all times.

The thanks of the Club are due to our good Bishop and Rev. Fr. Phelan for their encouragement and help, to St. Peter's T. A. S. for the use of their rooms, and the assistance they have given in many ways; to Miss E. M. Coughlin, for a generous donation of chocolate for our Christmas boxes to the soldiers; to Miss Annie Simons, for hand-painted badges; to Mrs. A. Robertson, for a donation of socks; to Miss Mamie McCarthy, for a valuable sepia Water Colour, on which chances were taken and a good sum realized; to the Singer Machine Co., Mrs. (Dr.) Gallivan, Mrs. McRae and Mrs. O'Hara for the use of machines, without which it would have been impossible to do the work that has been done; and to Mr. Charles O'Hara, who did all the carting free of charge; also to the Examiner and Review, who have done all they could to assist us at all times. Before closing, we should pay a tribute to our Treasurer, Miss Eva Tangney, who, while with us, did her work so well, and we are glad to know that it was owing to her energy and ability that she was promoted to a better position. Miss Nora Shevlin, our former treasurer, has filled the office since in a very satisfactory manner, as her report will show. Personally, I thank all who assisted me in my duties, particularly Mr. Justus Dunn, who ever faithful, is an example to all, and who was always present to prepare the work and to help and encourage the workers; to the officers of the Club, the Supervisors of the different departments, to the convenors of the Tea Room; to the many faithful workers, and to all who in any way, no matter how small, have helped to make St. Peter's Patriotic Club the great success it has been in its first year, and I hope, though we have worked hard, the fact that we are now able to say that when religion, when liberty and when civilization were at stake, we did our duty, will be sufficient recompense for our past efforts, and I trust that the work done this year will be an incentive to even greater efforts next year, and that St. Peter's Patriotic Club will continue till the end of the struggle for the need is greater to-day than it was one year ago.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

M. LeHANE,
Retiring Secretary.

POTATOES TOOK A DROP

Prices Fell on the Market This Morning

Potatoes took a substantial drop this morning on the market and from all appearances will likely keep on dropping. Seventy cents a peck was coolly asked for at the outset, but relief hove in sight when a car load at two eighty arrived. Then the mighty murphy began its downfall and four dollars a bag gladly changed to three save in the case of seed potatoes, which remained at three sixty.

No maple syrup came on the market this morning, a few stray cans were to be had in the house to house canvas.

Eggs rose to-day to thirty-five until at eleven thirty, when some of the thrifty souls realised they'd take thirty or keep them.

Apples sold at $1.50 to $3.00 a bag.

SEE MARIE DORO AT THE EMPIRE TO-NIGHT

Last Chance to see this Brilliant Star in "The Lash"

Marie Doro, the brilliant and Paramount star, who recently created such a success in "Common Ground," will be seen at the Empire to-night in the Jesse L. Lasky production of "The Lash" from the story written especially for her by the noted dramatist, Paul West, and prepared for the screen by George Dubois Proctor. Although at first Miss Doro is seen as a child on a forgotten little island, she quickly blossoms forth into a society favourite, and the theatre-going public will have an opportunity to see her in a number of new and bewitching gowns.

Also a comedy, "A Seminary Scandal," and Mutt and Jeff, making a very funny programme.

Sanitary Inspector Commends East City

Sanitary Inspector Stapleton paid a compliment this afternoon to the residents of Ashburnham for the cleanliness that prevails throughout the entire ward. It easily takes first place among the city's divisions for the order and neatness of the streets, the homes and the yards. Moreover, the people seem eager to maintain their community in that condition, they assist the garbage collector and in other respects show a civic spirit the rest of the city might well emulate.

The Inspector is paying particular attention to the cleaning up of the central part of the city and expects the co-operation of the citizens. The by-law will be enforced and the clause regarding the provision of covered manure boxes is not being overlooked. The Inspector remarked that he had learned more about the city than he ever dreamed existed, but hopes to gradually effect improvements that will make Peterborough a clean and healthy city.

Superintendents—Mrs. Mott, Mrs. Worboy.
Secretary—Dorothy Worboy.
Treasurer—Vera Sabin.
Organist—Gwendolyn Dobbin.

Rev. R. B. Grobb addressed the children on Missionary Work; also Mrs. Hooper.

NO MAPLE SYRUP AT BRIDGENORTH

BRIDGENORTH, March 31.—The snow has disappeared off the fields, but some of the country roads are in bad condition owing to having been blocked in the winter, and now they have to be opened up. There are roads with over four feet of snow on them yet.

There is no appearance of any sugar making this spring, as no one seems to be tapping the sugar bushes, believing that it is going to be a short season on account of no frost in the ground.

John Bradley is doing a good business with his portable saw mill. Quite a number of logs are in to be cut into lumber and shingles.

There are quite a number of persons enquiring for cottages in the park for the summer months. The park is likely to be lively this summer.

The Young Men's Club held a very successful concert on Thursday night. Rev. Mr. McKee acted as chairman. It was prepared by home talent with the exception of Mr. B. White of the city.

The true home, our never failing fountain of happiness—should be kept pure. As an intelligent, progressive people we cannot afford to let anything lower our standard of civilisation. Most of us have an ideal mental and physical perfection, and we owe that condition to posterity. The child, like plants and flowers, needs to be carefully and thoroughly cultivated. That culture should begin early—yes, in the germ—to attain the end sought.

The report of the year was very encouraging. The total receipts for the year were $1,012.25.

1000 PEOPLE IN PETERBORO

Are stronger, healthier, and more vigorous since they have taken Bonised Phosphorus with Iron. Are you one of these? If you are not healthy your doctor will tell you that 90 per cent. of all the ailments of the liver, kidneys, heart and bladder are caused through impurities being in the blood and the weakest organ of your body suffers. Dr. Malnprise says he can take a person who is run-down, weak, anaemic or nervous and restore them to good health in 10 to 20 days by giving them one to three tablets of Bonised Phosphorus with Iron. This remedy is almost immediately absorbed by the system and you can feel the strengthening effects directly after taking it. This is an excellent remedy and owing to so many imitations it is only allowed to be dispensed by one druggist in each city. The agent for Peterborough is F. C. Weber, Charlotte street.

S. A. NOTES

A great memorial service for those who have given their lives for the Empire will be held at the S. A. Temple, Simcoe street, on Good Friday eve at 8 o'clock.

Photos on slides will be thrown on the canvass of all those who belong to the Army and a great number who don't.

The building will be decorated for the occasion.

A full list of names will appear next week of the illustrous dead.

THE ONLY MEDICINE FOR LITTLE ONES

Mrs. Timothy Bowes, Blissfield, N. B., writes:—"I have always used Baby's Own Tablets for my three children and I can speak very highly of them as I could not get along without them. Baby's Own Tablets are the only medicine I would use for my children." The Tablets cure all the minor ills of little ones and the mother who always keeps a box of them in the house may feel reasonably safe against the consequences of sudden attacks of illness. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

NIX ON FARMING; WE'VE SEEN ENOUGH SPADES, SAYS BERT

He and Johnny Reilly Put Damper on Benevolent Non-combatant's Plan For Back to the Land After the War

(From the Montreal Star)

Crowborough, Feb. 28, 1917

Dear Bill—Well, me and John Reilly has been in society and now we're out of it and we ain't sorry, believe me, because it ain't like what I thought it was, but more like a general inspection than going out for a good time. So we're out of it and both of us feeling quqite well. It ain't like the swell society you see in the movies where there's always a villain after the girl in a dress suit, or a crook after the family jewels in the safe in the wall behind the piano.

There was one guy there, all slicked up with a coat that only had one button in front but tails behind, that I had my eye on every time he went near the piano, but he didn't pull nothing and so we didn't have much fun.

The place we went, Bill, was the swell manshun where we helped out serving refreshments the night they had the big reception, and we collected the money for the War Lone. They asked us to go up for tea the next Sunday and so on Saturday we went down to the village and bought a cake which we sent up, cakes being expensive here now and we thought we'd like to show we was regular fellows. They said to come about 4 o'clock and when we got our buttons and boots shined, we beat it over to the Soldiers' Home and had some sardines and pickles and half a dosen doughnuts each and cherry-cider. On Sundays we have supper about five and Johnny said that they ate late in society so we might not get tea till about 7:30 or maybe 8.

KITCHEN MECHANIC ON JOB.

Well, when we got to the house there was quite a few people there. The kitchen mechanic showed us into the parlor and the old gink what asked us to come, came over and shook hands and a lot of Janes and guys in uniforms and some in civies, came up, and we was introduced. And then in comes a maid pushing a kind of cart with eats on it. After the kids grew up I suppose they took the chassis of the baby carriage and built a body on it to push the eats around on.

Well, you know, Bill, how you feel when someone offers you eats and you ain't got no proper place to put them. I just give Johnny a look and some Jane grabs me, and makes me sit down on the sofa by the window.

Well, I sat down and they begin handing me stuff. Gee, Bill, you need to be a juggler to be in society. They give me a cup and saucer and spoon, and a plate and sandwiches and cake and more cake, and first the spoon would fall and then a sandwich and then some cake, and all the time this Jane was talking. She says how splendid it was of us to want to have money in the war lone and a lot of bunk like that and then she asks how I felt since coming to Crowborough.

"O," says I, "I'm picking up" and went after the spoon and dropped some cake.

Well, she laughed and every one looked and that made me more nervous and I dropped everything off the plate and she told them the wheese, while I was on my knees gathering it in. Then she says: "O, we must be quiet now. Cuthbert's going to sing one of Tagory's poems." Cuthbert was good for that guy. He wore his hair parted in the middle and long and a eyeglass, and it wasn't a regular song he sang. He wanted someone to pick a flower and honour it by touching it with their hands.

Now I ask you, Bill, does that sound reasonable? It didn't strike me as being anything to make a fuss over but Cuthbert seemed to make a hit with it. When the riot had subsided slightly, the Jane says:

"Don't you think the composer has caught the mysticism and cymbalism of the East in his music?"

"Well," says I, "the cymbals is certainly a popular musical instrument in them Eastern Lands" says I. Ain't it funny, Bill, how stuff you heard at Sunday School even when you're a kid sticks with you? I can remember the teacher telling us a cymbal was a kind of flute.

Then she says, "I love the Oriental music and dancing and poems.'

"Well," says I, "you'd better not come to Montreal. They won't stand for that Oriental dancing, not since the Girl in Blue was pinched down at the old Royal."

PUBLIC NUISANCE.

We got on fine chatting away, Bill, until some guy, what I heard was a member of Parliament, stood up with his back to the fire and began to talk. He seemed to be like one of these public nuisances, Bill, what has to make a speech if they get three people together at one time, like old Nutty Oliver, the Socialist in the shop.

This guy was talking about what was going to be done for the soldiers after the war and how it would be fine, all these thousands of men what had been cluttering up the cities going out on farms and carving a home out of the wilderness.

"After two or three years of life in the open, strong virile adventurous life, these men will not want to return to the counter, the workshop, the office or the factory," he says. "The great out-doors will draw them and one of the Empire's problems the problem of getting the men back to the land, will be solved.

"Don't you hear the Call?" says he, turning to Johnny Reilly. Don't you want to share in the adventure of developing Canada into the granary of the Empire?"

"No," says Johnny. Well, Bill, it was just like Johnny had dropped a basket of eggs with everyone looking at him and not expecting it. The guy nearly fell in the fire. He says, "What?" "No," says Johnny. "When I go back I'm going right to the city and I'm going to stay there. I was born and raised in the big smoke and I don't see any adventure in pushing a plough from one end of a field to the other."

Well, that shut the public nuisance up, for most of the people snickered and, after that, we talked about the war and was uncomfortable and nothing happened. Gee, Bill, if it was at home, by that time, with all the pillows around, there would have been some kind of a rough house and we would have mussed up Cuthbert a little and took a couple of girls' hair down and hid the hair pins, but they just sat around and talked and never even had a sing song round the piano.

So we wasn't sorry when it was all over, Bill, and we was on our way home. But what worries me, Bill, is this business of making us all farmers after the war. Even if I wanted to go on a farm. Bill, I'd be a fool because I got my trade what I can earn good money at, and I don't know nothing about farming. I'd probably plant the onions where I should have planted the oats or do some fool thing like that.

This guy what's in Parliament says as how in reward for our sacrifices we will get land out in the West. Now, Bill, I ask you, what would I do with land in the West? I don't suppose I could sell it, and I certainly ain't going to turn farmer. I wish you'd find out about this, Bill, and wire me up about it, because lots of the fellows want to know. We never talked of it before, because when the war's over, we thought if we come through that we'd just start in where we left off with two or three years thrown away, so to speak, so far as getting on is concerned. But if they're going to make us strat farming, Bill, it ain't good enough. Could n't they give us a couple of hundred dollars to get a start again? With that and all that 50 cents a day they're holding out on us from our pay we might have enough to get jobs at the City Hall, or something.

Anyway, Bill, take it from me, there's lots of the fellows what has dug up most of the South of England and the North of France in these last two years, making trenches, who won't want to look at a spade when they get back.

With all these submarines around maybe you won't get this letter, Bill. If you don't you'll know what's happened to it. Write soon.

A STRONG SPIRIT OF SELF-CONTROL IS APPARENT IN ENGLAND

most optimistic of reports, the greatest need.

There is even a strong demand by a certain section of the Conservatives for the entire reconstruction of the House of Lords. The English Jews are loudest in their expressions of delight as they see in the new regime the realization of their long delayed liberation and receive with tears every allusion to new Russia at any gatherings at which they predominate in numbers.

Russia also reacts on the Irish question, where all reactionary tendencies are purposely discredited, but up to the present time no progress can be reported on the new attempt for a settlement of this extremely great national problem, though in spite of some vicissitudes which are inevitable amid such a conflict of interest of both political and sectarian natures, I still believe that a settlement of the Irish question will soon come.

At this time the situation is somewhat complicated by the strained relations between Lloyd George and his former Irish friends through his tactless speech of a fortnight ago and therefore there are no longer free interchanges of ideas between the Premier and the leaders of the Irish party which are essential to arriving at any deal between such extreme demands.

Another difficulty, of course, is Lloyd George's entire absorption of the war problem, in this the most critical hour of the great conflict, and Lloyd George has long been credited with having the faculty of becoming so absorbed in one great problem as for the moment to shut his mind absolutely against any profound consideration of any problem.

One must add to this that in his present cabinet Lloyd George finds himself hourly in touch with the strongest personalities on the Orange side while on the other hand the Irish cause has the advantage at this moment of being bound up with the fortunes of Lloyd George's ministry.

Everybody in England, everybody in the House of Commons, with infinitesimal exceptions are crying for a settlement of this most vital question. If therefore this settlement has failed of accomplishment, unless it be shown that this failure is due to an unreasonableness on the part of Ireland herself this failure would be received with such dismay and disgust that the prestige of Lloyd George's ministry would be profoundly weakened.

Increased Opposition.

Further failure must mean such an increase in opposition to the Irish question in the House of Commons as would drive Lloyd George to agree to a general election, which is regarded by all sane men as a disaster by the bringing about of much turmoil and dissention at a moment when the state of the European war demands the most tranquil concentration and the inflexible unity of all parties and of all parts of the British Empire.

Thus many things combine at this moment to make such a settlement, if not inevitable, at least much easier than ever before. Reports are common to the effect that the Orangemen are ready to make such concessions as will safeguard and symbolize the indivisible unity of Ireland and that they will agree to such recognition of an Irish parliament in Dublin as will come from joint consultations on national matters as distinct and separate from more provincial interests.

But again trusting to rumour they still insist one six county blocks which under no circumstances would receive the consideration and consent of the Irish party.

A remarkable feature of the moment and also an additional help towards the settlement of the Irish question is the extraordinary and incredibly rapid transformation of opinion on the part of the public towards Ireland. There was a violent tide running some weeks ago, especially at the Roscommon election against the Redmond-Irish party which turned into equally violent expression of ire, there favourite exposure against Count Plunkett as a life-long office seeker while posing as a leader of an incorruptibly pure party.

This may be first rent in the new anti-party movement. And a bigger rent was made by his circular to local bodies asking for representatives at the National convention. Irish newspapers contain columns every day of reports of these bodies in which the unfortunate Count is roundly assailed and the only choice of most of the councils is whether or not the circular shall be read or thrown into the fire.

This accompanied vehement renewals of expressions of confidence in Redmond's and his party, even in councils sent "telegrams mountmellicin" to Queen's County. For instance their congratulations were sent to Plunkett after the Roscommon election but these same bodies have now unanimously rejected his policy.

Many Scornful Rejections.

Up to date thirty-four local bodies have rejected and five have accepted Plunketts convention plans, and each day brings a new list of scornful rejections.

This steadying of opinion on the Irish question has helped enormously in the Irish party's acceptance of reasonable and the rejecting of unreasonable proposals from Lloyd George.

I am convinced, but I am giving expression in these words to the opinion of the overwhelming majority of the British people: I know I am expressing the opinion of men of all parties in the House of Commons, in fact I am positive that the voice of the whole British Empire joins in the chorus for the settlement of the question which lies so near to every true Irishman's heart.

"IN WALKED JIMMY"

Dispels Gloom For a Whole Season —Human Interest Comedy

The grand old game of bluff, played right up to the notch by a clever young man, who possesses "a heart full of love, four dollars and thirty-seven cents and two neckties" is the mediunr for introducing "In Walked Jimmy," the four-act comedy which brings George Summers and a high-class company of fifteen people to "The Grand," on Good Friday, April 6th, for two performances, matinee at 2.30, and evening, at 8.15.

Jimmy, full of sunshine and "pep" to say nothing of a few ideas on the management of a baby shoe factory, has been dispelling gloom for a whole season, and still there are a few people who have never made his acquaintance. More is the pity, because Jimmy is worth knowing. Jimmy manages everything. Even Old Sol is on his pay roll, ready at his beck and call to turn on the sunshine in great golden floods whenever gloom threatens to get the upper hand.

Described as "a comedy with a purpose," this play from the pen of Mrs. Ronie H. Jaffa, a clever California playwright, is guaranteed to please because it possesses all the element of a successful human interest comedy, sprinkled with witty dialogue, and abounding in clever situations, and played by a carefully selected and thoroughly capable cast of fifteen, under the direction of the United Producing Company.

Japanese Warship Sunk By a German Raider?

VANCOUVER, B. C., March 30.—A despatch to The Canadian News from Tokia says that a German raider sunk a Japanese warship in the Southern Pacific. The names of the vessels were not disclosed.

The presence of a German raider in the southern seas and in the Indian Ocean has been rumoured several times lately, official reports having been given out to the effect that two British merchant ships had been sunk in that vicinity.

Freckles

MARCH WORST MONTH FOR THIS TROUBLE—HOW TO REMOVE EASILY.

There is a reason why nearly every body freckles in March, but happily there is also a remedy for these ugly blemishes and no one need stay freckled.

Simply get an ounce of othine, double strength, from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and in a few days you should see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the light ones have vanished entirely. Now is the time to rid yourself of freckles, for if not removed now they may stay all summer, and spoil an otherwise beautiful complexion. Your money back if othine fails.

Coal Will Sell at $8.50 a Ton On First Day of May

U. S. Dealers Made Usual Spring Reduction For April 1, But It Will Be Delayed By the Retailers in Montreal Until May 1

MONTREAL, March 30.—There will probably be a general reduction of fifty cents a ton in the price of anthracite coal quoted by the large dealers in the United States for spring delivery, and this will doubtless be followed by a reduction in Montreal on May 1 to about the price which prevailed last spring, $8.50 per ton. This forecast was made by one of the leading firms in the city. The usual spring reduction is made on April 1, but it will be delayed by most of the Montreal firms a month this year on account of the shortage of coal which still exists, the shortage of carters, bad roads and other conditions.

This news will be hailed with joy by thousands of householders and it is safe to predict that the local firms will do the biggest summer's business in their history, as people will not let themselves be caught with empty bins next winter, if putting in early orders can prevent that occurrence.

A reduction of fifty cents per ton from the winter circular price of egg, stove and nut coal, was announced by the Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company yesterday. This company is the first of the big coal producers to give notice of the spring reduction. While it has been customary to quote lower figures in the spring circular sent to the retail coal trade, it was thought that owing to the abnormal condition prevailing in the coal trade there might not be any discount this year and the decision of the company to put into effect on and after Monday next a reduced price list came as a surprise to the U. S. coal trade. Prices of broken pea, and buckwheat No. 1, 2 and 3 coal may also be reduced, it is understood.

In announcing the new spring price list the Philadelphia company makes it plain that the new quotations are not stationary, but, like all spring circular prices, ten cents per ton will be added each month, thus automatically restoring winter prices on September 1.

High School Club Of Y. M. C. A. Had Most Successful Year

The Senior High School Club closed a most successful season last night when twenty-five young men were present. This Club has had an enrollment of more than fifty members who have taken up the study of life problems for High school men. Twenty of the young men present last evening filled out examination papers in connection with the fifteen lessons that they have had in connection with the studies. These papers will be first passed upon by a local committee and then sent to an examining Board at Toronto, and every member whose paper receives at least seventy-five points will receive a very fine certificate.

About twenty-five or thirty boys in Bible study groups are taking examinations in the various studies.

Orangemen Commemorate Inauguration

Banquet Was Held Last Evening in the Empress Hotel in Recognition of the 9th Anniversary of the Inception of the Duke of Manchester L. O. L. No 50

THE TOAST LIST

A banquet commemorating the ninth anniversary of the inauguration of the Duke of Manchester, Loyal Orange Lodge No. 50, was held last evening in the Empress Hotel. The guests included a number of ladies, as well as visiting members of the Order. A sumptuous repast supplemented, as more than one speaker remarked, by the good service of the hotel, paved the way to an excellent toast list, over which Toastmaster Worshipful Brother E. F. Reid presided. A feature of the evening was the unveiling of the honour roll, disclosing the names of fifty-six members out of a total lodge membership of one hundred and ten, who have joined the colours. Some of them have laid down their lives o nthe battlefields of Europe, others have been wounded, and the prison camps of Germany claim a number.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie.

In connection with the toast list, a slight variation was followed in that the toastmaster proposed all of the toasts. After the usual toast to the King, which was recognized in a hearty manner, Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., was called upon to respond to the toast to "Canada and the Empire."

Mr. Gillespie, believing that he was to propose the toast, said that he did not prepare a long speech. "Canada on the whole," said Mr. Gillespie, "is doing her share to uphold the best traditions of the British Empire. We know what it means to be Canadians and will feel what it means when the boys return crowned with victory. While we may not be permitted to go overseas we can do our bit at home. It is just as necessary and just as much our duty to do everything to assist in anything that will help the cause of the Empire even if we have to work twenty-four hours a day to do it. The greater production campaign commands the attention of all of us who remain at home. In this regard we must strain every effort to help in the production of food supplies.

At the close of the war, Canada will have to deal with many new problems. Now that the ladies are on equal footing with the men, they must accept a share of the responsibility that goes with it.

Ex-Mayor W. H. Buller.

Ex-Mayor W. H. Buller said that he was proud of the British Empire. "We have always been accustomed to living a peaceful life," said the speaker. "To-day we are confronted with a desperate and ruthless enemy. We have organized one of the largest armies in the shortest time to fight this enemy. We are proud of the boys who have left their homes and gone forth to fight the battles of the Empire. We have on the honour roll of the lodge, sixty-six members, many of whom have passed away. About five hundred Orangemen in the city and county of Peterborough have gone forth to fight the foe. Sir Sam Hughes has stated that over seventy thousand Orangemen have enlisted.

The Honour Roll.

Worshipful Brother J. H. Spence, who unveiled the honour roll, paid a tribute to the ladies. "The Orange Lodge owes a great deal to the ladies," said the speaker. "The mothers in the home can do a great deal to inculcate in the minds of the growing child, the fundamental principles of the Orange Order. As a past master of the lodge, the speaker said he was proud to state that out of one hundred and ten members of the lodge, fifty-six had enlisted."

Mr. W. H. Smith assisted in the unveiling ceremony, which took place to the strains of "The Soldiers of the King," played by Miss Calder.

MR. J. H. BURNHAM, M.P.

Mr. Burnham said that he had been asked by the brethren to reply to the toast of "The Orangemen in khaki" and though he felt unworthy of the honour he had much pleasure in doing so. "When this session of parliament ends" said the speaker. "my leave ends and I go back overseas, and will again offer to go as a private in any branch of the service or work."

This is the age of a triumphant democracy. The people have acquired the right to rule themselves. For centuries they allowed more or less absolute kings to rule them by the law of so-called divine right, but as we see in the course of history this divine right is passing into oblivion. In the British Empire it passed at the Battle of the Boyne which was a struggle between those Catholics and Protestants who believed in the divine right of the King and fought in support of it on that occasion and those who did not. If the crisis had not come then no doubt it would have come later but at any rate the question of divine right was fought out at that battle and the British people throughout the empire thus had won for them the right of free speech and free action and they enjoy those measures to-day thanks to the men who fought for them at the Boyne, where the revolution ended. That we have this degree of freedom to-day is frankly admitted by people of all creeds and political opinions in the Empire. Moreover the influence of this great movement had been world wide and that those who believe in the principles fought for and won at the Battle of the Boyne should form themselves into a society for the perpetuation of the memory of that fact an dof the fact itself is both natural and proper. We have in the Empire a large number of associations for various purposes such as the Ancient Order of Hibernians, the Knights of Columbus, etc. They are all good so long as they practice the charity and good-will which they profess. People in a democracy cannot come together and discuss their ideas, grievances and purposes in any other way and when they all work for the common good of the nation and the liberty and well-being of the people such associations represent the methods by which a free democracy expresses its opinion and seeks to remove the stumbling blocks in the way of the progress of the state and of the development of civilization. No one will deny that any association which strives for the liberty of the people is on the right track and if sometimes these various associations criticize each other and even oppose each other and abuse each other so long as they are striving for the common good and the general freedom of the people they are not open to objection. It is sparks flying from a machine fashioning the future. It is with them as with men. Men oppose each other somtemes bitterly and even insultingly, but if their aim and object is always for the general good we merely smile at the weaknesses of humanity and acknowledge the right of men to differ as well as improve

MAIN PRINCIPLE.

It is upon this lofty plane that Orangeism was built and if this great principle has not always been lived up to by every Orangeman who will say that the Society has not stood firmly for liberty and the people's rights? Religious bodies and political parties have throughout their history shown both the strength of this main principle and often the weakness also of the individual performances but they too hope to improve. It is the duty, therefore, of us all to take a vital interest in the welfare of such a society and to show that we are ready to guard and preserve that liberty which our ancestors fought for and which we enjoy and should strive to preserve. 20,00 Orangemen of Canada are now fighting for this principle on the plains of France and Flanders and they fight freely in alliance with all creeds in defence of all creeds so long as liberty may be maintained and freedom upheld. Sometimes within nations it is very difficult to reconcile differences and the highest modern development in that respect is the principle of federation where, as in Canada, provinces rule themselves. In Ireland it is sought to raise up just such a federation so that those provinces in Ireland which prefer provincial autonomy may have it. For some provinces there to oppose the principle is something that we Canadians cannot understand. The British offer of provincial autonomy to all those considerable parts of Ireland whether north or south which may wish it would appear to us to be an offer of the freedom which we in Canada so highly prize and consider the last word in government. Matters affecting Ireland alone would then be dealt with in Ireland each in its own province as proposed under Home Rule. The troubles of Ireland have lain in long-range dealing with short range local matters with dealing as it were, at Ottawa with things that affect the different provinces only and are the domestic business of those provinces and not that of the Dominion. Westminster is the Ottawa of the United Kingdom and must remain so as long as that Kingdom remains united. The province of that Kingdom are working towards a federation like that of the provinces of our own Dominion, free to regulate their own finances, their own school's, their own system of agriculture, their mines, their timber, their tenancies, their farms, their religions, their manufacturers, their taxes, their foods their drinks, their horses, their cattle and everything that is theirs. Let each considerable part of the Kingdom be like Ontario, Quebec, etc., a province. Let each be two provinces if they like. Where then is the trouble? Why should any one part go mad because it cannot coerce another part. Has there not been enough coersion? Why should not Ireland be free to look after its domestic affairs and every province of Ireland be free also, as with us in Canada? If Ireland resents coercion why does she propose to coerce? Interference with provincial rights has wrecked governments in Canada before this. Why should the Government of the United Kingdom be asked to interfere with any part of the Kingdom whether it be a part of England, Scotland, Ireland or Wales when that part is big enough and important enough to be a province and have provincial rights and autonomy. The Irish question affects and disturbs the whole Empire, but it is impossible to get away from the feeling that the incident described in the following clipping from The Catholic Register of March 22nd, 1917 is characteristic of much of the trouble in Ireland:

The next speaker was Col. J. W. Miller, who referred to the warlike activities of 1866. The speaker reviewed the Canadian participation in the present war. "We found that our boys on the fields of Flanders were the sons of men who upheld the traditions of the Empire, in former wars," said Mr. Miller. We have to-day the proud privilege of saying God save OUR King and OUR Union Jack, because this is our war, and we are standing side by side with Britain's best. Many of our brave boys have laid down their lives. They are in God's keeping.

On fame's eternal camping ground
Their silent tents spread,
And glory guards in solemn round
The bivouac of dead.

The ladies of this land have done as well as the men of this land. You have all heard of the splendid work of Florence Nightingale, in the Crimea. We have thousands of Florence Nightingales, How many boys have been helped by the comforts you have sent?

BRO. W. A. HOWARD.

Fire Chief Howard, in responding to the toast of "Our City," said that the industrial life of the city was represented by forty-six manufacturing plants. It requires annually, eighteen thousand two hundred and fifty freight cars to move our products in and out of Peterborough. Our assets are double our liabilities, and our city is progressing by leaps and bounds. "We are a moral and religious people," said the Chief. The political life of our city has been like Caesar's wife, beyond reproach. The social life is all that could be desired for a city of this size. In conclusion, the speaker extended his personal congratulations to the Duke of Manchester Lodge on the occasion of its ninth anniversary.

BRO. J. EDGAR.

Ex-Alderman J. Edgar voiced the sentiment of Chief Howard respecting the many advantages that obtain in Peterborough. He referred to the serious loss to the city due to the destruction of the Quaker Oats plant. He was glad to know that the Company had decided to re-establish here and expressed the hope that the citizens would adequately support the bridge by-law.

In a tribute to the boys who had enlisted Mr. Edgar said: "The Council has said that they would look after the men upon their return from the front. What is the present City Council doing for them? "It is true they employed one man in the capacity of Sanitary Inspector. When the position was again open they engaged a man who had never been in khaki. The Council sometimes forgets its promises.

When a man enlists and goes to fight the battles of the Empire nothing is too good for him when he returns.

THE TOASTMASTER.

Wor. Bro. E. F. Reid, speaking to the toast of the Grand Lodge, said that one week ago he attended a meeting in Belleville of the Eastern Ontario Grand Lodge. He was pleased to learn that the Grand Lodge of Ontario East had far outrivalled the Grand Lodge of Onario West. It was at this meeting that the Rev. S. T. Wickett of Fraserville was elected deputy chaplain.

BRO. GEO. McCARTNEY.

Right Worshipful Brother George McCartney, Grand Organizer, responding to the toast to the Grand Lodge, said that he had always felt that the principles for which the Orange Lodge stood, were his principles, and he did not have to change anything when he became a member. He was pleased to learn of the progress of the Duke of Manchester Lodge. The speaker paid a tribute to the city and its many advantages. "We believe w have a mission," said the speaker. We have a mighty heritage and whoever lives fifty years from now will see in this land a population of fifty or sixty

Hurrah! How's This

Cincinnati authority says corns dry up and lift out with fingers.

Hospital records show that every time you cut a corn you invite lockjaw or blood poison, which is needless, says a Cincinnati authority who tells you that a quarter ounce of a drug called freezone can be obtained at little cost from the drug store but is sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus.

You simply apply a few drops of freezone on a tender, aching corn and soreness is instantly relieved. Shortly the entire corn can be lifted out, root and all, without pain.

This drug is sticky but dries at once and is claimed to just shrivel up any corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin.

If your wife wears high heels she will be glad to know of this.

COPPER

Based on current dividend rates and earnings, the copper stocks are cheap. Most of the large producers will have surplus accounts at the end of 1917 sufficient to pay current dividends for three of four years. There is to-day no one group of securities in which the protection of the investment is so great in measurable values, or on which the yield is so high as in the securities of the leading copper producers. TAKE A GLASS OF SALTS TO FLUSH THE KIDNEYS IF YOUR BACK HURTS

Advises folks to overcome Kidney and Bladder trouble while it is only trouble

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

Hindenburg May Try An Invasion Of England Soon

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., March 31. — In some quarters it is believed that Hindenburg will attempt a master stroke in a few weeks by sending an immense army to invade England with the help of the augmented German fleet. According to some German newspapers arriving here, Germany would expect this invasion if successful to bring the war to a victorious conclusion for Germany at once. If the Germans are planning any such move, however, the British will be in a position to meet them. Nothing has been left undone to increase the security of the British Isles from an invasion in force.

Peterboro' People Are in Florida

EUREKA, March 31. — There is considerable activity in land matters here. Eleven acres purchased by Dr. E. A. Spilsbury, of Yonkers, New York, formerly of Peterborough, Ontario, is being cleared and will be scarified and planted to choice varieties of avocado and citrus under the direction of Mr. Nesbitt. Mrs. W. F. Boswell of Edmonton, Alta., formerly of Peterborough, Ontario, also Miss Spilsbury of Peterborough, guests of Mrs. Nesbitt, are enjoying Eureka's wonderful climate.

Mr. T. G. Raynor, writing in The Farmer's Advocate, says that an analysis of No. 2 C.W. oats bought for seed showed 263 noxious weed seeds per pound, of which 260 were wild oats. "It is easy to figure," he says, "what this would mean to the land thus sown at the rate of 1 1-2 bushels per acre, viz., 13,260 wild oats, and probably that many plant would grow, many of which would shed their seed before the oats were cut to lie over in the ground and grow the next spring, many of them as a volunteer crop."

THE WORLD OF SPORT

The 247th Smoker Was A Fine Success

Good Boxing and Splendid Address by Sergt. W. E. Turley Featured Programme at the Armouries Last Night—Riverside Boxers Gave a Clever Exhibition.

The smoker in the Armouries last night under the auspices of the 247th Battalion was a great success from the view point of enjoyment, although the attendance was not as large as the excellence of the programme merited. The two biggest features of the evening were the six-round boxing bout between Frankie Bull and 'Red' Gallagher of the Riversides, Toronto, and the speech of Sergt. W. E. Turley, Secretary of the Great War Veterans, Toronto branch who was overseas with the 18th Battalion, 1st Canadian Division.

Sergt. Turley who is an old Canadian champion boxer himself was third man in the ring for all the bouts and handled them in capital fashion, while his address, which was featured by a number of funny stories of incidents at the front and interspersed with the singing of some of the ditties that are popular with the boys overseas was one of the big hits of the evening. Sergt. Turley paid a great tribute to the fighting ability of the British Tommy, exemplified by the immortal retreat from Mons. The cheerfulness of the Cockney at the front was emphasized by the speaker who said the Irishman, noted for his good nature, was a quiet, sour person alongside the Cockney.

He told of how his battalion stretched out in a ditch alongside a road after being badly cut up in an engagement, watched a British battalion march up into action. "What regiment are you?" he had shouted as the head of the column.

"We're the Middlesex, the old 'ards Where's yer blimed battle" was the cheery reply from the British Tommy.

Of the nature born Canadian Sergt. Turley said that bravely as fought the Englishman, the Irishman or the Scotchman, the nature born from the land of the Maple Leaf was as good as the best of them and better than a lot. The boys of the 247th and the others who are going overseas now were to be envied. Great as had been the glory won by the 1st British Expeditionary Force and by the different Canadian divisions, it would be forgotten or nearly so in the glory of the day when the troops of the Empire went "over the top" for the last time in the final drive.

Sergt. Turley told the audience of meeting Major O'Flynn of the 247th at Givenchy. In conclusion he delighted the audience with a most dramatic recitation "Rifleman Joseph Brown" given in a most effective manner.

The bout between Bull and Gallagher was a hard fought all the way. Both, hold championship titles and both have won hard battles in the United States as well as in Canada. The two boys gave a clever, fast exhibition and carried the battle to each other throughout the last two rounds, being especially speedy. No decision was given as to the result, but both boys were heartily applauded as they left the ring.

Bandsman Dallin of the 247th Band and Sergt. Giorno of the Dental Corps met in a three round bout at 125 pounds and the bout was a splendid one with both boys showing fine form. They mixed it freely and the crowd enjoyed the go.

Pres. Hilt and Way of the 247th also met in a three round affair that was rather tame compared to the other bouts.

A battle royal between three blindfolded members of the 247th provided plenty of amusement and two little fellows "Kid Coat" and "Kid Pants" went three rounds at top speed and with plenty of action.

The band of the 247th provided an enjoyable programme.

Major O'Flyn was master of ceremonies and Capt. Belton acted as timer.

Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I would like to know where our policemen are at night. On George street no doubt, while the other streets have no protection from thieves who roam our streets at night. A person cannot leave a chair or sleigh on their verandah but some one will take possession of it. On Wednesday night after the snow storm some one walked on to a verandah of a Sherbrooke street residence and took a nice red sleigh The footprints were plainly seen in the new fallen snow in the morning. A person might overlook the theft if a child did it, but the foot prints were those of a man. I think it is a very small man who would steal a child's sleigh off a verandah while its little owner was asleep. This is not the first article that has been stolen in the vicinity of Sherbrooke street. I think the police should be on the look-out for these night thieves. If one were caught and punished it would put a stop to it. Thanking you for your space,

Yours truly,

A Housewife.

Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—The Reverend gentleman, who said that Satan is behind Christian Science, seems to have an uncanny familiarity with the adversary, and an equally amasing ignorance of that which he opposes. No such respect fo, the devil was shown by Christ Jesus, who rebuked the error which Peter had voiced by saying: "Get thee behind me, Satan." Surely he was not addressing a personal devil, but rather speaking in the highly figurative language of the East. He was using the common personification for evil, the one evil or the evil one. Thus he put evil behind him; and in this sense it is behind Christian Science. Also false Theology and Demonology are put behind Truth, and should be considered out of date. There is no proof of the existence of a personal devil, and Jesus said, "there is no truth in him." Evil is the suppositional opposite of the infinite one. What we all need is to know more, not of evil but of good, in order to experience better, healthier, saner lives.

Christian Science, far from denying the Atonement, explains it as the unity between God and man, which Christ Jesus exemplified.

Yours sincerely,

GEORGE R. LOWE.

Christian Science Committee on Publication for Ontario.

Peterborough, March 31st, 1917.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Allow me to congratulate you on your editorial in last evening's issue of the Examiner on "Senators and Senators." You say that partizanship is not the big thing to be considered in the election of a Senator and I certainly agree with you. Now I think the nucleus for a greater Peterborough should be the appointment of one of our own citizens to the Senate. I think when choosing a Senator it is not necessary for him to have had previous parliamentary honours conferred upon him by being a member of either the Federal or Provincial Government, nor do I think wealth should have the entire influence, but the man should be a clean, just, upright citizen, whose ability and untiring efforts for a long term of years has contributed to the honour and advancement of the community in which he lives. Surely we have such a man in Peterborough who deserves recognition in this respect. Why not a number of our influential citizens get together, such as our Mayor and the New Civic Association and make the choice of a good, honourable citizen who will be in favour with our Federal member, Capt. Burnham and also the Power at Ottawa? Let us go to this with a big push and determination to see it through.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor for your valuable space.

Yours,

"For a Greater Peterborough"

Orangemen Commemorate

million people. There is one question that remains to be settled and that is the school issue. As a result of an investigation conducted in the eastern counties by the Grand Lodge a legislative committee was formed whose duty it is so keep a finger on the pulse of the political situation, and see that every boy and girl gets an English education.

All honour to Mr. N. W. Rowell and Premier Hearst for assisting us in our efforts.

The Grand Lodge of Ontario East represents a membership of four hundred lodges. There is no man living to-day too good to be an Orangeman, said the speaker, in conclusion.

Rev. S. T. Wickett.

Rev. S. T. Wickett, who was the next speaker, said he felt it a very easy task to follow an old war horse like Bro. McCartney. "With regard to Peterborough, I was impressed with all that I have heard," said Mr. Wickett. I listened with all the ears I have to some references to the market. Let me say you have a splendid market. When I buy a pound of butter in Fraserville I paid market prices, less two cents. I have looked east and west and so far as I am concerned, I do not know of a nicer city than Peterborough. There is a genial hospitality here that you do not find everywhere. I am glad to be identified with the brethren because they stand for high ideals. If a man is a good man when he enters the Orange Order he ought to be a better man after he becomes a member.

The toast to the "Sister Lodges" was responded to by Mr. George Williamson, District Master, and Mr. E. H. Brown, District Master of Number one lodge.

Brother A. F. Hagerman made a very appropriate reply to the toast to "The Ladies."

A very pleasant evening was brought to a close by the rendition of the National Anthem.

BIBLE FOR LITERACY TEST.

WASHINGTON, March 30.—Reading matter for a literacy test for aliens under the new immigration law will be taken from the Bible, the Department of Labour announced. Passages will be selected in more than one hundred languages and dialects.

"This is not because the Bible is considered a sacred book by many people," said the department's announcement, "but because it is now the only book in virtually every tongue. Translations of the Bible were made by eminent scholars, and, what is more to the point, the translating was done by men whose purpose it was to put the Bible in such simple and idiomatic expressions in the various foreign languages as would make it possible for the common people of foreign countries to grasp the meaning readily and thoroughly."

BAVARIA REJECTS TOURISTS.

Food so Scarce Even the Country People Don't Have Enough.

BERNE, March 30.—Advices from Munich say that, after having failed to induce the imperial authorities to increase the war regulations of food, so as to make provision for the customary spring and summer visitors who swarm to the numerous Bavarian resorts, the Bavarian officials have had to take energetic measures to discourage in every possible way the visit of tourists from other part of Germany.

The restrictions will be extended to the newest war product—the city dweller who visits the country regularly for the purpose of purchasing at any price the food he cannot get in his home town. Food in Bavaria already is so scarce that even the local country population has not sufficient.

The entire personnel of the coal mines at Pensberg, Upper Bavaria, is on strike, according to the Munich Post, because the men were insufficiently fed. The authorities are negotiating with them and, at the same time, trying to better their condition.

Bryant, Dunn & Company Weekly Letter.

NEW YORK, March 30. — Last week's vigorous upturn in stocks based on the application of the railroads for increased rates and on a somewhat remarkable statement of earnings issued by the U. S. Steel Corporation was followed this week by a continuation of the liquidation that began some days ago. Nevertheless the selling has not been heavy and the offerings have been readily absorbed. Stocks have gone into strong hands and investment buying has shown unmistakable increase. Although the meeting of Congress is near at hand when the question of war with Germany must be settled, this fact has not resulted in increased nervousness, as the time comes nearer. Belief is increasing that anything that is likely to occur in our relations in Germany have been fully discounted. The market paused for a time this week on the idea that the German Reichstag might take some action by way of changing the submarine warfare or might make a move for separate peace with Russia. Nothing however, was done. Things are still where they were before. Russia is reported to be making good progress under the new conditions brought about by the revolution. Probably this fact has much to do with the steadiness of our market. Any indication of separate peace with Russia would be viewed by financial interests here with concern. As it is they show confidence in the outlook both as to international conditions and as to business.

The confidence in the business outlook was reflected in the announcement of a large new bond issue by the Pennsylvania Railroad. A fit time is always selected for such announcements. Business conditions are remarkably good and leave little to be desired. In case of war between this country and Germany, still further expansion is looked for. The week has seen the letting of many new contracts by our Government and these along with the foreign demand, have stiffened prices. Various steel products have risen from $5 to $10 a ton this week. Pig iron is higher and some of the leading producers have withdrawn entirely from the market. Southern Iron is to-day selling at $30 to $35 a ton. This is considered by steel men as something quite remarkable.

The question of financing United States Government requirements in case of war is being carefully considered by financial interests. Large bond issues are contemplated but they will in no way interfere with the general market in our opinion. In fact, some persons in close touch with Washington still believe that there is small likelihood of war with Germany in the near future. As for these things it will be well to await developments. The investment outlook is extremely good and with promise of the railroads securing a reasonable increase in rates, we advise purchase of the better issues. Some of these as we have said from time to time are relatively much lower than the rest of the market and yield from 5½ per cent. to 6 per cent. on cost.

LIFE AND LOVE.

Bloom on, brave wind flower, in your sheltered nooks,
Flaunt wide your golden gleam, fair daffodil,
Sing, sing your maddest melody, oh brooks,
The world but yesterday was grey and chill!

Narcissus nestling 'mong the tender grass,
And violets blue as are the skies above,
A rapturous note thrills in the winds that pass,
"Two things there be immortal, Life and Love!"

Oh lily, lifting up your fragrant breath
Where late the snowflakes drifted riotously,
You whisper soft: "Where is thy sting, oh death.
Oh Grave, where is thy boasted victory?"

Each Eastertide a Resurrection song
Fills every valley, every field and grove;
The growing green things chant it all day long;
"Two things there be immortal, Life and Love!"

Jean Blewett.

"Faith, hope, love, these three, and the greatest of these is love."

To the sordid soul to look at the things unseen, seems an idle dream. To the self satisfied soul, aspiration seems only a restless and irrational dicontent. To the selfish soul the service of love seems an inexplicable waste of time, and the joy of giving and receiving an unbelievable experience. And yet, Sabatier is right, "Man is incurably religious"; Genesis is right, "God created man in His own image." The Psalmist is right, "Thou hast made him but little lower than God." In every normal man is the capacity for goodness and truth, hope and joy, love and service. But the sleeping capacity is naught unless it is awakened into life. It is a lifeless seed until it is given life by a power without and above itself. So I might say to the seeds in my garden bed, "You can never come into the kingdom of light and life and beauty until you are born from above," and all the while Gods sun, which shines alike on the evil and the good, is awaiting to give them life.

—Lyman Abbot.

BRIER.

GOOD FRIDAY.

Because, dear Christ, Your tender, wounded arm
Bends back the bier that edges life's long way
That no hurt comes to heart, to soul no harm,
I do not feel the thorns so much to-day.

Because I never knew Your care to tire,
Your hand to weary guiding me aright,
Because You walk before and crush the brier,
It does not pierce my feet so much to-night.

Because so often You have harkened to
My selfish prayers, I ask but one thing now,
That these harsh hands of mine add not until
The crown of thorns upon Your bleeding brow.

—Pauline Johnson.

RETURNS THANKS FOR SOCKS SENT

France, Feb. 18, 1917.

This is to let you know that a pair of socks, evidently your handiwork, found a willing and grateful wearer somewhere in muddy France. No doubt while patiently counting stitches you may have wondered as to the probable fate of this or that pair, and hoped that they would be sent where they would do the most good, and be properly appreciated by those so fortunate as to receive them.

In the case of this pair, let me thank you personally and assure you that it is regarded as a most welcome and, considering the season, appropriate gift. Just between ourselves though, it may interest you to know that I was secretly pleased by the band of red, white and blue around the top, for down where I come from we are very proud of that colour combination, but not too proud to fight in a worthy cause. So you see that your gift possessed a double appeal.

Now for the benefit of those of your acquaintance who may have knitted dozens of pairs without ever hearing what became of them, let me assure you that their efforts have been expended to good purpose and that they can really feel that their contribution has filled a real need, in fact a crying want. Tommy is a strangely inarticulate person, especially under certain conditions, and an issue of warm socks is accepted as is the gentle rain from heaven. So please reassure those of your League whose zeal may show signs of diminishing, that the stimulus of their warm hearted generosity will aid the big push this spring, and that they also serve who sit and knit.

Our battalion is a splendid one, and has won distinction in more than one instance. We cannot help but feel it an added honour to have received this token of the solicitude evinced by the ladies of your League for the welfare of our men. And this spring the proper season for avalanches, we will give old Canada something to read about.

So let me thank you again and all of the member of your League on behalf of those who may not be able to write. We do appreciate your efforts whether you hear from us or not.

Gratefully yours
Pte. Hawthorne Hill.

Live Hogs Quoted At Higher Prices

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs appeared in Canadian Grocer this week:

Two increases have taken place during the week which mean much to the grocery trade, namely, on sugar and flour. In the instance of the sugar the advance amounted to 40c per hundred and on flour 80c per barrel. The advance in sugar was occasioned through recent high prices which Canadian refiners were forced to pay for raw sugars. Flour on the other hand returned to the point recently reached in the fact of a continued firmness and high price for wheat.

Provisions were firm during the week with advances recorded in a number of lines of cooked and smoked meats. Live hogs were quoted at higher prices than those generally prevailing last week. Eggs moved downward during the week, due to heavier production on Canadian farms. The Canadian market is now almost entirely independent of the American source of supply. With continued good weather prices are expected to decline still further. Lobster is another of the commodities in which a decline has been registered. This has been occasioned through the shutting off of the British market to the packers of the Maritime Provinces. New Zealand onions came into the Ontario market for the first time, owing to the scarcity of other onions, and are commanding a high price. Potatoes held steady in price, but there is a disposition towards easier prices.

The recent British embargo on exports has cut off supplies of many staple lines, which in the past have been steady sellers in this market. Packet teas are very firm in price. Importers of teas have been unable to get promise of teas for shipment from Colombo or Calcutta. Tea can be bought at these points, but growers cannot promise shipment owing to scarcity of tonnage. Trade generally is good. Spring lines, including housecleaning supplies and garden seeds, etc., are beginning to move freely.

That one fire insurance policy is as good as another is always disproved by a conflagration. "It's like the Irishman's flannel shirt; it looks good," said a friend, "but does it shrink with the wash?" "I dunno yet," said Dennis, "shure oive only worn it a month."—

"Kin ye gimme a plate o' meat an' a hunk o' pie" a tramp asked a farmer.

"Yes, if you'll do some work," the farmer answered.

"What kind o' work?" said the tramp with a yawn.

"Digging potatoes," said the farmer.

The tramp yawned again.

"Ye'd better git the man wot plant 'em," he said. "He knows what they are."—Farm and Home (British.)

TO-DAY'S WAR NEWS

(By Perry Arnold)

NEW YORK, March 31.—St. Quentin, next to Cambrai, one of the key positions in the Hindenburg line, is now threatened by the tremendous drives launches from two directions by French and British forces.

Battlefront despatches, coupled with the French War Office report, gave indication of the menace which the advancing masses of French and British troops is proving to the German positions at St. Quentin. Details of fighting passed by the British field censor told of a rate of progress forward by General Haig's troops exceeding any since the first few days of the German retreat and of the capture of five villages and towns. Seven square miles was the total of territory wrested in this base operations. The British forces are advancing in a south-easterly direction on St. Quentin, while General Nivelle's French troops are pushing north and north-east.

NEW YORK, March 31.—With a report of having encountered a mysterious vessel that sent in German code messages by wireless, the American freighter Mongolia docked here to-day from England. The Mongolia was the first unarmed merchant steamship to make the round trip through the submarine zone, sailing from New York in February.

Fall of St. Quentin and Laon Is Imminent Ten Villages Captured

British Forces Drive Forward on the Western Front—Berlin Admits Advance of British Troops to a Depth of Two Miles—Further Progress Made by the French Troops.

5,000 PRISONERS CAPTURED

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, April 2.—The Fall of St. Quentin and Laon is imminent. Ten villages taken by the Allies on the Western front. British troops have captured the villages of Jeancourt, Hervilly, and Houdicourt, along the valley of the Cologne River. Due east of Peronne British troops have advanced to within four miles west of the Cambrai-St. Quentin Road and further south have forced the Germans back to within four miles of the centre of St. Quentin. Nearly five thousand Germans taken prisoners by the British in Flanders since January 1st.

DAY OF REPENTANCE AND PRAYER

Dear Friends in Christ:

In this, the most serious crisis our Empire and the nations of Europe have ever passed through, we feel deeply the need of unitedly seeking the face of our Holy God and Father, and humbling ourselves before Him.

He has, after many years of patience and forebearance, permitted His judgments to come upon the nations, and yet we have not turned to Him. Surely it is time for His children seriously to lay to heart the state of things which compels the continuance of His discipline, and to set apart time for humiliation, repentance, fasting and prayer, believing that in answer to this cry He will, in His wrath remember mercy.

For centuries God has manifested His grace and love towards us. As a nation we have been in a special way the recipients of His favour and yet we have largely turned our backs upon the supreme revelation of His love, the Lord Jesus Christ At unspeakable cost our Heavenly Father sacrificed His only Son to redeem this lost world and make His will known to men and nations. Yet, as a people, we have despised and neglected His gift, and in thought and deed have determined that we will not have this Man to reign over us. Of this, the greatest sin of all, we need must humbly to repent, as well as of all the sins of personal, family, church and national life, of which we are already aware, and which will be made yet more manifest to us as we wait upon God.

That God has not left Himself without witness in the midst of the prevalent unbelief and apostasy is evident. Everywhere groups of praying people have been entering into the Secret Place during these dark and terrible days, with broken and contrite hearts seeking after Him, and many definite answers to prayer have to be recorded to His praise. We feel that it would mean much to the Church of Christ and to His cause among the nations if many such groups in all parts of the Foreign Field, in Europe and in our Colonies could be linked together for a

DAY OF REPENTANCE AND PRAYER.

And we earnestly invite you to co-operate with us so that this may be brought about in a most effective way.

God willing we propose to set apart Good Friday, April 6th, 1917, for this purpose and, where possible, on subsequent days. We ask a definite interest in your prayers for this effort that it may be kept simple and in the line of God's will, and that His deepest purposes in it may be fulfilled. May the Holy Spirit constrain those whom (He would draw apart with Himself for this Day of Prayer, and may He teach us true repentance, and so inspire our prayers that greater victory may be won in the spiritual realm, and that an outpouring of the Spirit may quicken His Church into new life and power, for her work and witness for God unto the ends of the earth.

The above appeal having been received from England, it has been thought well to endeavour to give effect to it in this country; and this we more gladly do because we must all feel how very necessary it is that repentance and prayer should characterize the Lord's people in the present great crisis of our Empire. We should therefore suggest that, following up this invitation, meetings be held for confession, humiliation and prayer, so that God may be pleased shortly to terminate the present terrible strife in such a way as shall be for His glory and the welfare of the nations.

We would suggest therefore that where services are held on Good Friday these subjects should be made a prominent feature; and in churches where no service is usual on that day a SPECIAL meeting should be held, with the same end in view.

REV. DR. MARSH IN NEW CHARGE

Former Springville Pastor Was Given an Enthusiastic Reception

The Pickering News of March 30th says:

After several months' vacancy, St. Andrews church will hold service on Sunday next with their new pastor, Rev. Dr. Marsh, in charge. Dr. Marsh arrived in town on the evening train on Monday and proceeded at once to the church, where a reception was arranged for. Besides a large number of the members and adherents of the congregation, there were also present Rev. J. Bedford, of Pickering, Rev. H. D. Cameron, of Melville church, Scarboro, and Rev. Wm. Johnston of Ashburn, who is an intimate friend of Dr. Marsh. After partaking of refreshments provided by the ladies an impromptu programme was given, consisting of brief addresses by the clergymen present, the men of the congregation and solos by Mrs. T. M. McFadden and Miss Mary Clark. Dr. Marsh has been very successful in all his former charges, and we predict a period of prosperity for St. Andrew's church during his pastorate here. Dr. Marsh also enjoys a very high reputation as a scientist, not only in America, but also in Europe, and his lectures on astronomy are always most entertaining and instructive. In this work he is an enthusiast, and he has the faculty of making this subject which is frequently considered a dry one, a most interesting one. We welcome him to our village and hope that his sojourn here may be a pleasant and profitable one to all concerned.

"FAGGED-OUT WOMEN"

Will Find a Helpful Suggestion in This Letter

Overworked, run down "fagged out" women who feel as though they could hardly drag about, should profit by Mrs. Carter's experience. She says: "I am the mother of six children and I got so weak and run-down that I couldn't eat anything and it seemed almost impossible for me to get around and do my work. I tried different doctors' remedies without benefit. I saw Vinol advertised and decided to try it, and received so much benefit from the first bottle that I continued to take it, and it has built up my strength and made me strong and well. I consider Vinol the best medicine I have ever taken, and advise all weak, run-down women to try it." Mrs. Bessie Carter, State Road, N.C.

If all the tired, overworked, run-down women in Peterborough could only realize how our delicious Vinol, which contains beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptonates and glycerophosphates, supplies the vital elements necessary to build up blood and strength, we wouldn't be able to supply the demand.

Zimmerman Puzzled As To Intrigue Leak

Addressed Instructions to Mexico By Seemingly "Safe Route"—U. S. Practically Declared War and He Sought to Get Allies

JUSTIFIES HIS COURSE

LONDON, April 2.—Reuter's Amsterdam correspondent sends the following concerning the address of Dr. Alfred Zimmermann, minister of foreign affairs, with regard to Germany's attempt to embroil Mexico and Japan with the United States.

"Hugo Haase, leader of the Socialist minority in the Reichstag, remarked that the German offer of an alliance with Mexico had aggravated the situation with the United States, and Dr. Zimmermann replying, said: "I wrote no letter to Gen. Carranza. I was not so naive. I merely addressed, by a route that appeared to me to be a safe one, instructions to our representative in Mexico. I instructed the minister to Mexico, in the event of war with the United States, to propose a German alliance to Mexico, and simultaneously to suggest that Japan join the alliance. I declared expressly that, despite the submarine war, we hoped America would maintain neutrality.

SLAM AT WASHINGTON.

"My instructions were to be carried out only after the United States declared war and a state of war supervened. I believe the instructions were absolutely loyal as regards the United States. Gen. Carranza would, up to the present, have heard nothing of it if the United States had not published the instructions, which came into its hands in a way which was not unobjectionable. Our behaviour contrasts considerably with the behaviour of the Washington Government.

"President Wilson after our note of January 31, 1917, (submarine note), which avoided all aggressiveness in tone, deemed it proper immediately to break off relations with extraordinary roughness. Our ambassador no longer had the opportunity to explain or elucidate or ally our attitude. The United States Government thus declined to negotiate with us. On the other hand, it addressed itself immediately to all the neutral powers to induce them to join the United States and break with us.

PLEA FOR JUSTIFICATION.

"Every unprejudiced person must see in this hostile attitude of the American Government, which seemed to consider it right, before being at war with us, to set the entire world against us, it cannot deny us the right to seek allies when it has itself practically declared war on us.

(Editor's Note: The message to Mexico was dated weeks before the submarine note.)

"Herr Haase says it caused great indignation in America. Of course, in the first instance, the affair was employed as an incitement against us. But, meanwhile the storm abated slowly and the calm and sensible politicians, and also the great mass of the American people, saw there was nothing to object to in these instructions in themselves. I refer especially to the statements of Senator Underwood. Even at times newspapers felt obliged to admit regretfully that not so very much had been made of this affair.

MEXICO EXTREMELY FRIENDLY.

"I was reproached for thinking just of Mexico and Japan. First of all, Mexico was a neighbouring state of America. If we wanted allies against America, Mexico would be the first to come into consideration. The relations between Mexico and ourselves since the time of Porfirio Diaz have been extremely friendly and trustful. The Mexicans, moreover, are known as good and efficient soldiers.

"It can hardly be said that the relations between the United States and Mexico have been friendly and trustful, but the world knows that antagonism exists between America and Japan. I maintain that these antagonisms are stronger than those, which, despite the war, exist between Germany and Japan.

JAPS LIKE MEXICANS.

"When I also wished to persuade Carranza that Japan should join the alliance, there was nothing extraordinary in this. The relations between Japan and Mexico are long existent. The Mexicans and Japanese are of a like race, and good relations exist between both countries.

"When, further, the Entente press affirms that it is shameless to take away allies, such reproach must have a peculiar effect coming from powers who, like our enemies, made no scruples in taking away from us two powers and peoples with whom we were bound by treaties of more than thirty years. The powers, who desire to make pliant an old European country of culture like Greece by unparalleled and violent means, cannot raise such a reproach against us.

A PATRIOTIC DUTY.

"When I thought of this alliance with Mexico and Japan, I allowed myself to be guided by the consideration that our brave troops already have to fight against a superior force of enemies, and my duty is, as far as possible, to keep further enemies away from them. That Mexico and Japan suited that purpose, even Herr Haase will not deny.

"Thus, I considered it a patriotic duty to release those instructions, and I hold to the standpoint that I acted rightly."

The emergency budget voted, the despatch adds, authorized the imperial chancellor to meet the current expenses of the empire for the months of April, May and June.

Eggs In Store Windows

At the present time when our every energy and effort is being put forward to increase the production of food products and make Canada more than ever before a large factor in the winning of the war, one's attention naturally turns to the food stocks available, and the waste evidenced in their handling. With no commodity is waste so apparent as it is in the handling of eggs.

During the past few years endeavour has been made to bring this matter to the attention of producers and the wholesale trade. This appeal, however, is addressed more particularly to the retailers, many of whom do not seem to realise the extreme perishability of eggs.

It is common practice at this season of the year for many retailers to advertise the increasing egg supply and the rapidly falling prices, by displaying piles of eggs in their store windows. The eggs thus exposed in many cases come under the direct rays of the sun and are subjected to a temperature behind the plate glass window of about 100 degrees. The excessive heat resulting causes serious deterioration through evaporation accompanied by loss of flavor. Further at this time of the year a large percentage of the eggs marketed are fertilized and as it is common knowledge that a temperature of 70 degrees is sufficient to start incubation the possibility of serious deterioration will be readily seen.

It is good business to advertise but window displays of eggs defeat the aim of the advertiser, in that the resulting deterioration of the eggs causes dissatisfaction among consumers and so retards the consumption. Eggs should be kept in the cleanest, coolest, driest place in the store, removed from mustiness, foul odours, or other sources of contamination.

The food value of eggs, their freedom from waste, the saving in time, labor and fuel in their preparation, and the favorable way they compare in price with other articles of food, places them in an important place in the diet of our people. Now, as never before in the history of the Dominion, the conservation of food supplies must be one of our chief considerations, and the waste now apparent in the handling of eggs, that can be eliminated by careful and more up-to-date methods, is a consideration that will appeal to every citizen who has at heart the best interests of his fellow citizens, his country and the Empire as a whole.

The Blow That Almost Killed Father

(By H. F. GADSBY)

OTTAWA, March 31.—The talk at the capital is that the Borden Government doesn't want an election particularly, but is resigned to have one come. It realizes that to ask for further extension would be crowding the mourners.

The Borden Government has been thinking more or less of a general election ever since the war started. In 1914 it had the pamphlets all ready —Borden Backs Britain, and a few touches like that—but was scared off the nest by the money magnates who said they would brook no such thing at a time so perilous.

The Government held its breath, but did not change its mind. It was still of the opinion that a general election was what was needed in their business and the Hon. Bob Rogers went so far as to discover the "voice of thunder" with which the people were demanding it. However, it was only stage thunder and the election did not come off, though the Government made special preparations for it in the shape of a Votes for Soldiers Act which was to take care of the army at home and abroad.

One remembers with what ardor Premier Borden at that time championed the Votes for Soldiers bill, which, so he said, was to enable the men who fought for Canada to exercise the second highest privilege of his citizenship—namely, to vote for it. Premier Borden calculated that when the soldiers voted for Canada they would vote for the Borden Government and, under that impression, ballots were printed and sent across the ocean to the High Commissioner in London, in whose office they remain stacked to this day.

It was no surprise when Premier Borden, at the last session of Parliament, recanted all he had said about votes for soldiers. He took the ground that votes for soldiers were impossible because the soldiers were scattered all over the map and that, besides, it was an impertinence to ask them to intermit their high duty of killing the Germans for anything so trivial comparatively as a general election. Plainly something had happened to change Premier Borden's mind. Not to make a long story of it the things that had happened and which had come to the soldiers' ears and had stuck in their crops were these: Sir Sam Hughes, Lieutenant Colonel John Wesley Allison, Paper Shoes, Foundered Horses, Profiteering, Camp Borden, Ross Rifle, High Cost of Living for Soldiers' Families at Home, Separation Allowances and Assigned Pay Soaked up by the Government's Friends, the Cold Storage Kings, and other things too numerous to mention.

In short Premier Borden began to suspect that the soldier vote was "agin" him and when the British Columbia soldiers put the boots to the Bowser outfit as soon as they got the chance, Premier Borden was confirmed in his suspicion. Premier Borden may be a little thick, but he doesn't need more than one house to fall on him before he tumbles. Besides, the British Government told him it would be a hard matter to take the soldiers vote anyway, and Premier Borden was very glad to agree with them.

So in 1916 the Borden Government was in a chastened frame of mind—so chastened that it forgot all its plots for a general election and willingly took what the people gave them—namely, an extension to October, 1917. They took it because it was all they could get. They knew it was their last chance. Some suggestion was made that they would extend their term indefinitely by using their majority in the House and the Senate and cutting out the consent of the British Parliament, but this assault on the British North America Act was too raw to get away with and was dropped.

What helped to take the pep out of the Borden Government was the fatal results in the provinces which have held general elections since just before the war started. The first blow was Manitoba, which turned the putrid Roblin Government out and converted a Conservative majority of five into a Liberal majority of thirty-nine. This was in July, 1914, and the smell the Roblin crowd left behind them has not been laid yet. The next blow was Prince Edward Island, which reduced a Conservative majority of twenty-six to four. That election took place in September, 1915, and was enough to hold the Borden Government for that year.

The year 1916 was a horrible one for the Borden Government—it got three wallops in rapid succession. Quebec had a general election which increased its Liberal majority in the Legislature from forty-five to sixty-nine. Nova Scotia followed suit and showed its confidence in a Liberal Government which had been in the saddle for thirty-five years by raising its majority from sixteen to twenty-one. These blows were probably expected, but when British Columbia took the rotten Bowser-McBride crowd in hand and turned a Conservative majority of thirty-six into a Liberal one of twenty-seven, the Borden Government felt that the end was in sight. At any rate that was all they wanted for 1916.

Early in 1917—only last month, in fact—came perhaps the worst facer of all. New Brunswick, which had a Conservative Government boasting a majority of forty-three and about as many scandals, threw the scandals out with such force that a landslide took place. The Liberal Government in that fortunate province now has a majority of six and New Brunswick goes on Premier Borden's black list. The victory, under Providence, is largely due to the moral force and fighting quality of Frank Carvell, M.P., who is as vigorous a crusader in his own province as he is at Ottawa. New Brunswick is the blow that almost killed father. It is the final proof to Premier Borden and his colleagues that the majority they expected in the Maritime Provinces has gone glimmering.

Thus Premier Borden, who had at his back when he came into office five provinces with Conservative administration, now has only two. Evidently the rapids are near and the daylight's past. Add to this the fact that Conservative papers in the Northwest are beginning to advertise their independence and one understands why Premier Borden has that haunted look.

Meanwhile the Government is getting ready to meet its fate with a good front. To do this a little window-dressing has to be done. The first effort along this line was firing Sir Sam—after he had done his worst. The next thing was the registration cards—twenty-four questions instead of a straight answer to the volunteer problem. The next thing was the application of a dehorned Militia Act to coax fifty thousand cautious souls into a Home Guard, guaranteed to conflict with nothing more hostile than the Esquimaux or the hyphenated Americans—not conscription, you know, but a safe substitute.

The next thing was to cancel the Ross rifle contract and expropriate the factory, thus throwing two thousand men out of employment, after they had been kept working two years and a half on a rifle the British authorities refused to make use of on the battlefield. Incidentally some seven or eight million dollars was wasted in this way before the government made up its mind to stop the expense at a time chosen with a view to doing the least harm to the shareholders and making the most of it as a campaign argument. The Ross rifle, reported against, tinkered with, reported against again, but still thrust on our soldiers until the British generals absolutely took it out of their hands and substituted the Lee-Enfield—is one of the most shameful of many stains on the Borden Government.

The last bit of window-dressing is perhaps the boldest—after waiting thirty-two months Postmaster General Blondin volunteers for overseas service. But the Government will not take advantage of his impulsiveness. He is not to be sent overseas where the bullets are flying and where the valiant Mr. Blondin might very well be shot full of the same holes he wished for the Union Jack. No, indeed, Mr. Blondin will stay at home and raise a Quebec regiment. Mr. Blondin's is a more important duty than fighting the Germans. The Borden Government intends to use him as a guarantee of good faith—a converted Nationalist. When the general election comes on Mr. Blondin will probably stump Ontario as Exhibit A.

HAD INDIGESTION

COULD KEEP NOTHING ON STOMACH

Indigestion is one of the worst forms of stomach trouble. The stomach becomes upset and you have a raw, debilitated feeling in it.

After a meal you feel that you must get rid of that nasty, bilious, burning sensation; that souring and rising of the food which is so unpleasant and in many cases very painful.

It is not necessary for you to be troubled with indigestion when Burdock Blood Bitters may be so easily obtained. This old and well-known remedy, which is a combination of nature's best roots, herbs, barks and berries will cure indigestion and all stomach troubles.

Mr. Lazare Savoy, Pokemouche, N. B., writes: "About two years ago I was troubled with indigestion that bad I could keep nothing on my stomach. I was sorely disappointed in everything I tried to relieve me. At last a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I took four bottles and can now eat anything that is set in front of me."

That grand old medicine, B.B.B., has been on the market for the past forty years, and we claim, without any fear of contradiction, that it is the best cure for all stomach troubles.

CANADIAN BOOKS READ.

Holiday Sales Show Our Authors Are Gaining Ground.

Canadian authors can no longer complain of the apathy of the Canadian readers to their work, if the results of the holiday book sales can be taken as any criterion. Reports are just coming in to the publishing houses from all over Canada that indicate an increasing interest in the books that our own sons and daughters are writing. For several months past, practically every week has seen the publication of one or more books by Canadians, and many of them have been widely read. It is quite evident that Canadians are no longer uninterested in native authorship.

That Canadian publishers are alive to the growing demand for and encouragement of home talent is obvious to anyone who takes the pains to scan their holiday book lists. "Canadiana" is at last gaining some of the popularity it deserves, and its future grows brighter week by week.

Among the most popular books by Canadians featured in the holiday sales were Robert W. Service's "Rhymes of a Red Cross Man" and "The Sunny Subaltern" of anonymous authorship. Service's popularity was, of course, attained several years ago and new volumes by "the Canadian Kipling" find a large and appreciative body of readers waiting, not only in Canada but also in Great Britain, United States, and Australia. The success of "The Sunny Subaltern" was less expected, though the publishers, McClelland, Goodchild, and Stewart, of Toronto, were not unaware of the merit of the work. It will be news to most readers that the author is a Manitoban who went to the front with the first Canadian contingent. The mother to whom the letters were written resides in Brandon.

Other books by Canadian authors for which there was a brisk holiday demand and some of which have risen into the best sellers class were: "With a Field Ambulance at Ypres," by William Boyd; "The Homesteaders," by Robert S. Stead; "Mounted Police in Canada," by Capt. Burton Deane; "The Riders of the Plains," by A. L. Haydon; "Life and Letters of Sir Charles Tupper," by E. M. Saunders; "The Life of Lord Strathcona," by Beckles Wilson and W. T. R. Preston; and "The Red Indians of the Plains," by Rev. J. Hines. Only a few of the numerous war books published are included in the above list, which could easily be extended.

If the Canadian publishers succeed, as they appear to be succeeding, in making it unnecessary for budding Canadian authors to go to the United States or Great Britain to gain recognition they will do a great service to the country.

Our Failing Physique.

When all other subjects for worry fail, we can always fall back on the deterioration of the national physique. An insurance man makes the latest contribution to this fascinating discussion. We learn that one out of every thirteen applications for life insurance is rejected. A pen picture of the average Canadian portrays him as hustling too much for the good of his health. "His hair has aged and he is getting bald. His digestive organs have been given so many new and arduous duties to which they are not accustomed that they are showing signs of rebellion. He is seriously overstraining his heart, stomach, kidneys, nerves, and digestion. Under exertion he is short-winded. His 400 muscles are virtually all soft from lack of use. He never walks when he can ride. The arches of his feet are gradually falling because the muscles provided to hold them up have weakened by long disuse."

It seems that the average Canadian has about every disease except housemaid's knee. Is the picture a true one? Are there not many exceptions to this gloomy appraisal? How about the hosts of lacrosse and football players among the younger and the golf enthusiasts among the older men? Bowling and basketball are popular sports just now. Should not their thousands of votes in each of many other large cities help to raise the physical average? The business men's classes in our gymnasiums ought to afford a little gleam of encouragement. Even the billiard players get a certain amount of wholesome exercise. The patrons of the skating rinks do not present exactly an athletic appearance, they it may be that health and mortality statistics are kept a little more strictly and accurately nowadays than formerly? There are tests, too, for life insurance, such as that for blood pressure, for instance, that were unknown a few years ago, and these tend to reduce the number of successful applicants. But, of course, if one really wants to worry over the degeneration of the Canadian physique, these considerations can be ignored.

Census of Manufactures.

The postal census of manufactures in Canada during 1915 shows that the number of establishments has increased during the last decade from 15,796 to 21,291. The census was taken during 1916.

The total capital (including value of land, buildings, machinery, materials, and stocks on hand and operating capital, owned or borrowed) has advanced from $846,585,022 to $1,984,991,427, or 134.47 per cent.

The total wages bill has likewise increased from $134,375,925 to $227,508,800, or 69.31 per cent., and the salaries bill from $20,734,088 to $60,143,704, an increase of 95.75 per cent. The value of products in 1915 was $1,393,516,953, an increase of $674,164,350 over 1905, or 93.85 per cent.

The total value of goods manufactured for war purposes actually completed and delivered during 1915 amounted to $130,466,307, a total which it is expected will be increased by several millions in the final return.

WHEN YOU WAKE UP DRINK GLASS OF HOT WATER

Says inside-bathing makes anyone look and feel clean, sweet and refreshed.

Wash yourself on the inside before breakfast like you do on the outside. This is vastly more important because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing illness, while the bowel pores do.

For every ounce of food and drink taken into the stomach, nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out of the body. If this waste material is not eliminated day by day it quickly ferments and generates poisons, gases and toxins which are absorbed or sucked into the blood stream, through the lymph ducts which should suck only nourishment to sustain the body.

A splendid health measure is to drink, before breakfast each day, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless way to wash these poisons, gases and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs but very little at the drug store but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on inside-bathing. Men and women who are accustomed to wake up with a dull, aching head or have furred tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, sallow complexion, others who have bilious attacks, acid stomach or constipation are assured of pronounced improvement in both health and appearance shortly.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Broken Peace

By F. A. MITCHEL

I was gittin' on well enough, independent as a wood sawyer's clerk, when that consarned Jim Simpson come along and put an idea into my head that sp'iled the hull business. I had jist done my week's washin' o' the dishes, havin' put 'em on to the wagon and driv 'em into the crick and mopped 'em, and was takin' out the horses when Jim come along.

"What y' been doin'?" he says.

"Washin' the dishes. Next week I got to change the sheets, seein' they hain't been changed in two months. Saturday'll be the last day o' the month, and that's my sweepin' day."

"By gum, Enoch," says Jim, "that hain't no kind o' work for a man. Why don't y' git a wife to do it for you?"

"I don't see," says I, "how any woman could do it any better'n I. She'd take a lot more time about it, and mebbe the winders would git washed occasionally, but my opinion is that a woman is always kickin' up a dust for nothin'. My way o' doin' it is to let the dust git settled before disturbin' it again. Y' can't git a woman to do that."

Jim and I walked to the house, and he come in. Fact is he wanted to find somepin to find fault with. And he did. He said that it was the dirtiest house he'd ever been in. When he was goin' away he said:

"Enoch, I got a wife that when we was first married used to stir up the dust a lot. I complained, and she told me that if I preferred dust in bulk rather than at retail she didn't. She said a man's place wasn't in the house anyway when a woman was cleanin'. So I made it a p'int to find somepin to do outside when she was stirrin' up the dirt, and when I come back again everything looked spick and span, and I got used to havin' it that a-way and couldn't stand it t'other way."

"It's all a matter o' habit," I says.

Jim went away, but he'd put a flea into my ear. There was a likely gal at Bunker's farm—Bunker's wife's sister. I reckoned that I'd go down and see her. Mebbe I might take her in for the house work if she'd come. Naturally I got to tellin' her how I washed the dishes and the other things. She larfed and said that I was very ingenious. She'd never thought about doin' dishes that a-way. And as for sweepin', she thort my way o' leavin' the dust to settle before stirrin' it up again was a good idea. Anyway that was all right for a man who didn't know how to do sich things without a lot o' trouble.

"Well, I sot up to her for a month or so on Sunday nights, at the end of which time we was married and went to my house to live. My Aunt Emily says to me afore I was chained, says she, "Enoch, you don't mean to take a wife into that house o' yourn without havin' some woman go into it and cart away the dirt, do you?" And I says: "Aunt Emily, what I'm gittin' married for is to have some one to keep the house in order. She mought as well begin at the beginnin'." Aunt Emily says, says she: "Yer beginnin' the wrong way. When a couple starts in to keep house together they ought to have smooth sailin' at the commencement. Instead o' that, you're goin' to begin with a fine inducement for a scrap."

I was mighty feared when she said this that I'd better have gone on as I was, but it was too late for that now. So I tuk my wife right inter the house just as it was.

"Enoch," she says, "take all the buckets and go out to the well and fill 'em."

I did this, and when I came back I found that my bride had taken off her weddin' outfit and put on scrubbin' uniform. That was the beginnin' of it. The first quarter o' the honeymoon was given up to a whirlwind o' dust; then buckets o' soap and water and all sorts o' dirt killin' contrivances come on. Just as I was hopin' the end was comin' and the furniture would be put where it belonged, another cleanup commenced that took up what remained o' the honeymoon.

After the cleanin' had wore me out I said, "I s'pose we kin rest."

"No," she says. "I've been a month puttin' the house in order, but while I've been doin' one thing the dust has been accumulatin' elsewhere. The first week I washed the winders. That's three weeks ago. I got to wash 'em again."

"How about the sweepin'?" I asked, gloomy like.

"The sweepin' 'll come the day after the winders is washed."

One day—it was in the last week o' the honeymoon—I was walkin along the road comin' toward my happy home, over which hung a cloud o' dust, when I met Jim Simpson.

"Look a-there," I says, pointin' to the house. "That's what y' done by dissatisfyin' me about my housekeepin'."

"Is yer house afire?" he says.

"No," says I, seein' a stream o' water beatin' agin the upper story. "That's my wife playin' the hose on the winders."

"Goo'by," says Jim, and he lit out.

I'm gittin' used to it now, and it don't trouble me so much as it did, but I often sigh for the happy, quiet times when I used to drive the dishes into the crick and do my sweepin' when I liked and let the dirt alone and lived in peace. But them days has gone forever. In my home there's perpetual scrubbin' and washin', and every spring I'm transferred for two weeks to the barn while the spring cleanin' is goin' on.

A REMARKABLE STATEMENT

Mrs. Sheldon Spent $1900 for Treatment Without Benefit. Finally Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Englewood, Ill. — "While going through the Change of Life I suffered with headaches, nervousness, flashes of heat, and I suffered so much I did not know what I was doing at times. I spent $1900 on doctors and not one did me any good. One day a lady called at my house and said she had been as sick as I was at one time, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made her well, so I took it and now I am just as well as I ever was. I cannot understand why women don't see how much pain and suffering they would escape by taking your medicine. I cannot praise it enough for it saved my life and kept me from the Insane Hospital."—Mrs. E. SHELDON, 5657 S. Halsted St., Englewood, Ill.

Physicians undoubtedly did their best, battled with this case steadily and could do no more, but often the most scientific treatment is surpassed by the medicinal properties of the good old fashioned roots and herbs contained in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If any complication exists it pays to write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for special free advice.

The Best Habit In The World

is the habit of health. The way to get it is to train your bowels, through the liver, to act naturally, at a fixed time, every day.

Take one pill regularly (more only if necessary) until you succeed. Then you can stop taking them, without trouble or annoyance.

This has been the good-health rule for 50 years.

Prince Praises Canada.

The Prince of Wales attended a meeting of the Canadian committee in care of soldiers' graves. Present were Sir George Perley and other representatives of the Dominion. The Prince mentioned that one hundred and fifty thousand graves were now registered. "Over sixty of four hundred burial grounds have already been laid out, under the advice of the Director of Royal Botanic Gardens. I have seen how beautiful these cemeteries look, with flowers; but it is especially gratifying to me to know that my visit from the front should coincide with the first attendance of this committee of representatives of the Dominion Governments. As the army in the field is now an Imperial army, so this committee should be an Imperial committee, entrusted by the Empire with the task of fittingly and enduringly commemorating the common sacrifice of the best blood of this generation, the sacrifice which forms one of the sacred links of the Empire." The committee subsequently considered questions of marking the graves of the Dominion soldiers who have died in England.

SCOTT'S EMULSION NEVER TAKE SUBSTITUTES

The First Easter

ROSILY dawned the day in the far east. On the shore the cool waves broke gently, fluttering foamy drops on the yellow sand. Away from the water among the rocky stretches of green, lilies bloomed slender and tall, white with cups curving to catch the errant little breeze which carried their sweetness beyond the hills. In the stony crevices wild flowers glinted out from dew wet leaves. Half hidden by pale lily blooms, a dark stone guarded the entrance to a cave among the rocks.

Early in the dawning Sabbath glow, two women, gentle voiced and sorrowing, came slowly down the flowered path, bearing in their arms perfumed napkins and precious spices in carved boxes. They were clad in flowing gray garments, and their heads were bent in meek weeping.

"FLOWER OF PURITY AND SPIRITUAL BEAUTY."

As they drew near to the lily sentineled tomb, the one who walked ahead raised her eyes, dark with pain, to the open doorway, and quick wonder lighted their depths, and she turned, whispering: "Ah! Mary Magdalene, the stone already is rolled away. He hath done this thing."

With eager steps they left the growing day and entered the darkened sepulcher. But as they went they saw two angels seated at the tomb, two men with strong, glorified faces and glad, bright eyes, and their robes were bright as if the sunlight were shining through. The two Marys paused, startled, awed by the great light.

Then the mother of Christ knelt low and wept, but a voice thrillingly tender called to her saying, "Woman, why weepest thou?"

And she lifted her eyes at the words and answered softly, "Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him."

But the voice came again, glad and full of rejoicing: "Fear not ye, for I know that ye seek Jesus, which was crucified. He is not here, for he is risen!"

Wondering, the mother gazed, her starry eyes searching the brightened sepulcher. Then she rose and walked with Mary Magdalene from the place.

Descending the path in the golden sunlight, her gray robes brushed against the uplifted flowers, dew flecked, wondrous sweet. Stooping, she bent her head to the shining lilies. "Live," she murmured, "as expression of the divine beauty of the Son of Man, as examples of his wondrous mercy and boundless love and as the symbol of his resurrection. Henceforth you shall be the flower of purity and spiritual beauty of the holy Easter day, of the great new life which floods the earth through the power of the Son of God."—Patricia Gray in Philadelphia North American.

Easter Egg Game.

When your friends come to play with you during the Easter holidays select a leader. The leader stands in the center of a circle. Each player holds out his hands, palms upward, and upon each of them the leader places an Easter egg. The leader then goes around the circle, catching up the eggs in turn and trying to strike them upon the hands that hold them.

Each one tries to withdraw his hands before they are struck. The same leader continues until he is able to strike some one's hands, whereupon the victim must take his place. If one's hands are withdrawn and the egg falls to the ground because of a feint on the part of the leader it is as if his hands received the blow. At the end of the game the eggs can be eaten.

PORK CAKE.

Chop very finely one-half pound of fat pork. Pour over it one pint of boiling water and let it stand until cold. Add two cupfuls of sugar, three fourths of a pound of seeded raisins cut into small pieces, one cupful of molasses, one even teaspoonful of cloves, half a grated nutmeg, one level teaspoonful of salt, two of soda and enough flour to make a stiff batter. Bake slowly.

"Blessing the Fire" at Easter

IN an account of Easter in Rome published in the New York Evening Post mention was made of the curious ceremony of blessing the fire in the famous church of St. John Lateran.

All lights having been extinguished on Thursday evening, new fire is struck on Saturday by means of a flint and a colossal brazier filled with charcoal. After this is done the bishop, accompanied by his ministers with the cross, holy water and incense, in his miter and magnificent vestments, blesses the new fire and the five grains of incense that are to be fixed in the paschal candle.

Two long lines are formed of young deacons, students and monks waiting for ordination. They stand face to face with the bishop, looking down the line and stationed at the church door. After sprinkling the five grains of incense, which are large silvered cones, and fuming them with the censer, one of the deacons puts on a white dalmatic and, taking the rod with a lighted candle fixed at the top, the officiators fall into procession and return to the tribune.

The lighting of this new fire represents the rising of Christ and his victory over sin. From the spark obtained the paschal candle is lighted, and this, according to St. Anselm, signifies three things: The virgin wax typifies the body of our Lord, the wick the soul, while the flame is the symbol of divinity. The use of the Easter taper is very ancient in the Roman church, dating back as far as Pope St. Zosimus, who at the beginning of the fifth century ordered that it should be made in the shape of a column, on which the order of office was incised. The dimensions of the Easter candle were enormous at the beginning; the largest one of the kind is now the papal candle, measuring four inches in diameter and about two yards and a half in height.

After the return of the procession to the chancel the blessing of the candle takes place, and it is decorated by the deacon with the five balls of gilded and silvered incense, which he thrusts into the wax in the form of a cross. These are symbols of the wounds and perfumes with which the body of our Lord was covered; it is lighted as a symbol of the resurrection and burns during high mass and vespers until Ascension, forty days after Easter.

At the Sepulcher.

Was it not most meet that a woman should first see the risen Saviour? She was first in the transgression; let her be first in the justification. In yon garden she was first to work our woe; let her in that other garden be the first to see him who works our weal. She takes first the apple of that bitter tree which brings us all our sorrow; let her be the first to see the Mighty Gardener, who has planted a tree which brings forth fruit unto everlasting life. —Spurgeon.

POLES TO DECIDE OWN GOVERNMENT

RUSSIAN DUMA TELL THEM TO ARRANGE OWN AFFAIRS.

LONDON. — The Russian government has issued a proclamation to all Poles announcing formally the government's wish that Poland decide for itself the form of government it desires, says a Reuter despatch from Petrograd. The government takes it for granted that the decision will be for "a new independent Poland, formed of all the three now separate parts." The Poles are to determine the form of their government at a constitutional assembly to be held at the capital of Poland on the basis of universal suffrage.

At a Lettish congress at Volmar, a resolution was adopted urging the creation of an autonomous administration unit called Latvia and formed from the portions of the provinces of Livonia, Vitebsk and Courland populated by Letts. The resolution declared firm adhesion to the new Russian Government and says Latvia will remain an inseparable and loyal province of Russia.

The Admiralty Council has taken the oath of loyalty to the new Government.

POPOVERS.

One cupful flour, one half teaspoon salt, seven-eighths milk, and one egg. Salt with sifted flour, then gradually add the milk so the mixture does not become lumpy, then add the beaten egg and beat with a dover egg beater until the mixture is full of bubbles. Pour into hissing hot iron gem pans which have been well buttered and bake in a hot oven between thirty and thirty-five minutes. If the popovers become brown too soon, cover them with a piece of heavy wrapping paper. Iron gem pans must be used in place of tin ones, because the heat is more even.

A WORD OF GRATITUDE.

"In justice to humanity I want to tell you that I was a great sufferer from itching piles, and have found Dr. Chase's Ointment the best treatment obtainable," writes Mr. Fred Hiss, Brothagen, Ont. "It gives instant relief and I can recommend it to any sufferer from this dreadful disease."

Directory First!

WHEN you call a telephone number from memory or when you guess at it you are apt to be wrong.

¶ The mind has a trick of transposing figures—instead of "1263" you are quite likely to say "1623."

¶ Also, telephone numbers, firm names, etc., are frequently changed.

¶ And when you thus ask for the wrong number, you waste your own time, the operator's, and the time of the person called through your error.

¶ Directory first is a good principle. In the end it saves time and temper to first consult the latest issue of the telephone book.

COUCY'S CASTLE FAMOUS.

Finest Specimens of Europe's Architecture Destroyed by Germans.

Coucy-le-Chateau, on the road from Paris to Mumur, was one of the show places of the Laon region, a compact stone village famous for its castle and other monuments of feudal Europe. During the last century of French Kings, during the changes wrought by the French Revolution, during imperial and republican regimes, successive Ministries have used every effort to keep from decay and ruin this architectural gem of mediaeval France, and generations of art critics have declared that the millions spent in preservation had not been expended in vain.

The original feudal stronghold covered an area of 10,000 square yards. It was built early in the thirteenth century by Enguerrand III., and until about 1400 it remained in the possession of his family, who bore the motto:

"Roy ne suys, ne prince, ne duc, ne comte aussi; je suys le sire de Coucy."

"King I am not, nor Prince, nor Duke, nor even Count; I am Lord of Coucy."

About 1400 the place was purchased by the wealthy Louis of Orleans, who had already built the Chateau de Pierre-fonds. He greatly enriched the interior in accordance with the style of decoration of his day—huge and elaborately carved oak furniture, with rich tapestries and stained glass windows, mingled with the treasures of the East which had flowed into Europe after the crusades and the re-establishment of trade between Venice and the Levant.

In 1652 it was dismantled by Mazarin's orders, who, as chief Minister of Louis XIV.; followed the policy of Richelieu by weakening the nobles on these country estates. Coucy lost only its smaller towers, however, while Burges lost its entire castle. By destroying such towers of feudal lords Mazarin not only weakened the power of the lords themselves, but often released the whole urban and rural neighbourhood from subjection to them.

According to the great French authority on architecture, Viollet le Duc, the donjon of Coucy was the finest specimen of mediaeval military architecture in all Europe.

"Compared with this giant," he wrote sixty years ago, "the largest towers known appear mere spindles."

The donjon was 210 feet high and 100 feet in diameter, and the walls were in some places 34 feet thick. Four smaller towers, a moat, and high walls also protected the fortress, which stood on an eminence approached by long, steep slopes on all sides but one.

CASUALTY HOUSE HOME OF GRIEF

Where the Records of the Killed and Wounded Are Kept—The Index of Sorrow

The most tragic house in all London is "Casualty House," in Kingsway—the House of Grief— where people come for news of their loved ones who have been reported killed or missing at the front.

You pass through swinging doors into a lofty entrance hall, and immediately opposite is the notice, "Enquire Privates' Casualties." That is the only visible sign of tragedy. Inside is a large, bright lit room, filled with long rows of chairs and occupied by a silent crowd of men and women, some of whom sit with bowed heads.

They are mostly women of all ages—mothers, wives and sisters of the men about whom there has come bad news. There are a few elderly men and one or two young men in khaki. some of these men and women have a look of despair— the expression of those who know there is no hope, but who wait patiently for tidings that will bring some solace to their hearts. Others there are who are torn with anxiety.

They have heard nothing since news came that their man was missing. The prisoners' lists from Germany have been scanned in vain. The months have dragged by, but still the silence has not been broken, and life has become one long drawn out agony of suspense— the life of thousands in Greater Britain to-day.

It is wonderful how these people keep their feelings under while sitting in the room waiting for the verdict. Sometimes you may see the tear stained face of a woman already in mourning for one life that has been laid down in the cause of liberty, and who is expecting to hear that yet another of her own flesh and blood has been sacrificed. Perhaps the first was a husband, and now it is the son. There have been many, many such cases.

The Index of Sorrow.

She sits there, a poor, lone figure with hands folded, waiting for the sentence. And then presently a girl attendant comes to her and says softly, "Will you come this way?" and conducts her through a door leading to a small room where sit two kindly officials. One of these has the form in his hand which she has filled up with the name, the number and the regiment of the man whose life is all the world to her. The official tells her gently that he has no news except that there has been no report that the man is a casualty, and that she must not think, because she has had no letter, for many weeks, that any harm has come to him. Sometimes paper is scarce, sometimes there are important military movements and men cannot write—

The woman's face brightens a little as she thanks the official, and then with a sigh, goes away.

A good many of the inquiries have had no official intimation of the death of the soldier, but they bring with them letters from comrades which seem to leave no doubt that the man has been killed. When they hand in their inquiry forms the official rings up a branch of the record office, where in a very few minutes the name of the soldier is turned up in a card index. When a soldier is killed or wounded he has a card—which can be found at once—entirely devoted to his history. When there has been a very heavy casualty list, as there was during the Big Push, it is impossible to let the relatives know until some weeks have elapsed, so that sometimes they get the first official intelligence through "Casualty House."

Thus it is that the message often comes back over the telephone: "Pte. —— was killed on July —th, 1916." And the official says to the distressed woman who is sitting on the other side of the table: "I am sorry to tell you that it is true. Your poor husband was killed." And the people in the waiting room outside sometimes hear the despairing cry of the grief-stricken woman.

One day, before Casualty House was moved from Whitehall to Kingsway, the sister and the sweetheart of a brave young lad fighting in Flanders came with a letter from a comrade, which said that the boy had been very grievously wounded and that they must fear the worst. It was the terrible task of an official to tell those two young women the truth — that the soldier was dead. As sympathetically as he could he broke the news but the distress of these young women was too heartrending for words.

The Lady of Sorrows.

It is indeed a great ordeal that the men in charge of "Casualty House" experience every day. Sometimes they feel they cannot go on. Everything is done to soften the blow to the poor people who make this poignant pilgrimage. The officials are as unofficial in their manner as they can well be, having regard to the large number of people they have to deal with.

When a poor woman comes along looking weak and ill, and sadly unready to withstand the pain that awaits her, she is shown into a comfortably furnished room, where sits a lady in black. She might be called "The Lady of Sorrows," She brings a womanly sympathy and companionship to her bitter task. She takes the poor, sad, delicate woman aside, and in the privacy of this apartment breaks the news ever so tenderly, and speaks Christian words of comfort and cheer to one who needs them very sorely. They shed tears, these women who come to the Lady of Sorrows, but they are very brave, and after sitting for a few minutes on the couch, whilst their bodies are shaken by uncontrollable grief, they say "Good-by," and go out into the world again to fight the battle for their children.

Think of the wonderful courage of the mother who came a little while ago to hear that her fourth son was slain— all four sons killed within a few months! It seemed that the news would strike her down, but no braver woman has come to the house in Kingsway than that mother.

Even amid all this profound sorrow there are smiles. Occasionally there is news so good and so unexpected that the officials are afraid to tell it at once, for fear the shock might cause a serious illness. Imagine the boundless joy of the young woman who, after waiting a year for news of her husband, "wounded and missing," and advised to "presume his death," hears that he is alive and well, a prisoner in Germany!

But whether there be smiles or tears, the unforgetable memory of "Casualty House" will always be the supreme fortitude of the women who come and go. Theirs is the greatest sacrifice of all.

GERMAN POSEUR ROBS RICH WIDOW

Mrs. Mary Strangmann of Buffalo tells how she was robbed on the afternoon of March 10 in Lord and Taylor's store, New York, of a handbag containing $85,000 worth of jewellery and $400 in cash by a man who had convinced her he was Carl B. Edwards, a capitalist and Manhattan real estate owner. She handed him the bag while she went to a fitting room to try on a coat, and she hasn't seen him since.

Mrs. Strangmann is a very pretty woman, the widow of Carl H. Strangmann, who died eighteen months ago. He was President of the German-American Brewing Company of Buffalo, and left an estate worth nearly $1,000,000, the bulk of which went to his wife.

A few months ago there appeared in Buffalo, Dr. Carl B. Edwards, a tall, sauve, precisely-groomed and apparently well-educated German, who stopped at the best hotel and always displayed a $100 bill as the outside cover of his bankroll. Through conventional avenues he obtained an introduction to the beautiful young widow and, in course of time, suggested that she should not be bothered with the details of looking after a brewery.

He said he had investigated the property and would be willing to pay her $700,000 for her share. It was all very formal and business like. The doctor, as he called himself, retained a prominent Buffalo attorney, to take care of the legal details of the transaction and Mr. Strangmann was consulting with friends and counsel as to the desirability of the offer when she suddenly decided to do some shopping in New York.

She told Edwards of her intention He said it was fortunate, as he also would have to visit New York to look after his extensive interests there. He advised her to wear a $3,000 fur coat on her visit, saying he wanted to show her his country place at Brighton, and the weather might be very cold, and she left the coat at home.

Mrs. Strangmann arrived in New York, March 8, and went to the Waldorf. Edwards called on her the next day and took her for a motor ride. He showed her several big apartment houses which he said owned including the Edward, at No. 201 West One Hundred and Forty-seventh street. As they rode past this house, Edwards remarked:

"Why, that janitor hasn't had the window frames painted as I ordered. Here" — to the taxi driver—"stop a minute, I'll go in and fire him."

With a show of great indignation, Edwards hurried into the house and inquired for the superintendent. He talked for a few minutes about renting an apartment and then returned to the cab. Mrs. Shaughnessy asked him if he had discharged his subordinate.

"No," replied Edwards, "the poor devil has two sick children, I would not turn him out now."

It was the next afternoon that Mrs Strangmann bade an involuntry farewell to her jewellery, her money, her handbag, and Dr. Carl B. Edwards. She went back to Buffalo and employed a private detective to trace him.

Set over the fire and heat, boiling for five minutes before removing from the range. Let cool, add one teaspoon soda dissolved in a little cold water, and three cups flour. Bake one hour in a moderate oven, and let stand four days before cutting.

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Will Know

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is messy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S BLOUSE.

By Anabel Worthington.

There are many women who do not, for one reason or another, give enough attention to choosing garments that will accord with their personality, and indeed there are a few who, unfortunately, do not know how to wear their garments so as to appear well dressed as well as fashionable. However, it is possible to improve along these lines by studying the different models presented, accepting and rejecting such of the detail features as will best bring out one's individuality, and, of course, these results come when the skirt, waist or dress is made for you in particular, after a pattern that is a copy of an imported model.

The blouse in the illustration is an example. For combining with a skirt to form a costume this is a beauty. The design is uniquely plain, but kept from being severely so by rolling the fronts and collar as pictured. Making two plaits in each side of the front gives a graceful line, and the bloused effect at the lower edge is to be commended also. The sleeve finishes with a frill cuff, and a touch of embroidery at the wrist, the neck edge and to ornament the front of the waist in motif design adds to the charm of the model.

A bought waist will not have the same virtues and makin. this is easy indeed.

The waist pattern No. 8,156 cuts in sizes 34 to 40 bust. To make in size 36 requires 1¾ yards of 36 inch material and ⅝ yard of 36 inch contrasting goods.

To obtain the pattern send 10 cents to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 10 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Address—The Examiner Pattern Service, The Examiner, Peterborough.

Blood Thin and Watery And Circulation Bad

Nerves Become Starved and Depleted—But Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Enriched the Blood and Restored the Strength

PETERBOROUGH, March 14.—The nervous system requires an abundance of rich, red blood in order to replace the daily waste and generate the energy consumed in the activities of life. When you fail to obtain the necessary nourishment from the food you eat you must seek such assistance as is afforded by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

By going directly to the formation of rich, red blood this great food cure brings strength and vigor to persons who are weak and run down. Here is the evidence:

Mrs. W Grieves, 610½ Bethune street, Peterboro', Ont., writes: "Last fall my system was in a run-down condition, and I suffered from nervous debility and sleeplessness. At times I was troubled with dizzy headaches. My blood was weak and watery, and consequently I suffered from cold hands and feet. Many times at night I would waken up from sleep with a start, and then it would be a long time before I could quiet down and go to sleep again. Finally I became so bad that I could not do my own housework. I tried different remedies and preparations, as well as taking doctors' medicine, without any good results. Knowing Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to be good and very reliable, I secured some and took them. As they began to help me, I continued the treatment until I was helped a great deal. Now I can eat and sleep well at night, and am able to go about and do my own work. I also found good results from using the Kidney-Liver Pills in connection with the Nerve Food. I might also mention that I have used Dr. Chase's Ointment for a rash on my baby, and found it very beneficial. We always find Dr. Chase's medicines good, and are pleased to be able to recommend them."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.50 at all dealers, or Edmanson Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

BRITISH ARE STILL SMASHING FORWARD

United States War Congress Meets To-day

THE BRITISH FORCES ARE WITHIN TWO AND A HALF MILES OF ST. QUENTIN

Key Position in the Hindenburg Line is Menaced From Three Sides---British Pressing From the North and West While French Are Advancing to the South---French Also Score a Victory Over the Huns South of the Ailette.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, April 2.—Field Marshall Haig's troops to-day were in sight of the Hindenburg line, the sharpness of the wedge which they have driven toward St. Quentin unblunted by a tremendous drive of the past two days. From the ridge dominating St. Quentin the British forces can see the buildings of the city—not quite four miles' distant.

To the south French forces in equally strong thrusts have advanced to within three miles of what is supposed to be one of the key cities in the Hindenburg line.

London was expecting tremendous fighting in this salient to-day. Battle front despatches asserted that the Germans were striving frantically to complete concrete fortifications to oppose further advances with their heaviest guns.

Military experts here to-day saw fresh signs of Germany's apprehension that she will be unable to hold the Hindenburg line, if information arriving via Denmark that fresh calls for men have been issued by the Kaiser's leaders is correct. The latest draft will take every man able to carry a rifle, up to fifty or more years of age.

Dutch despatches to-day carried the persistent report of further internal troubles in Germany, although details were lacking and the character of the reported disorders was not specified.

PETROGRAD, April 2.—The entire Cabinet of New Russia was at the front to-day in conference with General Alexieff, now commander-in-chief of the army. Ministes of War Gutchkoff had been at the front for several days.

The Ministers were accompanied by attaches of various Petrograd embassies and deputations of the people.

PARIS (French Official Communique), April 2.—South of the Aillette French forces to-day drove back the German stroops beyond Vauxhaillin, the official statement declared. Our patrols found the lines in the region of St. Quentin strongly occupied by the enemy, the War Office reported.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES AFIELD, April 2. — British forces to-day advanced to within two and a half miles of St. Quentin. Their lines were thrust forward from the west to this near approach to the city, believed to be one of the main points in the Hindenburg line.

In the meantime British forces northeast of the city to-day took the towns of Attilly and Villecolles on the railroad line running from Roisel to St. Quentin.

The advance from the northwest is more gradual, but nevertheless continuous.

(By Perry Arnold.)

NEW YORK, April 2.—St. Quentin was menaced from three sides to-day. A new British thrust, which took two villages, was reported in despatches as being rammed toward the city from the northeast.

On the west. Field Marshall Haig's forces have reached a point within two miles and a half of the city, one of the key positions in the Hindenburg line. To the south the French forces apparently were still advancing, although to-day's official Paris statement did not detail this army's operations.

The French statement showed continued progress toward Anizy le Chateu, further south of the St. Quentin wedge. Vauxhaillon (or Vauxaillon) behond which Paris reported sweeping the Germans, is less than three miles from Anisy.

PETROGRAD, April 2.—Russian forces in the Caucasus have occupied Miatagu, Peitaht and Serpoule, and are pursuing the Turks who are fleeing towards Kasrichirin, the official War Office statement announced to-day.

Near Pendjivin in the Gangadchi region an offensive my the Turks was repulsed.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Plans were completed by the Government to-day to take over approximately ninety of the German merchant ships interned in American ports immediately a state of war is declared to exist by Congress.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Senator Lodge, aged 67, the veteran Massachusetts Senator, was knocked down and painfully injured to-day in a clash with two pacifists to whom he said "any pacifist at this time is a coward."

Alexander Bannwart and Mrs. Anna May Peabody were arrested charged with making the assault.

LONDON, April 2.—General Haig's troops have won five more towns according to to-day's official reports. These include the important owns of Croiselles, Logatte and Doigness.

UNITED STATES AT WAR WITH GERMANY

Formal Declaration Will Be Made at Eight O'clock This Evening By President Wilson

(FLASH BULLETIN AT 4 P.M.)

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Germany and the United States are at war. A formal notification of this fact to the world will be made at eight o'clock this evening by President Wilson addressing the Congress in joint session. The President's announcement will take the form of an assertion that a state of war exists between the two countries as a result of Germany's overt act.

OWED A SOLDIER'S WIFE $9 FOR BOARD STOLE $5 FROM HER

John Thompson Pleaded Guilty This Morning and Was Given Thirty Days in Jail—Tried to Join Police Force

HAD WORKED ON FARM

Owing $9 for two weeks' board, John Thompson stole $5 from the soldier's wife at whose home he boarded, and was sentenced to thirty days in jail at hard labour by Magistrate Dumble this morning. The prisoner is a young man who came out from Sheffield about seven years ago and had been working with farmers and latterly in the city. He elected to be tried summarily and admitted having taken the money from his landlady's coat.

After looking him over Chief Thompson recognized his as a recent applicant for a position on the police force. "Something of the idea that it takes a thief to catch a thief" the Chief commented. The prisoner, he added, had worked for a time at the firehall.

Farm Labour From The U.S.

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

TORONTO, April 2.—Fifty experienced farm labourers have been brought into Ontario from the Buffalo district and placed upon farms in this province since the Buffalo office of the Provincial bureau of colonization was opened ten days ago. The agent of the department at Port Huron, Mich., reports prospects good for obtaining a number of experienced men from Michigan.

Hon. T. W. McGarry stated this morning that the main estimates will be presented in the Legislature this afternoon.

Fall wheat has wintered well according to reports which have reached the Department of Agriculture. The acreage under fall wheat this year is somewhat less than a year ago.

A Debate On Nickel Question

Special to The Examiner.

LEGISLATIVE BUILDINGS, Toronto, April 2.—There will be another big debate on the nickel question this afternoon and this evening. Leader N. W. Rowell, H. H. Dewart, K.C., and Sam Carter will speak for the Opposition, and Sir Wm. Hearst, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson and Chas. McCrea for the Government. Discussion is expected to be lively.

Mrs. Leonard McAuliffe, of Omemee, received a telegram Saturday stating that her stepson, Pte. Joseph McAuliffe, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion, and was transferred to the 18th Batt. at the front, was seriously wounded on March thirteenth, sustaining a gunshot wound in the face. His brother, Pte. Wm. McAuliffe, was killed in action last November.

Only Failure of British Water Supply Prevented Battle of Gaza From Being Complete Disaster For the Enemy

BRITISH LOSSES LIGHT

Examiner Special:

LONDON, April 2.—Eight thousand Turks are in the casualty lists as a result of the British victory achieved near Gaza, Palestine, Chancellor Bonar Law declared in the Commons this afternoon. General Murray cabled that the battle fell "just short of a complete disaster to the enemy, insufficiency of British water supply alone preventing a continuation of the attack."

The British lost less than four hundred men in the battle.

March Was Much Warmer Than Usual

Sixty-Four Degrees Was the Maximum Temperature

March proved to be much warmer than usual, and its average temperature has been exceeded on, but a few occasions. The warmest day was the 26th, 64 degrees; the coldest, the 3rd, 2 degrees. There was rain on 6 days, snow on 7 days, to a depth of 14 inches, or a total of 2.80 precipitation. Thunder and lightning was recorded in the last day. Robins appeared on the 22nd, blackbirds and song sparrows on the 26th.—W. P.

Temperance Forces Will Meet in the City On April 10th

In line with the campaign that is being conducted throughout Ontario as well as in the other provinces of the Dominion, the city temperance forces are completing arrangements for the holding of a public meeting in the city Tuesday, April 20th, for the purpose of discussing and urging such action as may be necessary to insure Dominion prohibition. Thousands of petitions are being circulated in all parts of Canada and will be presented to the Dominion Government at its approaching session this month. As much of the benefit of prohibition in provinces which have adopted it is being lost through the importation of large quantities of liquor it is believed that the time has come when steps should be taken to prevent both the manufacture and importation of liquor into the county except for medicinal purposes.

Arrangements have been completed for the holding of the meeting in the Public Library Hall Tuesday evening, April 10th. In addition to speakers representing local organizations, who are expected to take part, an invitation has been extended to Rev. Ben H. Spence, and Rev. F. W. Duggan, to speak. These speakers will deal with the present national situation in reference to Dominion and Provincial legislation and also with law enforcements. It is probable that Mr. Ruthven McDonald or some other well known soloist will take part.

It is Stated That City's Chief Magistrate Will Assist Col. Walker in Raising 57th Battalion C. D. F.—More Recruits For the 247th Battalion—To-day's Orders and General Military News.

In the establishment of the 57th Regiment's Canadian Defense Force's battalion of which Col. Duncan Walker has been appointed commanding officer, it is understood that Mayor Duffus will be the senior Major. The report has been persistently repeated on the street and His Worship when seen this afternoon stated that he had no information to make public. He did not attempt to remove the general impression or rather belief that his name had been forwarded to Ottawa and that there was every likelihood that in a short time he would be officially named as second in command of the local C.D.F. unit. Mayor Duffus intimated that official announcements concerning the new unit would be received by Col. Walker. Considerable interest is centring about the battalion, especially concerning its recruiting and other matters.

The following letter has been received by his wife at 486 Bonaccord street, from Sergt. R. L. Butcher, who has recovered from his injuries and is back at the front. He enlisted at Napanee as a private and was promoted on the field to sergeant with the 4th C.M.R.:

March 4th, 1917.

Dear Wife,—Just a line to let you know I am well and received a letter from you and Mary about a week ago. I was glad to hear they were all well at home. We are having fine summer weather here now, and I hope it will last and dry up the mud. I suppose it is pretty cold in Canada yet? I guess we will be moving out of the town we are in soon. I hate to give up my good feather bed; it may be a long time before I see another one, unless I get wounded again. You should see the girls around here carrying a 100 lbs. of coal on their back. If the girls in Canada had to do that they would all be dead. I think the war will soon be over, I hope so anyway, as I am getting fed up on it, and I think everyone else is the same. I suppose Herbert will be big enough to lick up his dad by the time I get back. Well, I guess there is no more news, so will close now.

From your loving husband,

BUTCH.

Mrs. W. McKinistry, Orpington Road, whose husband, Pte. W. McKinistry, formerly of the 93rd Battalion, was recently killed in action in France, has received the following letter of sympathy from his comrades in the C. G. E.:

Dear Friend,—The shopmates of your dead soldier husband wish to express to you and his near and dear relatives our sincere sympathy in this your hour of sorrow.

We know something of the pure and noble motive that prompted "Bill" to answer the call. We listened to his sentiments. We knew his character and we need no circumstance to prove to us that he has made one of the most unselfish sacrifices of the war.

We hope that it will be some consolation for you to know that a death of this kind is never in vain. Such noble souls help to make this life worth living.

That God in His infinite mercy will protect you and yours and help you to bear your trials, is the prayer of the subscribers of brave and noble "Bill".

Mrs. Kent, 275 Thomas street of the Soldiers' Wives and Mothers' Club has received the following acknowledgement of a parcel sent to a Canadian prisoner in Germany.

Zerbst, Germany, Jan. 7.

Sincere thanks to yourself and Club for parcel received in good condition. January 4th.

ALEX. DICKISON, Corp.

Mrs. Watkins, 148 Park street has received the following letter:

Mrs. Watkins,

Soldiers' Wives and Mothers' Club.

Dear Friend,—I am very thankful to you for sending me a pair of socks and the gum. They came on Christmas eve, so we were very lucky. We are out for a rest, having a good time .No complaint whatever. We spent Christmas and New Year's in the trenches, but had a good time just the same. Most of the Peterborough boys in the 5th C.M.R. are doing fine. I am from there myself. My address was 212 Aylmer street, care of Mrs. Reid. I am sorry I did not write sooner. Percy Mann is doing fine. He is in the machine gun section. I suppose you have heard that McNaughton was killed. He was such a nice fellow and all the boys liked him. He was a stretcher-bearer at the time and would do anything for us. He always looked at the good side of everything and was always smiling. We are out for a rest now and the people use us fine. I think this war will be our's soon as Fritz is looking pretty sick by now and I think he will soon give in. He can't stand much longer. We are getting too strong for him. We beat him at everything that's going. I will have to close as it is getting late.

Yours truly,

JOSEPH TEMPLE.

War Congress Met at Noon To-day and It Is Expected That There Will Be But Few Who Will Raise Their Voices Against the War.

PATRIOTISM GROWING

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

(By Carl D. Groat, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The sixty-fifth Congress, a war body, meets at noon to-day, to organize for one of the most momentous sessions in America. The bickerings, jockeying and wrangling of the past week apparently are about gone.

Patriotism fairly seeths within the Congress. There will be but few who will raise their voices against the war, and even these, once the war resolution is adopted, are expected to swing into line in favour of going on to the last trench. It was a solemn throng that jammed into the house galleries to-day, men and women who want war because they believe it is the only right and honourable course, others who want peace at any price, mingled in the crowds. The President will address Congress as soon as the House is organized. This may not be till to-morrow. The message is described by the President's advisers, as a powerful indictment of the German Imperial Government. It is expected to outline the long and patient course pursued by the United States to remain at peace with Germany and treaties and promises shattered more and more by violations of the laws of nations. There is no immediate intention of sending an American expedition to Europe. The belief of government authorities is that the Entente Allies now need money, ships and ammunition more than additional men. These material things, together with co-operation of the American navy and the aggressive moral support of this nation are regarded as the best help that the United States can give at present.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Administration war resolution will recognize that "a state of war" exists between this country and Germany.

Chairman Flood of the House Foreign Affairs committee announced that definitely to-day, that it will not declare war against Germany.

Recognition of "a state of war" serves to place the responsibility of Germany without altering in any way the real facts that a real war is on.

A vigorously phrased resolution calling for an immediate war declaration against Germany will be introduced by Representative Gardner, Republican, Massachussetts.

WASHINGTON, April 2.— With a prayer for an America mighty in defense of its right, the 65th Congress opened its war session at noon to-day. The solemnity of the hour was voiced in the plea of the blind chaplain, a war prayer that sank deep into the hearts of every listener.

Patriots, pacifists and suffragists stormed the capitol as legislators gathered in extraordinary session.

The American Eagle was rampant. Patriots and pacifists alike unfurled the Stars and Stripes. The suffragists stood squarely with the patriots, proclaiming they are "with the President."

The anti-war hosts were in evidence, literally in swarms. Pennsylvania avenue along its entire mile from the White House to the Capitol, was crowded with groups of them, wearing whitearm bands reading "keep out of war."

Upon returning from golf at noon, President Wilson indicated his intention of remaining in the White House awaiting word that Congress was ready to hear him.

THE STREET DUST.

When the weather will it, the dust, like the poor, we always have with us. The dust of spring in our streets contains all the germ evil of the winter's deposits of impurity in a concentrated form, and with the nigh winds of early spring, constitutes not only a great nuisance to pedestrians, but a positive discomfort, if not source of danger, to persons constitutionally inclined to pulmonary troubles, and of weakness of the air passages. The problem of disposing of street dust on paved surfaces is a serious problem. Paved streets are another example of the perpetual presence of the proverbial fly in the ointment. They are an ideal medium of traffic, but hard to maintain and keep clean. Then the dust is of a different character from the dust on macadam streets—which is largely a pulverization of road material. Dust from paved streets is less easily explainable in its origin, but more positive in the disagreeable results of its presence.

Dealing effectively with dust on and from paved streets gives expert engineering agencies no end of trouble. The solution of the problem is met to an extent by sprinkling, as effective more or less on metalled streets, but positively useless as to the best results on paved streets. Expert authorities agree that flushing is the only effective remedy, the only point of disagreement being as to the best means of doing the flushing. In Peterborough there can be no question of obtaining adequate water supply. We have pumps equal to any demand likely to be made upon them at even the driest season.

Complaints of dust are daily reaching the Examiner at times when the streets are dry and the wind is high. The city is acting promptly in removing the winter's accumulation or rubbish and filth from the paved streets. This removal cannot be thorough no matter what pains are taken; the dust remains, with daily renewal even, if once thoroughly cleared away. The street authorities might consult the February number of the Canadian Engineer in which appears an article upon the various means and ways of applying flushing to the problem of dealing with dust on paved streets.

THE MAIN POINT.

The Dominion Department of Finance announces from time to time the brilliant success of war loan after war loan. This is accounted for by a more cheering statement just issued by the Finance Department. This is to the effect that the people of Canada have during the last two years of the war saved more than half a billion dollars. The February bank statement for this year shows that the total of the people's savings in the chartered banks alone (exclusive of course of the Post Office savings bank deposits) amounts to 1,800 million dollars, an increase of 20 millions, as compared with February of last year, and of 300 million as compared with February of 1915. The first two domestic war loans of 200 millions, added to the savings banks deposits, show that the people of Canada had more than a half billion dollars put away—saved in war times, in two short years.

This is a splendid, and an encouraging showing. Although it does not include the postal savings banks total, it means a total of $66 per head of savings per two years of the seven and a half millions of our population.

It does not, however, demonstrate the potentialities of popular savings by any means. With all the saving there is a good deal of waste of popular income for purposes and upon objects that are not only not necessary to comfortable living, but, in many cases, positively injurious; representing careless and improvident ways of living that often make those who practice them, charges upon the charity of the thrifty, or of the municipality or of the state.

It is a very probable fact that if the entire population of Canada had practiced the same right living, the same wise use of income, the same habits of saving and thrift of those represented in the savings bank deposit of 1,800 million dollars, that amount could and would be trebled or quadrupled, representing a corresponding increase of good citizenship useful to itself, and through the financial means made available, to the state. Computation cannot conceive the tremendously important benefits to the country in the matter of financial strength and capacity for serving the country and the Empire, that would accrue, if, on the one hand, governments, Dominion, Provincial and municipal, would retrench to the extent of even one half of the extravagant or wasteful expenditure, and the people on the other hand would individually and universally learn the proper use of money and save what is now wasted. In that event the combined results would enrich the nation and add to the actual financial strength of the country to an inconceivably important extent.

Less than half, perhaps less than one tenth of the income earners of the country, use their incomes wisely and practice saving and thrift. The othre half or other nine-tenths, are careless, thoughtless, in these regards.

They are so, because they have not been taught in the home, or in the school, the most important knowledge—the proper use and value of money as the means of accomplishment in the way of service to ourselves and our homes, and the country, and the Empire. As was shown in the Legislature the other day, we teach children how to draw a box of onions, or "the noisy geese that gabbled o'er the pool," things important in their way, but not enough so to make us neglect the science of spending, or of ingraining the habit of saving, so that at time of need they can draw the value of a substantial strength from the capital which right spending and saving may have accumulated.

THE EVILS OF PARTIZANSHIP.

The Ottawa Journal deplores the fact which it asserts, that partizanship is adversely influencing recruiting in Quebec under the egis of Hon. Mr. Blondin, to whom General Lessard has offered his help to raise a battalion. If it is true that partizanship retards recruiting, as it is probable; for partizanship, one of the major curses of our political system, has all through the war been a hostile influence, not only to recruiting but to Canada doing her full part in other activities associated with the prosecution of our war interests.

Take the case of General Lessard for only one instance. Has it not been partizanship, plus racial prejudice, that has kept him kicking his heels in official idleness ever since the war began? If his acknowledged military ability and knowledge of the work, had been permitted employment; if the unusual confidence his character as a military authority and a man had been enlisted in the national service, we should have had no doubt a different result from recruiting efforts, especially in Quebec But Sir Sam Hughes, whether or not from jealousy of superior military efficiency, and backed by the government, practically "interned" the most capable military figure and authority in the Dominion.

Now, at the "heel of the hunt," after nearly three years of enforced inactivity, by the withdrawal of the hostile influences permitted to operate in partizan interests, he is allowed to exercise his unquestioned ability and influence upon the recruiting spirit in Quebec, that has been deadened by another form of partizan influence.

What but Nationalism, officially recognised in the persons of three ministers, and permitted to exercise a dominating influence in national councils, has killed or paralysed the recruiting spirit in Quebec? For three years of this big fight, three members of the Borden cabinet who held and preached the damnable doctrine that Canada owed nothing to the Empire and had no duty to help in the war. have been in the way. Was the influence of these Ministers likely to be a help to recruiting in Quebec, or anywhere else? Were not the partizan considerations that retained these anti-British, anti-imperial ministers in the Dominion Cabinet, an exercise of partizanship hostile to the interests of the Empire especially as bound up in recruiting?

The Journal, as gathered from its article, thinks partizan animus is shown by press criticism of Hon. Mr. Blondin, one of the three trusted (official) leaders of the people of Quebec, the official "fuglemen" for recruiting purposes. In this view, the closing sentences of the Journal's own article, with the parenthetical addition of one single word, fixes responsibility upon the leader or leaders of its own party. It concludes thus:

> The people of Quebec are not to blame for the lack of interest in the war. Their trusted (official) leaders have the responsibility. There is abundance of good manhood and good womanhood in the neighbouring province. But partizanship looms ahead of patriotism in the eyes of the party press which has succeeded in making patriotic exhortation a villainy and actual enlistment a crime.

Who but the Nationalists, including the Nationalists in the Borden Cabinet, and Mr. Blondin himself, have for the past five or six years, preached that "patriotic exhortation" to helping Britain in her wars is a "villainy," and who but the Hon. Mr. Blondin has taught that "actual enlistment is a crime" to be avoided by "skedaddling" over the border. We hope for the sake of the cause that Hon. Mr. Blondin will be successful in reaping a good crop of recruits. If he fails he will find the cause in the fact that he and his kind have badly prepared the soil for a recruiting crop, and will have only himself to blame if he is kept too busy pulling up the tares he has sown to gather much grain.

PENNY BANKS FOR BRANTFORD.

The Penny Bank system is now in operation in no less than 40 schools in Ontario, and everywhere it is giving entire satisfaction. These places are Arnprior, Barrie, Belleville, Bowmanville, Brampton, Campbellford, Cape Croker Reserve, Carleton Place, Collingwood, Cornwall, Galt, Goderich, Guelph, Kitchener, Lindsay, London, Midland, Newmarket, New Toronto, Niagara Falls, North Bay, Oshawa, Ottawa, Paris, Port Hope, Prince Albert, Renfrew, Smith's Falls, St. Thomas, Stratford, Swansea, Toronto, Tuppersville, Welland, Winchester, Woodstock, and York county. The deposits made in the schools during February, 1916, aggregated $21,614, and in February, 1917, $22,464, thus showing the increased popularity of the system which has been endorsed by the Department of Education in the following manner:

> "The minister desires to express his appreciation of the devotion by the teachers in those schools where the Penny Bank has been in successful operation. He also wishes to point out that it is not enough merely to establish the system in a school. There must be loyal co-operation and persistent sympathy upon the part of the teachers; otherwise some few may take the opportunity to exercise a natural thriftiness, but the bank will fail in its effort to encourage thrift among the unthrifty. Thrift needs to be encouraged as steadily and persistently as good manners or as any other desirable habit."

The advantages of the system are manifold; the one objection appears to be that it involves a little additional work on the part of the teachers one morning in the week. But as regards this city The Expositor has confidence in the teachers of Brantford that they are ready to heartily co-operate in any movement which is calculated to contribute to higher social conditions and better citizenship, and which is in line with the policy of thrift now being inculcated by the Dominion and provincial authorities. There ought to be no hesitation about grafting the Penny Bank on Brantford's school system.—Brantford Expositor.

THE ALMIGHTY DOLLAR STILL RULES.

The United States owes a deep debt of gratitude to France for the assistance it received from the latter country in the War of the Revolution, but it has not shown any great evidence of that gratitude in the terms upon which the new French loan has been floated in Wall street. The New York World says:

> "In order to obtain $90,000,000, France, in the hour of her extremity, is compelled to pay more than six per cent. interest and to deposit $120,000,000 in stocks and bonds as collateral. In addition, the holders of the notes have the option of collecting their debt in francs at the rate of 5.75 francs to the dollar, "this being about 10 per cent. below unit parity," according to the advertisements of the bankers, and that much additional load upon the French people.
>
> "In the darkest days of the American Revolution, when the colonies had neither security nor credit, France loaned money to the United States at five per cent., and then cancelled the interest for the whole period of the war as "a new proof of affection and friendship." Yet we are imposing pawnbroker's terms upon the French and squeezing the last possible penny from a sister republic that must have money or perish.
>
> The World suggests that when congress convenes and formally recognizes the existence of a state of war between the United States and Germany, one of its first acts ought to be the making of a gift of $1,000,000,000 to France as "a new proof of affection and friendship." This would be a grand way of squaring accounts with France, but it will not be done. The Almighty Dollar still bulks so largely in the eyes of Uncle Sam that his vision is obscured to almost everything else. —Brantford Expositor.

GREAT AMERICAN JOURNAL REGARDS IT AS A "LADIES' WAR"

Many American newspapers are expressing dismay and humiliation at the reported decision of President Wilson and his advisers only to conduct a sort of war against Germany by giving aid to the Allies in the shape of material and money, using the fleet to release Allied warships in American waters, and to endeavour to destroy submarines and protect American commerce. One paper protests against Americans considering they have done their duty by offering the Allies a big loan "on pawnbrokers' terms." The Chicago Tribune remarks that "No man wants to go to France and fight — at least, no home loving American citizen—but it will be a sad and long lived national humiliation if we decide that, being, even as Canada, at war with Germany, we shall merely make cartridges and have the Canadians shoot them."

We should be the last to under-estimate the enormous aid which the United States may render by the proposed measures, but at the same time there is a good deal of truth in what the Tribune says, namely, that the reason why Germany is so contemptuous of the United States is that she knows America has nothing to contribute to the man power of her enemies, and the Americans will but confirm the idea if they proclaim that they will not put an army against the German forces. However, we may be sure, that this matter is even now under the most anxious consideration by the executive authorities. Meanwhile, here is how the Tribune views it:

> Honour and security are worth full effort or none, but we decide to make the comfortable effort and permit the Canadians to make the uncomfortable one.
>
> A man's war will be waged north of the Great Lakes and a ladies' war south of it. A nation of nine millions will furnish men and a nation of one hundred millions will give them guns and hardtack. The wounded Canadians coming home will look with contempt upon the nation to the south in front of whose security the Canadian khaki had stood in danger.
>
> Canadians fight with bayonets. Shall Americans fight with bazaars? Canadians will wear the red badge of courage. Shall Americans put on the yellow night cap?
>
> We ask Americans to consider this as they consider the reputation and well being of their country. We go to war but do not fight it. We proclaim that we do not intend to fight it. We strengthen the enemy's morale instead of weakening it. We trust to an outcome which we do not fully attempt to form.
>
> We expose ourselves to danger and rely upon our Canadian neighbours to do our part in warding it off. We play a feminine part in masculine work, a shielded part in dangerous work.
>
> We cannot do this and be a respected nation after the war. We shall be more nearly a vassal nation than will please the pride of any American. We shall confess that we have been protected by Canadian bayonets and British warships or, if they fail, we shall pay tribute to Germany.
>
> Offensive as these alternatives are, they are presented to a nation which fights a ladies' war.
>
> If present plans go through the American army will be the Woman's Home Companion.

If there is anything more to be said after this, then nobody but a natural born American has the right to say it.—Montreal Herald.

J. P. Lancaster Is New O.A.L.A. Head

E. A. Doyle Withdraws and Havelock Man Is Elected By Acclamation

The withdrawal of E. A. Doyle, Newmarket, for the Presidency of the Ontario Amateur Lacrosse Association obviates the necessity for any contest for the office, James P. Lancaster of Havelock being elected unanimously. It was anticipated that the contest for the Presidency would furnish lively competition, as the men were conceded to have an equal chance of election.

E. A. Doyle, however, stands for the office of Vice-President, opposing Fred Jacob, Toronto, for the position. Dr. A. Campbell, Orangeville, will be opposed by W. J. Westwood, St. Catharines, for the office of Second Vice-President, while W. McArthur, Toronto, is elected Treasurer by acclamation. J. E. Dundas, Toronto, is another to be elected by acclamation. He retains the office of Secretary.

There are sixteen nominations for the Council, of which ten will be elected. The nominations are as follows:—W. J. Westwood (St. Catharines), W. Vandusen (Tara), J. Labatt (Toronto), Gene Dopp (Toronto), F. S. Coombes (Toronto), H. Henning (Hanover), L. A. Betts (Campbellford), L. Smith (Toronto), F. Sullivan (Toronto), H. Halpin (Peterborough), E. H. Johnston (London), R. Pollock (Owen Sound), T. Machlin (Brampton), L. Robinson, (Collingwood), and A. R. Richards (Toronto).

Three auditors were elected by acclamation, the men chosen being J. J. Craig (Fergus), D. Rose (Toronto), and J. Stevenson (Toronto).

Mrs. F. C. Neal,
Sec., 57th Chapter, I.O.D.E.,
Peterborough, Ont.

My Dear Mrs. Neal:

Please accept my thanks for the Christmas box from your Chapter, which reached me yesterday after its many wanderings in Germany. It went to Stuttgart, where I was in the hospital; then to Bischofswerda, in Saxony: then to Constance in Baden, and finaly found me. Although I am away from the cabbage diet of a German prison camp and not in need of the average parcel, still you had everything I find good to me here, just as much as in Germany. I was very sorry that my two Peterboro boys who were in Germany with me at Stuttgart were not exchanged with me, but they were in real good health when I saw them last, i.e., Drummond and Larkman, originally 8 C.M.R. but latterly 4 C.M.R. I heard of Lieut. Harry Rogers from a friend at Constance who was exchanged with me, and he told me that Harry had fully recovered and was getting things ready for a minstrel show on Nov. 13, at Friedburg. I also was with Lieut. Fessenden at Bischopswerde, and he was in good health on November 14th when I bid him good bye there.

Yours sincerely,
Fred Hubbs,
Lieut., 4 C.M.R.

Destroyer Sank Laconia's Assassin

Disguised Patrol Boat, Going Down, Blew It To Pieces

NEW YORK, April 2.—The officers and crew of the Cunarder Ordonia, arrived from Liverpool, were cheered up before they sailed by the news that the German submarine which sank the Laconia on Feb. 25 and the Folia on March 11, among other vessels, had been destroyed off Connebeg, on the southwest coast of Ireland, between the Tuskars and Queenstown, on March 15. Several of the crew saw the commandant in German naval uniform landed by a patrol boat on March 14.

What appeared to be an old British steamship was attacked by a German submarine of the latest type. After firing a torpedo the U-goat disappeared. As the steamship was rapidly sinking, the submarine rose to the surface. After being torpedoed the supposed tramp, which was a patrol vessel in disguise, let down her dummy superstructure; the crew, with guns run out, and the ship sinking under them, waited for their turn, and a broadside from three 4.7 guns blew the submarine to pieces, and the commandant, who was in the conning tower, was the only one of the crew of 37 men that was saved. The British took to their own lifeboats.

HULL LICENSES PLAN TO STAVE OFF PROHIBITION

OTTAWA, March 31.—The city of Hull, which the temperance folk call he "bar room of Ontario," is in the throes of its prohibition campaign, with both sides exerting every effort and the outcome uncertain. The license holders promise to avail themselves of a unique provision of the law, by which they claim that even if prohibition carries the operation of it will be staved off till May, 1918.

The by-law to be voted on calls for four weeks' notice. The earliest the voting can start is April 20. There are 4,000 voters and the law provides for their being registered at the rate of 400 a day in order that there be no blocking of polls. If, however, on the second day or afterward half an hour passes without a vote being cast, the poll will close immediately.

The Provincial Act provides for the issue of licenses on May 1, while if the coming vote keeps up for ten days, excluding Sunday, it will terminate only on May 2.

The license holders therefore are now organizing their forces in such a way as to have the voting stretched over the full ten days, claiming that on May 1st the licenses for the year must issue and that any favorable prohibition vote even a day afterward cannot have effect till May, 1918.

Temperance workers think there may be something in this contention but they would circumvent it by an injunction restraining the Collector of Provincial Revenue from issuing licenses on May 1.

ATTACH NO IMPORTANCE.

British Press Gives Little Space to Prohibition Steps.

LONDON, April 2.—Although the prohibition proposals made in Britain are greatly interesting Canada, the English press seems to attach no importance to the movement. What was considered the greatest demonstration yet held in connection with the movement was that taking place, when Queen's Hall was crowded, but the Times devotes only fifty lines to the meeting, giving the same space to the Anglo-Canadian boxing. Sir William Osler, billed as a speaker, was unable to be present, but Archdeacon Lloyd represented Canada.

Special Gossards

For The Growing Girl

Over seven years ago doctors, nurses and an army of mothers prevailed upon the Gossard company to produce a Gossard for the junior and the misses. These corsets are now in our corset department.

Not only are they hygienic and bear the stamp of approval of trained nurses and physicians, but they are accepted by their wearers as being the most comfortable, healthful and stylish garments obtainable. Your girl's first corset should be a Gossard.

These Corsets are Priced at $1.50 and $2.50

Every stitch and bone in these Gossard models has been supervised by the same careful designing genius which has made "grown up" Gossards popular.

Youthful lines are preserved and support given where needed. Not one bone can hurt, and thousands of juniors and misses now wearing these corsets is ample proof of their splendid wearing service and style. Have your daughter fitted at our store to-day by a corsetiere trained in the Gossard way of fitting.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

Government Is Responsible For Interprovincial Bridges Only

Mayor Duffus received a letter this morning from the Deputy Minister of Public Works, J. B. Hunter, stating that the department was taking up the question of the Government's interest, if there was any, in the Hunter street overhead bridge. The correspondence with the city, he wrote, did not disclose any reason why the Government should contribute to the cost of the new bridge. Interprovincial bridges were the only class in connection with which the department had any responsibility.

"IN WALKED JIMMY"

At "The Grand" For 2 Performances Good Friday

Labelled and tagged "a comedy with a purpose," "In Walked Jimmy" comes to "The Grand" Good Friday for an engagement of matinee and night. Bearing lessons of life, love and laughter upon a veritable silver platter the mysterious Jimmy walked into the factory and into the hearts of the people when originally presented in the theatrical metropolis of North America, deftly sermonizing happiness out of misery and dollars out of poverty, until in the end life, love and laughter had transmitted themselves in some degree to those out in front of the footlights. It is to this general atmosphere of happiness that "In Walked Jimmy" owes its manifest appeal to audiences of all kinds.

Few plays of the last decade have preached the gospel of optimism with such enthusiasm as "In Walked Jimmy." The chief character and those whom he converts might have said at the conclusion, because it was obvious "smile and discard your troubles."

The tremendously responsible role of Jimmy is played by George Summers, a clever comedian who has for years been identified with such well known plays as "David Harum," "The Gentleman From Mississippi," and many others of equal popularity. His supporting company is large and capable, and the scenic investiture is one of the crowning features of a meritorious theatrical offering.

Don't Overlook This Special Notice

If you want to go to a show where you get your money's worth, visit the pretty little "Tis-It Theatre." Here is the place where we all appreciate your "patronage." Please note our programme consists to-day and to-morrow of Grace Cunard and Francis Ford in the tenth episode of the Purple Mask,' also a forceful, modern drama, called Circumstantial Justice, and "the famous emotional actress," Cleo Madison, in a drama of heart interest, "Priscilla's Prisoner," and the comedy for to-day, "You Want Something." This comedy took the advertising clubs of the world. These are only a few remarks on to-day's and to-morrow's programmes. Please note, if you are not following up this serial, we have other big pictures that will more than please you. Don't forget the Tis-It has the big orchestra, and we consider our patrons and play to please them.

Come early so as to get a good seat and don't forget, if you are late, we run two full shows. Our aim is to please everybody, "not a few." Watch for our extra features, we have been so fortunate to secure. If you are not pleased tell us, and your money will be given you back as free as we accepted it. Come out and visit the "Tis-It" if you have not been here. Come and see for yourself, and you will say the Tis-It Theatre is the "best." Also, we have made arrangement for another new machine, which will be installed very soon, and then we will have "two brand-new machines." Everything to please the most refined critic at the "Tis-It." Watch for further announcements.

Accommodating Farmer Gave Him Whiskey Chief Discredits Story

"Billy" Kelly pleaded guilty in police court this morning to a breach of the Temperance Act. He was found drunk on Charlotte street at 2 o'clock Sunday morning. Billy is no unfamiliar figure about the Court, but apparently the time between drunks is becoming longer. He stated that about five o'clock Saturday afternoon he was on Simcoe street when he met a man driving out of the Montgomery House yard who asked him to go for a ride. Down below the Exhibition Grounds the farmer produced two bottles of whiskey which they proceeded to consume. Billy said he didn't know the identity of his companion beyond the fact that he resided on the Gravel Road.

"Did you tell a constable yesterday you would do six months before you'd tell who you got your liquor from?"

"They were bothering me at the time. I say now I don't know who he was."

Magistrate Dumble imposed a fine of $10 and $3.75 and then sent Kelly to jail for an indefinite term as a spur to his memory in recalling the obliging stranger with the two flasks.

SECOND LAST REHEARSAL FOR THE CRUCIFIXION

The last rehearsal but one of Stainer's sacred meditation of the Passion of our Blessed Lord, known as the "Crucifixion," was held last night in St. John's church after the evening service. Owing to the illness of Mr. H. W. Morphet, all the tenor solos will be sung by Mr. Walter Hutchinson instead of the latter part of the work as formerly arranged. Mr. John Taylor and Mr. Tom Ward will sing the baritone solo parts. Mr. Cyril Devey will preside at the organ. Mr. R. J. Devey conducting. This presentation will be the 19th by St. John's choir, as the work has been given several times in All Saints' as well as in Lakefield and Norwood.

But few of the choristers who took part in the first presentation will be present on Friday next. With Mr. Morphet away, only the following choristers are now available who were then present: Mrs. Devey, Mrs. Seward Mr. George Brown, Mr. Cyril Devey and Mr. R. J. Devey. Mrs. A. L. Amys will sing Graner's "Hosanna" during the evening

Rose Bushes Scarce Due To Submarines

Purchasers of rose bushes this spring may expect to pay a new high price. The supply of the bushes from Europe is reported to be extremely limited due to the restricted shipping. Mr. Mitchell of Port Hope, had one consignment of 3,000 plants from France in the cargo of one liner that had put to sea but was recalled to port after covering part of the Atlantic voyage. There have been no shipments on the Holland-American line, it was stated, since February 1st.

Corp. G. Potter Is in the City

Former Peterborough Boy Lost a Leg at Ypres—Visiting Friends Here

Corporal Grant Potter of Montreal, son of the Rev. J. G. Potter, formerly of Peterborough is in the city for a few days, visiting friends. He is staying at the home of Mr. Thomas Rorke, 319 Simcoe street. Corporal Potter is minus his right leg, which he sacrificed in the vicinity of Ypres when a big enemy shell exploded, killing five men and wounding twenty-one. Corp. Potter was a member of the 67th Battalion Grenadier Guards, Montreal which was recruited early in 1915. He will go to Toronto in a few days to be fitted for an artificial limb.

Dolly Taylor Claims $600 From Andrew Magee For Wages

Dolly Taylor of Westwood, whom a jury declared not guilty of the concealment of the birth of her baby has entered an action against Andrew Magee, the farmer who was implicated in that case. It will be remembered that at the same trial Magee was found guilty, and was given his liberty by Judge Huycke who suspended sentence. Dolly Taylor now claims $600 from Magee to cover about seven years' wages for domestic service in the Magee home.

Aldermen Deny Soliciting Bribe

CHATHAM, April 2.—The judicial investigation concerning three Chatham aldermen closed Saturday afternoon after the three men had denied any connection whatever with any alleged solicitation of a bribe from the Chatham Gas Company. Alderman Briscoe, Alderman Baxter and Alderman Coatesworth all went on the stand. They denied statements made under oath by P. S. Coate, A. Park, A. F. Falls, that the men had, through the statements of Alderman Catesworth and Alderman Baxter solicited a bribe.

The Aldermen vehemently affirmed that there had been no consideration whatever of a monetary nature to influence their vote in the City Council, and declared that all they wanted was to have the matter go to the people.

Judge Stanworth, sitting as Commissioner, stated that he would soon have his report ready for the City Council.

DOUKHOBORS PREFER CANADA

OTTAWA, April 2.—The wish expressed by the Russian Government that the Doukhobors may be repatriated now that Russia has a democratic Government is not likely to be realised. "The Doukhobors in Canada are contented and prosperous" said Hon. Dr. Roche, Minister of the Interior. "They have no intention or desire to leave here."

Engineers' Club Held a Meeting On Saturday

A meeting of the Engineers' Club of the city was held in the Oriental Hotel Saturday evening. After dinner the members adjourned to the parlour.

The meeting opened with a discussion of the proposed constitution of the Club, and after some suggestions had been made, it was referred to the Executive for further consideration.

It was decided that regular meetings would be held on the second Thursday in each month from September to May, inclusive, and that the present officers would hold their positions until May 1st, 1918.

The following committees were appointed by the President:

Membership—P. P. Westbye, R. H. Parsons, A. G. Grier, B. L. Barnes, P. L. Allison.

Meetings and Papers—R. B. Rogers, N. C. Gillis, G. R. Langley, D. Easson, V. S. Foster.

Entertainment—A. W. Spence, W. J. Dickenson, R. N. Early, S. H. Holden.

The first named in each committee is the chairman of that committee.

The paper of the evening was read by Mr. A. Gordon Grier, of the Canadian General Electric Company, entitled the "Status of the Engineer." Mr. Grier's paper showed much knowledge of the subject and was quite successful in its main object of promoting discussion amongst the members.

Membership Increasing.

The Club has a membership of 35, and those instrumental in its foundation are very much gratified by the interest being taken in it. The officers are as follows:

Honorary President—R. B. Rogers.
President—C. E. Canfield.
Vice-Pres.—P. P. Westbye.
Sec-Treas.—R. L. Dobbin.
Directors—G. R. Munroe, C. E. Sisson, Wm. Sangster, H. O. Fisk, R. H. Parsons.

The next regular meeting of the Club will be held on Thursday, April 12th, and for that evening an effort is being made to have Mr. J. A. Shaw, Chief Electrical Engineer of the Canadian Pacific Railway, read a paper on the Electrification of Steam Railways. This will be confirmed later.

Customs Returns On the Increase

1917—$858,316.73.

This revenue would probably have reached the million mark had not the Quaker Oats fire occurred.

The receipts for March of this year also show an increase over last year:

March, 1917—$85,251.50.
March, 1916—$60,648.89.

D. MINNICOLA'S APPEAL HEARD BY THE JUDGE

Mr. D. Minnecola's appeal against Magistrate Dumble's police court conviction for selling potatoes after 7 p.m. on December 18th last, was heard by Judge Huycke this morning. Judgment was reserved. Shortly after the early-closing by-law came into force Mr. Minnecola sold a woman acting as a stool-pidgeon, one peck of potatoes but refused regular groceries claiming that he had been instructed that he could sell raw fruits and vegetables which were not listed as groceries. Magistrate Dumble interpreted the word groceries to include potatoes and imposed a minimum fine of $2 and $2.60 costs. Mr. G. N. Gordon acted for the city and Mr. Daniel O'Connel of Toronto, represented the appellant.

ENNISMORE NEWS

TRIBUTE TO THE LATE T. A. S. HAY

Was a Consistent and Active Member of St. Paul's Church

At St. Paul's Church on Sunday morning Rev. Mr. Pogue expressed himself in the following words concerning the death of M. T. A. S. Hay, who was a member of the Church:

"I cannot refrain this morning from saying a word in reference to the worth and character of the late Mr. Thomas Hay, who passed away last Wednesday evening.

"Mr. Hay was a life-long member of St. Paul's congregation. He was born in the city over 67 years ago, and from earliest infancy was connected with the Church; first, as a Sunday Schol scholar, then as a member of the Church, and then for about twenty years as a member of the Board of Managers. There was no one more interested in all that pertained to the welfare of St. Paul's Church than he. As a member of the Board of Managers he was beloved and respected by all his fellow-members. And he always discharged faithfully and well whatever work that may have been assigned him by the Board. He was never absent from his place in the Sanctuary when he was able to attend. The regularity with which he waited on the means of grace was an inspiration to all who saw him and knew him.

"He possessed one outstanding virtue among many others that were admirable, and that was a certain largeness of mind and heart combined in absolute sincerity of character which made him the truest of friends, and raised him above athe petty meannesses which characterizes some men. It was impossible to be small of mean in his presence.

He loved the Church of Christ. He loved indeed all things good and beautiful. No one ever laboured more faithfully for the welfare of his city than he. We shall miss him greatly in St. Paul's Church. In his removal by death his Church has lost a loyal member; his minister has lost a true friend, and the city has lost a useful citizen. The loss to his wife and daughters and to his only surviving sister no words can describe. May the God of all consolation sustain and comfort them in this the hour of their sorrow."

SUBSTITUTE FOR FLOUR.

Found by German Chemists, Berlin Report Says.

BERLIN, via London, April 2.—German chemists have discovered a method for making a flour substitute out of linen and beech buds. They claim that the substitute has the nutritive value of barley flour, with four times its fat properties.

JUST DRIFT ALONG AS NOW

No Appreciable Results From Extended Time For Sigaing Cards

OTTAWA, April 2.—The extension of time for the receiving of National Service Registration cards, which expired Saturday, did not produce any appreciable results. The number of belated cards sent in has been almost negligible. The renewed opportunity offered to the slackers, or to those who for one reason or another neglected or declined to sign the cards last January, has apparently not moved them. It is known that there are many thousands of the male urban population of Canada who have not complied with the Government's request to fill in the cards, and consequently the inventory of Canada's man power is to that extent at least, incomplete and unsatisfactory.

The real problem before the Government now is how to get after this considerable minority of slackers and secure useful service from them toward production or other necessary war work. That problem is still unsolved. Apparently it is not even in process of solution. The Government is still relying upon a somewhat vague form of official appeals and moral suasion. No decision has been reached as to the next step in the National Service campaign. In so far as it relates to present needs of war work, there is no indication that any drastic action will be taken towards compelling those who have not yet signed the cards to now sign them, nor is there any indication that the Government or the National Service Board will adopt any really practical method of State organization of the man power specifically disclosed by the incomplete inventory.

The Director-General of National Service, Mr. R. B. Bennett, has, it is understood urged upon the Government the necessity of firmer action to supplement and make practical the registration now taken, but so far as can be learned the Cabinet is not disposed to go farther. Until Parliament meets again the Cabinet will apparently be consent to just drift along as at present.

BOOM IN WOODEN VESSELS.

New Canadian Built Wooden Schooner Reaches New York.

NEW YORK, March 31. — The Canadian schooner Letitia T. Mackay, just arrived with a cargo of wood pulp, is, according to Capt. T. A. Butler, the first of a great fleet of schooners which will soon reach this port. She is brand new. Butler says the shores of the United States and Canada are dotted with the newly completed hulls of such vessels as his. They are being rushed to make up the shortage in ocean tonnage caused by the war.

"The Canadians," he said yesterday, "realize the demand for such vessels will last only during the war or until the builders of steel steamships can catch up with their orders. So they are getting the schooners into the water as quickly as possible."

Special Co-Star "Il Trovatore" Production

Comes to "The Grand" Wednesday April 11

The success of the notable tour of Joseph F. Sheehan and Mlle Nelli Gardini in Verdi's masterpiece Il Trovatore, lies in the simple fact that it fills a real need, namely, a real production of opera with the proper stage settings presented by a company of world renowned artists, at prices which the average theatre-goer can afford.

To the average person opera at five dollars a seat is an extravagance to be enjoyed only at rare intervals. A grand opera of fine texture is appreciated more the second time it is heard than the first, and a third hearing brings added enjoyment. The real music lover wants to hear again and again the beautiful melodies with which Il Trovatore abounds, providing, of course, it is presented in an adequate manner.

It is obvious that it is impossible for a touring company to carry a large repertoire and do justice to the different operas but by concentrating on one it can be accomplished.

Mlle Nelli Gardini is acknowledged one of the world's geatest Leonoras, and the role of Manrico is likewise the best thing in Mr. Sheehan's extensive repertoire. These famous stars have surrounded themselves with a cast specially selected for their ability in Il Trovatore and the result is a performance seldom equalled in this country and never equalled except at high prices.

MR. W. F. JOHNSTON RELATES SOME STRANGE EXPERIENCES

"Psychic Research" Was the Subject of an Address Given by Mr. Johnston at a Meeting of the Otonabee Chapter of the I. O. D. E.

The fourth of the series of five lectures under the auspices of the Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E. was well attended on Saturday afternoon, and a most interesting address was given by Mr. W. F. Johnston in Psychic Research. Capt. J. H. Burnham was in the chair.

Mr. Johnston said that Psychic Research was a subject looked down upon by many, but what he was going to do was not prove the theory of continuity of existence but spoke the experiences of ordinary individuals with one experience of his own which he would give reluctantly.

Of recent years it has been discovered that besides normal consciousness there is a large area the bounds of which are not yet found, this is the subsconcious state which contains nearly all the properties of consciousness and works at all times. It is a state which reasons, has memory, can see without an eye, can cause the hand to write intelligent messages of which you have no mind until you pick up the script. It is amenable to laws, the chief of which is the law of suggestion.

Strange Cases.

Mr. Johnston quoted some strange cases, the first of which was a startling case of subconscious memory.

On January 17, 1866, a Methodist minister, highly esteemed, left his home near Providence to attend to some business in town. He left in the best of spirits, and arrived at his nephew's store. Here he left to see his sister. On leaving his nephew's store he disappeared and the police and relatives failed to find any trace.

On February 1st, a man named A. J. Brown, turned up in Morristown, Pa., rented a store and opened up a notion business. He was apparently a man of normal habits, of good business head. On March the 4th Brown awoke with what appeared to be an explosion in his head, he could recognize nothing in the surroundings. He questioned his landlord where he was, what the date was, etc. He then explained he had left home on the 17th January and that from that time he had no memory of what had happened. It was proved that Brown and the Methodist minister were one and the same men. Hypnotism was brought to bear. In the hypnotic state Brown gave a lurid account of all his doings between January 17th and March 4th. Hypnotism brought out the subconscious memory.

Mr. Johnston's Experience.

Scientists who have studied psychic research agree that there is no person, however lonely in life, who is not met by some kindly soul in crossing the great divide.

A cousin of Mr. Johnston, a young woman, was ill with no chance of recovery. He visited her frequently. One day she asked him to answer her a question. He knew what was coming and concluded it was best to tell the truth about it though he felt it keenly and tried to pallate the shock. He asked her if she had any idea of what she was going into and told her his idea of what it was—that she would fall asleep and be met by loving helpful souls. This seemed to comfort the girl and she said: "Wouldn't it be lovely if it were my aunt or maybe my brother."

The day came when she was truly dying and Mr. Johnston decided to sit with her conscious or not. She recovered consciousness and after praying for a safe quick passage the girl sat up and gasped a blessing to her uncle and to him. Her last words were God Bless Cousin Willie, and fell back. Just before she passed she sat up and gasped out "No it is your grandson Willie." The conclusion in Mr. Johnston's mind was that the grandmother was in the room and the cousin tried to let him know in thel ast moment. She could see, but Mr. Johnston could not.

Mr. Johnston quoted many other startling and convincing proofs of the fact that we have something besides what we normally think we have.

Hereafter.

Mourning, he said, would do nothing for the dead — Love is what's needed. Wherever spirits have returned they all show they are happy and have no desire to come back.

A hearty vote of thanks moved by Mrs. Boucher, and seconded by Mrs. Coulthard, was passed.

REV. J. R. WEBB AT GEORGE STREET CHURCH---PULPITS EXCHANGED

The Rev. J. R. Webb and R. G. Peever exchanged pulpits last evening, the former speaking in George Street Church and the latter in Murray street. There was no especial reason for the change, but it serves to show the spirit that exists between the churches of different denominations in the city.

The usual large Sunday evening congregation heard Rev. Mr. Webb at the George Street church, and his sermon was an inspiring one. Mr. Webb took for his text the 41st and 42nd verses of the 20th Chapter of Luke, which read: "And when he was come near he beheld the city, and wept over it, saying, if thou hadst known, even thou, at least in this thy day the things which belong unto they peace! But now they are hid from thine eyes."

It was the first day of Passion week. Jesus was making His triumphal entry into Jerusalem. The people were crying "Hosanah, Hosanah," which was the exact equivalent of the modern cry of "God Save the King." Excited as they never were before their voices united again and again in the praise of Him who came meekly and lowly riding on the foal of an ass. But another thing was happening at the same time. The eyes of Our Master were dimmed and then blinded with tears, and in His agony He said to the great city: "If thou hadst known, even thou, at least in this thy day the things which belong unto thy peace. But now they are hid from thine eyes."

The foundations of the Kingdom of God are the same yesterday and today and forever. The things that make for the peace of Jerusalem are the things that make for your peace and Britain's peace, and the peace of the world. There must be the recognition of Jesus Christ as the Son of God. There will be no peace withot uthat for nation, or church or man. Only from that can we acquire that quality which makes it possible for us to look away past the transient things of to-day, with unwoeful face, to the brighter things of the morrow.

The doom of Jerusalem was sounded, not because they did not recognize the Deity. They knew and admitted God. But it came because of the rejection of the Son of God. One great commentator had said that "Jesus was God's last arrow and His best." God has given to His Son the very highest place in heaven and on earth. In Christ God wrapped up all His glory of the ages past, and the glory of the Father is wrapped up in the confession of the world foe, Jesus. "I am the way and the truth and the light," were Christ's words, and no man, whatever his position or character, could come to God except through his Son, Jesus Christ.

Some of the greatest difficulties in the path of the world to-day is modern Judaeism, which puts the crown upon God and takes it from the brow of Jesus. Those who defend this attitude say that they are resting on principles older than the Christian principles. But they forget that the world began anew with Christ. There should be no place in business pleasure or social life from which the name of Jesus should be excluded. The Old Testament was a "Wrestling Book," while the New Testament was a "Nestling Book." The greatest step down ever taken by Germany in her existence was when her scholarship attacked the Divinity of Jesus Christ. This brought the downfall of Jerusalem, and it will bring defeat to Germany. There can be no peace or nation or man until they give Jesus the place in their lives that God gives Him.

"War is hell," Sherman had said. And yet God is going to use even the wrath of men to prove Himself. There have been more steps towards Jesus Christ in England in the past three years than in the previous thirty. In the first place the unrighteousness of religious cast that so long blighted England has had to make a hasty exit. That was one evil swept away. "I congratulate the Methodists on having so many of your great men in the British Cabinet to-day," said Mr. Webb. "But who, a few years ago would have believed it possible?" Premier Lloyd George was a Baptist Deacon. Then the unchristian handicap placed on womanhood has been removed and they have been given their rightful place and power. The drink demon that had been fought for the past seventy-five years was dying at last. It was dying hard, but its time was at hand. The people of England and of her Dominions would not much longer stand the pressure of this thing upon them. They would not much longer bear the burden while England drinks up every week a Dreadnought and an aeroplane. Nor could we be expected to turn our lawns into gardens while 3,000,000 acres of English soil was devoted to the producing of grain for the manufacture of alcoholic drinks. No, this thing would have to give way soon.

Concluding, Rev. Mr. Webb urged all to give their attention to what part they were to play in the advancement of righteousness and righteous things.

R. C. HEARD'S RE-OPENING

Many will be glad to hear of Mr. Heard resuming business again. He is receiving his new stock which will embrace similar lines to those formerly carried by him. It will be a pleasure to have all his old friends call on him at his new warehouse.

HOLLAND FEARS CRISIS,

No Leave of Absence on Large Scale for Soldiers.

LONDON, April 2.— A despatch to Reuter's Tel. Co. from The Hague says that in replying to an interpellation with regard to the granting of leave to soldiers for agricultural purposes, the Dutch Minister of War said he considered himself bound to inform the Chamber that the general situation was such that there could be no question of granting leave of absence on a large scale.

MORE CLOTH IN FOOTWEAR

High Shoe Prices Have Almost Reached the Maximum

NEW YORK, April 2.—The all-leather shoe will soon be about as numerous as the one-horse shay on Broadway, according to an announcement of the executive committee of the National Retail Shoe Dealers' Association, at the Hotel Astor. Cloth is to be substituted, but as cloth is plentiful, the shoe-top will henceforth peep two inches higher above milady's ankle, and will appear in colours heretofore taboo in the shoe trade.

In view of the embarrassment which may follow this departure, the association will appoint a committee to instruct buyers throughout the country relative to the proper combinations of colours, it being presumed that many small retailers would not know whether red and pink, for instance, would be popular in their particular cities.

A. H. Getuing, secretary and treasurer of the executive committee of the association, says:

"To-day we can procure hides only from Russia and India, and this is done only after great difficulty. We have sufficient leather to meet the demand, but it will be necessary to substitute cloth for leather in shoe tops in the majority of cases. Shoes will not, however, increase materially in price. During the past year shoe prices have increased about 50 per cent., but the price of leather has increased about 100 per cent.

"By next fall, I should say, a shoe costing $5 to-day will sell for about $6 or $6.50. They will not get cheaper, but the crest of the wave of high shoe prices has almost been reached."

GERMAN SOCIALISTS ARE ASKING PEACE

COPENHAGEN, April 2.—A Socialist newspaper of Vienna, received here, contains a brief announcement that the leaders of the German Socialist party in Austria have adopted a declaration regarding peace. It is addressed to the Russian proletariat and will be forwarded through the International Socialist Bureau. The announcement says that the Censor prohibits the publication of the text of the statement.

28,000 Bags of Potatoes Recently Shipped To United States Dealers

It may interest those citizens who are buying potatoes in maximum quantities of one peck at a time to know that a recent accumulation of stocks in Toronto that were tending to bear the market were shipped within a few days across the border to United States dealers. The result is that the movement towards $3.00 and lower quoted last week, has lost its force, and the market has regained most of its lost strength. Forty cars mean about 28,000 bags. Apparently the home market is being carefully manipulated for the effect of price maintenance at high levels when consumers have been told that there is a surplus in Canada and that the relief from frost should decrease prices.

The hall and tables were cleverly decorated in yellow and green paper, and finished with daffodils and ferns. Powdered hair of beauty patches completed the charming olden style costume. Those who assisted were Mrs. Scadding (convenor), the Misses Kathleen Dunsford, Dorothy Stuart, Hazel and Gladys Crowe, Helen Carter, Esther and Daisy Wood, Winnifred Wiltshire, Georgina Cuffe, Marguerite Herridge, Florence Staunton, Eva Sturgeon and Maud Phillips. WILSON ASKS FOR 500,000 MEN AT ONCE

And Suggests That Conscription Be Used To Raise Army

President Wilson Wants To Raise Half Million Men By Conscription

The President Asks Congress to Declare That a State of War Exists Between the United States and Germany--Matter Will Be Dealt With To-day.

ARMED FREIGHTER IS SUNK

WASHINGTON, April 3.—President Wilson at 8:45 last night asked Congress to declare that a state of war exists between the United States and Germany. Congress will deal with the matter to-day. Wilson says no other course is open to the United States. His declaration was received with apparently almost unanimous approval. News came last night that a submarine sank an armed American freighter off the coast of France. President Wilson asks that half a million men be raised for service at once. Wilson suggests conscription to raise his half million war army. Both Houses meet to-day to discuss the message. There is no doubt of its passage, although some will oppose it to the limit.

Searching Montreal For Jewels

MONTREAL, March 31.—The Montreal police department has been asked to keep a sharp lookout for the appearance in second stores of the $43,000 McNair gems, stolen from the home of Mrs. William McNair, 5 East Seventy-ninth street, New York last Friday.

Inspector Grey of the New York police headquarters, has wired the Montreal police to run down and place under arrest suspicious strangers who may make Montreal their hiding place. Detectives Gorman and Lepage of this city, have been detailed on the case with special instruction to questions every stranger found at the various railway stations.

The man suspected of the robbery is a window cleaner, who was at work at the McNair residence while the lady of the house was out. The loot consisted of necklace of sixty perfectly matched pearls valued at $30,000; two diamond rings, $3,000 each; diamond ring, $5,000; pins, broaches and smaller rings, $2,000. A reward of $2,500 is offered by Mrs. McNair for the capture of the thief. The reward holds good to the person who returns the pearl necklace not broken up.

Counting his wealth in billions and long accustomed to all luxuries, John D. Rockefeller, at the age of seventy-seven, continues to be a bicycle rider. He says he needs the wheel for exercise and recreation.

Cattle Markets.

Trade was slow and draggy, and prices were inclined to sag. The choicest picked lots of butcher steers and heifers and baby beef held about steady with last week, but the general run of the market was barely steady to 25 cents lower.

Lambs and calves steady with light offerings.

Hog prices for to-day are quoted 25 cents to 40 cents lower, but there were a few sales yesterday at last week's closing price.

ACID IN STOMACH SOURS THE FOOD

Says Excess of Hydrochloric Acid is Cause of Indigestion.

A well known authority states that stomach trouble and indigestion is nearly always due to acidity — acid stomach—and not, as most folks believe, from a lack of digestive juices. He states that an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach retards digestion and starts food fermentation, then our meals sour like garbage in a can, forming acrid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. We then get that heavy, lumpy feeling in the chest, we eructate sour food, belch gas, or have heartburn, flatulence, water-brash, or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast while it is effervescing, and furthermore, to continue this for one week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.

LIQUOR TABOOED WHERE KING GEORGE IS GUEST.

LONDON, April 2.—It is no longer according to etiquette to place any wines or liquors on the table whenever King George is a guest at military messes or with the fleet, says the Spectator, which is conducting an active campaign for prohibition during the war. The King's order barring the use of alcoholic beverages in his palaces during the war is being adhered to rigidly. No wine is served even at dinner parties at Buckingham Palace or Windsor.

"Nothing can stop the work of the Belgian Relief Commission." Such is the opinion of one of the chief officials of this great organization, in Great Britain. "Germany, not wishing to take upon her own shoulders the enormous task of feeding an entire nation, has granted freedom of the seas to all relief boats. But were she to retract or break her guarantees in this respect, the British would convoy the ships to Rotterdam rather than leave the women and the children to their fate. Whatever happens, whatever difficulties arise, the work must and will go on."

These inspiring words voice the feeling of the entire commission, from the 4,000 Committees in Belgium itself, who distribute bread and soup to the starving population to the other 4,000 committees stationed in every part of the world, engaged in the solicitation of charity, and in the mobilisation of finance and food supplies.

There is one thing, however, that can stop the work of the Relief Commission—the cessation of the world's charity, which has hitherto supported it. It is falling off to-day. In Ghent the people are reduced to eating cats and dogs, because there is not enough bread and soup to go round. Will you protect some Belgian family from the calamity of starvation? Then send to-day a contribution to the nearest Relief Commission, or direct to the Belgian Relief Fund, 50 St. Peter Street, Montreal.

Bulk of Estate Was Insurance

According to the will filed for probate on March 6th, the late Mr. Justice Leitch, former chairman of the Ontario Railway Board, left an estate of $19,903, of which $19,703 was represay that the country was in deadly sented by life insurance policies.—Canadian Insurance and Office and Field, March 28, 1917.

UNDER INSURANCE OF RELIGIOUS PROPERTY

The recent loss of a seminary at Bathurst, N.B., brings to light an interesting instance of the under-insurance which is still too common in Canada in the case of property controlled by religious bodies or devoted to religious purposes. The reverend Fathers who conducted the Bathurst institution were formerly located at Caraquet, N. B. They were burned out there on December 31st, 1915, their building which had cost $250,000, being insured only for $66,800. The Bathurst building was then being completed by the same Order for the purpose of a theological college and the students from Caraquet were moved into it until other arrangements could be made. On March 6th the Bathurst building, which had cost $130,000, was destroyed the insurance being only $55,000.

Thus, within fifteen months, two fires have destroyed property to the value of $400,000, on which there was only $120,000 insurance. This heavy direct loss must be a serious matter for the Order, and we imagine the circumstances will have a prejudicial effect upon the results of any fresh appeal for funds. The facts show strongly the necessity imposed upon those in responsible charge of religious and philanthropic institutions of making arrangements by which the financial loss arising from fire can be adequately met in a business-like manner through insurance. With the present numerous and urgent demands upon the generosity of the well disposed, appeals arising from a distinctly avoidable misfortune are likely perhaps to meet with a chilly reception.

STILL HIGHER PRICES.

Foodstuffs Will Continue to Kite Skyward, Say Economists.

WASHINGTON, March 31. — That prices of foodstuffs will continue to climb until dizzy heights are reached is the opinion of economists here. The withdrawal of 40,000,000 men from agricultural and productive employment to take part in the destructive operations of war is the principal reason given. In addition to this the United States alone of all countries has a surplus of foodstuffs for export, and the lack of competition takes the bridle off the prices.

AN OLD FRIEND THE: POTATO

The nutritious, esculent potato, now so highly prized, did not always grace man's table. In fact, there was a time when the civilized world got along very well without it. The epicures and the gourmands of Carthage, of old Greece and Rome knew it not. They thrived in ignorance of it.

It was not until the sixteenth century that the potato was first discovered, along with the other wonderful discoveries in the Western World in that age. It is to the Spaniards that we owe thanks for discovering the vegetable. The Spaniards came upon it in the neighborhood of Quito, where it was cultivated by the natives. In the records of that time it is referred to under the name of "battata" or "papa." Hieronymus Cordau, a monk, is said to have been the first to introduce it from Peru into Spain, from which country it passed into Italy and thence into Belgium. Carl Sprengel, cited by Professor Edward Marren in his biographical sketch entitled "Charles de l'Escluse, Sa Vie et Ses Oeuvres," states that the potato was introduced from Sante Fe into England by John Hawkins in 1563. If this be true, it is a question whether the English and not the Spaniards are entitled to the credit of the first introduction into Europe; but, according to Sir Joseph Banks, the vegetable brought by Drake and Hawkins was not the common English potato, but the sweet potato.

The potato played a great part in the early history of New England. It was introduced to the American table by Captain John Henry Smith, whose Virginia colony received it first from the Spaniards. The colonists at first were reluctant to eat it, regarding it with some trace of suspicion, but Captain Smith, who had partaken of baked potatoes while enjoying the hospitality of some Spaniards, was very enthusiastic over them and soon allayed the fear of the colonists.

Gradually the potato worked its way north to Philadelphia, New York and Boston and the vegetable became very popular. The Dutch settlers in New Amsterdam soon discovered numerous ways of preparing the potato; they fried it, baked it and even found a way of making potato flour, from which they baked a potato bred. Their most delicious concoction, however, the potato salad, and it was from the Dutch that the Germans got this dish, which is now one of the favourite foods in New York delicatessen stores. The Germans improved on the Dutch method by using new or young potatoes exclusively for salad.

Lion Captures British Soldier

THRILLING EXPERIENCE OF A BRITISH TROOPER IN GERMAN EAST AFRICA.

CAPE TOWN.—Being carried off by a lion right in the glare of a huge camp fire and in the midst of a detachment of the Fourth South African Horse was the recent experience of John Brighton, a railroad postal telegraph clerk from the Maritzburg Post Office, who is serving with the regiment in German East Africa. A comrade tells about it in a letter home.

"We pitched camp at Saranda on the Central Railway, about four miles from the station," he writes, "and stayed there ten days. Such a place for wild animals I had not seen in all the campaign. Lions and monkeys were the chief denizens of this natural managerie and their roaring and chattering at night to which hyenas added their weird yelling made sleep impossible. We lay around the camp fires with rifles loaded and bayonets fixed in readiness for anything that might happen during the pandemonium.

"As we made no noise the animals doubtless emboldened by their own and getting accustomed to the glare of the fires, drew in nearer and nearer as our stay was prolonged. On the ninth night a big shape hurtled over the thornbush barrier with which we had surrounded the camp, landed as lightly as a feather, and was off before anybody realized just what had happened, taking Brighton, who had been dozing, wrapped up in his blanket, with it.

"Brighton was too astonished to yell even until the lion, for that is what it was, had carried him seven or eight yards beyond the barrier. The animal's teeth had not touched him but had gripped the blanket and the postal clerk pulling his arms free pounded the lion's nose with all his force, wriggling and shouting as he did so. By this time, too, we were all up and starting in pursuit, yelling like mad and shooting off our rifles. Brighton's punching and the unearthly noise must have scared the lion half to death, for he dropped his captive and made off at top speed. No doubt he is still running.

"Two days later we treked down to Kilmatinde, also on the railway, and then went on to Itigi, where we took three engines, practically intact, a quantity of rolling stock slightly damaged, a pump, tanks and a splendid workshop. Two stations further up a part of our men took eighteen engines and a big lot of rolling stock.

"We were the most westerly of General Smut's advance and at Itigi we came in touch with the Belgians' advance party. The Belgian askaris' uniforms were a scream. They are just like a Natal riksha boy's dress. Some were what they call 'markaman' and had huge gold cross guns all over their sleeves."

Must Knock Enemy Out Before Britain is Starved Out.

LONDON, April 2.—The Rt. Hon. William Hayes Fisher, Parliamentary Secretary to the Local Government Board, in an address at Hull, said it was not an exaggeration to say that the country was in deadly peril at the present moment.

"We must have national service for everybody," said Mr. Fisher. "We did not intend to stand more than three years of war. Germany's idea was to starve us out before we could knock her out. What we want is to knock the enemy out this year and we are beginning to do it.

Was Anaemic
FOR OVER A YEAR

Anaemia, or blood turning to water, is caused by the heart becoming deranged, and if the heart becomes weakened it cannot pump the blood as it should. As a result the blood becomes impoverished, and it loses its nourishing qualities. The face becomes pale and thin, and the lips bloodless. There is a weakness, tiredness and loss of weight.

When those suffering from thin or watery blood start taking Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills they can see a change from the outset.

Every dose introduces into the blood those vital elements necessary to make it rich and red. The pale cheeks take on the rosy hue of health, the weight increases, and the whole being thrills with a new life.

Mrs. R. J. Grey, Fredericton, N. B., writes: "When I was a girl working at general house work I overtaxed my strength and became completely run down. For over a year I was very bad with anaemia. A friend told me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills so I got a box and when it was done I decided to get six more When I had taken them I gained not only in strength, but in flesh and colour, and best of all was good health."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. a box; three boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

FOR COMPLETE MILITARY CENSUS IN N. Y. STATE.

New Measure Signed by Governor Whitman to Use All Military Resources.

ALBANY, March 31.—Governor Whitman to-day signed the Robinson-Marsh bill providing for a census of the military resources of the State. The bill appropriates only $150,000 for expenses, but permits the State to accept private contributions, a number of which have already been offered. The expense of the last census of population was $600,000. In signing the bill the Governor said:

"Under authority vested in me by the present law, I have already directed the Adjutant General to utilize to the fullest extent the information obtainable from the State census which has only recently been completed. This will serve as a basis for the making of part of the census provided for in this measure.

"The powers of the Governor under this bill are much more comprehensive than under the provisions of the military law, which contemplates only the enrollment of the able-bodied male citizens of the State between the ages of 18 and 45 years, as it provides for an inventory of all the resources available for use in the event of war, which would include the women available for service as well as men, money, the industrial and material resources of the State, munitions and military supplies manufactured or procurable within the State. Military strength depends upon the organization and utilization of such resources, and it is imperative that we have a knowledge of such assets available for use in the event of war."

How Inventory of The Available Man-Power of The Dominion Was Taken

The Wording of the Card Itself Presented the First Serious Problem—Some of Them Sent Supplementary Letters or Wrote All Over the Cards—Skilled Munitions Labour Now Engaged in Other Occupations Has Also Been Discovered and Placed—Men For the Flying Corps.

BETTER THAN A CENSUS

An inventory of the available man-ower of the Dominion looks like a uge task. Yet it has been accom-lished in record time and the returns re now being classified and sorted at Ottawa by the National Service oard. Every man in Canada, be-ween the specified ages, has received National Service card. A large per-entage of them have now been re-urned and it is expected that practi-ally a complete return will have been ade by the last day of this month.

When it is realized that the cards nly left Ottawa in December last, nd the bulk of the returns were back n that city by January 25th, some dea can be gained of the wonderful rganization that had been so suc-essfully provided by the Director-eneral, R. B. Bennett, K.C., M.P.

In view of the importance of this ork, a reporter recently interviewed Mr. Chas. D. Peterson, Secretary of he National Service Board, at the eadquarters in Ottawa.

A Serious Problem.

"The wording of the card itself," aid Mr. Peterson, "presented the irst serious problem. A card had to e framed that covered the case com-letely and which yielded information hat was absolutely essential, but it ad to be couched in such language hat the least intelligent citizen would nderstand each question and misun-erstand none."

Draft after draft was made. They were edited and re-edited. The fore-most expert opinions were secured before the final copy was approved. The uniformly satisfactory answers that have been received amply justi-ied all the time that was devoted to his task.

Then the system of distribution and collection had to be evolved, and a arge staff organized and trained to handle efficiently what was an entire-ly new proposition. Needless to say, the executive heads worked night and day for weeks at a time, to accom-plish this end.

The first task was to create an "at-mosphere" in favour of National Ser-vice, so that when the cards were sent out, the public would be ready to re-ceive them with some knowledge of what end they would serve. Last No-vember it was decided to proclaim a "National Service Week" early in January. To creat public opinion ar-rangements were made for meetings in the interest of National Service in every city, town and village in Can-ada, through local bodies. The clergy were communicated with and request-ed to preach on the subject of Nation-al Service. Fraternal and patriotic so-cieties, school teachers, lawyers, doc-tors and others were invited to co-operate, and in most cases did so energetically.

Distributing Cards.

The distribution of printed matter in a country like Canada is not so simple as would appear on the sur-face. The requirements of cards and envelopes for each city, town, village and hamlet had to be estimated and listed. Estimates also had to be made of how many cards in English and how many in French were to be sup-plied to each Post Office. Over 20,000 parcels were thus made up and for-warded from the head office.

The delivery and collection of cards was then organized through the Post Office machinery. Postmasters were personally addressed by the Postmas-ter-General and the Director-General, and they and their staffs thoroughly instructed in what was expected of them. Arrangements had also to be made for the reception of the return-ed cards. This involved procuring suitable quarters and the creation of a large organization. Special furni-ture and fittings also had to be de-signed and made for the purposes in view.

Elaborate System.

An elaborate system of classifica-tion now had to be evolved. Each of the twenty-four questions on the card was carefully considered in doing so. The "viseing" necessarily had to be so simplified that it would become al-most automatic. This was the work of specially trained minds for several weeks. Under this system of sorting, the effective manhood of Canada was finally divided into fourteen classes according to ages, occupations, de-pendents, physical defects, national-ity, etc.

The next task was the organization and training of a "viseing" staff of about one hundred and twenty-five women. A school was established and for a couple of weeks they had to be taught to take cards in at a glance and without mental effort, concentrat-ing attention only on specified places on the card. Each girl had to be equal to "viseing" 600 cards a day without error. Many of the less active minded pupils could not respond to the effort and had to be dispensed with. A certain type of mind, but not ne-cessarily a superior mind, yielded the best results. Finally a satisfactory staff was organized and properly in-structed and the big job of "viseing" began just four weeks after the blank cards had left the Government Print-ing Bureau.

Eight Million.

It is interesting to note that some eight million pieces of printed matter were utilized in connection with the man-power inventory. Seventy tons of paper went into the manufacturing of the cards and envelopes. Owing to the short notice at which the work had to be accomplished, every envel-ope machine in Canada, making the size required, was requisitioned for night and day service for a consider-able period. The mere physical ef-fort in handling these masses of mat-erial several times was a factor that had to be reckoned with in outlining the organization.

At the Statistical Branch of the Na-tional Service organization, the com-pleted cards, each in a sealed envel-ope, were delivered from the Ottawa Post Office in huge mail-bags. Most people enjoy opening the day's mail and set about it with serene deliber-ation. The average man, however, would be overwhelmed if the postman brought in 200,000 communications. That, however, is the number of let-ters the Director-General received on one of the big days. They were con-tained in 84 mail-bags. One would think that a large staff would be re-quired just to open the envelopes, but this is avoided by using an electric letter-opener. This little contrivance slices the envelopes open at the rate of 800 a minute, and incidentally per-forms six or eight men's work.

Sorting the Cards.

After this operation the cards are taken to the sorting rooms—a separ-ate room for each Province. The pre-liminary sorting, after the card has been withdrawn from the envelope, merely determines whether the card is complete or incomplete. In the classification rooms the completed cards are divided into military, muni-tions and industrial prospects and then sub-divided into the proper sec-tions and groups. Those engaged in farming and those belonging to a lim-ited list of highly skilled trades, es-sential in the production of muni-tions and other war material, are pro-visionally eliminated from the mili-tary prospects class. The industrial class is again sub-divided into occu-pational groups, so as to admit of ready reference when calls come in for skilled labour of any sort for pub-lic services or essential industries. These requisitions for labour are re-ferred to the Industrial Branch, where a small army of typewriters are kept busy in preparing special lists for concerns requiring labour.

Change of Heart.

The completed cards are an inter-esting study and by reading between the lines one realizes the splendid pa-triotic spirit which they have called forth. Here is a card from a man who has lost the use of his legs, but is "willing to go anywhere to do ne-cessary work for the nation." He gets around in a wheel chair and is a first-class mechanic. A striking feature of many of the cards is the manly straightforwardness with which the questions have been answered. A Bel-gian writes: "My three sons are gone forever. I am too old for anything but to pray for your people and mine, and knit socks." A woman on the prairies makes the pathetic statement, that her husband and son have both been killed and she is running the farm herself as best she can. A re-turned soldier, badly wounded, ex-presses the deepest regret that, after repeated attempts, he will not be ac-cepted for further service at the front. Many women filled in cards and de-manded to be given the opportunity to do "a man's work." One sarcasti-cally offered to take the place of a "slacker" at the front. Even men who originally returned evasive re-plies have in some cases undergone a change of heart and have written to the National Service Board to rectify their answers.

Supplementary Letters.

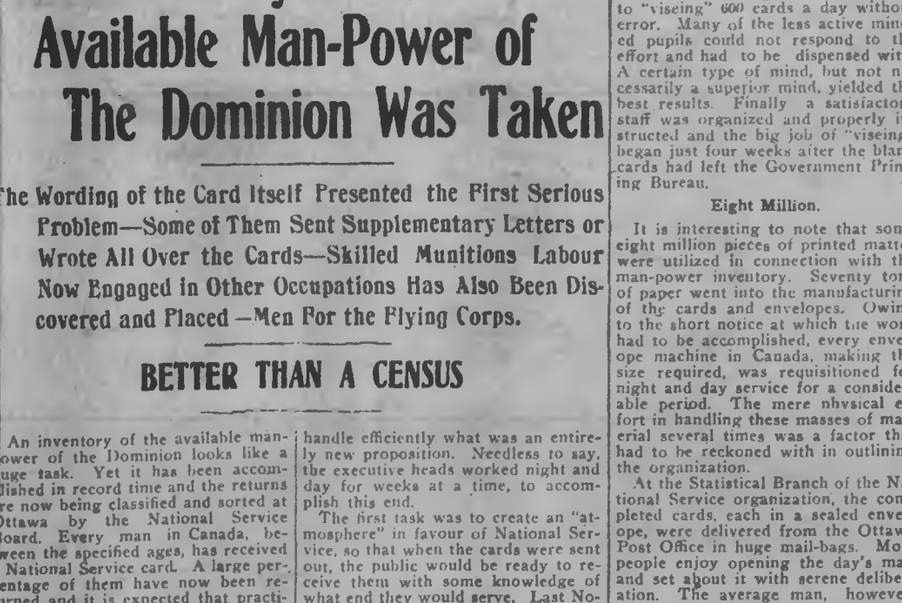
As was to be expected, the officials have been deluged with correspond-ence. Thousands of people, far from being unwilling to answer the ques-tions, have found the spaces on the front of the card quite insufficient and have either written all over the back or have sent supplementary letters. In fact, they seem to regard it as a great opportunity to tell the story of their lives, and one ranges over the whole gamut from the sublime to the ridicu-lous, in reading these epistles.

The question uppermost in the pub-lic mind has naturally been as to the useful purpose behind it all. In the first place, it is important to have sta-tistical knowledge as to the man-power of a country at war. Such data has a bearing upon grave questions of public policy. As the war progresses this information becomes more and more essential. The ordinary census figures are of no assistance in the matter, as, besides being out of date, they take no account of many things of vital interest in war time, such as physical defects, number of depen-dents, etc. It was not, however, by any means the expectation, that the inventory should serve statistical ends solely.

Practical Usefulness.

The practical business usefulness of the inventory has already been de-monstrated in various ways, although the sorting has not yet been complet-ed. During the recent coal shortage, Sir Henry Drayton, Chairman of the Railway Commission, called for the names and addresses of 500 railroad engineers, foremen, conductors, brakesmen, telegraph operators, switchmen, signalmen and airbrakes-men, who were not then working at any of those occupations, and who had signified that they would render national service on request. The names were furnished within twenty-four hours. Valuable services are now being rendered the recruiting au-thorities in furnishing lists of military prospects not engaged in essential oc-cupations. Skilled munitions labour now engaged in other occupations has also been discovered and placed.

The Royal Flying Corps needed 3,000 mechanics for the squadrons now being formed in Canada. The National Service cards were special-ly vised and 12,000 likely names were selected from Ontario alone. These men were circularized and enrollment is now progressing satisfactorily. Numerous requests have been made by railways and industrial concerns for help, and relief has been given. The National Service Board is doing valuable work for the nation by ar-ranging for the efficient maintenance of essential industries and public ser-vices, through the man-power inven-tory. Every day these card records are so much nearer completion and when finally and fully available, which they will be shortly, they will constitute a ready means of solving many of the problems that will doubt-less confront Canada before the war ends and afterwards.



CLASSIFYING NATIONAL SERVICE CARDS.

"The States" Come In !

Now that official action has struck off the fetters of neutrality, our cousins across the Line are free to throw their whole weight into the world's struggle for freedom and humanity.

Unofficially and individually they have already contributed much to the Allied cause—in moral and financial support, in munitions and machinery, and by no means least in those brilliant inventions for which they are famous. The Lewis gun, the Curtis hydroplane, and a wonderful submarine detector are products of their genius which in our hands have done most efficient work by land, air and sea ; while the American-invented, Canadian-made Gillette Safety Razor has been a friend indeed to our officers and men on active service everywhere.

Much as men have appreciated the Gillette at home, its real test has come in barracks, billets, trenches and hospitals, and no article of equipment has proved more satisfactory. Those who have returned from the firing line speak with enthusiasm of the convenience—the comfort—the necessity of having a Gillette Safety Razor if the man at the Front is to enjoy a clean and regular shave.

If there is anyone dear to you in Canada or Overseas without a Gillette and a good supply of blades, it's a chance for you to do him a really good turn by completing his equipment

GIRL'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington

It had to be, of course, that Fashion would favor the small girl just as she did mother, and make her new spring dress with a vest and a separate belt and show the panel front effect so that life would be really perfect.

The fronts of the plain waist are lapped over the surplice vest, so as to give diagonal closing; the strap trimming just below the collar gives added attraction to the vest in light tone. The sleeve is easily full and may be short with a band finish or long with a wristband cuff of material trimmed with bands of contrasting goods to match the square collar. A two gore skirt is joined at normal waist line, where the separate belt is arranged; the belt has its sides lengthened to form pockets, the pocket opening being bound with satin.

YES! THIS IS TRUE! ANY CORN LIFTS OUT

No foolishness! Lift your corns and calluses off with fingers.

Pain? No, none at all!

Sore corns, hard corns, soft corns or any kind of a corn, can harmlessly be lifted right out with the fingers if you will apply directly upon the corn a few drops of freezone says a Cincinnati authority.

It is claimed that at small cost one can get a quarter of an ounce of freezone at any drug store which is sufficient to rid one's feet of every corn or callus without pain or soreness or the danger of infection.

This simple drug dries the moment it is applied and does not inflame or even irritate the surrounding tissue while applying it or afterwards.

This announcement will interest many women here, for it is said that the present high-heel footwear is putting corns on every woman's feet.

NAVAL TRAINING ON LAKES.

U. S. to Enroll 3,000 For Great Lakes Fleet.

CHICAGO, March 31.—Commandant W. A. Moffett of the Great Lakes training station received orders from Washington yesterday to rush the enrollment of a division of 3,000 men to serve on 500 yachts and power boats being collected for war purposes.

Arrangements were made for the distribution of the yachts in the great lakes. A preliminary cruise of three weeks is being planned and a manual for scouting and screening purposes and a code of signals is being prepared.

MRS. GAULT GRANTED LEGAL SEPARATION

Given Alimentary Allowance of $1,400 a Month—Husband's Action Dismissed

MONTREAL, April 2.—In the Supreme Court, Mr. Justice Weir rendered judgment in the action in which Major A. Hamilton Gault sued for separation as to bed and board from his wife, and in the cross-action taken by Mrs. Gault seeking a like separation from her husband.

His Lordship said he considered that plaintiff had failed to prove the allegation he made against his wife, who had absolutely disproved the charge. The court, therefore, dismissed the action, with costs.

Adjudicating on the cross-action Justice Weir held that Mrs. Gault had proved the principal allegations of her demand, and maintained her action on the ground of ill-usage and grievous insults offered to her by her husband. Mrs. Gault was allowed an alimentary allowance at the rate of $1,400 a month, in view of the fact that she has been accustomed to a mode of living in luxury and the fact that Major Gault has an income of over $60,000 a year from his fortune of $1,200,000. Mrs. Gault's income from her own property is $600 a month.

In the course of his judgment Mr. Justice Weir remarks: "The court suggested to the parties the consideration of a reconciliation between them and received no response thereto. Such reconciliation now appears improbable and even impossible and not to be in the interest of the parties."

Messrs. Lafleur, MacDougall and Laflamme appeared for Major Gault; Messrs. Montgomery and Geoffrion for Mrs. Gault.

THE SPIRIT OF THE NATION.

Sport Flourishes in Britain Despite the War.

Sport in Britain as a whole has made terrific sacrifices to war, giving up men by the thousands, but nevertheless, a surprising amount of activity continues.

In a recent issue of London Sporting Life, a list of the week's sporting happenings included all sorts of sports, professional and school soccer, boxing, billiards (including two important matches, in one of which the champion figured), cross-country and track athletics, pedestrian contests, flat and jumping races for horses, bowling, golf, etc.

The major professional sports of the country, association football, and boxing were both liberally mentioned. Returns from six soccer leagues, containing from 12 to 16 teams, were printed. What the attendance was did not appear from the reports.

The fact that sporting events in England are carried on to such extent with the war's horrors hardly more than a cannon shot distant would not encourage those in Canada who would out-British the British, and toss a wet blanket upon competition of every variety.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Billy Atherton's Christmas Money

By WILLIAM CHANDLER

When Billy Atherton was about to start home at noon on the day before Christmas from the office of Stuart & Co., he was called into Mr. Stuart's office.

"Billy, here's a Christmas gift for you," said his employer and handed him a check for $25.

Billy's face lighted with joy. He had not been with the firm long, and his salary was meager. He had been hoping that it would be raised on the first of the new year, but had not counted on receiving anything besides his ten dollar weekly pay before that time.

"Next year we'll give you an additional $5 a week," added Mr. Stuart.

Billy left the office rejoicing. His mother was a widow and poor. There were several little children in the family and nothing with which to celebrate Christmas. Billy's first impulse was to buy a lot of gifts to take home with him. Then he remembered that he must first get his check cashed. While he was going to the bank he concluded to take the money home and give it to his mother to spend as she thought best.

He was known at the bank, having often made deposits there for his employers, and had no difficulty in getting the money. He rolled the bills together and crammed them into his trousers pocket. Then, giving place at the paying teller's window to the next person in line, he ran outside and stood waiting for a trolley car to take him home. The first car that came along was crowded, but Billy forced his way through these on the platform and hung on to a strap.

Billy was thinking of the pleasure in store for his mother at seeing his roll of bills when a man standing next to him cried out:

"Give me my money!"

He was looking straight at Billy, and yet Billy was some time getting on to the fact that the man referred to him.

"You give me back them bills you took out o' my pocket!" the man reiterated.

"If you mean me," said Billy, "you've made a mistake.

"No, I haven't. I thought there was somethin' up when you jostled me. When I got my hand down into my pocket my money was gone."

Billy protested that he was innocent, but the man was immovable and cried out to the conductor to stop the car at the next corner. The car was stopped, and a traffic policeman called a roundsman, who took Billy and his accuser off the car. There the latter told his story.

"Shall I run him in?" asked the officer.

"Sure!"

"Well, you'll have to come along too."

Poor Billy was marched to a police station and placed before a sergeant at the desk. When his accuser had stated his case the sergeant asked him how much money had been taken from him.

"Twenty-five dollars."

Billy turned pale. The sergeant ordered him to turn out his pockets. He responded by taking out the roll of bills he had drawn from the bank and handing them to the officer. They were counted and corresponded exactly with the amount the man said he had lost.

The sergeant looked somewhat surprised. Billy did not look like a thief.

"How long have you been a crook?" asked the sergeant of Billy.

"I'm not a crook," replied the boy with a tremor in his voice. "That $25 I have just drawn from the bank. It was given me for Christmas."

"What bank?"

"The Tenth National."

The sergeant took up a telephone and asked if a check had recently been paid to William Atherton. The paying teller replied in the affirmative. The amount was $25.

"I thought so," remarked the sergeant and, looking at the accuser, added: "I reckon you're the crook and this young man is the victim. You saw him draw the money, got on the same car with him and played your game."

At that moment a policeman entered the station and, seeing Billy's accuser, looked hard at him. Then he said:

"Hello, Tom Flynn! When did you get out?"

At this the man owned up. He had stood in line before the cashier's window, saw Billy draw the money, felt in his pocket for a check he didn't find and, running out, was in time to get on the car with Billy.

He was put back in the penitentiary from which he had recently come.

When Billy reached home he had so much to tell his mother that he scarcely knew where to begin.

"Mother, I've been accused of robbery," he said.

"Great heaven!"

"I was taken to the police station."

"Oh, dear!"

"My salary has been raised for next year."

"Do tell!"

"And Mr. Stuart gave me $25 for Christmas."

"Mercy on us! What else has happened?"

Billy, having got out the main points, settled down to the story, beginning at the right end and ending with his discharge from custody.

Mrs. Atherton at the close of the recital embraced her son, then hurried out to spend a part of his money for such articles as were necessary to a happy Christmas.

How to Dye the Eggs.

The best method is to dye your eggs just before breakfast or before you want to serve them. If your dyes are all ready and you have read over your directions beforehand you need allow only ten or fifteen minutes for the task. Have your dyes ready in old teacups. Green, light blue, orange, pale red, purple, pink, yellow and scarlet are the usual colors. Cook your eggs to the desired degree of hardness and then quickly drop them from the boiling water into the hot dye and as soon as they have taken the desired hue remove them from the dye and place in the dish from which they are to be served.

RAIDING GERMAN LINES.

Canadian Lieutenant Tells of Experience in Trenches.

Canadians are again busy trench raiding. A lieutenant from the west reached London ten days ago, and gave graphic details of recent enterprises of this sort. These raids, he said, are carried out with clockwork precision, and are often rehearsed several times beforehand. A certain part of the line is selected, and wire entanglements are mapped out beforehand by working parties; in a great many cases the raiders possess a snapshot of the trench, taken by airmen.

Before crawling across to the enemy trench care is taken to cast off all shiny accoutrements, and faces and hands of the raiders are blackened with burnt cork. If the sentries are half asleep they are bumped off before they can say "Jack Robinson," bombs are thrown in the dugouts and a prompt exit is made with a couple of prisoners. The latter are a very important factor, because the raids are made with a view to obtaining information from the enemy.

At other times both sides have working parties at night time in No Man's Land. Very often it happens that the parties see each other.

"You would, perhaps, think there would be something doing right there and then," said the lieutenant, "but no chance. Each party carries on its nocturnal work without hindering the other. The working parties are in a hurry to get through and get back behind the sandbags. Our machine gunners do a lot of firing at night, working in twos. One man looking over the parapet fires a gun. As he fires, the other keeps refilling the empty magazines. I fired as many as fifteen hundred shots in a night.

"Last week an enterprising German patrol surrounded one of the bombing posts in an isolated part of the line. There were only two bombers holding it; one was taken prisoner, the other had eight or nine bayonet wounds in his body when found. The enemy leaves us great encouragement and inspiration by these actions that are not to be despised.

"Our idea is not to start any great push. They will retire to their own boundaries in due time. What we must do is to keep them where they are, holding all the line they have now and the long lines of communication. If the line became shortened, as it would if they were pushed back, that would be a great help to them. Gradually we will discover what parts of the line they are holding thinly. We can then make a swoop on that and get booty, and by making raids and constantly harassing them and giving them no rest we will be doing the best service."

A Fighting Violinist.

It is probable that the musical life of Canada will be enriched during the next few years by the arrival of musicians from the warring countries who desire to take up their abode here. The accomplished Russian violinist Gregor Cherniavsky recently arrived from Russia, bringing with him honors and scars to show for his service on the battlefields with the Czar's army. Three other Russian artists of the same name have recently been touring the Dominion. It is said that Gregor Cherniavsky intends to make his home in a city in one of our Western Provinces. He is loath to talk of his experiences at the front. His studies with Leopold Auer, his assistant's work with that master, and other features of his musical career are more important to him than the months spent as a soldier on the Galician front.

The moment war was declared, Gregor dropped his music rolls, laid away his beloved Amati violin, donned his uniform, his sword and side arms, and joined his regiment. He was a lieutenant of infantry. Rushed to the front, Lieutenant Cherniavsky commanded his men in many a bitter fight. Once his regiment captured many Austrians. The trenches of the latter, before Lemberg fell to the Czar's armies, were only 100 to 200 yards away from the Russians. Among the Austrians taken by Lieutenant Cherniavsky's men were several players from the royal opera orchestra of Vienna. They told Gregor that Fritz Kreisler was in the trenches not far from them, and that when the company in which Kreisler was an officer was sent at times to the rear to rest and recoup, Kreisler would get out his fiddle and play for the soldiers at their base station.

Lieutenant Cherniavsky heard this with the greatest interest and hoped that his men might capture the Kreisler company, also hoping that the violinist would not be injured. But a troop of Cossacks did for Kreisler's chances of being captured and he was sent home badly injured, as has been told so often.

"If you had charged the Austrian trenches with Kreisler and his men, would you have killed your fellow violinist?" was asked of Lieutenant Cherniavsky.

The young veteran—he has been honorably discharged by order of the Czar—smiled. "I thought of that many times," he said, "and all I ever wanted to do was to see Kreisler and shake him by the hand. I never felt like fighting with him."

A Noble Family.

A Scottish-Canadian family's tragic sacrifice in the war became known on the departure from Granville Canadian Hospital at Ramsgate of Nurse Murray and her brother, Corporal Murray, who wore three gold stripes on his sleeve. They are the only surviving children of Colonel Murray, of Toronto, formerly of the Black Watch. Two of Colonel Murray's sons were killed at Ypres, two fell on the Somme, and the younger daughter was killed by a shell while a nurse at a Belgian clearing station.

AMEND O. A. L. RULES.

More Alterations Proposed in Rules Governing Lacrosse.

TORONTO, March 31.—Four additional amendments to the O.A.L.A. constitution and playing rules have been received. Two are by Peter Hocking, and the others by "Gene" Dopp, both of Toronto.

Mr. Hocking would change the age limit in the junior series to "under eighteen years." Fred Westborne has already offered an amendment to make it "under seventeen years." Mr. Hocking would also make a change in the age qualifications of the juvenile series, making the age sixteen years and under instead of seventeen and under.

The other amendments proposed by Mr. Dopp has to do with the actual playing time. He would have the game divided into three twenty-minute periods for the senior, intermediate and junior series, and three fifteen-minute periods for the juvenile. Time to be taken out on each stoppage for injuries or other unavoidable delays.

THE OPINIONS OF AN ARMY

(By Josiah Oldfield)

(By Josiah Oldfield.)

When a man comes home from the front, everyone asks him "How is the war going?" You may just as well ask a handicap runner as he goes round his lap in a ten mile race "Who is winning?" The man at the front knows how the war is going on his own little bit of the line, and knows this only. But I am standing far back, where from East and West — from Mesopotamia, from Egypt, from Salonika, from all the long stretch of the western front, the lines converge towards the hospitals of Great Britain. These men whom I see have been in fire, have been in water, have been in purgatory, have been in hell.

Burnt up by scorching sun, toil-worn through dust and drought, they come from the furnace of the East. Frozen with cold, coughing with gas poisoning, wearied with mud and slush, they come from the trenches of the west. Officers and men; privates and corporals; gunners and sergeants; all come along the same trail which leads from the shadow of death to the glorious happiness of health again— and standing at the point where all these wonderful experiences converge, I hear what they think of the war, and from the cloud of many witnesses I can see its ebb and flow, and the spirits and the hopes of its soldiers along the many points.

And what is the future as they talk of it? It is the future of true victory. Not the 'Vae Victis' of the old Rome and Carthage, but a victory sure and stern, and complete. And why? Because you reap as you have sowp. Your harvest depends on your seed and your husbandry. I have seen in this hospital the three stages that our armies have gone through.

The men came back from Mons and Gallipoli broken in body but with a taciturn conviction of duty well done, and the burden of their story was "Yes, it was hell, but we stuck it all right."

They came back from Sinai, and from Salonika and from the Somme, and they said, "We know every one of their dirty tricks. They haven't a trump card left. We've got their measure. The Hun is tough tackling, but the Poilu and we can beat him."

They are coming back now from every front, and whether it be of Turk, or whether it be of German, their cry is now the same, "We've got 'em on the run. We've got the whip hand of 'em. We've got the old Boche stiff."

After two and a half years of experience the opinion of an army is worth everything— and the army of the Allies is full of seasoned consciousness that we are now entering on the final gigantic tussle, that we have the measure of our opponents and—that he cannot escape us, whether the conclusion come swiftly or slowly.

SARGASSO SEA MYTHS.

The shortness of potash, owing to the war, has greatly stimulated the business of recovering potash from a kind of seaweed known as kelp on the Pacific Coast. They drag up the kelp with rakes made especially for that work, dry and burn it, and get potash from the ashes. This has led to the formation of a company in Florida which proposes, if it can get capital to back it, to build a floating potash works which will be towed out to the Sargasso Sea and anchored to one of the vast islands of floating seaweed supposed to exist there. The plan is to manufacture potash at the rate of 200 tons a day. The prospectus of the company says it can go on forever because the supply of seaweed is inexhaustible, covering an area almost as large as the continent of Europe and tightly matted into islands.

The formation of this company emphasizes one thing; that the ancient myths about the Sargasso Sea are still generally believed, and that it it still a mystery to many probably to the majority of persons.

The old geographers described the Sargasso Sea as impenetrable, and insisted that it held forever all that come within its boundaries. It was a vast, slow-moving eddy in the centre of the Atlantic where clogged and matted seaweed stretched for endless leagues like some slimy swamp. Here all the derelicts drifted and floated with the seaweed in eternal revolution slowly around and around and there might be ships that were caught in its embrace centuries ago. It was a fascinating thing to dream about, and many books have been written about it, books of fiction and books pretending to be fact.

But it was all fable. The romancers forgot that Columbus sailed right through the Sargasso. Many another mariner has sailed through it since. The Hydrographic Office of the United States Government sent a ship through it with a company of scientists six years ago, so there is no mystery about the Sargasso Sea to those who have sought to learn.

The so-called Sargasso Sea is an egg-shaped area of ocean about seventeen hundred miles from east to west and 1,000 miles from north to south, lying due east from the coast of Florida. It is really a kind a kind of eddy; it owes its existence to the ocean currents that encircle it; while in this great area of nearly two million square miles there is scarcely any current. Seaweed does exist there in large quantities, but the greater part of it grows there. It is a surface seaweed kept afloat by tiny air bubbles, but there are no floating islands of matted seaweed and no derelicts imprisoned there for years. A big shipload loaded with lumber that became waterlogged and was abandoned in mid-ocean drifted into the Sargossa Sea and straight through it and out on the other side. Ships may sail through it, but there is difficulty to steamers owing to seaweed becoming entangled in their propellers. Therefore they avoid it.

There is an abundance of aquatic life away out there in that lonely part of the ocean, fishes of queer shape and wonderful colorings, shrimps, crabs and mollusks.

Thus once more do cold facts shatter most fascinating theories. —Kansas City Star.

Had Severe Cold
PAIN IN CHEST
SPASMODIC COUGHING

Many people when they contract a cold do not pay any attention to it, thinking perhaps it will pass away in a day or two. This is a mistake for before they know it, it has settled on the lungs.

Too much stress cannot be laid on the fact that on the first sign of a cough or cold it must be gotten rid of immediately, otherwise it may cause years of suffering from some serious lung trouble.

Mr. A. George, 30 Blevin's Place, Toronto, Ont., writes: "Having greatly benefitted from your remedy, Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, I take the liberty to write you a few words about the effect of that wonderful syrup. Two years ago I caught a severe cold followed by a spasmodic cough and pain in my chest. I was treated by many doctors but without any benefit, and also took many proprietory medicines which all failed to cure. One of my friends recommended Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and after using three bottles I was completely cured. I recommend it to anyone as a God-send remedy."

HOW TO KEEP SPARK ON JUMP, TOLD BY EXPERT

Motors are a good deal like men. Very many of them, when everything is wide open and they are hitting it up at top speed, have excellent performance, but spit and sputter and knock a bit when compelled to travel at a lesser pace.

This is not moralising, but the natural deduction from the complaints which are coming to our school. A great many drivers want to know why it is they cannot throttle down the engine; they say it will pull well at medium or high speed, but skips at the lower speeds.

Where magneto ignition is used this often may be overcome by adjusting the interrupter points for a little wider gap. That makes the interrupter points open a little earlier and causes the spark to occur when the magneto armature is in a more favourable position, and the spark, therefore, has more "kick" in it.

The interrupter points usually are adjusted for normal running speed, or a little higher than medium speed. Increasing the number of revolutions per minute of the armature causes a distortion of the magnetic field, which tends to follow the armature. This distortion is not so great at lower speeds. To overcome the distortion, which in effect twists the field around so that the points do not open at the period of greatest current potency, we must change the time when the points open and cause the spark; therefore, to get the best spark it is necessary to have the points open earlier. Widening the gap between the points accomplishes this. If the engine misses at high speed we close the points a little to make the opening come later and when in better armature position, the action being just the reverse of the foregoing.

Widening the gap of the spark plug also will help to overcome skipping at low speed. At low speed a full charge of gas is not drawn in and compression is low at temperature low in consequence; the mixture is not so near the self-ignition point when the spark occurs as it is at higher speeds. Therefore, a better spark is needed to ignite it. By widening the gap in the plugs the secondary current is held back until it acquires high enough potentiality to jump the greater gap, so that when it does occur an exceptionally powerful spark is obtained.

This may be demonstrated with the use of a vibrating coil. Set one of the cylinders on top of compression ready to ignite. Turn on current and, while the vibrator will buzz, the spark inside the cylinder is not strong enough to ignite the charge. Now detach the spark plug wire and hold it close to the outer plug terminal and turn on the current. The extra gap will increase the strength of the spark in that cylinder and it will ignite the charge, starting the engine. This has led to the use, in some instances, of outside spark-gap attachments.

Widening the gap and getting a longer spark is not what ignites the charge. It is simply that the greater gap causes the current to build up to a higher pressure, or voltage before it will jump the gap, so that when it does occur it is of greater intensity.

There are several other things about sparking not generally understood by the novice. The general opinion is that the greater insulating surface of a plug there is inside the cylinder the less likelihood there is of short-circuiting and consequently the more certain will be the spark occurrence. This is only partly true; it is true so far as short-circuiting is concerned, but where the surface is too great and soot or carbon is deposited upon the insulator surface the carbon acts as a condenser and absorbs the secondary current. The effect is that it will not build up a sufficiently high voltage to jump the gap. Very heavy insulation on the secondary wires absorbs current in the same way.

The fact that the spark jumps across the points of the plug when it is in the open air does not necessarily mean that it jumps when the points are under compression in running conditions. A current which will cause a spark to jump a half inch in the open air will only cause it to jump a gap of 1-32 inch under normal running compression. Failure to appreciate this often results in a man thinking his ignition is all right when there may be a crack in the insulation so small that it scarcely can be seen with the naked eye when clearing the plug, or there may be a porous spot in the porcelain, either of which would leak current under compression. Many manufacturers test out the porcelain to see if they leak, using a spark gap of 3-4 inch under a very high voltage.

If there is carbon on the porcelain the current will travel through this under high compression very often, because there is less resistance offered by the carbon than by the spark gap. It short-circuits the plug and there is no ignition. Yet, when the same plug is removed and tested in the open air, there will be a good spark; the resistance of the gap in the open air would be less than the resistance offered by a path through the carbon coating.

If, on testing a plug in this way, there seems to be a good spark, yet the cylinder, will not free, clean the plug thoroughly and try it out in the cylinder. If it still does not fire try a plug which you know is all right and see if it fires. If it does, you may know what the old plug leaks current somehow and probably needs a new porcelain. It is a common error with motorists when cleaning a spark plug to polish up the points and call it a job. What is really required is to remove all of the carbon, which is a fair conductor of electricity, from the porcelain or mica and get it back into the insulator class again.

The conditions which allow the adjustment of the interrupted points to accommodate certain speeds in magneto ignition do not arise when battery ignition is used. Battery interrupter points usually are adjusted for an opening of 1-64 inch and the gap at the spark plug points must be greater usually than when magneto ignition is used, because the spark kiven to battery systems is naturally of less volume than that given by the magneto. Therefore, the gap must be greater to intensify the current, as described.

The interrupter points sometimes become coated with an insulating glaze, composed of oxides and dirt hammered by the action of the movable interrupter point or hammer. The points will have the appearance of being all right; there will be no pits or points; nevertheless, there may be enough insulating material there to keep the current from flowing, and no spark will occur in consequence. The points may be cleared by inserting a very thin file between the points when they are open and then allowing them to close on the file, being held together with no more pressure than the spring exerts, and working the file back and forth until the glaze is removed. It is necessary to have a flat surface, so that care in the use of the file is needed, and as platinum is more valuable than gold at present, it will be apparent that as little fling as possible should be done.

The condenser is another point of possible trouble. The condenser increases the volume of the spark about twenty-five times. We often find that a weak spark may be caused by a partial breaking down of the condenser, or occasionally to the fact that it is disconnected at the terminal. Condensers usually are hidden away so that the novice cannot locate troubles of this nature, but an excessive sparking at the interrupter, or vibrator points, with a very weak spark at the plug points, indicates that the condenser is not working properly. Where there is this sparkling have an expert examine the condenser for trouble.

Look into This Evidence for Dr. Chase's Nerve Food From Your Own Town People

PETERBOROUGH, Ont., March 15. —It is only natural to doubt reports from people at a distance and who are unknown to you. If you have felt this way about what you have read in regard to the great good being accomplished by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food you do not need to doubt any longer.

Every day we are publishing in this paper reports from people right here in Peterborough who have been cured by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, some recently and some years ago. When you have read these letters look these people up and inquire into their cases. Every one of them is glad of an opportunity to help others suffering as they did.

Miss Catharine Scully, 517 Sherbrooke St., Peterborough, Ont., writes: "Some time ago I was suffering from a run down condition of the system. I was nervous, could not sleep, and lost my appetite. I used to have severe headaches that became almost unbearable. I tried several remedies and Doctors' medicine as well, but they did not help me. Finally I became so weakened in condition that I was scarcely able to walk. It was then that I first tried Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I used one box, and detected an improvement, so I continued the treatment until cured. I am in good health now, can eat and sleep well, and do not have those terrible headaches. I give the credit entirely to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and can say it is a splendid remedy. If anyone suffering as I did would only try this treatment, I know they would not be sorry."

Mrs. Leether, 108 Lansdowne street, Peterborough, Ont., writes: "About three months ago, I found myself in a run down condition, due no doubt to the fact that I had been working long hours. I was also troubled occasionally with headaches and pains in my back. Upon the advice of a friend, I began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, I found the very first box benefitted me, so I continued the treatment until now I feel greatly improved and more like my former self."

"Almost a miracle!"

That is what Rabbi M. Shallit of Edenbridge, Sask., says regarding a cure by Zam-Buk, of which he gives the following particulars:

"A short time ago," said the Rabbi, "a man brought his little son to me and asked if I knew of anything that would cure the child of a terrible skin disease, with which he had suffered for three years. The child's forehead, eyes and ears were covered with sores. The sight was shocking, and the child had not been able to see for two years. As he was an only child, the father said he would give anything to have him cured, but as he had already been treated by many doctors, each of whom had given up the case as incurable, he had about despaired of ever finding a cure. Having great faith in Zam-Buk, I recommended it, and to cut a long story short, perseverance with Zam-Buk has now completely cured the child.

THE FATHER'S ACCOUNT

The following letter from the father of the boy expresses his gratitude:
"The Zam-Buk Company, Toronto
Dear Sirs: I beg to testify that my boy suffered for three years with a severe skin disease, which doctors tried to cure, but in vain. The sores on his eyes were so terrible that for two years he was quite unable to see. Zam-Buk, however, has worked a complete and permanent cure.
The Zam-Buk treatment was recommended to me by Mr. M. Shallit, Rabbi of Edenbridge, for which I shall be grateful to him forever.
With hearty thanks to you, I remain, Yours faithfully,
(Signed) E. ROMANUK."

SENATOR LA FOLLETTE BLOCKS THE PASSAGE OF THE WAR RESOLUTION

One of "the Wilful Twelve" Succeeds in Preventing Senate Action on the Resolution and an Adjournment Was Made Until To-morrow.

U. S. WILL RAISE A BIG ARMY

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Pacifism in the person of Senator La Follette, one of the "wilful twelve," to-day effectually blocked the action of the "war resolution" in Congress until to-morrow.

Throughout a Parliamentary manoeuvre, demanding the regular order, he halted the Senate's action on the resolution. Senator Martin, floor leader, pointed out the "tremendous consequences" behind the resolution, but La Follette was obdurate. Finally an adjournment until to-morrow was made.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee to-day reported out the administration state of war resolution, amended so as to strengthen its entire text, with but one dissenting vote, that of Chairman Stone.

Three million to five million men will probably be raised for America's armies.

At least one Cabinet member wants 3,000,000 as a minimum. Army men recommended up to five million.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES AFIELD, April 3.—The British forward movement around St. Quentin was reported to-day to have taken the town of Maissemy in its enveloping grip.

Northward, around Arras, the town of Henin was occupied in other advances.

The British, therefore, have established themselves where they seriously menace the communications between Cambrai, supposedly the main centre of the Hindenburg line, and St. Quentin, as well as LaFere, still further south.

The French statement detailed no important activity.

LONDON, April 3.—American Ambassador Page held a lengthly conference with the British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, Arthur J. Balfour, to-day.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt left the Union Station for the White House, presumably to pay his respects to the President and offer his services in the war, for which he desires to raise an army division.

OTTAWA, April 3. — Official opinion here is that the entry of the United States into the war will be beneficial to Canada in every way, unless Congress decides on immediate conscription, when the effect on the labour market might be very serious. Great satisfaction is felt here that greater North America will now be found fighting shoulder to shoulder for humanity and justice.

AMSTERDAM, April 3.—Germany is contemplating a formal protest to neutral nations against America's action in declaring war, Berlin advices this afternoon asserted.

By such an appeal it was said Germany hopes particularly to influence South American nations in her favour.

LONDON, April 3.—A great outburst of cheering greeted the announcement in the House of Commons by Bonar Law that the British Ambassador in Washington had reported his belief that Congress "would comply with President Wilson's recommendations."

WASHINGTON, April 3.—War Secretary Baker and the Advisory Committee of the Council of National Defence are to-day discussing:

War plans on a basis of three years of conflict.

Suggestions for the food control of the nation;

Universal service, not merely universal military service.

These three vital projects were carried into the Defence Council's session to-day by Samuel Gompers, head of the Committee of Labour.

It was admitted officially to-day that every detail of this Government's part in the war must be considered on a three-year basis.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The Senate adjourned shortly after one o'clock to-day without acting on the administration's state of war resolution. Democratic Floor Leader Martin refused to consent to any other business until this measure, to which La Follette had objected, is passed.

(By Carl D. Groat)

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The War Congress will do President Wilson's bidding and give him whatever he wishes for fighting Germany.

Congress leaders announced this to-day, and the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee gave concrete evidence of that spirit by quickly reporting out a "war resolution."

That measure turned over to President Wilson the fullest military power of the United States, and pledged all other resources of the nation.

A heavy tax on excess profits and big incomes will be the means of raising the bulk of war revenue, it was indicated.

President Wilson's suggestion for extending credit to the Allies will be heeded by Congress. As for raising an army on the principle of "universal liability to service," the Congress undoubtedly will put it into effect.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Twenty-eight persons are still missing from the torpedoed American steamer Aztec. One boat has been picked up with 19 survivors.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The problem of financing America's part in the world war to-day was directly before President Wilson and his Cabinet. "It is to be a 'pay-as-we-go' war, the Government has decided: a war sustained so far as may be equitable by the present generation, by well-conceived taxation," the President declared in his messages. It is not the President's intention to shift the burden to future generations.

What British Papers Think of the President

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, April 3.—"The death knell of Hohenzollernism and all such murderous tyrants," was the outstanding feature which the London afternoon press to-day drew from President Wilson's address. The Evening News carried a seven-column headline proclaiming in bold type, "United States Declares War on Hohenzollernism."

"It is an epoch making message," said the Evening News. "Redounding not only to President Wilson's personal credit and honour, but to the credit and honour of the American people.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL TO VISIT PETERBORO ON MAY 24TH-25TH

His Excellency the Duke of Devonshire, will Reach the City Late at night on Victoria Day.

TO VISIT SHELL PLANT

His Excellency the Duke of Devonshire, Governor-General of Canada, will visit Peterborough on May 24, and 25th, according to an official message received from the Governor-General's Secretary to-day by Mayor Duffus. His Excellency will arrive here on the night of the 24th, and remain in Peterborough until 4 o'clock the following day. Details in connection with the reception to the Governor-General will be worked out in the near future.

Following is the message received by Mayor Duffus:

Government House, Ottawa,
April 2, 1917.

Your Worship, — The Governor-General's tour to Southern Ontario commences on May 15th, and it is contemplated that His Excellency, accompanied by the Duchess, will arrive in Peterborough at 10.30 p.m. on May 24th and will remain in Peterborough until 4 p.m. the following day.

I give you this early intimation in order that you may communicate with me as to what the wishes of the people of the City of Peterborough may be in connection with the visit.

It would not appear desirable that any ceremony should take place on the night of 24th of May, but any reception which may be contemplated should take place in the early part of the following morning. A visit to one of the large firms manufacturing munitions would be of much interest to His Excellency.

(Signed) H. G. Henderson,
Lt.-Colonel,
Governor General's Secretary.

His Worship, the Mayor of Peterborough, Ont.

WAR SCARRED VETERANS BACK FROM THE FRONT

CORP. R. IRWIN, 21st Battalion.

CORP. A. MOSCROP, 38th Battalion.

Three More Veterans Of The Great War Have Reached Home

No Official Welcome For Corps. Moscrop and Irwin and Pte. Jack McFadden Wounded in France---Lieut. Jesse Ketchum Ill in London---To-day's Orders and General Military News.

With no official greetings and only a few relatives to welcome them, three battle-scarred veterans of the Great War arrived home on the 5.36 G.T.R. train last evening. The three were Corp. Robt. Irwin of the 21st Battalion, Corp. Arthur Moscrop, of the 38th Battalion, and Pte. Jack McFadden, of the 93rd Battalion, each member of the trio having been wounded in France. Somebody blundered, and although a wire was received yesterday afternoon stating that the war heroes had left Kingston at 1.50 o'clock, there were no representatives of the city present, and in fact the Examiner reporter and three or four friends of the three men were all that were on hand to greet them.

Pte. Jack McFadden was one of the first members of the 93rd Battalion to be wounded in France, and is the first wounded member of the Peterborough unit to get home. He was a member of the military police of the 93rd when he went overseas, and was transferred to the 5th C.M.R. He was only a short time in France when he was caught by German machine gun fire as his battalion were leaving the trenches, and badly wounded in the left thigh. He has been in hospital in England ever since, and is still in bad shape, being unable to walk without the aid of crutches. Pte. McFadden left this morning for Lakefield, where his wife is residing.

Corp. "Bobby" Irwin, well known among local soccer enthusiasts as a clever footballer, left Peterborough as a member of the 21st Battalion in November, 1914, and saw long service at the front. He was wounded in the arm.

Corp. Moscrop enlisted here early in 1915 as a member of the 57th Regiment's 3rd contingent quota, which became part of the 38th Battalion at Belleville. He went overseas with the 39th and was transferred to another Canadian battalion at the front. Corp. Moscrop was also wounded in the arm, and the injured member is still carried in a sling.

All three have to undergo further treatment at the Convalescent Home, Kingston.

Pte. John Wallace VanNatter, of Toronto, has been added to the strength of the 247th Battalion.

Pte. G. A. Quackenbush, an Oak Lake member of the 93rd Battalion, is officially reported dangerously ill.

Veterans to Meet.

OTTAWA, April 2.— A Dominion convention of the various returned soldiers' associations will be held in Winnipeg April 10 to 12, when it is proposed to amalgamate them into one body for the whole of Canada, with a central headquarters to look after the general welfare of the war veterans. Nearly every city in Canada will be represented, according to announcements made by officials of the Returned Soldiers' Association here to-day.

Sergt. Peter Victor, President of the Peterborough Branch of the Great War Veterans' Association, leaves on Saturday to represent the Peterborough branch at this convention.

OTTAWA, April 3. — Hon. P. E. Blondin is actively engaged in the preliminary organization of his new regiment, the 255th. General Lessard, who has offered his assistance, had a long interview several days ago with the Postmaster-General, when they mapped out their programme. A series of recruiting meetings will be held throughout the Province.

Col. Blondin is receiving many offers of service from French-Canadian soldiers. Among those who wish to serve under him is Lieut. Rodolphe Lemieux, a son of Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux; Lieut. George Murphy, a nephew of Hon. Charles Murphy; and Lieut. Antoine Chasse, brother of Major Henri Chasse, 22nd Battalion, now in the trenches. Lieut. Chasse expected to leave soon to join his brother, but will enlist under Col. Blondin if accepted.

TO-DAY'S ORDERS.

Daily orders by Lieut.-Col. C. H. Ackerman, commanding 247th O. S. Battalion, C. E. F.:

Orders for Tuesday, April 3, 1917:

1. Duties.

Orderly Officer for Tuesday April 3rd, 1917, Lieut. J. F. Strickland.

Next for duty, Wednesday, April 4, 1917: Lieut. V. J. McElderry.

A. E. BRITTAIN, Lieut.
Adjutant, 247th O. S. Battalion,
C. E. F.

The Kingston Standard says: The recruiting returns for the last two weeks in March shows a very encouraging increase over the two previous returns. A total of 781 recruits were secured in this district since the middle of March, as compared with 373 for the first half of March. The 230th Depot Forestry Battalion secured 361 of these while the Forestry Reinforcements under Major Van Allen at Ottawa came next with 56. Third place was won by the 252nd Battalion at Lindsay which enlisted 47, while the 253rd battalion of this city followed closely with 36. The total strength of the district is 5237.

LIEUT. KETCHUM ILL.

Lieut. Ketchum, who left Peterborough with the 93rd Battalion is ill in London.

On Friday the family received a cablegram from him stating that he was in London "convalescent." Inquiries through the Militia Department yesterday brought the further information that he is in the Royal Free Hospital, London, ill of fever and progressing satisfactorily. A member of the Examiner staff received a letter yesterday from Lieut. Ketchum written from the trenches on March 8. He was then in good health and the battalion was busy with trench-raiding operations.

Lieut. Ketchum, who has developed into a crack marksman since going to the front, recently qualified in the sniping course. Among the souvenirs received from him by the latest mail is a German soldier's field service cap, showing unmistakable signs of the campaign mud.

CAPT. W. H. MUNRO, of Peterborough; who has been promoted to the command of a Canadian Divisional Ammunition Park.

Instructions For the Mobilization of the 57th Regiment—Physical Standard Same as For Overseas Service.

PAY AND ALLOWANCES

Authority has been granted for the 57th Regiment of the Active Militia to mobolise at Peterborough up to full war strength, to be assisted in recruiting by 3rd Dragoons, 40th, 45th and 46th Regiments.

The following memorandum relating thereto has been received:

1. Strength and composition of the Canadian Defence Force.

The force to be mobilized will not exceed a total strength of 50,000, excluding the troops already out under Order in Council (P. C. 2068) dated 6th August, 1914. It will form part of the force of $50,000, to which reference is made in Order-in-Council (P. C. 36) dated 12th January, 1916. It will consist of infantry and field artillery, with a due proportion of supply, transport, medical and other administrative services.

2. Enlistment and period of engagement. Men may enlist for the C. E. F. or for home defence; and it is hoped that many who enlist for home defence will afterwards transfer to the C.E.F. But whether for home defence or for service overseas, they will enlist for the term of one year, or during the war now existing between Great Britain and Germany, should that war last longer than one year, and for six months after the termination of that war provided His Majesty should so long require their services, or until legally discharged.

3. Age limits. Recruits for the D. D. E. must not be under 18, (unless with written consent of parents or guardians) nor over 45.

Examining medical officers will see that the apparent age of youths applying for enlistment corresponds with the declared age; and when there is any doubt, they will call for a birth certificate before passing a recruit as fit.

4. Physical Standard.

The physical standard required of recruits who enlist for home defence will be the same as that for service overseas.

5. Attestation Paper.

A special form is being prepared for the C. D.F. and will shortly be issued.

6. Enlistment of supernumeraries.

Although the total force to be mobilized is not to exceed 50,000, all ranks, men may be enlisted in excess of the authorized establishment. They will be available in case of urgent necessity; but in ordinary circumstances, they will not be called upon to serve, unless required to fill vacancies caused by transfers to the C. E. F. or otherwise.

7. Exemptions from enlistment.

Civil tribunals will be appointed (not by district commanders) to decide questions which may arise in connection with exemptions from enlistment.

8. Organization.

Instructions relating to field artillery and administrative services will be issued later; but with regard to infantry (of which the bulk of the C. D. E. will be composed):

(1.) District Commanders have already been warned which battalions are to mobilize.

(2) The authorized establishment of a C.D.E. battalion includes Headquarters, a machine gun section and four companies. It will probably be found most convenient to collect in one of the four companies the men who belong to the C. E.F., and later on to form them into a fifth (supernumerary) company.

(3) Any battalion already authorized to raise a depot company or detachment for the C. E. F., will, on being ordered to mobilize, absorb it.

(4) While a battalion is in the earlier stages of mobilization, its headquarters will be constituted as follows:

Commanding Officer.
Second in Command.
Adjutant and Acting Paymaster.
Quartermaster.
Sergeant-Major.
Quartermaster-sergeant.
Orderly-room sergeant.
Paymaster-sergeant.

(5) Company officers, as for one company, may be employed from the outset: namely, one major, one captain and four lieutenants (or two captains and four lieutenants).

As soon as 250 recruits have been obtained, company officers as for another company may be appointed, and so on until the battalion is complete.

FOUR DAYS FOR A SUIT

Smart Tailoring By the Leaders of Men's Fashions in Canada

To make a single suit to measure in four days is not beyond the skill of any tailor. But to make four hundred suits in four days, and to hold that record week in and week out, never missing a delivery, and carrying out every promise on schedule time—that requires efficient organization.

In the Semi-ready shops every Special Order goes through in four days, and hundreds of orders come in by each day's call from all parts of Canada. The Special Order department is organized within the largest tailoring shops of their kind in the world.

Samples of cloth—worsteds, serges, homespuns, tweeds, vicunas and cheviots—from a choice of these and a selection of style from the Men's Fashion Portfolio, a physical photograph on the physique type measuring chart, the garment is tailored, never an alteration is required. It's perfect tailoring by experts at less than the cost of retail tailoring.

War in continuation of that that, for for centuries, has desolated Palestine, though infinitely greater in its power of desolation, is animated by the same spirit, on one side at least—the opposition of a false religion to the principles of the true religion — Mohammedanism against Christianity. After five or six thousand years the spirit of man has not changed, and the Gallilean has not yet conquered. In the old time it was an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth. And it is the same to-day. The outrages of the Huns in their work of wanton and fiendish destruction of property and devastation of country in France, have so wrought upon the French that even in her Senate hatred of Germany is officially held to be "the most holy of duties;" and the feeling is a revival of the old Judaic code—"an eye for an eye. The Turks have heretofore been the synonym of savagery. The Germans have outdone them. The driving of the Turks from the Holy Land will be a small triumph, compared to the driving of the spirit of hell and the capacity for evil represented by Prussianism, out of Europe, out of existence. Peace, short of complete destruction of Prussian militarism, would be treason to freedom, to manhood and to Christianity. Prussian militarism must be destroyed, root and branch.

PROGRAMME FOR TO-NIGHT'S MEETING IN OPERA HOUSE

Everybody out to-night for the Greater Production meeting in the Grand Opera House. You amateur gardeners, beginners—men, women and children— this meeting has been arranged expressly for your benefit. Back gardens and vacant lots are going to be worked this year by citizens who regard it a patriotic duty to join in the movement for greater production of food stuffs. For the direction and assistance of beginners who have their experience in anticipation, two practical addresses will be the feature of the Opera House meeting. It is a chance to profit by the experience of such men as Mr. Wm. Allan of Toronto, one of the Queen City's most successful gardeners. This will be an education in vegetable growing. Don't miss it.

TO-DAY'S WAR NEWS

"If the German people are not stirred to the depths by the President's appeal in the name of liberty and civilization, then, indeed, they are beyond all human hope."

The Evening Star said: "Every Englishman will hold President Wilson in higher estimation. It sounds the knell of autocracy and of any form of government which makes possible secret diplomatic understanding and intrigues with all their mischievous results."

A number of the British newspapers point out President Wilson's clear distinction between the German government and the German people. The Pall Mall Gazette emphasized this particularly and concluded: "The vital essence of the speech was the declaration of fullest war measures and the most complete co-operation with the Entente."

"The German Government has done a mad thing in forcing the United States into war when it could have had peace for the asking, merely by giving up unlimited submarine warfare," said the Evening Standard. "Germany's very madness is the best indications of her utter desperation."

Press Comment On President's Message

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

NEW YORK, April 3.—In President Wilson's war message to Congress the New York German Herald to-day saw a suggestion which may result in a governmental change in Germany from monarchy to republic. The Herald says: "Many of them (the Germans) would prefer a republican form of government, but feel if they follow their inclinations at this time that resulting internal disturbance would permit their enemy to enter A signed editoria lby Bernard Ridder in the New Yorker Staats Zeitung after the war."

A signed editorial by Bernard Ridder in the New Yorker Staats Zeitung says: "The address of the President will come as a tremendous shock to millions of Americans of German ancestry. We are one of the allies in fact as well as in name. The President need have no concern as to the loyalty of Americans of German ancestry."

AMSTERDAM, April 3.—The Central Powers are planning a new peace offer, the Berlin Lokal Anzeiger stated this afternoon.

NEW YORK, April 3.—President Wilson's speech to Congress sent stocks soaring on the Stock Exchange at the opening to-day with freer and more spirited trading.

Again No Evidence Of Second Marriage

The hearing of Private James Drain of Havelock, on a charge of bigamy was again adjourned in police court this morning on account of lack of evidence. Mrs. John Garbutt, wife of Capt., the Rev. John Garbutt, who is in France as a military chaplain, was the only witness called, but she could not recognize Drain. She had recently seen the marriage certificate bearing her husband's signature to the record of the union of Drain and Bessie Deline in Cobourg in September, 1912. Mrs. Garbutt stated that she had been a witness to many marriages at the parsonage and could not remember Drain.

Certificates of Havelock doctors showed that Bessie Deline Drain was physically unable to attend court on account of approaching confinement. The case was adjourned for a month, and order given for Mrs. Drain's appearance, but in the meantime the 247th may be moved from Peterborough. Lieut. Strickland, who appeared for the accused, asked the court to dismiss the case. No evidence of the second marriage had been presented and the case had been hanging for weeks.

Among those in court this morning was Drain's first wife, who stated that all she asked for was $10 a month for the care of her child.

"I've been a dog under his feet," she said; "I wouldn't give him a pleasant look."

Rev. Dr. W. F. Wilson Dying

TORONTO, April 3.—Rev. Dr. W. F. Wilson, aged 60, a prominent Methodist pastor, who has held charges in various parts of Canada, is dying at his home here. He became famous years ago as "move on" Wilson, following his arrest by a Toronto policeman when he declined to obey the constable's orders. The story goes that the policeman was later dismissed and Wilson immediately secured him another job.

Educational Effort Being Made By The Government In Respect To Live Stock

City Council Receives a Reply From the Live Stock Branch of the Dominion Government Concerning Measures Taken to Protect the Live Stock of the Country.

Some time ago the city addressed a letter to the Live Stock department of the Dominion Government suggesting that legislation be enacted to prohibit the slaughter of all young cattle under the age of twenty months. The following letter was received in reply:

Ottawa, March 28, 1917

Dear Sir,—The Minister desires me to acknowledge your letter of the 21st inst, inclosing copy of a resolution urging the government to prohibit the slaughter of all young cattle under the age of 20 months, also to prohibit the sale of veal.

The subject of the resolution has been given most thorough and careful consideration by the officers of the Live Stock Branch of the Department, who are in very close touch with live stock conditions all over the country, and, without going into details, the conclusion they have arrived at is that a restriction of the kind suggested would in the long run defeat the objects aimed at, namely, the increasing of our herds. This department is endeavouring to achieve the same end in perhaps a better way, namely, broad educational effort and co-operation with the banks in the way of loans for those who are in need of feed to carry their cattle over and in other ways.

S. R. ARMSTRONG, City Clerk

FANNIE WARD AT THE EMPIRE

America's Most Versatile Screen Actress in a Clever Picture

We are presenting to the public tonight and to-morrow Fannie Ward in "Witchcraft," one of the best films we have shown.

This picture was the prize-winning photo-play at Columbia University. The story deals with early New England superstition and a vivid picture in the Massachusetts Colonies. It is a fine, cleverly acted picture and a general favorite.

We also have a good comedy, "Stung," completing a good programme. Empire Theatre to-night and to-morrow.

Pleaded Guilty To Bigamy Goes Free Sentence Suspended

Private James Drain of the 247th Battalion, appeared before Magistrate Dumble this afternoon and pleaded guilty to a charge of bigamy. In view of the fact that he may shortly go overseas, sentence was suspended provided he keeps the peace with his first wife, Helen Cross Drain. He was given a month to pay the costs, which amounted to $21.60. Drain is a neat soldier and it is believed was not deeply seized of the seriousness of his offence when he married the second time. His first wife parted from him six years ago.

BOSTON ENGLISH OPERA COMPANY

to Present "Il Trovatore

The Boston English Opera Company will come to "The Grand" Wednesday April 11th for one performance, in a beautiful production of Verdi's immortal masterpiece, "Il Trovatore," the world's most tuneful, picturesque opera.

So much has been said of the great artists that comprise the Boston English Opera Company and so well known is the opera of Il Trovatore, that it seems almost useless to go into details. However, as there are many people who have a mistaken idea in regard to grand opera, it may not be amiss to say a few words on the subject.

Of all the world's operas, "Il Trovatore" is the most popular and certainly the most tuneful. Many of the best airs in the leading comic operas are taken from its tuneful melodies. Almost every street organ depends upon "Il Trovatore" for its existence.

The anvil chorus is one of the most beautiful numbers ever put on any stage. This setting represents a gypsy camp, located in an old ruin in the mountains. In the clearing are numerous anvils, used in making the armour for the soldiers before going to the wars.

The famous Miserere in the Tower scene is beyond description; it must be seen and heard to be appreciated. As to the music, when one recalls the great trio at the end of the first act, the world renowned "di Quella Pira," said to be the greatest tenor solo ever written, the fine baritone solo, "Il Balen" and dozens of others, it is easy to realize why "Il Trovatore" has been for fifty years the most popular opera the world has ever known, and the production which the Boston Opera Company will present at "The Grand" is no doubt the most notable one ever given of this famous opera.

Stainer's "Crucifixion" will be sung by the Choir in St. John's Church, Good Friday at 8 p. m. Richard J. Devey, Conductor.

Modern Fire-Fighting Apparatus To Be Purchased For The Fire Dept.

Another Addition to the Lexicon of Civic Progress—Peterboro's Horse and Buggy Fire Department Must Give Way to Something More Modern and Efficient.

The City Council at a meeting held last evening, adopted the following report which is self-explanatory:

Your Sub-Committee named to deal with the selection, after consideration, of fire apparatus, and to recommend to Council as to its purchase, beg leave to report as follows:

Your Committee met, and after consultation with the Chief of the Fire Department, recommend:

1. That a combined hose waggon and pump, motor driven, with capacity as to pump of 500 gallons (Imperial) per minute, to carry 1,600 to 1,200 feet of hose and six or seven men, and with ample power for service and all weather emergencies, be procured.

2. That, as to accessories and fittings, that the new piece come fully equipped and that such fittings and supplies as now in use be retained as a reserve stock and to maintain equipment of the horse drawn pieces now in use.

3. That the purchase of two smoke helmets, a safety net and deluge nozzle, be made, if the appropriation provide sufficient money to cover the cost. And that further consideration be given to the matter of the deluge nozzle, and if deemed that it may not be advisable to buy this fitting, that it be left out.

4. That under the direction of the Committee, the City Clerk invite tenders for supply of the apparatus from standard builders, on a general form of specification to be determined as to capacity, power, etc. That such tenders be submitted to the Committee of the Whole to determine final acceptance.

5. That a Ford car Chassis be ordered, of the usual size as in the regular touring car, that it be fitted with a body suitable to carry the pulmotor, chemical extinguishers, tools and four men, (driver, and one man in front seat, two on rear seat). That prices be procured for the fitting up of the body of the car, painting, etc.

The Fire, Water and Light committee has been negotiating with the Fitzgerald Company of Lindsay with a view of purchasing a body for the Ford Chassis. The Company has a couple in stock and plans and specifications concerning them are expected to arrive today.

Donation To Sailors' Fund Is Acknowledged

Mr. W. H. Dunsford has received the following letter from the Secretary of the British Sailors' Relief Fund, Canada.

Montreal, March 31, 1917

Dear Mr. Dunsford:

I beg to acknowledge your kind letter of the 24th inst., enclosing cheque for Seven Thousand Dollars, being contribution from the County and City to the above Fund.

While $10,000 would naturally be much better than $7,000, it is needless to say that we are all very much indebted for the amount forwarded which certainly is a handsome grant from both the County and City, when one realizes the many calls that are being made continually upon both bodies.

As I advised Mr. Eastwood to-day, on account of the great number of places making monthly grants to the Fund, the General Committee have decided to have the Fund remain open indefinitely, so that any amount that might be subscribed later on will always be gratefully received.

Permit me to express to you my own personal gratitude for the lively interest you have taken in this matter, and also to recall to your mind the promise that you made to me last Fall, that you would give me an opportunity, when visiting Montreal next, of taking you over the Harbour of Montreal. A word from you at any time would be cause for my repeating the invitation I extended to the members of your Club. With kindest regards, I am,

Yours very sincerely,
M. P. Fennel,
Hon. Secretary.

ZION GATHERING A GREAT SUCCESS

On Friday evening of last week a very pleasant event took place, when a large number of young folks of the vicinity assembled together at the home of Mr. Nicolas Swan in honour of Mr. A. Jones, of Omemee, who has been spending the past week visiting friends at Zion.

There were present also, guests from Omemee, Fenelon Falls and Peterborough.

The evening was spent in dancing, card playing, singing and other amusements. The music was well rendered by Mr. R. Robinson, while the duties of floor manager were ably performed by Messrs. A. Robertson and J. Hatherly.

EXPLANATORY

Hon. Senator Nicholls of Toronto, naturally appreciates the honour of elevation to the Senate, upon which Peterborough feted him a few days ago; but he, as naturally, objects to having honours thrust upon him. He was inadvertently and prematurely decorated with the title of "Sir" in these columns. The inadvertence may be partly accounted for, if not excused, by the fact that when knighthoods are distributed promiscously, it was probably felt that they would not have missed a good man—a man of prominence and merit; and in expressing regret for the mistake, regret is also expressed that it was a mistake and that an honour that could have been worthily bestowed, and would have been worthily worn, was not given.

Help The Farmer, The Empire and Yourself

Such is the Scope of the Organization of Resources Movement That is Rapidly Gathering Form and Force in Peterborough County—Committees Were Appointed Last Night

A GREAT OPPORTUNITY

If the future sometimes casts its shadows in the present there should be no idle men in this district during the coming summer. With all the seriousness and determination that extremely critical conditions are gradually arousing, this country is preparing for a mighty effort to secure the greatest production possible from its land, and asks of the individual his fullest co-operation in whatever capacity he can render the most effective work.

Up and down the Dominion, communities have organized for a more intensified cultivation of home gardens and back lots than they ever know before, and the success of this movement will largely depend upon the mettle of the people. And now following the lead of the Legislature the Organization of Resources campaign is in full swing and beginning to gather a force that should be a material aid to the farmers in their seeding and harvesting operations.

In Peterborough, the Speakers Patriotic League has shouldered this work, and at a meeting last night advanced the preparations to the stage of selecting committees to undertake the details of the work. Mr O. A. Gillespie, M. P. P., who is on the central committee at Toronto stated that the movement is non-partisan and is a broad patriotic appeal to the people to give as much of their time as they can spare to the assisting of the farmers. The time is close at hand for the farmer to get on the land and help to be effective must be given quickly.

GET IN TOUCH WITH FARMERS

The general scheme aims, in the first place, to get in touch with the farmers and to receive the names of those who will need men. Locally and throughout the district, available labour will be listed. Mr. Gillespie has placed his office and staff at the disposal of the Speakers' Patriotic League and a direct effort made to supply the farmers with men.

THE COMMITTEES FORMED

The committees formed last night were as follows: Mr. B. F. Ackerman and Mr. A. E. Coulthard to meet the manufacturers and Trades and Labour Council to ascertain the extent to which these bodies can assist.

Committee to meet the merchants—Messrs. R. B. Rogers, Col. Miller, Roland Denne and Robert Haraton with power to add to their numbers.

Committee to organize the communities at Keene, Norwood, Havelock, Warsaw and Lakefield—Col. Arthur Stevenson, Judge Huycke, R. R Hall, F. D. Kerr.

Committee to meet retired farmers bank clerks and other men about town—W. H. Dunsford, C. H. Penne father and H. C. Stabler.

MEETING ON SATURDAY

Letters will be sent out at once asking the reeves of the townships and other farmers to meet the Patriotic League on Saturday afternoon at two o'clock in the Council Chamber. The work of the Organization of Resources movement will be explained to them and the first reports of the committee will be presented.

PREPARING FOR THE FUTURE

All this work must appeal to the individual as an effort directly affecting himself. No matter what turn the war may take it is recognised that the production of food stuffs is a problem of the present and whatever successes the summer may bring it should yield a great harvest. Hence the movement of the moment is an appeal and opportunity to the individual to help himself.

Mr. Askerman was dubious of the results of an appeal to the manufacturers. Most of the factories were as busy as they could be. There are men working twelve hours a day, and all of them are working full or over time.

Mr. C. E. Adams said that the planting and the gathering of the farm crops this year was of essential importance. Manufacturing could be carried on at any time of the year, but farming was limited to its particular seasons.

It was becoming a question of the possibility of starvation. Mr. Adams who is a member of a trade union made the rather radical statement that many of the factories could be closed up until the crops were in.

HAYING INSTEAD OF GOLFING

Mr. Pennefather remarked that the banks closed at 12 o'clock on Saturdays, and the staff could go out and pitch hay instead of playing golf or canoeing on the river.

There is a movement in Toronto, Mr. Gillespie stated, providing that men who get holidays should take them during the seeding and harvest season when they could give their time to farmers.

Mr. Abbott suggested that during the busy periods on the farm, city employees should be allowed off on Thursday nights to work in the country on Fridays and Saturdays.

Mr. Pennefather remarked that even Sunday labour might be considered.

USING THE APPLE CROP.

The foresight of Dr. Creelman, Commissioner of Agriculture, who number of practical suggestions for the assistance of the farmer, is indicated in his preparations for the home purchase of this year's apples. The embargo will throw about one million bushels upon the Canadian market, and plans are under way to provide for their consumption in Canada. The people of the Dominion imported fruits last year to the value of $10,000,000. If home-grown apples can be consumed here it will mean that a very large part of the money sent out of the country will remain here.

NO LEISURE AT THE FRONT

The spirit that moves the Conservation of Resources Committee, Mr. Gillespie stated, is that the men at the front have no leisure, and the people at home must prepare to sacrifice this summer their accustomed leisure. The Committee is fully endorsed and backed up by the Government.

QUESTION OF WAGES.

It has been suggested that the basic wage should be $1.10 the pay of the private in military service. Experienced men who engage with farmers will, of course, receive higher wages to be arranged between himself and the farmer who employs him. But the movement is a patriotic one, involving the element of sacrifice of time and labour, and it is emphasised to the citizen that whatever assistance he can give will be returned to him in lower prices next year.

ORGANIZING THE COUNTY

Meetings will be held in the near future at the towns around Peterborough that this county may be thoroughly aroused to its duty and to an enthusiasm in the summer's work. In short the various communities will be organized to co-operate with the city and thereby with the rest of the province.

The Government, public men and other leaders of the people are anxious for the success of this summer's production, and in their present call to the land are striving to arouse the people to a full realization of the new crisis demands of them.

Rheumatic Sufferers

A tendency to rheumatism once established in the system is manifested by the return of the acute pains with every spell of bad weather. This is the reason so many people still think that the trouble is due to cold or damp. The fact is known, however, and acknowledged by all medical writers, that with the appearance of rheumatism there is a rapid thinning of the blood, and that the rheumatic poisons are only expelled from the system when the blood is restored to its normal condition. Enriching and purifying the blood by means of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the best known cure for rheumatism. Lumbago, it may be remarked, is merely a form of rheumatism attacking the muscles of the back and loins and is similarly cured by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. At the first twinge of either of these troubles these pills should be taken and the poison that causes the trouble will soon be expelled from the blood. Here is proof: Mr. M. Syspanck, Arnes, Man. says: "I was almost crippled with rheumatism and suffered greatly from the almost constant pains. I tried several medicines, but without benefit. Then I was advised to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and after taking them for a couple of months every vestige of the trouble had disappeared, and I have since enjoyed the most perfect health. In view of my own experience I believe there is no case of rheumatism Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will not cure."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Names Of A Number Of Streets Will Be Changed

City Solicitor Gordon and City Engineer Parsons Will Report on the Advisability of Discarding the Names of Streets and Using Numbers—Business Transacted at Last Night's Council Meeting.

A move to have the streets of the city known by numbers instead of names, was inaugurated at last night's meeting of the City Council. City Engineer Parsons was asked to confer with City Solicitor G. N. Gordon, and report as to the cost and other conditions that may be involved in such a change. Mayor Duffus made this suggestion, following a resolution that was passed authorizing the changing of the names of the following streets: Cedar street to Murray street; Princess Street to Gladstone Avenue; Brown street, north, to Auburn street; that part of Park street from Wolfe street to King street, to be called Harper street; Elm street to Brock street, and that part of Reid street from Townsend to Sherbrooke street to be known as Park street. The majority of the Aldermen were in favour of changing the names of the streets to numbers, which would be less confusing than the present antedated system.

Permission Granted.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., was granted permission to remove two trees, construct an entrance and instal a bowser tank outside the garage occupied by him at 378 Aylmer street. Ald. Stratton was of the opinion that the two trees to be removed should be replaced at some other point along the street, as Aylmer street is a little short of trees. Ald. Duncan did not think that tree planting, applied to that particular section of the city, as it was destined to become a business section.

Mayor Duffus favoured the removal of all gasoline tanks now installed on the streets. He said he would be willing to remove his own. One alderman suggested that a fifty-dollar license fee be established.

The Water street firm of Bennet and Goodwill are going to make alterations to the building which they now occupy. They requested permission to construct bay windows, which will project over the sidewalk a few inches. The request was granted; the work to be done under the supervision of the City Engineer.

Want Street Improved.

Residents on Olive Avenue want the city to take over the street and improve its present condition. City Engineer Parsons will be asked to make a report on the matter.

F. Mesley, 628 Rogers street, complained of the condition of a portion of that street. The Engineer will be asked to make a report.

E. G. Kingan, corner of Dalhousie and Aylmer streets, addressed a letter to the Council concerning the excessive growth of trees at that particular spot. The matter was referred to the Board of Works.

Ald. Worth drew the Council's attention to a quantity of ashes that have been dumped on a vacant lot on Gilmour street. Ald. Weir, chairman of the Board of Works, promised to have the matter looked into, and the nuisance, if any, removed. A number of trees said to have been left in an unsightly condition on the same street, will also receive attention at the hands of the Board of Works Committee.

The Utilities Commission will be asked to remove one pole on Simcoe street, one from in front of the Conservatory of Music, Hunter street, and any others that may not be in use throughout the city.

Ald. Stratton suggested that the chairman of the Board look into the condition of the sidewalk in front of Dr. King's residence on Charlotte street.

The Council accepted settlement of the city's claim in connection with the fire at the courthouse. The city will receive three thousand, five hundred dollars in full settlement of the claim.

By-laws Passed.

A by-law authorizing the borrowing of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars for current and ordinary expenitures was passed by the Council; also a by-law respecting the collection of night-soil. The last named by-law contains twenty-eight clauses and authorizes the collector to charge a fee of forty cents for a regulation sized receptacle. A larger-sized receptacle will cost eighty cents. The collections are made as often as the sanitary inspector may deem advisable. In many cases it will be sufficient to make collections once every two months. If the property owner wants collections made more frequent he can do so by notifying the inspector or collector. Forty cents is charged for every collection made.

The remission of fines by the Provincial Government, as requested by the Council, awaits an order in Council, according to a communication read last evening.

The Council received a communication from the City Temperance organization relating to an effort to secure Dominion-wide prohibition. As a meeting is to be held here in the city on Tuesday evening next, the communication was received.

GOVERNMENT WILL BE INVITED TO ADOPT DAYLIGHT SAVING MEASURE THROUGHOUT CANADA

Ald. Worth's Scheme Did Not Meet With the Approval of the City Council—Aldermen Were of the Opinion That It Should Be Given Dominion-wide Effect to Be of Practical Value.

Ald. Worth's daylight saving scheme received scant support at the hands of the City Council, which met last night in regular session. Ald. Worth presented a number of arguments in favour of the proposal, chief among them being the suggestion that it would assist the greater production campaign now being inaugurated throughout the Dominion. The chief argument against the measure was the fact that it would only effect Peterborough. The majority of the aldermen, including Mayor Duffus, were of the opinion that a daylight saving measure such as adopted in other countries, would have to be Dominion-wide to be of practical value. Ald. Langford recalled the experience of Hamilton and Kingston. Last year these two cities repealed the measure after it had been in force a short time.

Early Enough.

Ald. Saunders said he was up early enough without getting up an hour earlier. Ald. Taylor was of the same opinion. Ald. Dobbin suggested that deputations be invited to wait upon the City Council so as to give the aldermen a kind of a field night. Ald. Stratton fell in line with Ald. Saunders. Ald Langford took a similar stand, claiming that such a scheme should be universal to be successful. Ald. McIntyre said that it was the most ridiculous thing ever brought up in the Council.

"If it could be made universal it would be all right," said Ald. McIntyre.

Ald. Weir and Ald. Duncan both agreed that the scheme should be Dominion wide to be of any practical value.

Ald. Worth was successful in fathering a resolution to have the proposal laid before the Dominion Government in the hope that it will be adopted all over the Dominion at the instance of the Government.

Nervous, Run Down People Need This Spring Nerve Tonic

Trembling Hands, Halting Step, Lack of Confidence, Timidness, Bashfulness, All Caused by Overworked and Abused Nerves.

Old-fashioned Spring tonics are good as far as they go, but they dont go far enough. Overwork, excess in eating, drinking, smoking, late hours and too strenuous living during the Winter months means that your nerves have been abused and you need the best remedy you can get to put them in good shape.

Get a bottle of Extract of Native Roots to-day. In two days you'll step livlier, your eye will brighten; you'll start to grow younger instead of older; and soon you will regain your old-time vigour and confidence, and no one will dare suggest that you are a "dead one," a "down and out," or have "lost your grip."

No matter from what cause your nerves may have become shattered you can put your old time force into them and make them as steady as an athlete's and as strong as steel. How happy you will be to again be able to do well the things that lack of confidence prevents you from doing. Be strong, be vigorous; get back your old time ambition and be your own happy, robust, contented self again.

The genuine Extract of Native Roots is sold by Warne Drug Co. and other leading druggists throughout the Dominion. Start the treatment to-day.

ENTERTAINMENT WAS REPEATED

The Mark street Ladies' Aid repeated their comedy, "The Village Doctor" to a good audience in Victoria Hall last Friday evening. Judging by the applause and laughter the audience enjoyed the comedy. The Society has been invited to present it at Stewart's Hall, Bethel, in the near future. The ladies would like to thank all who helped in making the evening a success, Mr. Bellegheim for the furniture for the stage, Miss Bryce, Miss Kemp, Miss Succee and Mrs. Wand for vocal solos, and Mr. Whitehouse who also rendered several violin selections, accompanied by Miss Sandercon, who was the efficient accompanist for the evening, and Master Johnston, who recited.

How You Can Make Hairs Quickly Disappear

(Helps to Beauty)

Even a stubborn growth of hair will quickly vanish from the face, neck or arms after a single treatment with delatone. To remove the hairs, make a stiff paste with a little powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface and after about two minutes rub off, wash the skin and it will be left free from hair or blemish. To avoid disappointment, be quite certain you get real delatone.

OFFICERS ELECTED

The annual meeting of the George street Epworth League was held last evening, when the election of officers took place. The following officers were elected:

Hon. Pres.—Rev. R. G. Peever, B.D.
Past Pres.—C. S. Thompson, B.A.
President—H. R. Armstrong.
1st Vice-Pres.—Miss M. Dorman.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Miss A. Elson.
3rd Vice-Pres.—Miss M. Armstrong.
4th Vice-Pres.—E. Ingall.
5th Vice-Presidents— B. Hamilton and Misses E. Outram and G. Pentland.
6th Vice-Pres.—Miss M. Elliot.
Secretary—Chas. Elliot.
Assoc. Sec.—Miss H. Westall.
Corr.-Sec.—H. Emery.
Treasurer—Miss F. Johnson.
Pianist—Miss M. Mather.
Asst. Pianists—Misses A. Curtin, M. Cunningham and R. McKee.

The Rev. R. G. Peever presided at last night's meeting and expressed the solid opinion of the League when he referred in extremely complimentary terms to the work undertaken and supervised by Mr. C. S. Thompson, the retiring president. Mr. Thompson steps out of the presidents' chair of his own accord after a splendid record, and the League heartily concurred with the pastor in his expressions of regret that he had made up his mind to retire from the office. The feeling was the same in regard to the other retiring officers whose work has meant so much to the League. Mr. Peever also congratulated the incoming officers, and took a decidedly optimistic view of the work of the next year.

DEVELOPMENT ON NEWRAY PROPERTY IN PORCUPINE

The driving of the crosscut on the 400-foot level of the Newray in Porcupine is the first underground work which has been done by the present Company. Under the former management, however, considerable ore was recovered from the old No. 1 vein and a production of $212,000 in gold was made in the stamp mill. The property was at that time operated by a leasing company, and the earnings were sufficient to pay a dividend.

The present Company, Newray Mines, Limited, took over the property last year, and since then have carried out a very aggressive development campaign, which is now yielding splendid results. There are at least five veins which were picked up by the diamond drills, and which should be encountered in the crosscut on the 400-foot level between now and mid-summer, and, as these carried high values and were demonstrated for a considerable width, it is expected that the Company will be able to maintain a substantial production.

The Newray property is one of the most extensive in the Porcupine camp, comprising 321 acres in the well-known Hollinger-McIntyre-Newray zone, which contains five out of the present seven producing mines of the camp.

Borden Speech Made Big Hit In Britain

Warning Against Waste Should Be Hung as Motto in Every House—Eliminate the Kaiser in Peace Negotiations—A Voice From India and South Africa.

MAKING NEW PRECEDENTS

LONDON, April 4.— England is so deadly in earnest that Sir Robert Borden's warning against waste is well received—waste in time of peace is sin; in this time of national stress it is a crime. He specifically mentions waste of food, time, opportunity, and labour, and the press to-day echoes his appeal as applying to every citizen's personal and home life.

So enlarged is the Englishman's conception of the Empire that no one deems of suggesting it is no business of Sir Robert's or of any overseas statesman to utter such a warning. The Daily Telegraph says: "Borden's crisp sentences might well be prominently displayed in every home and factory, and even on board ship, and in regimental masses. We must be provident, even miserly."

Eliminate the Kaiser.

Much comment is also made upon Borden's application to Germany, of the lessons of Russia's revolution. It is accepted as another version of the precept now so much read in English journals like the Daily Mail that what the allies should do is to force a revolution upon Germany and announce now that they will refuse to treat with the Kaiser.

"Sir Robert Borden would leave it to Germany to clean up her own mess," says the Mail. "Let Germany so set her house in order that a change of ideal and a change of purpose can be relied on. Thus, not otherwise, can she have peace; for this and not to crush her, are the allied nations fighting."

Perhaps the most surprising feature of the speeches was General Smuts' declaration that the delegates at the Imperial Conference felt they were here not to follow precedents, but to make them. Old methods will not do for new links of the Empire. No one, however, supposes that the Cabinet or Conference has yet had a chance to consider the big questions of Empire construction. Too many urgent war matters have to be decided first. It is expected that the conference will be a prelude to a summons to a later Imperial conference when Australia can be represented.

Indian representatives at the conference express great satisfaction at their kindly welcome from Borden, Smuts, and the other overseas Ministers. The Maharaja of Bikanir says: "Our welcome has been of the warmest. My countrymen may be assured of the goodwill of all parts of the Empire toward India and Indians."

TORONTO, April 4.—Mark Ding Chung, a chinaman, who lives at 8 Elizabeth street, must be made of rubber. Yesterday afternoon Chung jumped out of the third storey window of 8 Elizabeth street, plunging thirty feet to the cement sidewalk.

Chung got up and limped into the arms of a constable who saw Chung make the leap. No bones were broken, but he was taken to the General Hospital and, beyond a bad shaking up, no internal injuries were discovered.

"Why did you jump out of the window?" asked the nurse.

"I am sick in the head," stated Chung, with difficulty.

FRENCH AND BRITISH NEARING ST. QUENTIN

French Troops Captured Three Villages and a Dominating Series of Heights Two Miles Distant From St. Quentin —Both Armies Are Pushing Steadily Ahead.

PERFECT CO-ORDINATION

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, April 4.—Perfect co-ordination between the French and British forces drove the Allied ring of steel still closer to St. Quentin today. While the British feinted as if in continuation of their assumption of the initiativev during the past few days, the French suddenly drove forward on a front of eight miles south of St. Quentin and captured three villages and a dominating series of heights two miles' distant from the town. Then the British resumed their steady pounding away at the German lines. It is an affair between the British and French forces now to see which will take the city first. The British have a scant few hundred yards' advantage and like General Nivelle's troops also hold a dominating ridge. Both armies were reported in battle front despatches to-day to be pushing steadily ahead. Meanwhile the French are tightening their pressure against the German lines south of LaFere, driving forward another wedge toward Anizy.

Concert Given By Peterboro' Soldiers

MILLBROOK, April 2.—The concert, under the auspices of and in aid of returned soldiers, held in Millbrook Town Hall on Thursday, March 29th, was well attended. Had the roads been in fit condition the hall would have been packed. The proceeds amounted to nearly $70.

The programme was rich in variety and excellence. The Tableaux Vivants were well given, in which were introduced popular and patriotic pictures. The Jones children, who have won fame all over Canada, gave many of the latest songs and dances. Master Harold Jones, the boy comedian, and Miss Ethel Jones, the excellent singer, delighted the audience.

Sergt. J. Cooper, champion sword manipulator, thrilled the audience with his clever, dangerous and startling tricks with sword and lance.

Mr. C. Blythe, baritone, Mr. W. Farr, tenor and Mr. P. Victor, humorist in song and story, are clever entertainers, and their singing was thoroughly enjoyed. The orchestra, under the direction of Mrs. Jones, the very capable accompanist, gave several stirring and patriotic selections. Mr. Parrington, a returned soldier, deserves great credit for his part in arranging the entertainment and also for his work in the tableaux. Should this concert company return to town they will be greeted right heartily by a bumper crowd. The little farce comedy was well presented. The National Anthem was heartily sung, closing one of the best concerts ever given in the town hall.

SUBMARINE RAIDS ON AMERICA ARE LIKELY

LONDON. — A naval correspondent writes:

The raids of German destroyers on the Kentish Coast on the night of February 25 is the eighth attempt of a similar nature which the Germans have made with their surface or submarine torpedo craft in the North Sea during the autumn and winter. If the United States should be drawn into the war against Germany it is probable that attempts would be made to repeat such localized attacks on the American seaboard, as apart from the war on commerce, this would be the principal means, if not the only one, by which the Germany navy could exert itself.

It is therefore interesting to review the excursions of the enemy torpedo craft during the last four months. The first was a raid by a division of the destroyers into the channel which resulted in the sinking of one empty transport and six drift net boats. The enemy on this occasion was foiled in the main purpose which was to interfere with the transport service. A week later some destroyers "advanced against the commercial sea route between the Thames and Holland," in which the Dutch steamer Oldambt was captured, but afterwards rescued by British scouting craft.

The next adventure, called a "reconnoitering expedition," by the enemy, took place on November 23 when Ramsgate was said to have been bombarded, although the British admiralty stated that no shell fell anywhere near the open town. On November 25 there was another raid into the waters near Lowestoft, when the armed trawler Narval was sunk.

FOUR SCATTERED ATTACKS.

In the present war there have been four spasmodic attacks, three by destroyers and one by submarines. On January 22 two German destroyer divisions came out, but were brought to action off the Dutch coast by superior British forces and dispersed. Three nights later some destroyers crossed to the Suffolk coast and shelled the small town of Southwold. On February 13 the harrying tactics were continued by a submarine which emerged near the mouth of the Adour and fired six shells at the French coast near Bayonne. Finally, on the night of February 25 two destroyer divisions—probably the same which had been engaged off Holland a month earlier—advanced towards the southeast coast of England, and one of them came in close enough to throw a few shells at Margate and Broadstairs.

The naval results of these ventures is negligible, and the moral effect of little or no account, but locally they cause damage and loss of life and property, and in any case should be stopped, if possible. All but one were made by surface craft, which could not be used for long raids on the American coast, so long as the Allies command the seas. In place of them, however, there are the raiders of disguised mercantile type, which might make a descents on some portions of the coast line. The chances are against it as only by extreme daring on the part of her commander would such a vessel appear off a coast town and so reveal her position to those in search of her.

A submarine raid is, however, much more probable. Given sufficient speed submarines might have accomplished all that the destroyers have done in their movements against the English coast or shipping since last October.

ALLIES' ADRIATIC RAIDS.

It is significant that such raids as th eAllies have carried out, except for the seizure of certain islands in the Adriatic, have been undertaken by aircraft. The allied raids in the Adriatic differ from those made by Germany against the English coasts in that they have been carried out by a sufficiency of force belonging to the superior power after the command of the sea had been asserted.

None of the raids made by the German navy, whether by means of its surface vessels or submarines has had any real military value, yet it is curious that the more threat of such raids will often affect naval policies. It is one of the enemy objects to alarm the civil population, setting up a clamour for local protection which it is difficult to satisfy without restricting operations.

In the American war with Spain the effect of the steaming of the Spanish ships were such as to oblige the United States government to keep Admiral Schley's squadron off the American coast. As Admiral Mahan has said, "The distributions of the American fleet during the Spanish war furnish interesting matter for study as to the effects of popular fears on military dispositions."

Similarly, the cruiser raids of the east coasts of England led to demands for local naval protection and during the late administration under Mr. Balfour, appear to have resulted to some extent in a modification of the policy of the admiralty.

The best reply to such raids as those of small craft is to make the most vigorous attack possible on the raiders in their own lairs. The offensive policy of impeaching the raiders has manifestly more chances of success than any defensive system could possibly have. If a swarm of wasps threatens a village it would be futile to offer the boys of the place a dime apiece to catch and destroy them; they would have to be exterminated in their nests. So it is with the hornets of the sea. The surest way of reducing their activity is to raid their bases and stop as far as possible the exit of the boats. In the present war this has been done as much from the air as from the sea and the improvements which are being made in aircraft should increase the power of the navy in this direction. If the opportunity offered, American ingenuity and resource would be sufficient to supply large quantities of air craft for this purpose in a manner which, owing to the large demands for other material of war, the Allies could not do. Such machines would be more effectively saving American interests in bombing the submarine shelters in Belgium and Germany than in being stationed on the American coast.

At a Time in Life When the System Could Not Stand the Strain—Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Came to the Rescue

PETERBOROUGH, Ont., March 16. —There is a special message in this letter for every woman reader of this paper. It refers to the critical time in every woman's life when the strain on the nervous system is unusually severe and when she is most likely to develop nervous prostration or some form of nervous trouble.

Because it helps over this trying time and leaves the nervous system strong and healthy, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is most highly esteemed by all women who have tested its value.

Mrs. Esther Vass, 9 Brown street, Brewntown P.O., Ont., writes: "At the age of forty I was not feeling well, and suffered from sleeplessness, nervousness, headaches and was in a generally run-down condition. I had gone through a lot of trouble, having lost my husband previously, leaving me with quite a large family. Just about this time I was troubled with the change of life. I had tried doctors' medicine, but it did not seem to help me. I read about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, so decided to try it. I got some and took it, and found they did me a great deal of good. I took them regularly, according to directions, for four years, with splendid success. At that time I felt like a new woman—this medicine had carried me over this critical period, relieved me of nervousness, helped me to sleep well and gave me a splendid appetite. Now I am 61 years of age and feeling fine. If at any time I feel that I need a tonic I take a box or two of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, with splendid results. I might mention that I have also found this treatment good for relieving palpitation of the heart."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

HAD BOILS

FOR SIX MONTHS

B. B. B. DROVE THEM AWAY

When the blood becomes impure the very first symptoms which manifest themselves are a breaking out of various forms of skin trouble such as boils, pimples, sores, etc., and to get rid of these troubles you must cleanse the blood thoroughly with a good blood remedy.

The best blood cleansing remedy on the market to-day is Burdock Blood Bitters.

Thousands of people from one end of Canada to the other have used it during the past forty years, and have nothing but words of praise for its cleansing properties.

Mr. Rufus Beers, Upper Main River, N.B., writes: "I want to say a few words about your medicine, Burdock Blood Bitters. I had boils for over six months and sometimes was so bad I could not work. I tried lots of cures but nothing would drive them away for good until I took B.B.B. In a short time I was all better. It is a dandy medicine. I keep it in the house all the time."

Burdock Blood Bitters is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont., but so well and favourably is it known that there are many imitations on the market. See that our name appears on the wrapper.

VERDUN.

"They shall not pass!" one said, and so the word
Through trench and dugout went:
The backward-driven army, halting heard.
When hope was almost spent.

As at Thermopylae, a strength of steel
Now griped their hearts entire;
"They shall not pass!" Each Frenchman's soul could feel
The words were forged in fire!

And now the breaking strain was reached at last—
Their faith must stand or fall.
They swayed—but held—while all their wounds flowed fast,
Their backs against the wall!

Like waves that mercilessly break and tear,
On came the driving mass!
But not a foolish boast had been the prayer:
"Please God, they shall not pass!"

"They did not pass! The uncrossed, bloody goal
They held as they had sworn!
Ah! Those immortal words shall thrill the soul
Of multitudes unborn!

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Colour and Lustre to Hair

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients for 50 cents a large bottle, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Vogue, the ultra-fashionable woman's magazine, declared recently: "Everybody bicycles at Palm Beach. Automobiling there has become a lost art.

THE OLD GARDENER SAYS

Spiraea, popular as Easter plants, often lose their flowers as soon as taken home from the shop of the florist. This would not happen if the saucers under the pots were kept filled with water. These plants are among the few kinds which seem to like wet feet. After they have finished blooming they may be set in the garden and in a year from next fall will be ready for forcing in the house again.

EVERY D Y READING.

Some twenty-five years ago I heard a man state publicly, that "faith and obedience bring the victory." This man was not connected with any church organizations. When hearing him speak out these words with apparent much assurance, I was somewhat astounded, thinking that possibly he was mixing up salvation by faith and salvation by works. At that time I had no experimental knowledge of what it was to live a life of victory over sin. Since that time I have found out for myself that those conditions to salvation that seemed to be directly opposite, are really in full agreement.

I have made statements publicly again and again, that the first step towards salvation is an act of obedience; and I here say that each succeeding step is on the same line. Man comes into the world with a nature prone to do evil, and not inclined towards the right. So in order for man to turn to righteousness, he must have some power outside of himself to incline him to live a holy life. This inclination comes to him by the Holy Spirit, calling him to be reconciled to God, through accepting Jesus Christ as his Saviour and King. So you can see the first step is obedience to that call.

Having obeyed the call and been made children of God or disciples of Jesus, the following steps will be learning of Jesus or doing what He wants us to do. This knowledge of His will comes to us by the Holy Spirit, whose work it is to guide us into all truth. Trust in Jesus for all you need, must imply a confidence in His wisdom to control us, by teaching us what he would have us do. This life of loving obedience to the Spirit is different beyond measure from trying to be good in the vain endeavour to keep the law of the ten commandments. Obedience to the Spirit is a life of freedom; the other a life of bondage. Blessed is the man who has found out the secret. VICTOR.

France Calls Out Class Of 1918

PARIS, March 16.—One week ago the French war minister asked parliament to vote a government bill for calling out the youngest Frenchmen liable to army services. They form "the class of 1918," that is, they will be 20 cars old in that year—and 20 is the age when the obligation of military service begins in time of peace. They are to be called together—for the few months of training absolutely necessary before they will be fit to go to the fighting front—in April of this year, 1917. That is the youngest soldiers whom France will have drafted into her army will be 19 years old.

Note this age, for a great many wrong things will be said about it and against it by parties interested in peace at any price. The French parliament voted a little earlier—in November, 1915 — the calling out of the class of 1917; and that class went into training in January, 1916, which was also the young soldiers' nineteenth year. But the propaganda of peace at any price published everywhere that France was calling out 17 year old boys to serve as soldiers. Class of 1917—soldiers 17 years old. Class of 1918—what—18 years old? That will not sound so telling. In both years the youngest soldiers called out by France were 19 years old.

In the American civil war soldiers were taken down to 18 years old. In France, even in time of peace, volunteers could always forestall their compulsory military service by enlisting at 18—with their parents' consent. So it has been in this war, and even younger—just as old officers and soldiers who have long passed the age of compulsory service have insisted on being taken as volunteers. One over 70 years old was killed lately. The last classes liable to compulsory service in case of war when war actually broke out in 1914 —that is, men 47 years old of the class of 1887, and 46 of the class of 1888—have been kept on the lists, but they have not been used for active fighting. So it is false and wrong headed for peace propagandists to set up a cry that France is drafting her boys and old men into the army.

An effort has also been made to persuade neutrals that German prisoners and interned civilians are severely treated. In the spring of last year I saw such prisoners employed on the docks at Marseilles—and they were given a time for siesta after their lunch. The hired labourers—Spaniards and Algerian Kabyles—had no such privilege and looked enviously at them. At Bordeaux in autumn I saw Austrian prisoners cultivating little plots of waste land for themselves and eating the salad they had grown. Something more astonishing still has just happened.

What is called a concentration camp had been prepared for German prisoners — wooden barracks quite new, with proper floors and windows and conveniences and heating facilities. Before the Germans were brought there the barracks had to be inspected to verify that they fulfilled the exigencies of Germany, without which reprisals are executed on French prisoners and interned civilans held by Germans.

The stories of such French prisoners who have been exchanged or allowed to come to Switzerland because of lasting sickness, like tuberculosis, are not comforting, particularly with reference to food and medical attention. At any rate, the brand new French prison camp, which would eventually have had to come under the supervision of the American embassy (it was before the rupture of diplomatic relations with Germany) were rejected by the French authorities as not up to the mark of German exigencies. They did not wish to give the least excuse for reprisals on French prisoners in the German prison camps.

Well, what was thought not good enough for German prisoners, with whom Frenchmen are at war, has been turned over to the native volunteers who come from tropical Annam to help France. They are small, deft with their hands like their Chinese neighbours, and make themselves useful generally. So far they have not complained of their new barracks, not even of their being cold in this first real winter which they have ever known.

Another example will show how little justification there is for a campaign carried on to influence neutrals against this employment of her own colonials by France, in whose parliament they are represented. Carters and scavengers have been overworked in Paris during the severe winter at hauling coal and flour. To take their place in street cleaning, first, women were enlisted for the sweeping—and they were real Parisians. Then, for the heavy work of lifting and carrying, Kabyles from the interior of Algiers were recruited.

Which is Yours?

Every figure here shown can be correctly and precisely fitted in a genuine Semi-ready Tailored Suit.

Men generally may be grouped into seven figure classifications. Select the figure shown on this chart which represents you.

The unequalled skill of Semi-ready designers, backed by experienced expert tailors, will give absolute comfort and good appearance.

Freakish designs are taboo. Fashion for gentlemen depends upon the beauty of line, correct design and an expression of good form.

Type A shows the ideal or normal figure for a man of short stature, and the four figures are the variations of high shoulders, sloping shoulders, stooping figure and very erect carriage.

Type B is the man of average height, from 5 feet 6 to 5 feet 11 inches. There are more men in Canada who fit into this type than all others combined.

Type C shows the ideal tall figure, and in this class garments are designed to fit men from 5 feet 9 to 6 feet 2 inches, with every proportion just right.

Type F is the average short, heavy figure, with large waist measure. This is made to fit men from 36 breast to 50 inch breast and 52 inch waist.

Type G is the ideal tall stout or heavy man, he who weighs from 170 to 240 pounds and who measures from 41 inch breast and 41 waist to 50 inch breast and 50 inch waist.

In each type are shown the variations or sub-divisions, and any normal garment can be quickly altered to fit these variations by the Semi-ready system.

It is hard to see why they are called black savages by the Germans, who blame the French for using them, for many of these Kabyles are blue eyed and as fair skinned as many Germans. They are of the primitive Berber race, as old as the Egyptians, and have the strength of their Atlas mountains.

WANT SUCCESS? STRUT, SON STRUT

NEW YORK, April 2.—"The pompous, strutting, self-confident man usually has the power to make good," is the statement of Dr. Louis R. Welzmiller, physical director of the West Side Y.M.C.A.

"The fellow who sticks his nose in the air and puffs out his chest like a pouter pigeon, steps high, and walks with ginger in his stride, is energized and full of strength," he says. "He makes a good impression by his quick action and direct way of approaching men of affairs. There is exhilaration about the cocksure fellow with elevated chin which gives him a sense of power and readiness and inspires confidence in others.

"He is not easily discouraged and his perennial smile advertises so that all may see that his heart is right and full of courage. He lands the job with the fat salary, and his attitude and carriage help him to make good in it."

The Toronto civic authorities have been asked to provide a bicycle garage in the downtown section of the city for the convenience of office-workers and others who are indoors most of the day. It has been suggested that one or two returned soldiers be placed in charge of the municipal garage to look after the handling of the wheels and to perform odd repair jobs when requested.

Swiss Will Make No Peace Move Now

BERNE, April 2.—The Swiss Parliament decided to-day by a vote of 86 to 22 that Switzerland should make no move in behalf of peace at the present time. This action was taken after hearing the majority and minority reports of a commission appointed to consider the possibility of a peace move by Switzerland.

The majority of the commission advised against any action at this time. The minority suggested: First, that the Bundesrat declare itself ready to take part in a general conference of States immediately after the war for the purpose of creating an international organization for the peaceful settlement of all political and economical international disputes; secondly, that the Bundesrat declare itself ready, either alone or in connection with other neutral States, to offer its good services for peace negotiations whenever the circumstances seem timely or whenever its services are requested.

The two reports were discussed yesterday and parliament at first declared itself in favour of the majority report with the amendment that the Bundesrat, the Federal Executive Committee, should have a free hand to act if future developments rendered it desirable. The minority group was dissatisfied with this action and forced the question to a vote to-day with the result that it was decisively defeated. M. Hoffman, director of the Political Department, in supporting the majority report, said that the petitions for a peace move by Switzerland were well meant, but that the psychological moment for peace had not arrived.

"However," said M. Hoffman, "we are optimistic enough to declare that it is an absolute necessity to reconstruct international law so as to create new guarantees in order that such things as we are experiencing now will be impossible again. The first threads, however, will be spun in some other way, perhaps according to the Bryan scheme of agreements to defer war, which America has con-

Tin Can Supply Now 3,500,000 Short of Demand

WASHINGTON. — Tin cans by the billions will be needed by American canning factories during the coming summer. The European war has increased the demands on the United States canners, and it is figured that not less than 7,500,000,000 cans will be needed to take care of the demand during the next season. Of this total only 4,000,0000000 are in sight leaving an apparent shortage of 3,500,000,000 tin cans.

Several agencies of the government are straining every effort to solve the problem, and have secured the co-operation of the railroads. Shipments of tinplate, steel sheets and tin cans will be treated in transit as if they were foodstuffs.

A co-operative committee selected by Secretary of Commerce Redfield, and secretary of Agriculture Houston, has sent out questionaries to all the canners of the country asking about their needs of the coming season. The committee is also in touch with the products of can material and is optimistic over the prospects of getting enough tin cans to meet the demand.

It has been declared that unless the increased demand for tin cans can be met the price of all canned goods during the next year will be considerably in advance of the high prices now prevailing. Canned goods are now approximately 25 per cent higher than a year ago, and the canners declare that there will be no reduction even with the large increase in output.

He had opened up a fish shop, and he ordered a new sign painted, of which he was very proud. It read, "Fresh Fish Sold Here."

HAD AWFUL ATTACKS OF HEART TROUBLE

For 5 or 6 Years

Diseases and disorders of the heart and nervous system have become frightfully prevalent of late years.

One can scarcely pick up a paper but he will find recorded instances of sudden deaths through heart failure, or of proffinent men and women unable to prosecute their ordinary business or profession on account of a breaking down of the nervous system.

We do not desire to unnecessarily alarm anyone, but to sound a word of warning.

When the heart begins to beat irregularly, palpitates and throbs, has shooting pains through it, it is time to stop and think.

To all sufferers from heart and nerve troubles Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills can give prompt and permanent relief.

Mrs. Frank Arsenaau, Newcastle, N. B., writes: "I had awful attacks of heart trouble for the past five or six years, and as I had tried many kinds of medicine without getting any better I decided to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a trial, and to my surprise I found ease from the second dose. I continued taking them until I had used six boxes, and now I feel as well as can be.

"At the present time my sister is using them for nervousness and finds great comfort by their use."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c or three boxes for $1.25 at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

"What did you put the word 'fresh' in for?" said his customer. "You wouldn't sell them if they weren't fresh, would you?"

He painted out the word, leaving just "Fish Sold Here."

WATCHING DLL WORK

BRITISH SAILORS OFF U. S. COAST TIRED OF SLOW JOB.

Sailor on Cruiser Which Sunk the Emden Tells of His Dislike of Blockade Duty and Describes the Hardships Which Affect the Men —Fresh Vegetables Are Hard to Get—Longs for North Sea.

LIFE is one damp, cold thing after another for the crews of the British blockading fleet that lies outside the U. S. three-mile line waiting for the German ships that never come out. According to at least one of the sailors, it is worse than life in the trenches. The monotony of loafing in the swell of the sea watching for some little freighter from South America that must be held up and searched is getting on the men's nerves.

Their food is of the old fashioned lime juicer quality except when some daring sea grocer manages to bring a cargo of supplies alongside, and even then, with December seas running, it's a gamble whether the fresh vegetables will reach the cook or Davy Jones.

One of the British cruisers engaged in the peaceful blockade of the Atlantic ports is the Sydney, which ran the German raider Emden ashore on an island in the Indian ocean and shot her to bits. After that the Sydney roamed the North sea looking for German submarines, and last month she was ordered off New York to relieve the cruiser Iris in keeping tabs on commerce.

The letter below, written by a member of the Sydney's crew, seems to throw light on the Zealandia's adventure, but it is more interesting in showing how the British seaman hates the job of watchful waiting:

"It looks as though we were to spend another Christmas on the briny deep.

"It has been terribly cold out here, and we have had a hard time of it.

"The other night we ran short of coal and had to shoot down to Bermuda and after getting there had to wait a long time for a collier. We got our bunkers filled next day and had to come back here.

"Of all the places in the world, Barsegat, or whatever they call it, is the worst.

"If it ain't blowing it's snowing or raining, and there is a continual swell running that keeps your insides snug against your main companionway for days at a stretch.

"There's nothing to do but hang on and off, watching for some bug of a freighter that's expected up from somewhere in South America.

"The only excitement we've had was the funeral of poor old Rob Siddons. You remember we three were together in Chatham last year, after I had been invalided home from the sub patrol on the Dogger? Rob has been ailing for months, but he wouldn't quit. To tell you the truth, he was too bloody old to stand the strain. So we dropped him over, and there was hardly a dry eye aboard.

"We sank a shot with him and his hammock, and we could well spare it, because we don't ever expect to need any off here.

"Give me the life in the North sea chasing perrys (submarine periscopes). You could get a bit of thrill doing that, and it was worth while getting hit. Out here you might as well be on a training ship.

"The men are mostly sickly, and you can't exactly call them happy. They have nothing to think of except the arrival of the cutter with papers and letters. Lord save us from another job like this.

"I suppose you heard how we lost a man over the side who was reaching for a sack of lettuce or something. He shot down between us and the rotten little tug so quick that there was no chance to save him.

"Norfolk may be all right for those interned Germans, but it's a bad place from which to ship us greens in this sort of weather. It was much better when we laid off Sandy Hook. We got things regular then. They say we will either have to go down around Galveston, stay here, or go to Halifax if we want anything like a rest. If you get news of where we are to go, as you probably will, send some note paper so I can write my Christmas letters.

"I wonder if you heard about any ship being run down about three days ago not far from Sandy Hook. We had a narrow squeak, although we laughed afterward about it.

"It has been very hazy lately, and the other night it was exceptionally thick. We spotted an old cargo boat that looked suspicious and bore after her.

"In the fog the old man must have misjudged her speed or ours, because we ran so close across her stern that her propeller beat against our side and our guns swept right over her poop.

"Well, the gang on that ship will be taking nerve tonic for a month, I guess. We couldn't pick her up again it was so thick, but we heard afterward that she was the same bloody ship we anchored alongside in Progreso—the Zeelander or some name like that."

Streptococci Dwell in That Beard; Boil It

EMPORIA, Kas., April 2.—Boiled whiskers are the only safe whiskers, according to Fred Molesworth, a bacteriologist at the Kansas Normal school at Emporia. Two million germ of various kinds have been found lurking in a full set of unboiled whiskers, and many others are suspected.

Under the direction of Prof. F. U. G. Agrelius, president of the Kansas Academy of Sciece, Mr. Molesworth and Fred Borrer recently carried out an investigation of the germ carrying power of whiskers.

Half Million on Lip.

"We find," says Mr. Molesworth, "that a small moustache carries about 600,000 bacteria. A man's moustache contains not only staphlococci, but many of the most dangerous streptococci. These include gangrene germs, stitch abscess, tuberculosis, pimple, boil, and other pus germs.

"When I discovered the germ carrying power of whiskers," adds Mr. Molesworth, "I immediately had my own small moustache removed. I would advise others in Emporia and elsewhere to do the same.

Here's What to Do.

"For those who do not wish to remove their whiskers the following antiseptic treatments are recommended by the investigators:

1. Boil the whiskers one-half hour daily in boiling water.
2. Wash them in corrosive sublimate.
3. Wash in formaldehyde.
4. Wash in carbolic acid solution.
5. Wash in borax solution or in salt solution. With the exception of the last two, these treatments require exceptionally strong resisting powers.

Millions To Bribe Army Commanders

Provisional Government's investigation to ascertain who were in the plot to open the Russian lines to let German troops through to put down the revolt has developed (according to news coming by way of Finland and Sweden) these things:

The commander at Libau, it is alleged, received from Germany $2,000,000.

The commander at Mitau, it is alleged, received $1,500,000.

The alleged price paid for the surrender of Kovno has not been determined.

Gen. Kuropatkin, the Governor of Riga, got $8,000,000, it is asserted, but sent the money to the Duma Government at Petrograd, and did not surrender his position. When the German commissioner who conveyed the bribe found that Riga was not to be evacuated, he committed suicide.

IF FOOD DISAGREES DRINK HOT WATER

When food lies like lead in the stomach and you have that uncomfortable, distressed feeling, it is because of insufficient blood supply to the stomach combined with acid and food fermentation. In such cases try the plan now followed in many hospitals and advised by many eminent physicians of taking a teaspoonful of pure bisurated magnesia in half a glass of water, as hot as you can comfortably drink it. The hot water draws the blood to the stomach and the bisurated magnesia, as any physician can tell you, instantly neutralizes the acid and stops the food fermentation. Try this simple plan and you will be astonished at the immediate feeling of relief and comfort that always follows the restoration of the normal process of digestion. People who find it inconvenient at times to secure hot water and travelers who are frequently obliged to take hasty meals poorly prepared, should always take two or three five-grain tablets of Bisurated Magnesia after meals to prevent fermentation and neutralize the acid in their stomach.

THE PICTURE ON THE DOOR

I gazed upon a picture, t'was hung upon the door,
I'd often looked up at it, but I never saw before
Such depth of meaning made so clear, was in that dog and flag;
Tho' you'll often hear it talked about as a British tattered rag.

But just go read some history and note where it has flown,
It never flies for slavery, or usurping power known;
But with old Bulldog tenacity, for centuries held the sea,
With no ignoble purpose but that mankind might be free.

And now a nation rises up—world dominance to claim,
The day has come—the German says we'll now achieve our aim,
Poor Belgium weeps — Rumania mourns—the war Lord shouts advance,
But stop—you now shall face the fighting power of France.

The Russian Bear begins to growl, tho' not prepared for war,
The German Hordes we must drive back, leave nations as they are,
The Allied powers believed in peace, thought warfare days were done
But then their eyes were opened by deceitful Prussian Hun.

And now the British flag's unfurled, the Bulldog 'gins to bite,
The lion roars from short to shore we're entered in the fight.
The swords unsheathed we're in to stay, we'll die by sea and sod
To maintain a righteous freedom and the blessings of our God.

Oh mercy come bid man be free, and crown his days with peace.
And ruthless wary by land and sea for aye and ever cease.
Then shall the nations sing for joy, and break the tyrants rod,
Nor mad ambition more destroy the glorious works of God

SAVE but HOW?

You are daily admonished by Bankers, Cabinet Ministers, Judges, and by all the Press of the Country to save and be thrifty. In fact the stamps on our letters are cancelled by the admonition to "Save, Save, Save, etc."

Outside of the Bankers' Association who have recommended the Banks, very few other suggestions have been made.

Why has no person suggested or recommended the greatest thrift producer and the greatest anti-poverty Institution known to the Public?

For instance let us suppose two thousand men at say age 25 propose to test this principle for say twenty years and one half of them invest a small sum annually in a bank and the other thousand deposit an equal amount annually with this anti-poverty institution. Now if I can show you that those who deposited with the anti-poverty institution not only received more than those who deposited in the bank, but that the anti-poverty institution paid to the beneficiaries of the unfortunate depositors who were unable to continue their payments the large additional sum of $159,000.00 which the banks kept for their stockholders, would that interest you?

The banks are all right, but if I can show you that this anti-poverty institution not only gave better security and actually gave better returns, but in addition they gave a Bond that if anything unforeseen such as death, happen you, they would protect you and your estate to any extent desired, would it interest you?

The above facts can be verified to you by calling at, 'phoning or writing the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, 402 Water Street, and such action on your part places you under no obligation whatever

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Collapsible Method

By SADIE OLCOTT

Summer is the time for outdoor sports, winter the time for indoor games. Yes, they are games—not sports—the best that can be done to pass the time when we are housed. Yet they may serve another purpose.

Phillis and I were in the library. We had fixed a table for ping-pong, called by some parlor tennis. The name is an aspersion on the real tennis, which is one of the finest games played. Phillis was at one end of the table batting a little celluloid ball with a tiny wooden racket, I at the other doing the same thing.

"Forty love," said Phil on making a point.

"What did you call me?" I asked.

"I didn't call you anything."

"You said forty something. It didn't sound like Bob, but you may have intended it for Bob."

"Dear me, how you do hear things! You'd better get an ear trumpet."

She won the game, and we proceeded to the next. I had gained nothing by my attempt to introduce a love scrimmage and had given her a love game. We each made the same number of points and Phil cried:

"Deuce!"

"That's like a girl," I said. "One moment you call me love and the next devil."

"I've called you neither!"

She made a point and said, "Vantage!"

"It's all advantage with a girl," I remarked. "She can call a fellow 'love' and not mean it, whereas if the fellow does any spooning he's held to a strict accountability."

"That's only when he's a desirable part!."

She enforced the words with a ball that hit me in the face.

"I have made no such pretense."

Whether it was the sting of her words or of the miserable little globe, there was some asperity in my disclaimer.

"Who accused you of making a pretense?"

Though I was endeavoring to turn the subject from the game to something very near my heart, I could not seriously accuse her, so I made no reply.

"That's the end of the set," she said. "Shall we play another?"

"I'd much rather sit by the fire."

She tossed her racket on the table and, going to the fireplace, stood before it, rubbing her hands as if they were cold. They were not, as I soon learned. She knew what was coming, and it rattled her a bit. Rather, I should say, she hoped for what was coming. I had worked up to the declaration point a number of times and stuck there. It's one thing to tell a girl you love her when she has been struck by lightning and falls into your arms in a critical condition; it is quite another to do the deed in cold blood. At any rate, my efforts had all been failures.

"Why did you intimate," I asked, going to her and leaning against the mantel over the fireplace, "that I am not a desirable part?"

"I didn't."

Stuck again.

I looked through the window at the snow piling up in drifts. If one finds a task difficult under certain circumstances he thinks it would be easier under other circumstances. I was in a comfortable room with a cheerful open fire before me, but I thought I could get out what I wanted to say out in the snow.

"Let's go out and snowball," I said.

She looked disappointed, but acceded to my request. She donned a warm jacket and a woven hood, and we sallied forth.

"You stand there," I said. "I'll stand here. You throw the first ball at me."

How I was to make a proposal while pelting her I didn't know. I hoped something would turn up to help me. It did, but Phillis turned it up; I didn't.

Phil made a snowball and threw it at me. I dodged it. I threw one at Phil. It went wide of the mark. She hit me on the chin. Something—perhaps it was the sting—put an extra amount of force into my arm as I threw the next ball. I couldn't see that it had hit her, but she put her hands to her eye and sank down on the cold snow with a moan. I ran to her.

"Phillis, dear! Sweetheart! Forgive me! I am a beast to have hurt you!"

I pulled away her hands, and she looked at me with inexpressible sweetness. I kissed the wounded eye.

Now, that eye should have been either inflamed or cold or snow wet. It was neither. A few bits of snow were on her shoulder. The snowball I had thrown was squashed against the fence directly behind her.

"Phillis, dear, let us go back to the library."

I supported her into the house, and we stood again before the fire.

"Oh, Phillis!" I exclaimed. "Suppose I had darkened that dear eye forever!"

She shuddered.

"If I had I should have devoted my life to you. Would you have let me?"

"Yes, Bob."

I drew the sofa before the fire, removed her wrap, and we sat down to the happiest hour of my life. The deed was done.

There should be a school for maidens who are troubled with balky lovers. They should be instructed to collapse, and collapsible methods should be given them.

The Wrong Response.

Minnie—"So sorry to hear of your motor accident!"

Lionel—"Oh, thanks; it's nothing. Expect to live through many more."

Minnie—"Oh, but I hope not!"

Kindness in us is the honey that blunts the sting of unkindness in another.—Landor.

Libeled the Judge.

In Captain Burton Deane's book, "Mounted Police Life in Canada," a record of thirty-one years in service, he tells an amusing story of pioneer life. In the "Western Law Times," vol. 1, page 86, published in Calgary, the following item appeared in the late nineties:

"A learned judge of French extraction, not of the Manitoba bench, lately pronounced within 5,000 miles of this city, the following remarkable sentence on a man accused of stealing a horse: 'Prisoner, de evidence is conflicting, but I find you guilty and sentence you to tree months in the guard-room. De evidence, as I say, is very conflicting, but if I was sure, if I was quite sure, dat you stole dat horse, I would give you two years in de Manitoba Penitentiary.'"

The barrister who habitually furnished the law reports to the paper was away from Calgary on a holiday at the time of the foregoing deliverance, and on his return his attention was drawn to the report in question. He did not want to be mixed up in a blood feud with the learned judge for all time, and he decided to take the bull by the horns. He walked to the judge's chamber with a copy of the Law Times in his hand and said, "Judge, I hope you don't think I was capable of putting a false report like this in the paper?"

The judge took the volume from him, read the report carefully, shut the book with a slam, and handed it back to him saying, "You can tell dat I speak as good English as he can."

CANADA'S FISH FARMS

A BILLION FRY ARE FOSTERED BY GOVERNMENT EACH YEAR

Eggs Are Collected, Hatched, and Distributed to All Parts of the Dominion—Great Problem is to Protect the Youngsters From the Depredations of the Fish Which Prey Upon Small Fry.

It is not difficult to imagine that Canada's $25,000,000 trade in fish for 1914 should for this year be largely enhanced because of Great Britain's wholesale withdrawal of trawlers for trapping submarines. That our fishermen on the Atlantic coast and its inlets are finding their nets heavier because of the war is not so apparent. Gaspe's wonderful cod banks never yielded anything approaching the huge catch of this year; it is ascribed to the fish in the North Sea being disturbed by underwater craft and mines; if you don't believe it, you can get even by calling it a fish story by Hon. Mr. Hazen, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who says so.

This year the close season for salmon trout and whitefish was abolished on the Great Lakes, which means the present, their spawning season, says The Toronto Star Weekly. It may indicate a war measure, to try and capture some of the 750,000 ton market which British trawlers have largely lost; or the Dominion Government may be sincere in averring it an experiment, and designed to hugely augment the catch of female fish to supply Canada's hatcheries with spawn. The latter result is certainly being achieved, and a prodigious supply of eggs is daily being dispatched to the breeding depots at Collingwood, Belleville, Wiarton, Point Edward, etc. Even Sir Sam's personally conducted department is not busier these weeks than the hustling branch of the Fisheries with their more than fifty hatcheries to populate.

While the Dominion concerns itself about commercial fish — salmon, whitefish, halibut, etc., lobsters, and oysters — Ontario as a Province anxious to cater to tourists, is encouraged to conserve similarly her natural supply of sporting fish—black bass, sturgeon, lunge, pickerel, speckled trout, etc. Maine is a sportsman's State; it is said she earns annually over $30,000,000 in recreation traffic; her motto that Ontario yearns to copy is "Tourists, and more tourists."

The procedure is decidedly interesting. Last week the first shipment of speckled trout eggs, numbering 150,000, arrived from Haliburton at Mt. Pleasant hatchery, near Brantford, which is furnished with extensive brooding ponds. To secure these the fish were netted and the eggs and milk deftly pressed by skilful hands into tubs, where they are stirred together and the eggs fertilised. In the hatchery follow several washings and then they are transferred to glass jars. The quantity of eggs per jar varies according to species; whitefish and pickerel yielding about 35,000. One of the jars will hold 150,000 whitefish or 250,000 pickerel eggs, and in the hatcheries stand close together rows of them, generally in three tiers, so as to be readily in view of the overseer every minute of the day. Through each jar passes constantly a stream of pure water fed at the bottom, the overflow discharging at the mouth of the vessel; this prevents the coagulation of the egg mass and its consequent destruction. The whitefish ova being collected now will hatch in these jars in about five months, being ready for distribution next May. Pickerel break their tender shells in six weeks, but are gathered as a rule in May. Upon hatching, these fry are placed in large vessels to find their "legs," and in a week are ready for shipment in cans to the point where a Government boat is ready to convey and dump them in the best-suited localities.

"Dog eat dog" is a saying which more truly might have been "Fish eat fish," for the latter are cannibalistic to a degree. Experts agree, were it not so, that fish culture would be unnecessary. Extremely few of the eggs naturally deposited by a female fish are ever fertilized. Of these few only a portion of one per cent. ever hatch; they are devoured by living fish, big and little. Fish culture practice first ensures fertilization and then protection from its own species; the hatcheries boast that of the eggs treated they only lose about fifteen per cent. However, Master Fish's troubles are not passed when our parental Government dumps him over the side of the launch into his native element; for big fishes eat small fishes, and the race is to the swift and the battle to the strong unless Master Fish proves a veritable artful dodger. Comparatively few can reach maturity.

It only means "more hatcheries," and even now the hatcheries in Canada are annually yielding well over a billion fish of different kinds.

Black bass, in which Ontario sportsmen so delight, cannot be treated in ordinary mechanical hatcheries, owing to the nature of their ova. They are nesting fish, and have to be retained in brood ponds where they hatch out naturally, but free from the devouring maw of hungry fish enemies that they would face otherwise. From 100 parent bass it is usual to secure 5,000 fry.

It is interesting to note that fish-breeding in this country started from the private fish hatchery established by the late Samuel Wilmot at Newcastle, Ont., and which was taken over by the Dominion Government in Confederation year, he being for many years chief superintendent of the country's fish depots which gradually came into existence.

Angels

GOD hath sent his angels
To the earth again,
Bringing joyful tidings
To the sons of men.

They who first at Christmas
Thronged the heavenly way,
Now beside the tomb door
Sit on Easter day.

Angels, sing his triumph
As you song his birth.
"Christ the Lord is risen,
Peace, good will on earth."

In the dreadful desert
Where the Lord was tried,
There the faithful angels
Gathered at his side.

And when in the garden,
Grief and pain and care
Bowed him down with anguish,
They were with him there.

Yet the Christ they honor
Is the same Christ still,
Who, in light and darkness,
Did his father's will.

And the tomb, deserted,
Shineth like the sky,
Since he passed out from it
Into victory.

God has still his angels
Helping, at his word,
All his faithful children
Like their faithful lord.

Soothing them in sorrow,
Arming them in strife,
Opening wide the tomb doors
Leading into life.

Father, send thine angels
Unto us, we pray;
Leave us not to wander
All along our way.

Let them guard and guide us
Wheresoe'er we be,
Till our resurrection
Brings us home to thee.

UNDER THE SNOW.

Meadow-Mice Seem Happy When the Snow Covers the Ground.

Where the shambling mink, the leaping cotton-tail, and the nimble squirrel were eager to imprint the first inviting sheet of snow with many records of their varied activities there is now only a colony of feeble, timid meadow-mice, hurriedly laying out ramified tunnels under the snow. They must find joy in the transformation of the landscape. Before the snow made all things white no trace of them could be discerned. The marsh hawk flapped and soared low over the matted rushes and prostrate grass, but his keen scrutiny did not detect the careful, silent, shrinking little hiders. Where fire cleared the ground last year's runways were still traced, and a small sunken dome of moss and fine grass here and there marked the brief habitation of a young brood. Only the abandoned nest could be found under the dome, with an entrance to the protecting marsh vegetation not yet converted to soil by successive yearly inundations. Through summer and fall the meadow-mice revealed no trace of their existence, but the first snow brought them energetically to life. Though affording but meagre shelter where it clings on the entangled grass, they dart through it along the newly-constructed runways, momentarily displaying their black backs where the white covering is broken, and again disappearing where the matted vegetation sustains the long, irregular canopies.

These preparations for winter would be covered and concealed by a few more inches of snow. Another fall would hide the diminutive world, leaving the nimble-footed and silent inhabitants to hurry unseen along their devious paths. They must enjoy the protection of the snow. When impelled by hunger to feast on the inner bark of small saplings they work up almost to the surface, but never out into the daylight. When small thickets or entanglements of sumach, sassafras, or maple are covered with mounds of snow they seem to mock the silent majesty of burdening winter by improving the opportunities of its concealment. Climbing to the smaller twigs and branches and stripping the bark with their long, paired incisors, they never venture to the surface of the white mounds. A round breathing-hole may reach the surface, but there is never any indication about its edge of curiosity regarding the outer world. Spring reveals the barked twigs, girdled trunks, and confused intricacy of runways through frozen grass, mosses, and matted weeds. Young fruit trees and other nursery stock may prove a temptation in winter. There may be serious depredations, for meadow-mice are very prolific and sometimes move in large swarms in search of more abundant food. Judging by their speed along the newly-designed runways, they may be extensive travelers.

The first snow promotes a time of recklessness between the summer concealment of low vegetation and the safety of the burying depths of winter. Between the beds of lightly-covered grass, where the hard ground is thinly coated, they dart across in startled haste, their short tails curved in outline against the background of white. In these open exposures the prints of their expanded toes seem ridiculously large for such small animals. There are enemies abroad. The marsh hawk is eager to take advantage of the unusual exposure. The invader who causes so much alarm in the snow and frozen grass may be in reality an assurance of safety. The strong-winged enemy flaps and curves threateningly at a distance, showing that he has fear and caution as well as rapacity. And the scurrying meadow-mice continue their preparation for winter, the feeble violence of their haste suggesting terror at the prospect of being found unprepared.—S. T. Wood in Toronto Globe.

Mother Must Enter Hospital Within a Week Or Remove Five Children From Shelter

The five children of Mrs. Gerald Graham of Bethany were admitted to the Shelter on Saturday, and at a special meeting of the Children's Aid Society yesterday afternoon, Mr. C. A. G. Spence stated that the mother was about to undergo an operation for goitre and for that reason he had sanctioned the admittance of the children. The father is a soldier and the mother arranged to pay 35 cents a day for the maintenance of each child until she returns from an hospital. Spence said he had written Port Hope asking the Society there to take in the children, but they replied that their accommodation was taxed to the limit.

Chief Howard stated that it was understood at a former meeting that these children were not to be accepted without a guarantee for their maintenance from the municipality from which they came. This had not been obtained, and Mr. Wearing explained that it was only when children were made wards that a guarantee of that kind could be demanded.

The Chief stated that he and Mr. Spense had different conceptions as to the use of the Shelter. He believed that it was only for neglected or ill-treated children. It was not to be conducted as a boarding house. It had been arranged to receive the Graham children if it were an emergency case. That was a month ago and the mother had not yet entered an hospital hence there was nothing emergent about it.

Mr. Spence stated that the Shelter was the only place provided for children in such circumstances. The mother would have gone into an hospital had she been assured of a place for her family. Five children were received three weeks ago without a cent of charge. A year ago several children cost the Society $60. They had not been wards, but were cases similar to that of Mrs. Graham's.

Mrs. Gibbs said that they were lovely children, and the quality of their clothing indicated that they had been well cared for. But they should not be in the Shelter, but boarding at some home. It was unfair to the matron that she should be required to wash the soiled clothes that had been brought with them. The children were dressed better than those at the Shelter, had long rubber boots for wet days and would be better placed in some private home.

Mrs. Gibbs added that it was understood that the mother had a position at Trenton cooking for a dozen workmen for one dollar a day, and that if she should dispose of the children for a while would receive two dollars.

Mr. Spence remarked that it was only hearsay that Mrs. Graham did not intend to go into an hospital, but was simply placing the children at the Shelter for her convenience and profit at Trenton.

Chief Howard moved, seconded by Mrs. Stocker that unless Mrs. Graham goes to an hospital this week she be asked to take her children away from the Shelter. The motion carried, but the question of a policy regarding similar cases was not discussed further.

WELCOMED THEIR PRESIDENT

The members of the George Street Methodist Church Women's Missionary Society paid a surprise visit to the home of their president, Miss Jas. Kendrey last night to welcome her home after her trip to Florida. The ladies gathered at the home of Mrs. Wood and proceeded in a body to Mrs. Kendrey's residence, where they were hospitably received by Mr. and Mrs. Kendry. During the evening the following address was read by Mrs. Shields:

Dear Mrs. Kendrey:

Miss Cook in one of her poems has said:

"Sweet is the hour that brings us home,
Where all will spring to meet us;
Where hands are striving as we come,
To be the first to greet us.
Oh! joyfully dear is the homeward track,
If we are but sure of a welcome back."

Prompted by the spirit of love and of appreciation of your faithful and valuable services as our leader. We, the members of the Women's Missionary Society of George Street Methodist church wish to extend to you, our beloved president, a most cordial and hearty welcome home. We also desire, at this time to present to you individually, an offering of one cent for every year we have lived, such contribution to be used for our Master's work in the great cause of missions, which we know is so dear to your heart.

We trust that during your sojourn in that land of sunshine and flowers, and of stately palm trees, you and yours have been refreshed in body and in mind.

Now, wishing you all the good and all the happiness that makes life so well worth while, and again on behalf of every member of our Society I extend to you a hearty welcome home.

The evening was very enjoyably spent, music being provided by Mrs. Kendrey. Refreshments were served before the gathering dispersed.

URGES EVERYONE TO QUICKLY GET ON WATER WAGON

Drink Glass of Hot Water Before Breakfast to Wash Out Poisons.

To see the tinge of healthy bloom in your face, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, to wake up without a headache, backache, coated tongue or a nasty breath, in fact to feel your best, day in and day out, just try inside-bathing every morning for one week.

Before breakfast each day drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it as a harmless means of washing from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and toxines; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, sweetens and freshens the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the blood and internal organs. Those who are subject to constipation, bilious attacks, acid stomach, rheumatism twinges, also those whose skin is sallow and complexion pallid, are assured that one week of inside-bathing will have them both looking and feeling better in every way.

Factory Output Was Affected

Intricate factory rules have no place in law, Magistrate Dumble stated in police court this morning, after hearing the arguments in A. O. McIntyre's action against Wm. Hamilton Company for the immediate payment of $11.60 wages. Mr. Joseph Wearing appeared for the company and Mr. G. N. Gordon for the plaintiff.

McIntyre is a young man who was making munitions at the Hamilton shops. Without a word of notice to his employer he quit working and that night his machine was idle with the result that the output of shells was materially reduced, according to Mr. Wearing's statement.

Mr. Gordon—I suppose the company was making a profit out of their shells.

Mr. Wearing stated that the company paid their men on the 1st and 15th of the month. McIntyre was not refused his wages for his last thirty hours. When he appeared at the office he was asked to get the return sheets from his foreman showing that he had handed in the shop tools he had been using. He refused to comply with this rule and hence his name did not appear on the pay sheets yesterday.

McIntyre claimed that the company was holding the $11.60 until the 15th of April.

Mr. Gordon stated that shop rules were contrary to the Master and Servants' Act.

Mr. Dumble stated that when a man had done his work his employer should have the wages ready for him on the appointed pay day. He did not wish to create a precedent that might be unfair.

The magistrate gave a decision in favour of the plaintiff.

The severity of the gown of to-day calls for some kind of ornate collar to soften its effect around the neck and shoulders, and this new modish Cavalier collar serves the purpose.

Ministers Met On Monday

MILLBROOK, April 3.—The Ministerial Association met in the Board room of the Methodist church on Monday, April 2nd, with the Rev. G. I. Craw, the president, in the chair. Six members were present. The speaker of the day was the Rev. Edgar Russell, who gave an instructive and practical address on "The Sanctuary in the Wilderness," taking his bearing from the reading of Scripture, Heb., 9th chap. The address proved interesting and helpful.

A resolution of regret at the coming departure of Rev. Edgar Russell was unanimously carried. The best wishes for Mr. Russell's success and happiness in his new field of labour was also added to the resolution.

The next meeting will be held on May 7th, when the President will give the address from the subject, "The Cheerfulness of Christ's Life."

A New Peace Move By The Central Powers

ALLIES IN OUTSKIRTS OF ST. QUENTIN

FRENCH PATROLS HAVE PENETRATED TO THE OUTSKIRTS OF ST. QUENTIN

General Nevelle's Forces Have Made Important Gains at Several Points on the Western Front ---British Capture Six German Field Guns After Hand-to-Hand Fighting---Congress Will Pass War Resolution To-morrow.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS (French Official Communique), April 4.—French patrols to-day penetrated into the southwestern outskirts of the town of St. Quentin, the official statement declared to-day. French troops continued their advance over the entire front around St. Quentin during the night "pushing our patrols into the southwestern outskirts of the city," said the report.. The statement also reported progress made on both the east and west banks of the Somme and south of the Aillette River.

LONDON, April 4.—A new peace move by the Central Powers, forecast in extracts from the semi-official newspaper Lokal Anzeiger, carried in United Press despatches yesterday, has been forced by Austria's demand, according to German information received via Holland to-day.

The declaration was made in these despatches that in the forthcoming announcement Germany would make a "worthwhile offer."

According to the German belief, a peace offer at this time would appeal particularly to the New Russia.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Urging that there be "no faltering, no division, no weakness of the nation," Senator Hitchcock upon the opening of the Senate to-day, began his argument for the passage of the resolution that will make war with Germany an open actuality. Hitchcock's appeal was the more dramatic as he declared he had always been opposed to war, and even in face of that former belief, asked Congress to pledge the nation to a war that may last three years and cost much blood sacrifice, a war "that shall have no Gethsemane."

CONGRESS TO SUPPORT WAR TO A FINISH

War Resolution Will Come up To-morrow for Passage and if There is any Objections to the Measure, it will be Forced Through, Under a Rule Checking Debate.

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Though pacifism ran in a discordant undertone in Congress to-day, support of a war to the finish was assured by both the Upper and the Lower Houses.

The House Foreign Committee voted favourably upon the Senate amended war resolution, and leaders served notice that the measure would come up to-morrow for passage.

If objection arises it will be forced through under a rule checking debate.

On the Senate side this afternoon, Stone and Vardaman decried the war move, but stirred staid members and the galleries to the depths by declaring themselves ready personally to go to the utmost limit in making war against Germany a success.

PETROGRAD, April 4.—"In the neighbourhood of Plukst, the Germans attacked and occupied our field posts south of the Ponevechsky railway," said to-day's official statement, "but our counter attack drove them back."

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The armed American Line steamers St. Paul and Finland have arrived safely at their destinations, the Navy Department announced to-day.

GENEVA, April 4.—The Lausanne Gazette declared this afternoon that negotiations by Bulgaria for a separate peace had been undertaken in Switzerland.

LONDON, April 4.—Being aware that the German Government will not permit President Wilson's speech of war against the German Government but not against the German people to be circulated in Germany, the Allies will have vast numbers of copies of the speech printed in German and distributed by aeroplane over Germany.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES AFIELD, April 4. — News that America had "come in" created intense enthusiasm at the front. Thousands of Americans already "doing their bit" afield with the Allied armies were particularly jubilant. The Canadians cheered to a man when they heard the news. Special dinners were arranged in messes to which Americans belong, in their honour. These banquets were enthusiastic gatherings, at which toasts were exchanged and flags waved.

(By William Philip Simms, U.P. Staff Correspondent)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES AFIELD, April 4.—West of St. Quentin to-day British forces captured six German field guns in a hot bit of fighting. The Teutons attempted the re-capture of their cannon. A hot hand-to-hand scrimmage ensued, but the guns were dragged safely behind the British lines, and a number of Germans were left dead. Fighting quieted considerably to-day.

(By Ed. L. Keen, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

LONDON, April 4.—Having thoroughly returned tribute to President Wilson's speech as well as his expression of lofty sentiments, the press and public to-day was concentrating on suggestions as to how best the United States can help the Allies. The Manchester Guardian reflected popular opinion to a considerable degree when it asserted that the greatest service which the United States could render would be to conquer the submarine menace.

"There are two ways of aiding in this," the editorial declared. "One would be to build a swarm of destroyers and other fast craft to hunt down the submarine as well as to convoy shipping. The other would be to build cargo boats in such numbers and with such speed as to destroy Germany's chance of keeping up the pace."

BOARD OF TRADE IS REVIVED AT ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING

Mr. J. J. Turner is Elected President at Gathering in Council Chamber Last Night--Meeting Unanimous That Board Should Be Reorganized

CAN DO WORK

The Board of Trade met last night for the first time in two years, and was well attended by a representative gathering of prominent citizens.

Mr. B. D. Hall, retiring president, said that since for the past two years the Board had been in a state of suspended animation, there were no minutes. He invited discussion as to whether it were advisable to revive the Board or not.

Mr. Meldrum said that the Board of Trade in his opinion was a vital asset to a town. In Guelph it was of more importance than the city council.

Mr. W. R. Morris said that in Windsor the Board of Trade had reached about the level of that of this city until several enterprising citizens took a trip to the other side and got a line on what was being done in the cities there by the same body. They returned enthused and since then have been doing splendid work. He suggested 8 or 10 young men from Peterborough should do the same at their own expense.

Mr. B. D. Hall said that the Board of Trade had received a great deal of correspondence during the past two years regarding the potato situation and from people seeking locations for industries, and mechanics desiring information on factory conditions.

Mr. Whitehouse said that the Board of Trade should exist, and in saying so felt sure he expressed the sentiment of every live man. It can do much useful work.

Dr. Middleton said it was too bad if the Board of Trade thought the Council did nothing to secure industries for the city. The Quaker Oats rebuilding was one instance of what it was doing. The Board of Trade and the Council could work in harmony in the forwarding of the city's interests.

Mr. James Hamilton said that three years ago the Board of Trade started off well and would probably have kept up but for the war, and that since then there was little or nothing it could do. Now it was time to re-or-

Peterborough Unit To Be Absorbed By The 235th Battalion

247th Battalion to Leave City in a Few Days to Become Part of Lt.-Col. Scobell's Battalion at Present at Ottawa But Under Orders to Go Overseas—Peterboro' Boy Receives Commission at the Front—To-day's Orders and General Military News.

The announcement in the Examiner on Saturday that the 247th Battalion, C.E.F., would be leaving the city in a short time, was confirmed to-day by the receipt of a message from headquarters at Kingston, stating that the 247th is to be amalgamated with the 235th, Lt.-Col. Scobell, O. C. The 235th is under warning to go overseas in the near future and is at present quartered at Ottawa, where it was stationed after the departure of the 207th Ottawa Battalion. The 247th will leave for Ottawa to become part of the 235th within the next few days, and plans for the departure of the unit are being made to-day. It is likely that a medical board will examine the battalion before it leaves Peterborough. The officers and men of the different detachments of the 247th throughout the district, as well as those in attendance at the B. F. and P. T. and I. S. of I. Schools, are being notified of the new development.

The 235th Battalion, of which the 247th will now become a part, was authorized a year ago, and commenced its recruiting in Bowmanville. Last summer the 235th took a long trek through the Midland counties and was afterwards stationed at Belleville, going to Ottawa in the latter part of the winter to replace the 207th. There are already quite a number of Peterborough men in the unit, including two local officers, Lieut. A. B. Mills and Lieut. H. Dodds.

The following letters have been received by members of the Soldiers' Wives and Mothers' Club:

Dear Friend,—Just a line to let you know that I received socks and chewing gum O.K., and I can assure you I am very grateful to you for your great kindness, they were just what I was needing at the time, so they were greatly appreciated.

I am sorry to say I am not acquainted with you personally, but I would be pleased to have a line from you at any time, and I will answer your letter. W. G. Chandler 195841, Bugle Band, c|o 2nd Can., Ent., Battalion, somewhere in France. I suppose you will have had quite a winter in Canada, and I can assure you we have had our share of it out here; it sure has been very cold, but now these last two weeks, it has been keeping comparitively mild, and it won't be very long now until Spring opens up again, and then I think there will be something doing in the war line. I hope myself to see the war finished up this year. There will be tremendous casualties on both sides. Well I guess I have said about all for this time. Thanking you once again for your great kindness, I remain.

WILFRED.

Dear Mrs. Storey.—Just a few lines to thank the Soldiers' Wives and Mothers' Club for parcel of socks sent to the entrenching Battalion for Peterborough boys. At the time they arrived there were only nine Peterborough boys with the Battalion, so I gave them a pair each and the others to some of the boys around. Please don't send any more to me to give around as there are only four home town boys here now, and we are Sergts., so we can get ours alright. The boys up in the front line need them a great deal more than we do, especially while this thaw is on. The boys up there are nearly knee deep in mud all the time, so will need plenty of socks. I don't think there is any more news now, so will close wishing the Club all kinds of good luck and prosperity. I remain.

Yours sincerely,
SERGT. A. STANLEY.

TO-DAY'S ORDERS.

Daily orders by Lieut.-Col. C. H. Ackerman, commanding 247th Battalion, C. E. F.:

Orders for Wednesday, April 4th, 1917:

1. Duties.

Orderly Officer for Wednesday, April 4th, 1917: Lieut. C. G. Shaw.

Next for duty, Thursday, April 5, 1917, Lieut. V. J. McElderry.

A. E. BRITTAIN, Lieut.
Adjutant, 247th O. S. Battalion, C. E. F.

Promoted on Field.

The many friends of Mr. Eldred Cumberland, who was employed in the City Engineer's office before he enlisted for overseas service, will be interested in learning of his success in France. He joined the C.E.A. here as a gunner and quickly won sergeant's stripes. Now word has been received that he has won promotion to the rank of lieutenant at the front, and is taking a qualifying course.

Lieut. Cumberland's brother, Corp. Keith Cumberland of the 57th Regt., Peterborough Rangers, was killed in the second battle of Ypres two years ago.

OTTAWA, April 3. — Enlistments in the Canadian Expeditionary Force totalled 7,063 for the month of March, bringing the total enlistments since the outbreak of war up to 407,302. The total number of recruits for the last half of March was 4,413, or a little more than double the enlistments for the last half of the month. The total for March is 1,019 less than for February, but fifty-six more than for January. For the first three months of the year enlistments have totalled 22,782, an average of 253 per day.

Forestry and Construction Units.

A considerable proportion of the recent recruits has been for the Forestry and Construction Corps. There are more than 15,000 men now overseas in these units, and several thousand more are needed. At present a company of British Columbia Indians is being recruited for forestry work.

Figures by Districts.

The March figures show that the Toronto Military District still leads the procession. During the last half of the month the total for the district was 1,673, which was more than four times the contribution of any other district. For the full month the Toronto district contributed 2,198 recruits, bringing the total enlistment of the district since the outbreak of the war up to 91,195. The London district enlisted 600 men last month, making a total of 33,070 since August, 1914. The Kingston district enlisted last month 1,154, making a grand total of 45,246. The total enlistments for Ontario has been 170,211.

The Montreal district recruited 591 men last month, and the Quebec district 154. The grand total for Que-

Recruits For The Farmers' Battalion

MR. J. J. TURNER

Elected President of the Peterborough Board of Trade last night.

At a Meeting Held Last Evening in the Grand Opera House—Speakers Call For Recruits to Assist in the Greater Production Movement—High School Boys Will Help.

THE ADDRESSES

TORONTO, April 4.—A mass meeting of three thousand city people promise to aid farmers in war production.

The greater production movement received further impetus last evening when a fairly large and representative meeting was held in the Grand Opera House under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association. The object of the meeting was to interest the public in the work that is being undertaken by the Association in connection with the greater production campaign. The band of the 247th Battalion rendered a number of musical selections at the opening of the meeting while Mr. Arthur Milton accompanied on the piano by Mr. John Allan contributed a couple of excellent vocal solos.

PRODUCED THREE CROPS.

Mr. Joseph Wearing made a capable chairman. He was able to give the audience a few practical ideas about back-yard gardening. That Mr. Wearing is no mean home gardener is borne out by the fact that last year he was able to produce twenty dollars worth of tomatoes. He did not sell them, but that is what they would have realized, according to prevailing market prices. Mr. Wearing produced as many as three crops on one piece of land. He attributed his success to his better half, whom he claimed knew more about back-yard gardening than he did. Last winter Mr. Wearing went into the poultry business. He secured an old piano case and five hens on Monday of this week. Mr. Wearing collected five eggs from the five hens.

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS.

Prof. C. B. Sissons, of the University of Toronto, was the next speaker. During the past few weeks, Prof. Sissons has addressed numerous audiences of high school boys on the important subject of greater production. Yesterday afternoon Prof. Sissons addressed the boys of the Collegiate Institute. He commended the boys of the Institute also Principal H. R. H. Kenner for the close and consistent attention they gave to the subject in hand. While a professor in Greek history the speaker declared himself to be a farmer in sympathy, a farmer in heart, and a farmer in fact. Prof. Sissons referred to what he termed, "the class of farmers who have not responded to the call of the Empire." "They have kept their boys at home," said the speaker. These men are in the minority. The second class of farmers are those who have given their boys to the cause. The speaker told of one man near Brockville who farmed two hundred and fifty acres and had twenty cows. Two of his men enlisted

HIGH RATING OF COLLEGIATE WORK IN INSPECTOR'S REPORT

Report Second to None He Commented and Mr. Hill Said It Was the Best the Board Had Ever Received

SUGGESTION RE FIRE DRILL

"This is a report which is second to none" concluded Mr. J. A. Houston, Inspector of Collegiate Institutes, in his report of his inspection made in March of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute.

The work of the teachers in all the subjects was given the highest rating. In his summary Mr. Houston said:

"General conditions in this school, so far as they can be controlled by the Principal and his staff, are particularly good. The management is excellent, the staff is exceptionally strong and the tone of the school impresses a visitor very favorably. I am pleased to find that the question of ventilation has apparently been satisfactorily solved. The other problem regarding proper accommodation and provision for physical culture will, I trust, receive consideration as soon as conditions justify action. Good work is done in physical culture so far as it goes.

The ratio of students to teachers is 29 to 1. There is a little congestion in some of the experimental science classes. The Inspector noted that there was no fire drill, which he considered a mistake.

At the Board of Education meeting last night Mr. Hill remarked that this was the best report the Board had ever received.

Thrilling Pictures At The Royal

The special moving picture features at the Royal to-night will be both thrilling and humorous. The Fox Film presents the clever actress Theda Bara in "The Galley Slave," a drama in five parts, in which many strong situations are shown. A very laughable comedy entitled "The Pawn Shop" in which the new Charlie Chaplain will appear in two reels. Several other good plays will also be shown. Don't miss them.

YOU WOULD FEEL BETTER

If you could get rid of that headache and those troublesome pains. You would become full of energy if you could dispose of that dull feeling. Nearly 90 per cent. of these troubles are caused by your eyes. Why put up with it when a visit to Dr. Lacey will cure you. See Him and See Better. 410 George street.

Munro House Barber Shop

I take pleasure in announcing that I have purchased the Barbering Business formerly carried on by the late S. Baker at 302 Water street, Munroe House Block. Having had the advantage of eight years' experience in Mr. J. Lewis' Oriental Hotel Barber Shop, I can confidently solicit a share of the public patronage.

WELCOME TO THE RANKS.

After waiting two years, uncertain on the brink, the United States has made the plunge into the troubled waters of war. If her share in the fight will be as great as has her official patience, under stinging insult, her championship of the allied cause will hasten the victorious end.

The United States could do no other than she has done in virtually declaring war upon Germany. Regard for self respect of the United States alone would have justified the action taken. Protection of her own interests would alone have justified the action.

But a greater, a higher obligation, rested upon the United States. As the hundred-million-fold embodiment of the principles of democracy, she was bound to take sides with the forces that are fighting to the limit of their resources to preserve the interests of democracy from the fiendishly effective organization of the embodiment of autocracy and tyranny.

The United States now ranks herself on the side of the forces fighting for liberty and justice, and the reign of right that involves the highest happiness of humanity. The United States takes her proper place in the world. Her justly boasted fact of liberty is no longer, so far as her action and attitude are concerned, in peril. Her flag means something now. Her action means a million times more than her multitude of words uttered in a vain attempt to make diplomacy do what force must help accomplish.

What her share in the war will be remains to see. Her impossible neutrality, however, is over; her futile armed neutrality is at an end. Now, it will be war, something that Germany and her allies cannot meet with endless evasion and cynical and satanically cunning sophistry. It will no longer be empty words, but big guns full to the muzzle.

There does not seem to be any doubt that the mighty resources of the United States, in men, money and material, will be placed at the disposal of the allies.

We in Canada are nearer to our neighbours than we ever were before. We have long been beside each other, geographically, but now we are found fighting shoulder to shoulder for a far higher stake than fiscal profits or trade advantages. Our fortunes for the next few months are one—one aim, one cause, one ambition, the upholding of the ideals that are the life essence of the two nations. Now Canada reaches the Gulf southward, and the United States touches the Pole, so far as our common interests are concerned.

To Canada the action of the United States means much that will not all be pleasant or comfortable. Without pessimism, we may expect that the German spirit of intrigue and outrage, which has been operating in the United States, and will doubtless continue to operate more actively henceforward, may reach across the border line. But Canada which for three long years of immunity from the national martyrdom that has come to countries in the war zone, will not shrink from the responsibility of self defence which new conditions may bring. We are thankful that the United States has so far helped protect us from the outrages plotted against us. It is probable now that German plotters will find a new and more intensified occupation in the United States that will keep that country busy, and impose new vigilance upon Canada. We have done a great work in fighting abroad for great principles and we shall not be found wanting when to fighting for abstract rights is added the duty of fighting more nearly for self defence.

The common interests of both countries being engaged in the same war, binds us together, in a military sense, but it should be the aim of both peoples to make the unity more intimate and permanent than war can do. We should be brought closer together in human sympathy and in social relations. Both nations have the same ideals; both are holding and aiming to perfect the same splendid heritage of liberty and right and jujstice, we have inherited from the same mother from whose womb we have come.

Great Britain and the British Empire and the United States, have been the leading champions of democracy and its human dower in times of peace. Their ways have been separated, but now in this regard their duties and fortunes are united, in fact as in spirit; and henceforth and forever they should be as close allies in the relations and achievements of peace in the interests of mankind, as they have for the moment become in the fact of a national comradeship in war.

THE ENEMIES AT HOME OF THE EMPIRE AND THE ALLIES

The soldiers at the front realize that they have enemies at home as well as in the opposing trenches. What support they can receive from the people at home must come in spite of the pacifists and anti-British agitators who strive to divide those at home into antagonistic elements, and thus to prevent the exercise of a united national force backing up the men in the field.

A Winnipeg soldier, J. O. Todd, writes to the Winnipeg Tribune from "Somewhere in France," an open letter to Mr. F. J. Dixon, M.L.A., the Socialistic pacifist and anti-war agitator. It is remarkably restrained and quietly logical. The soldier writes:

Behind your words lies the pacifist teaching that this war is but one militarism facing another—a dog-fight. You "have no quarrel with your fellow workman in Germany," they take issue with his actions now. For reasons somewhat obscure two of your fellow-labourers got quarrelsome, without warning one of them draws a bottle of fuming nitric acid and smashes it in your comrade's face—a dog fight—one of the dogs may have hydrophobia. What to do? Call the police? Where are they? At the man who will do nothing before an emergency like this, the words of Professor———, of Harvard, may be fairly thrown: "Before Belgium, the Lusitania, gas, liquid fire, only a moral eunuch could be neutral." You have "no quarrel with your German fellow-worker." Does it need injury to arouse manhood to protect innocent sufferers? What about Henry Ford and his dog fight—he came, saw and was conquered, returning a pacifist still, but one of the militant shade. I have talked with men as strongly opposed as you to militarism, and with scarce exception they have but good-natured pity and sympathy for the Boche whose shell may have crippled them. To the Boche, Mr. Dixon, Tommy gives his cigarette and sandwich; it is for the Prussian he grips his rifle. A bit ago I talked with Major——, a Manitoban, whose every fibre calls for home and domesticity—a university man—just out from his trench jutting into a shell-swept spot of No-Man's Land, and having neighborhood to that suggestively-named turning, Hell-fire Corner, his fine nature cringing at the whole ghastly business, but he is back there, mud-soaked, gassed, liquid-fired, growing grayer for what you call a "myth." His boy and mine are taught how to use their fists, and later will learn how to handle a gun, not for aggression; against it. Militarism of the Prussian or any other brand, is the misuse of national defence which is natural defence enlarged. You and your gathering presume too much in calling yourselves the pacifist party, you are but a section of it, the section staying at home; the other part, certainly the more virile part, is here fighting for the peace you are mouthing about. When one thinks of the maze of factors leading to this cataclysm one is shocked at the intellectual insolence that cavils it as a myth.

The distressing feature of this incident is that it should be necessary for a man serving his country in the trenches to fight agitators at home as well as enemies at the front. And yet Mr. F. J. Dixon has his backers and apologists in the Capital of Canada. The least the country can ask of those who refuse to help beat the enemy is that they shall refrain from helping the enemy to win.—Ottawa Journal.

A QUESTION OF COURAGE.

Partisanship distorts the plain meaning of plain happenings. The Toronto News says:

There is no more courageous chapter in Canadian politics than that which tells of the adoption of prohibition and woman suffrage by the Hearst government.

Without any desire to minimise the credit of the Hearst government in respect of the adoption of these measures the action of the government does not seem to involve any very high degree or quality of courage. If there was any shown, it was the courage of compulsion, of desperation, the same sort of courage shown by the mildest mannered man or the most timid animal, when brought to bay and forced to fight or perish. There is no doubt that Premier Hearst, no matter how friendly he was personally to temperance, resisted it so long as it was considered safe for his government to antagonise prohibition and woman suffrage. The Hearst government only practically adopted prohibition when they saw that it was popular, and popularly demanded, and that if they did not do so it would be the worse for them. They took no risk for the sake of principle. Mr. Rowell and the Liberal party, in the House and out of the House, stood by prohibition when it had fewer friends than it has now. In the late general elections he made it a plank of his platform and advocated it with all his zeal. On the contrary, Premier Hearst and his party joined forces with the liquor traffic to defeat, as they did defeat at the time, and for the moment. Mr. Rowell's temperance propaganda. Then awakened public sentiment, and the popularity attending prohibition as a war measure, forced Mr. Hearst and his government to action. It is difficult to see where the courage came in. It was playing safe instead of playing large. He did not certainly have the courage of his convictions, if his convictions that led him so long to antagonise prohibition were honestly held and not diplomatically entertained. A man in debt, who has to be sued and sold up before he will pay, can't take any great credit for honesty. It is the same kind of honesty as the courage of Premier Hearst and his government which acted only when it was "held up" by public opinion and the force of circumstances, and it is to their credit that they yielded to the demands of the situation, and it is concretely due to Mr. Hearst and his government that we now have prohibition, and the admitted and self-evident individual and national benefits it bestows.

OUT OF HIS LINE.

She sat and talked of Ibsen
And of Arnold Bennett's books
And the Futurists and Gibson,
While he thought about her looks.

He was filled with consternation,
And his silence was complete;
For his line of conversation
Ran to shows and things to eat.

CHRISTINE MILLER

Famous American Concert Contralto, proving by actual test that Mr. Edison perfectly re-creats. her glorious voice.

Christine Miller in London

Christine Miller, the famous American concert contralto, beloved of Canadian music lovers, sang in London last week under the auspices of the Musical Art Society. She is one of the first of the world renowned artists who have appeared before more than three hundred thousand music lovers, singing in direct comparison with Mr. Edison's re-creation of their art.

What the Critic Says of Cleveland Test

Regarding her recent appearance in Cleveland, where Miss Miller sang in comparison with Mr. Edison's wonderful new Phonograph, and made the sensational curtain test, the music critic of the Cleveland Leader writes: "At times a velvet curtain was drawn in front of both, and then, unable to see the movement of the lips, the audience was unable to tell whether Miss Miller was singing or whether it was the Phonograph."

CAN YOU AFFORD TO BE WITHOUT The NEW EDISON

Can you longer afford to be without the New Edison in your home? The New Edison gives you real music, not an imitation. More than two hundred leading music critics of Canada and the United States have confessed in the editorial columns of their newspapers, along with the Cleveland Leader, that the voice or instrumental performance of an artist cannot be distinguished from Mr. Edison's Re-creation.

THURS. & SAT. PROGRAMME

In honor of the appearance in Canada of this famous artist, we will devote Thursday and Saturday evening to demonstration of Miss Miller's wonderful art, as heard in the following Edison Re-creations:

LAND VALUE TAX SANE AND SAFE WAY SAYS HENRY TIMMIS

The Montreal Star says:

Taxation on the full selling value of land, succession taxes and income taxes, are the only rational system of taxation, said Henry Timmis in his address at this week's Builders' Exchange luncheon. He considered taxation on buildings or improvements, or business activities, a mistaken policy, tending to suppress the very things the community required.

Mr. Timmis justified his contention that land should be taxed on its full selling value on the principle that as land values are a community created value, resulting from the presence of population and public expenditures, it might justly be taken for public purposes; there was also something to be said for succession duties and the taxation of very large incomes, but the latter, not as a matter of principle but merely on the ground of expediency.

From the taxation of incomes in excess of $5,000 per annum and graduated death duties the Provinces might with proper arrangements of their water powers, timber and mineral lands, derive an abundance of revenue not only for the maintenance of government, but for good roads, an improved educational system, and other services, while abolishing many of the annoying and expensively collected taxes now imposed with but small returns to the Treasury. A tax of 1 p. c. on the land values of Canada, collected through the municipal officers would give the Federal Treasury on present day land values a revenue of $80,000,000, a sum probably sufficient to pay the interest and sinking fund on the National War debt, and the providing of liberal pensions as well.

Single tax incites.

When one came to the consideration of municipal revenue requirements the case for the taxation of land values only was incontestable. In Montreal in the last five or six years the city's indebtedness has about doubled, brought about chiefly by the annexation of outlying municipalities which had incurred enormous expenditures for laying water and sewer pipes, roadways and sidewalks, with lighting systems through immense tracts of land then idle, still idle and much of it likely to lie idle for a long time to come. As a matter of fact over two-thirds of the area of the municipality of Montreal was simply idle land. Not only did this land mean an enormous expenditure for interest and sinking fund on the improvements installed, but all maintenance charges, such as lighting, street cleaning, fire and police services were augmented by reason of this increased area.

Capital expenditures and maintenance expenditures were chargeable only to the land on the basis of its value. Every dollar charged on buildings, improvements, and business was simply a displacement of a charge that should fall on the land owner, whether his land is vacant or improved, said Mr. Timmis. The untaxing of buildings and business would encourage both, would relieve every building owner and business man, but would necessitate a change in the assessment rate from about 1.20 to 1.70 on all land irrespective of improvement.

With this change in system there might be a city tax free, all save land, according to its value. The effect would be to encourage building and discourage the holding of land idle. It would be great advertising for Montreal to be proclaimed as the city where people might build themselves homes and engage in business activities without suffering the imposition of a tax for their enterprise. In addition to being an absolutely just distribution of municipal burdens, it was highly expedient.

Experience in West.

If Edmonton and Saskatoon, the speculators who—in boom days—instigated enormous public expenditures for municipal improvements, would undoubtedly like to throw a part of the burden they should properly bear, onto their fellow citizens; but there was little chance of success. In Vancouver the proponents of the land value tax system had been re-elected each time with increased majorities. It was worthy of note that while there had been a great recession of building activity in all these cities, in common with all urban centres in Canada, building operations in Vancouver during 1916, with a population much less than Winnipeg, was twice as great as in Winnipeg, which sticks to the old system of taxing buildings and improvements.

In New Zealand in 1896 the Government municipalities to raise their revenue entirely by a tax on land values. Twenty-four municipalities at that time adopted the system; not one had since discarded it, but on the contrary there had been continuous change from the stupid tax-everything-system by municipalities who at first failed to see the virtues of the land value tax system, till now there were but few centres that had not adopted the land value tax system. There had been a marked increase in the proportion of people who became owners of their own homes in the municipalities under this system, while there had, as a consequence, been a healthy activity in the building trades.

Success in Australia.

The system has also been adopted in Australia, and Sidney, the largest city of the Australian Commonwealth, has recently adopted the plan.

Lawson Purdy, the chief tax commissioner of Greater New York, was a firm believer in the land value tax system, while Pittsburg had commenced a system of untaxing buildings and improvements at a progress of one-eighth yearly, with the intention at the end of the eighth year of being free of all taxes, save those on land values.

Many of the Central and South-American States were embarking on the system and in the State of Yucatan with a tax of 2 1-2 per cent. on land values only, they now had 40,000 prosperous farmers, paying three million dollars in taxes, in place of 2,000 large land owners of a few years ago, who paid only $50,000 a year.

The taxation of land values only was supported by all Adam Smith's axioms of sound taxation, was sustained by every rule of reason and justice, and had stood unimpaired all the tests of experience wherever tried, concluded Mr. Timmins.

VEGETABLES, HARDY AND TENDER.

Gardening is to a great extent a game of chance with the weather. Much depends on the quantity of rain and its distribution over the season. During the spring the great concern is the liability of frost coming to blight the early crops. Not until the first week of June can the grower be sure that all danger is past.

There are plants that are hardy in their resistance to cold; there are others not so hardy, and a number that are decidedly tender. Then a plant may be hardy or tender according to the treatment it has received. Cabbages transplanted direct from a greenhouse where the temperature ranges from 70 to 80 will quickly succumb to cold winds, while others properly hardened off will withstand several degrees of frost.

Among the tender vegetables are beans, corn, cucumber, melon, potato, pumpkin and tomato. Hardy vegetables or those that can with stand slight frost unless coddled or forced are asparagus, beet, carrot, celery, lettuce, onion, parsley, radish and turnip, as well as the members of the cabbage family—cauliflower, Brussels sprouts, kale.

The hardening-off process is nothing more than keeping the plants in an atmosphere rather dry and cold and supplying abundant ventilation and light so they will become stocky and with well-ripened tissues.

One way in which losses may be avoided when attempting to get the earliest results from field or garden sowings is to soak half the seed overnight or perhaps even twenty-four hours. Allow the surface water to evaporate to aid in handling and then sow half the usual quantity of soaked and also half unsoaked at intervals in the rows.

Should a frost nip the plants produced by the soaked seed, which is the first to sprout, the dry seed plants will follow in a few days without the loss of time required to make a new sowing. This will mean more gain than represented by the plants destroyed.

With many of the garden crops one must take chances of frost as the advantage of an early start will make up for losses by frost in occasional years. The hardy vegetables named above may be sown or transplanted almost as soon as the ground can be got ready, though there are differences that must be kept in mind. Peas, lettuce and spinach may be sown with least danger followed by radishes, onions, cabbage, and cauliflower. Potatoes are tender, but require some time to come through so that planting may be made freely early. Tomatoes and melons will come last on the list.

The new silhouette really looks a good deal as if it had been inspired by the harem skirt.

The wool ball finishing is a little newer than the tassel.

Many of the new small hats turn up abruptly on the side and are trimmed with quills.

Very many of the new dresses for the young girl are fashioned on the lines of the middy.

Effective trimming for the picture hat is a band of velvet ribbon around the crown and a single rose at the side.

Board Laughed At Wm. Hartley's Letter Re Mr. G. N. Gordon

Mr. G. N. Gordon's membership with the Board of Education was called into question by William Hartley in a letter to the chairman, Mr. Eastwood, as follows:

Dear Sir,— I being a resident of your ward and a lover of our Public school system, and particularly pleased with the choice the Board made in selecting you as their chairman, being as I know an honest and a fearless gentleman in all your details, I have read a decision given in the paper concerning a member of the City Council sitting on our School Board as a trustee thereof. There is at present a gentleman who is a lawyer and should know the law in this matter, sitting on our Public School Board who is getting a salary from our City Council, and if his action is illegal then he should not be there, and he must know it. The Board of Education should be properly constructed else your proceedings are illegal. The law says no officer of the City Council is qualified to sit on the Board. This question should be decided without delay, as Mr. Gordon is surely an officer of the City Council. What then is your duty?

Yours truly,
W. HARTLEY.

The letter's effect on the Board was a general laugh. Mr. Hill passed it up by suggesting that it be referred to the chairman, and Dr. Burnham added "with power to act," as an improvement to the jest.

Shell Killed Six Soldiers

Mrs. W. McKinstry of this city, whose husband, Pte. Wm. McKinstry, was killed in action on March 5th, has received the following communication from Pte. D. McFarlane, a former member of the 93rd Battalion:

Dear Mrs. McKinstry,—Our hearts go out to you in sympathy in your great loss. It was a great shock to us when Will was taken away, for he was a general favourite in the platoon. He was always so cheerful under the most trying conditions. I was with Will when he was killed. We were working on a party and a large shell burst amongst our party, killing five men and the sergeant in charge. One of the boys killed was E Craft, another 93rd boy. There is one consolation; they suffered no pain, for death was instantaneous. At night we carried them out and buried them in a little cemetery here. The name of the place of burial is withheld, but I guess you will be notified of the place from Ottawa.

Yours sincerely,
D. McFARLANE.

Alderman Smashes Doctor's Nose At St. Thomas Meeting

Sensational Wind-up to Appeal For Home Gardens

ST. THOMAS, April 4.— As the result of a "slugging" match in the city council chamber Monday evening, in which Ald. Colin Hammond struck Dr. F. E. Bennett, president of the Horticultural Society, on the nose, police court proceedings are expected. The doctor's nose was broken, and he was badly pummelled by the irate alderman.

The altercation occurred during a meeting of No. 1 committee, of which Ald. Hammond is chairman. Dr. Bennett was addressing the committeemen in support of the request of the Horticultural Society for a $100 grant to further the work of the home gardening propaganda. Ald. Hammond objected. He declared the home gardeners were importing a woman from Cleveland to "teach the men how to plow and garden," according to his own words.

Dr. Bennett retorted that he was disgusted at such statements from men who were supposed to have brains. Immediately the chairman jumped to his feet, and made for the speaker, who was chased around the council chamber. During the melee the doctor's nose was broken and he was badly pummelled. Finally he made his escape down the stairs, and went to the police station, where he secured the assistance of Officers Joe McCully and Geddes. He returned with them to the council chamber.

After the row had quit, Ald. Pearson declared that he did not think it right that anyone should come to the meeting to insult the committeemen.

Police court proceedings are expected.

NON-JURY SESSIONS HELD IN LINDSAY

LINDSAY, April 4.—His Honour Judge Swayze is presiding at a non-jury session of the county court, which began yesterday. There are three cases to be heard, and are as follows:

The plaintiff, with head offices in Peterborough, claims the sum of $72.46 from the defendant, balance owing the plaintiff by the defendant for goods supplied the defendant. The defendant, however, claims the sum of $325.79 from plaintiff for commission on scales. McLaughlin, Fulton, Stinson and Anderson for plaintiff. L. V. O'Connor solicitor for defendant.

SHORTAGE OVERCOME.

Farm Help Secured in U. S. Will Save the Canadian West.

OTTAWA, March 13.—W. J. White, chief immigration officer for Canada in the United States, has wired Hon. Dr. Roche, Minister of the Interior, that the effort at securing farm laborers in the United States for the Canadian west has been so successful that there is now no danger of a labour shortage for seeding on the prairie. The farm help secured, he says, is all hand picked, and will make excellent settlers.

The Allied armies must have the support of the farming population or we cannot hope to succeed in this war. The situation is very much aggravated by the entrance of the United States into the war. I think President Wilson selected the right and proper time to enter the conflict. Public opinion is overwhelmingly behind President Wilson (Cheers.) The entrance of the United States into the war will serve to aggravate the food situation. Speaking of the sources from which farm labour might be secured, Prof. Sisson referred to the retired farmer, many of whom are to be found in every community. A large number of employers of labour throughout the country have promised to release a number of their employees in relays for three weeks at a time.

The Government has attempted to bring in men from the United States. The speaker did not anticipate much relief in this respect. The speaker did not know why a farm labourer should leave the United States and come to Canada. Many of them would fit in and many others would not. The girls of the country represented another source of labour supply. Girls could work in the fruit districts to good advantage, but at best they could do little to aleviate present conditions.

The last and most promising source of supply is the high school boys. The speaker asked the parents to impress upon the boys the many serious consequences that will result from a shortage of food next winter. A summer's hard work on the farm will make the boys rugged and will make men of them. Grit and will power are two qualities required by boys who contemplate spending a few months on the farm. Steps are being taken to see that every boy is placed with a good type of farmer. The experience will play a large part in the after life of the boys.

THREE PHASES

Mr. J. E. Smith of this city spoke on three phases of the work being undertaken by the Y.M.C.A. in connection with the greater production movement. The first one is the proposal to place the boys on the farm. The second one is to encourage boys who must remain in the city to take up home-gardening. The third is a scheme to conduct a small farm near the city in place of the usual summer camp where boys can have an outing and at the same time produce something for the Empire. Mr. Walter Oke of this city is offering a prize of a gold watch for competition among the boys in the production of potatoes. The competition is confined to twelve boys with a maximum age of sixteen years. Mr. Oke will supply the seed in quantities of one peck to each boy contestant. The variety of potato to be used is the "Irish Cobbler." The returns from the plots will be shown at the Peterborough Industrial Fair and will be judged by the judges at the fair. The Y.M.C.A. will also give a number of prizes for the best back-yard garden and also the best lot of vegetables.

The speaker asked for the co-operation of all concerned.

Mr. Walter Stocker presented the report of the Nominating Committee of the Peterborough Garden Club.

Mr. Allan of Toronto gave an illustrated address entitled "From seeding to harvest; how the back yard helps to win the war."

Mr. Allan's address was impregnated with many valuable suggestions relative to the production of potatoes. A large number of slides were shown in connection with this address.

Questions on the practical side of garden work were answered at the close of the meeting.

New Salary Schedule For Teachers Provides Slight Increase To All Teachers

An upward revision of the salary schedule applying to the Collegiate Institute and Public schools as detailed in the report of the Committee on Appointments was unanimously approved by the Board of Education last night. Inspectors' reports on the work of these schools during the past year have been notably complimentary, and naturally have been highly pleasing to the Board. This state of efficiency provides convincing evidence of the wisdom of the policy pursued by the Board through its Committee on Appointments. Hence to recognize the efforts of the present teachers, and to maintain the position of Peterborough's schools this revision of the salary schedule was decided upon. There has been a general but not a large increase in salaries, sufficient to keep the local schools attractive to the teaching profession of this province. The competition among the educational centres of Ontario, among which Peterborough occupies a premier position, has become particularly keen during recent years. Hence to obtain experienced and well qualified teachers, School Boards must pay commensurate salaries. Moreover, the advance followed the steady increase of the cost of living.

The complete report of the committee as presented by Mr. Hill, follows:

That Miss Laura Mawdsley be appointed on the Public school staff in lieu of Miss Rae Gallagher, who has declined her appointment, salary according to schedule and duties to commence after Easter.

That the salary schedule be amended as follows, to take effect on 1st September and to supersede all previous schedules:

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

	Minimum	Maximum	Yearly Increase
Principal	2200.00	2700.00	100.00

Household Science Instructor	600.00	700.00	50.00
Art Instructor	500.00	650.00	50.00
Music Instructor	400.00	600.00	50.00

JANITORS.

$80.00 per occupied class room up to 8 rooms.

$50.00 per occupied class room all rooms over 8 rooms.

$3.00 per occupied class room for purchase of brooms, etc.

3. That the salary of the Secretary-Treasurer be $700.00 per year dating from the 1st of September next.

Dr. Neal asked whether all the principles have the same qualifications.

Mr. Hill replied that they must hold first class certificates or a university degree. Mr. Spier who had taken Capt. Park's place during his absence had a second class certificate, but the condition was only temporary.

Mr. Gordon pointed out that the schedule gave a second class male teacher the same salary as a first class female teacher.

Mr. Hill stated that it was more difficult to secure male teachers. At the Normal School there were fifteen female teachers in training to every one male teacher. Besides the assistant principal must be a male teacher. This system had a disciplinary effect that would otherwise be lacking.

Mr. Eastwood remarked that the salary difference was due to the law of supply and demand plus efficiency.

HOUSEWIVES OF QUEBEC FORCE DOWN THE PRICES

QUEBEC, April 4.— Quebec has a league of housewives, and on Saturday they took the situation in hand and caused prices of certain produce to drop on the various town markets. Maple syrup, which was selling at $1.75 a gallon, has now dropped to $1.25.

Von Kleist, Karl Schmidt and All Found Guilty.

NEW YORK, April 4.—Six Germans were convicted by a jury in the federal district court here yesterday of conspiring to destroy steamships carrying food and munitions from this port for the Entente Allies by means of incendiary bombs.

The men found guilty are Capt. Chas. von Kleist of Hoboken, a chemist; Karl Schmidt, chief engineer of the German steamship Friedrich Der Grosse; Ernst Becker, Frederick Karbade, Wilhelm Paradis and George Praedel, all assistant engineers of the same vessel.

The jury was out 50 minutes.

Trench Day Of Kitchener League On 26th Of May

The Canadian Kitchener League had all arrangements made for their Second Annual Trench Day, which they intended holding on April 21, but learning that the returned soldiers felt that they should be allowed to commemorate this day, the anniversary of the Battle of Ypres, the League has decided to hold their day over until Saturday, May 26th, and on this date an opportunity will be given to everyone to assist in the work of making the boys a little more comfortable in the trenches, and what could the boys find more comfortable, on coming out of the mud and wet, than a dry pair of homeknit, woollen socks. The League needs financial aid to keep up this work and they are making this appeal to all sympathising friends, whom they trust will continue the support they have given in the past.

The Canadian Kitchener League shiped 100 pairs of socks to the trenches on Tuesday last, to the following addresses:

Pte. Austin E. Tobin, A Company, 52 Canadians, France.

Pte. W. J. Armstrong, A Company, 19 Battalion, B.E.F. France.

Lance Corp. W. Quinn, 75th Battalion, France.

Pte. Hill, France.

"PEG O' MY HEART"

Marion Dentler as "Peg"

When "Peg O' My Heart," J. Hartley Manners' comedy of youth comes to "The Grand" on Saturday next, April 7, theatre goers will have an opportunity of seeing one of the greatest successes of a decade. It is a comedy quite different from the average play. It is free, the everlasting discussion of capital and labour or the sordid exploration of social sin, and has for its theme the experiences of a poor young Irish girl who is suddenly introduced into the house of aristocratic relatives in England. The play teems with unusually clever and humorous situations and tells a charming love story. The United Producing Company is responsible for the production of "Peg," which is a comedy gem. The seat sale opens tomorrow (Thursday) morning.

More Facilities Needed For Manual Training And Domestic Science

The extension of facilities for additional household science and manual training classes in the public schools and Collegiate Institute was discussed by the Board of Education last night. Referring to the Public Schools Mr. Mowat stated that there was no provision in the Form III. classes, nor the Senior and Junior IV. classes of the King Edward and South Central Schools, nor in the Jr. IV. of the Central and Queen Mary schools for these subjects. In the former schools all the rooms were occupied, and there was no available accommodation for the work.

Mr. Gordon moved, seconded by Mr. Crane, that Inspector Mowat bring in a report covering the entire problem.

Inspector Leake's Report.

Inspector A. H. Leake's report of his inspection made in February, on manual training work, included the following comment:

I must again call attention most strongly to the fact that Form II. of the Collegiate Institute is prohibited from taking this work. This condition does not exist in any other institution that has a manual training equipment. If institutions like Hamilton, London, Stratford, Berlin, and a dozen others can provide for this there should be no insuperable difficulty to do so in the case of Peterborough.

No adequate provision is made for manual training in the lower grades. These matters require the immediate attention of the Board.

Household Science.

"Provision is made for Senior IV. girls of the Public Schools and Form I. of the High School. The employment of another teacher would enable the work to be extended. Form II. of the Collegiate should be given the work at once. No difficulties exist here which have not been successfully overcome in other places, and an injustice is being done to the girls who are thus prohibited from taking this as an examination subject.

Sewing is not taught in the Public School and the Normal Students have no opportunity of giving lessons in this subject."

Board Of Trade Is Revived

ganize. The city keeps the fire brigade in readiness for a fire and the Board of Trade should hold itself in readiness for when the worst comes.

The Mayor.

Mayor Duffus asked what Mr. Meldrum had done for the Board of Trade. Mr. Meldrum said he had finished his work years ago. The Mayor said that was the line taken by too many. He said that a good Board of Trade was a splendid asset to a city, that the Council was ready to accept an suggestions from it. He said that the Council had made every effort to secure likely industries and had secured the De Laval's Vermont Marble Works, the Henry Hope, Bonner-Worth and other large industries. It remained for the Board of Trade, Council, etc., to pass the by-law for the Quaker Oats. There are indications of large organizations coming.

Mr. R Turner suggested changing the name of the Board of Trade.

Mr. Morris thought it could be no better, being a comprehensive name and having an established charter. He said there was lots of work for the Board besides securing industries. They could work towards the general improvement of the city.

Mr. Armstrong said the Board of Trade presented an opportunity for all citizens to work and work hard together.

Officers Elected.

As the concensus of opinion seemed to be the Board should be revived, the election ofofficers was the next move. The following were elected:

Mr. J. J. Turner, president.

Mr. Frank Whitehouse, vice-president.

Mr. B. D. Hall, secretary-treasurer.

Mr. Turner.

Mr. Turner accepted the office a trifle reluctantly, saying he had thought he was amongst friends and found a den of enemies. He said, however, if work and strict attention to duty would do anything towards the success of the Board it would boom, for he would do everything in his power to make it a success. He said he would ask for the co-operation of all to support him.

Mr. Turner's election was evidently a popular one, as all his attempts to disclaim the honour were drowned.

A committee was appointed to draft the different committees, consisting of the Mayor, the president, the vice-president, Mr. J. Hamilton, Mr. Johns, Mr. Meyers and Mr. Meldrum. They will meet on Thursday at 5 p. m. in the Board room.

CANADIAN SOLDIER'S LETTER

Says Dr. Cassell's Tablets Have Kept Him Fit Through Two Wars.

Sapper A. Hartley, of the A Company, Canadian Engineers, whose home address is 906, Trafalgar-street, London, Ontario, is one of many who have written in praise of Dr. Cassell's Tablets. He says: "As a constant user of Dr. Cassell's Tablets, I would like to add my testimony to their value. I used them when I was in the South African War, and, finding the benefit of them there, have taken them since whenever I felt rundown. I always recommend them, for I know that they do all that is claimed for them. In my opinion they are the best tonic anyone can take for loss of appetite, poorness of the blood, or general weakness of the system."

Voice of The People

Correspondence under this heading, containing or involving attacks on individuals or violent or extreme statements, must to secure insertion, be signed with writer's real name, the owner of which thus assumes the responsibility.

April 2nd, 1917.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Yours in full appreciation of the greater production movement and the planting of vacant lots. Last year I planted a small kitchen garden, and with what pride I watched its growth, but my pride had its fall. One evening I came home and found my bed of lettuce gone, utterly destroyed in one afternoon by ducks; my cucumbers and tomatoes were all pecked and destroyed by fowl, which were then cleaning themselves in my onion bed. Several of my neighbours suffered by the same destructive element. Pleas for mercy to the owners of my assailants were utterly ignored. As I would not like to have the same thing happen again, and having in mind a ten-fold extension of garden to rise to the spirit of the times, what protection can I procure. What is the law? I may here mention that the lots I refer to are a short distance off the city limit, but I expect a great many more prospective gardeners may be placed in a similar predicament.

Help, Mr. Editor, Help, Help.

Signed.

ANXIOUS.

Peterborough, April 3, 1917.

Editor Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I read the article on daylight saving in this evening's paper. I for one heartily support daylight saving, but think it should be Dominion wide. I lived in the cities of Brantford and London last summer where daylight saving held out for a long time. Brantford held out the longest. The railways were the real cause of its failure.

There is nothing about getting up earlier, forget it. But sunlight is meant to be up and about it. It is not meant to shine while we lay in bed. We should use it to read by in the evening and play games in instead of the electric light. I cannot think that people who are against it can have read of the immense money-saving gained by Great Britain, where it was in use last summer.

If you care to print this I have no objection.

Yours very truly,

FRED COLE.

320 Margaret Ave.

Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Our Council not having the power to turn darkness into light—a fad of one of their number—have passed a resolution, which they propose to send to the Government of Canada, asking them to do so.

This chestnut has been trotted out before on several occasions and as often turned down. It is to be hoped that, for the credit of the city, that they desist from making themselves appear ridiculous. For a handful of men to oppose the universal laws of nature and seek to overrule the Canadian Constitution, smacks too much of German domination and Kultur, and that to please a faddist.

YOURS TRULY

MYSTERIOUS MALADY OF RUSSIAN CAUSES DETENTION OF WIFE

SARNIA, April 4—Benjamin Savinsky, a Russian resident of Point Edward, now lies critically ill in the General Hospital, suffering from some unknown malady, and his wife, Victoria Sabinsky, is detained in the county jail pending an investigation by the county crown attorney into the circumstances surrounding the case, and which are somewhat mysterious.

The Russian has been confined to his home for some months past with an illness which the physicians who attended him seemed unable to diagnose, and which has slowly caused a physical degeneration, until at present the man has been reduced to a mere skeleton of his former self. Investigations by the autheritics, it is alleged, disclosed the fact that his wife was not giving him proper attendance and care, and upon this charge she has been placed in custody.

The Crown Life Assurance Company, which carried a $1,000 insurance policy on the man, is also interested in the case, and it is hinted that slow poison has been fed to the man at regular periods causing his gradual decline. It was necessary to use force to remove him to the hospital, where up to the present, no change has been noted in his condition and slight hopes are held for his recovery. No confirmation of the poisoning theory has as yet been discovered.

The wife of the Russian will have a hearing before Magistrate Fleck in the course of a few days.

Scout News

DUCHESS OF CONNAUGHT

News of the death of Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Connaught was received with regret by the Boy Scouts throughout Canada and Sir Percy Sherwood, the Dominion Commissioner, and Mr. Gerald H. Brown, the Honourary Dominion Secretary, on behalf of the Scouts forwarded the following cablegram: "Respectfully tender sincere sympathy of Canadian Boy Scouts." to which His Royal Highness replied: "All Boy Scouts grateful thanks."

Good health is essential to the well-being of every boy. This is no secret in Scouting circles. Scouts are shown how to keep themselves fit and taught that fitness is essential to success in life. At Scout age (12 to 18) the great decisions of life and character are made. The boy must be prepared but will not be properly prepared unless he is physically fit. At this period the body grows rapidly, the muscles harden, the voice breaks and the organs of reproduction begin to function. The new powers of manhood are coming to birth, the fires of new passions are burning in his blood. Scouting comes to the rescue and supplies him with opportunities of physical activity. Most of his Scouting activities are conducted in the open. In the summer months he goes to camp and during the winter months he goes on hikes. In addition he takes part in almost every known form of athletics. He trains in the gymnasium. He learns to box, wrestle, fence and do many other things which are a benefit to him physically.

PROGRESS IN ALLIED AND FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

From many foreign countries come encouraging reports of Scouting progress. From France and Italy reports show that Scouts have been ably performing public services similar to those rendered in this country. In Roumania where there are some 6,000 Scouts, the good war work done by the boys has been the subject of comment in the press. Some lost their lives on duty during the aerial raids on Bucharest. In Holland the two existing societies have been combined into one. In Uruguay the formation of a society for Catholic Boy Scouts has been reported.

Board of Education Refuses To Transfer Its Bank Account

The Board will follow its own initiative in the matter of placing its accounts was thereby illustrated. Mr. Hill moved, seconded by Mr. Fowler, that no action be taken, and that quickly and effectively disposed of the matter.

FILED NEW FREIGHT CONSTITUTION LONG AGO

MONTREAL, March 31.—Mr. G. C. Ransom, Chairman of the Canadian Freight Association, was interviewed here to-day with reference to the new freight classification announced by the railways. Mr. Ransom said that the resolutions passed by some Boards of Trade had given the public the impression that this classification was a new thing, suddenly launched by the roads. As a matter of fact it had been in contemplation for a number of years and the railway officials had been actively working on it for about two years and a half. The proof of the final draft of the classification was sent to the Board of Railway Commissioners and to the various Boards of Trade and other organisations throughout Canada on the 15th July, 1916. The time for filing objections was extended from time to time but expired to-day. The fact that this work was being actively prosecuted has been well known not only to the Board of Railway Commissioners, but to the representatives of the Boards of Trade and manufacturers associations throughout the Dominion.

The present classification, said Mr. Ransom, contains many inconsistencies and has for years required revision. Although protests against the change have been published there are a large number of shippers who are in favour of its adoption. Mr. Ransom does not think that the fact of the war going on should interfere with the completion of the new classification and states that the railways will use every effort to have it adopted as soon as possible with such amendments as the Railway Commission may think proper.

TRENT CANAL OPENS A GREAT WATERWAY

To travel from New York City to Sault Ste. Marie with a motorboat of 6 foot draft, by way of the Trent Valley Canal and the many connecting waters will soon be possible. If the reader looks at the map he can trace the water navigation from New York to Sorel, on the St. Lawrence River—through Lake Champlain, Hudson River and other waters—the St. Lawrence west to Trenton, and from there by river, lakes and the Trent Valley Canal system (all of which part will be open in 1917) to Lake Simcoe. Then there is the trip down the Severn River from Washago (a few miles from Orillia) to the Georgian Bay to the north outlet of the Trent Valley Canal. This whole system is one of the greatest inland waterways in the world.

The section from Trenton to Lake Simcoe will be open this year and during the coming season it will be possible to take a trip from Washago to Georgian Bay with but a single change from the boat.

Three or four miles on the Severn River bring the visitor to Sparrow Lake, an enlargement of the river, where there are more than a dozen well-conducted hotels and numerous beautiful residences. Further westward the first obstacle is reached in the Ragged Rapids power plant, from which electrical power is transmitted to Orillia.

Below the plant, after a three-mile run by motorboat, the visitor reaches the enormous lock now in construction. Passing through the openings left for stop logs and still descending for some 12 miles he will reach the Big Chute power plant, where the motor craft may be quickly transferred over a short portage by a marine railway. Again speeding "down-river" through Gloucester Pool—ten-mile lake—and entering the narrowing waters of the river for a few miles, he is brought to the Port Severn Lock, constructed some three years ago, and finds himself in the waters of Georgian Bay.

A GREAT LIFT LOCK.

Near Severn Bridge a ten foot lock will lift boats to the level of Lake Simcoe. Work on this section between Severn and Lake Simcoe is now under contract and with 1918 it is hoped that it will be finished. With this done, navigation will then be complete to Georgian Bay from Lake Simcoe. When the Swift Rapid Lock is completed by the latter part of 1917, the power plant at Ragged Rapids will be demolished and Orillia power will then be furnished from the large power house on the lower side of the Swift Rapids dam, which is fifty feet higher than the river on the west side of the construction. The lock will raise boats 50 feet with a single lift, and will be the highest single lift lock of the kind, in Canada. At the west entrance two high towers will be erected, between which a shutter or gate may be lifted by electric power to a height sufficient to allow crafts with masts to enter, or partially raised for motor boats.

A chain carrier will lift over small boats, canoes, etc., thus avoiding opening the lock for small craft.

MINIMUM DRAFT OF 5 FEET

Immediately above the dam, the river (with the water raised to full height) will have a width of about one-third of a mile, and as the Severn here has a depth of some seventy feet, when the top of the dam is reached big fish will find a 120-foot deep lake in which to disport themselves. When the construction is finished the least depth of water between Lake Simcoe and Georgian Bay will be 8 feet which will also be the depth from Peterborough to Trenton. When the war is over, it may be that from a point near Gravenhurst to a point on the Severn river the little lakes that intervene may be connected up and then the Muskoka Island tourist will find in the Trent Valley Canal system an outlet to Lake Ontario or Georgian Bay.

When the canal system from Peterborough to Lake Simcoe is deepened from its present depth of 6 feet to 8 feet (which latter draft will prevail on the rest of the system) there will then be accommodation to carry tow barges of 80,000 bushels capacity, and with this possible, a freight carrying trade may be inaugurated by this route.—Toronto News.

BOWLING

The De Laval bowling team took three games from the West End last night at the Water Street alleys, thereby raising their league standing considerably. The West Ends were without Dawson, who is out of the city at present.

Barrett of the De Laval had the high single score of 200, while Byers also of the De Laval had the high score for the three games with a total of 535.

Hill, Ruiter and Barrett for the De Laval made some very difficult spares, while Thomas, Heaslip and Routley did the same stunt for the West Ends.

MURDER, JURY'S VERDICT

BROMPTONVILLE, Ap. 2—Coroner Bachand of Sherbrooke, held an inquest in connection with the discovery, on Sunday last, of the dead body of a young child, which was lying near the iron bridge strangled by a handkerchief. The circumstances at the time clearly pointed to murder and this view was endorsed by the coroner's jury this morning. A witness testified that on the Saturday evening he saw a man and a woman pass over the bridge. The man was carrying a baby at the time. They answer the description of a man and woman seen at the station later on in the evening, but they did not have a baby then. The provincial detectives have not yet arrived on the scene, although the bureau was notified of the occurrence body of a young child strangled

Registration Boards To Be Arranged

Bill Providing For Preparation of Lists of Voters Is Passed

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, April 4.—After giving the third reading to over fifty bills the Legislature this morning again took up the bill to provide for the preparation of the lists of voters. The bill was amended so that every city and town having a population of 9,000 should have a board of registration.

Mr. J. C. Elliott contended that that residence rule in the rural constituencies should be suspended. Mr. Rowell thought that some residence rule was necessary in the city to keep the electors from jumping from one riding to another, but he thought it was a different matter in the country.

Before the government bill to amend the Ontario Companies Act to permit of the creating of cooperative societies was given its third reading, Mr. Rowell inquired if representation had been made to the Government to hold over the bill for another year. Premier Hearst replied that a deputation of the Farmers' Association had asked for certain changes in the bill but he felt it should be allowed to pass as presented on the understanding that amendments be made next year.

Food Director Cuts British Beer Output

LONDON.—Under an order issued by Lord Devenport, the Food Controller, the annual output of beer in the United Kingdom is now limited to 10,000,000 barrels as compared with 26,000,000 barrels allowed for the year ended March 31, 1916. At the same time, the supply of wines and spirits that may be taken out of bond is reduced by 50 per cent. of the amount taken out in 1916.

The issuance of this order is at first blush regarded as an indication that the intentions with which the government was credited of introducing a measure of state purchase has been abandoned. The state purchase of the beer and spirit industry in England and Wales alone would have entailed an expenditure of about 300,000,000 pounds $1,500,000,000. Total prohibitionists are strongly opposed to state purchase, which they regard as a scheme invented in the interests of the brewers and distillers.

The "strength of Britain" movement, which is gaining supporters daily, has been holding a series of meetings throughout the country. It has a strong card in the recent food restrictions and the warnings of ministerial spokesmen as to the difficulty of maintaining the food supply of the country, owing to the reduction in tonnage. "Strength of Britain" orators pointed out that the drink traffic had been using shipping equal to a fleet of sixty ships of 5,000 tons working all the time, has consumed more food than the whole British army and that the weight of food and other stuffs carried about for it in the ships and trains has been equal to the solid material carried by the administration to all the fighting fronts.

Henry Randall, chairman of the movement calculates that for the 10,000,000 barrels to which brewers are to be reduced, it takes 45,000 tons of sugar, 20,000 tons of maize, 360,000 tons of barley.

"Why," he asks, "waste all this precious food at this critical stage of the war? If victory should be snatched from our very hands, if disaster overtakes us—and both the Prime Minister and the First Lord have told us it looms close—if drastic measures are not taken, if famine lays its withering hand on this country, then the onus is on the government."

SWEATS BLOOD.

GREENVILLE, Pa., April 2.—Miss Marie Smith, aged 16, is in a serious condition as the result of the most puzzling affliction the local medical fraternity has been asked to combat. The girl's case has attracted much attention all over this section and many physicians are admittedly baffled.

The patient literally sweats blood. Almost daily for the last month the girl has been losing blood at a rapid rate, the life fluid oozing out the pores of her flesh in the same manner as perspiration.

So far medical science has been unable even to give the affliction a name and, since the physicians are all baffled as to the cause of the blood sweating, they have been unable to control it. Without any apparent cause, blood suddenly starts to ooze out of the girl's pores, trickling down her body.

DON'T ASK FOR PILSENER; LIKE DODO, IT'S EXTINCT

VIENNA, April 2.—The famous Pilsener beer exists no longer. A dispatch from the Bohemian city—which is also the home of the Skoda guns—reports that the breweries have been closed and will not be opened again until peace returns.

The barley and corn formerly used for brewing purposes are needed to make bread for the starving population, and it is expected that the brewing industry will have to shut down completely throughout the dual monarchy.

It was expected that at least some of the breweries could be kept in operation with the grain captured in Roumania, but the government announces that the transportation of the Roumanian wheat and maize stocks cannot be undertaken because all cars and locomotives of the railroads are needed for military purposes and the Danube, which is still filled with ice, will not be navigable before the middle of April.

OBITUARY

JEFFREY WIDDIS.

The death occurred on Friday, March 30th, of Jeffrey Widdis, one of the best known and most highly respected residents of Millbrook, at the age of 86 years. The deceased gentleman was born in the township of Cavan, where he resided until coming to Millbrook, about three years ago.

Some thirty-three years ago he was united in marriage to Miss Ellen Wilcox, daughter of the late Thomas Wilcox of Millbrook. To their union ten children were born, seven of whom survive him. They are: Mrs. Norman Trew of Lewvan, Sask.; Mrs. J. J. Powell of Cavan; Messrs. James of Sask., and Walter of Campbellcroft; and the Misses Mary of Cavan, and Jennie at home. Three sons predeceased their father, namely Ernie, George and Edmond. Two brothers, George and James, and one sister, Miss Mary S., of Cavan, also survive him.

Deceased was a member of the Methodist Church for forty years, a sincere Christian and a kind neighbour, and his passing is sincerely regretted by a large circle of friends.

The funeral to Gardiner's cemetery on Sunday, April 1st, was largely attended, Rev. W. H. Higgs conducting the solemn and impressive service at the house and grave.

Beautiful floral offerings were placed upon the casket by loving friends. One wreath from the family was exceptionally pretty. The pallbearers were Messrs. R. E. Stanton, J. E. Needham, W. G. Kendry, J. Hatherley, Geo. Lock and H. Skitch.

The German Yoke And Its Effect On Belgian Women

Belgian Women Have to Live With Soldiers, Sometimes Sulky and Sometimes Drunk--Women Tell Horrible Stories

What it is like to live under the yoke of the Hun, as Belgium has lived for over thirty months may be gathered from the following report of Phillip Gibbs, the famous war correspondent:

"The ruins of houses are bad to see, but worse than that is the ruin of women and children and living flesh. When I say them in the streets and staring at me out of the windows, I was struck with the chill of horror. The women's faces were dead faces, shallow and maskline, and branded with the memory of great agonies. The children were white and thin, so thin that the cheekbones protruded, and many of them seemed to me idiot children. Hunger and fear had been with them too long. The women with whom I spoke were passionate and hysterical and told me horrible stories, not to be retold here.

Have to Submit.

"I believe them too, because they had to live with men who were killing their husbands and brothers, and that is the great horror. They have to submit to the daily moods of men who were sometimes sulky and sometimes drunk."

Leave no stone unturned to save the women and children of Belgium at least from actual starvation. Send your contribution to the nearest Relief Committee, or direct to the Belgian Relief Fund, 59 St. Peter street, Montreal. The German submarine campaign is not one whit affecting the transmission of supplies—for Relief boats are immune from attacks—nor does the withdrawal of the American flag affect the distribution of them. Every cent you subscribe will faithfully fulfil its mission of mercy.

VETERAN OF CAVAN HAS PASSED AWAY

MILLBROOK, April 3.—The late Wm. H. Wood, Sr., born in Hope 1823, died in Cavan 1917.

The passing of W. H. Wood, Sr., on Saturday, March 24th, 1917 removes one of the oldest and most highly respected residents of Cavan. Deceased gentleman was born in Hope 94 years ago and about a year later with his parents, went to Smith Township, where they resided thirteen years, when they moved to Cavan and settled on Lot 2 Con. 4 where deceased lived for 80 years. In 1847 he was married to Mary Ann Porter, daughter of the late John Porter, one of the first settlers of Cavan. To this union, nine children were born four of whom and an adopted daughter survive him. They are: Wm. H. Jr., John Wesley, Mary Ladies, Lewis Ross and Maud. Lewis is still on the old homestead. Four children predeceased their father.

The late W. H. Wood was of Dutch descent, his grandparents, being Jona and Leo Wood, who came from Holland in 1737, settling in Vermont State U.S.A., where they resided till they moved to Cornwall, Ont., where his father, Moses Wood was married to Charity Smadis. They were U. E. Loyalists. In 1822 they moved to Smith township.

Deceased with his brother, George made the first road on the fifth line going to Millbrook, having to cut the trees and remove the timber and brush. The late Mr. Wood said that deer were as plentiful as sheep when they first came to Cavan. His father was through the American War and was in the battle of Lundy's Lane. His wife predeceased him by many years.

Conductor Buller says he has had the unique distinction of carrying three generations of the Wood family since he became conductor. Deceased gentleman had a butcher knife made from a sword that went through the American War of 1812 and a pot that was brought from Holland by his grandparents. Both are highly prized by his family. The late Mr. Wood was a man of more than ordinary ability, a splendid conversationalist and his reminiscences of the days when he was young were very entertaining as well as educating.

The funeral to St. John's cemetery, Cavan, on Monday, March 26th was very large considering the state of the roads. There were nearly one hundred vehicles in the funeral cortege, many coming a great distance to do honour to the memory of one of Cavan's grand old men.

Rev. Canon Allen conducted the service at the house and grave, and spoke in high terms of the late Mr. Wood, whose demise is regretted by a wide circle of friends.

Among the many floral tributes placed upon the casket were: a wreath from the grandchildren, a sheaf of wheat from his daughter, and a wreath from ex-Warden, Jos. Hickson.

The pallbearers were: Five grandsons, Wilbert, Marvey, Richard, Allen and Harold Wood, and his nephew John Porter.

To those bereaved by the death of this great and Christian gentleman we join in extending sincere condolences.

Mr. W. I. Collins has returned from a successful business trip through the States. He received a letter on Monday from his son, Signaller, W. J. Collins who was in England when he wrote but expected to go to France at any time.

HEAT FLASHES, DIZZY, NERVOUS

Mrs. Wynn Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her During Change of Life.

Richmond, Va.—"After taking seven bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel like a new woman. I always had a headache during the Change of Life and was also troubled with other bad feelings common at that time—dizzy spells, nervous feelings and heat flashes. Now I am in better health than I ever was and recommend your remedies to all my friends."—Mrs. LENA WYNN, 2813 E. C Street, Richmond, Va.

While Change of Life is a most critical period of a woman's existence, the annoying symptoms which accompany it may be controlled, and normal health restored by the timely use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Such warning symptoms are a sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, dread of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and inquietude, and dizziness.

For these abnormal conditions do not fail to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

A FABLE FOR PACIFISTS.

Samuel Hopkins Adams Reduces War Referendum Plan to Absurdity.

The Vigilantes, a nonpartisan organization of authors, artists, and others for patriotic purposes, began recently a series of articles with a fable by Samuel Hopkins Adams in which the project of a war referendum is reduced to an absurdity. The piece, which is entitled "A Fable for Pacifists," is as follows:

"In time of General War among the Insect Tribes the Bees remained at Peace. That they might conduct their Pursuits unhampered, the Honey-Bees chose as their leaders certain Sting-Bees of Courage and Prowess to guard their Interests, their Lives, and their Honour. To these Guardians came Slayers from among the Tribe of Ruthless Spiders, saying:

"'Henceforth the Air is forbidden to your Wings. For there are Spread our Webs for our Enemies.'

"'But the Air is our proper Province,' protested the Chosen Leaders of the Bees. 'Shut out from it, how shall we continue to exist in Prosperity and Honour?'

"'That is nothing to Us,' replied the Ruthless Spiders. 'Whoso disobeys our Orders we will destroy. Be warned.'

"Now, though the Ruthless Spiders were terrible in War and had destroyed many Victims, yet the Bees were unafraid, being a Great and a Free People. 'This thing we will not Endure,' said their Chosen Leaders, and they sat about spreading their Wings and sharpening their Stings for Combat.

"But as they prepared to fight, there Arose from among the Mass of Honey-Bees a Clamour of Pacifist Buzzers, crying out in many Voices (some of which Echoed the Spider Accent.)

"'It is not the Will of the Tribe that we go to War. Make no movement until opportunity is Given for all to Vote upon the Question.'

So the Chosen Leaders were bound to Inaction, awaiting the Vote of the Honey-Bees, whose Interest and Lives and Honour they guarded.

"When, in the Course of Tribal Events, the Vote had been Registered, the Pacifist Buzzers were overthrown by the Resentment of an angered Tribe and the word went out to the Chosen Leaders:

"'Our Honour has been assailed. Our will is for War, Go Forth and Fight.'

"But the Chosen Leaders did not fight. They could not. They were dead. The Ruthless Spiders had killed them. And when the Bee Tribe, late and leaderless, took the Air they were Entangled in the webs of the Ruthless Spiders and utterly destroyed.

"Moral—When Honour is assailed, the Initiative is Mightier than the Referendum."

Among the writers who will contribute articles to further the campaign of the Vigilantes are Irwin S. Cobb, William Hard, Rex Beach, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Walter Camp, Robert S. Chambers, Charles Dana Gibson, Julian Street, William Allen White, Don Marquis, Hy Mayer, Mary Roberts Rinehart, Tyrone Power, Booth Tarkington.

NEW AMERICAN FLAG.

Disgusted Connecticut Man Suggests Changes in Banner of Free.

Sir,—If we must have (God help us!) an Americanism like that advocated by those human hookworms that are trying to make us a nation of dirt eaters (I refer to Messrs. Bryan, Mann, Moore, Daniels, Villard and their sort), let us at least be consistent.

First, let us change the national emblem from an eagle to a skunk. Then let us drop the red, white and blue flag that now floats over us, and replace it with a nice white one having a wide yellow streak down the middle. Following this we will turn to the wall the pictures of Lincoln, Washington and Grant, and the other poor rough-necks who were not too proud to fight, and after all joining in the well known anthem, "My Country 'Taint of Thee," we will extend a cordial invitation to Germany to come right in and murder our women and children on shore, where it's drier.

For being a darned fool is just like anything else, if you've made up your mind to be one, why not try to be a good one?—Porter Emerson Browne, Norfolk, Conn.

Was Troubled With Shortness of Breath

When the heart becomes affected, there ensues a feeling of a choking sensation, a shortness of breath, palpitation, throbbing, irregular beating, smothering sensation, dizziness, and a weak, sinking, all-gone feeling of oppression and anxiety.

The nerves become unstrung, you dread to be alone, have a horror of society, start at the least noise and are generally fatigued.

On the first sign of the heart becoming weakened or the nerves unstrung, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills should be taken. They are just what you require at this time. They regulate and stimulate the heart, and strengthen and restore the whole nerve system.

Mrs. C. M. Cormier, Buctouche, N.B., writes: "Since two years ago I was troubled with a shortness of breath, and sometimes I could hardly breathe. I went to see several doctors, and they said it was from my heart and nerves, but they did not seem to do me any good. One day I got one of your B.B.B. Almanacs and read of a case similar to mine.

"I bought a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after taking it I noticed such a change that I kept on taking them until I had used four more boxes, when I was cured."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box, three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

For a Large Easter Party

CHILDREN are so fond of the Easter rabbit and chickens that the giving of an Easter party for children is a simple matter for the hostess who is willing to accept the assistance of these amiable animals, says the New York Tribune. Such affairs range from the simple hunt for Easter eggs to the elaborate dancing parties with fancy dress and cotillions. One which is being planned this season by a woman to whom expense is nothing will provide simple games for the youngsters in quite an elaborate stage setting. One hundred children are to be invited.

A good old fashioned Punch and Judy show will be the first number on the program, and then will come dancing to lively music, as children have to be kept active. The musicians will not be in uniform, as many tots who have an unfortunate fear of policemen have been known in times past to be frightened by the bandsmen in blue and brass buttons. A picturesque darky, with a banjo, will eliminate all danger of howls at this party.

After the dancing "Going to Jerusalem" will be played for a short time, ending with a cakewalk, the children in pairs, headed toward the dining room. Judges at the door will be on the watch for the cleverest performers, to whom, of course, prizes will have to be awarded later.

The supper's the thing, always, at a child's party, and will be here also. There are to be five tables, each seating twenty children, and the spaces between the tables will be transformed into green fields and barnyards. Large toy horses will be pastured there, as well as real live goats borrowed from the farms in the neighborhood of this country house. Milking stools will be placed for seats around the low tables, which are to be built especially for the party. The enormous glass inclosed piazza adjoining the dining room will be used for some of the tables, so that they need not be too close together. In far corners under small cedar trees will be coops with real hens and tiny chickens. Real ducks will be swimming in the basin of the fountain at the conservatory's end. Canary birds will be let loose, and it is hoped they will fly about and sing. The only animals not real will be the toy horses and a make believe cow cleverly manufactured from rugs and a barn rack.

The five tables will be decorated with Easter animals, though here no attempt is to be made to have them alive. At the center of one table a large papier mache rabbit will hold a large pink candy egg filled with presents for every child at the party, and at each plate will be a wee rabbit to match, with a chocolate egg to eat. The second table will have a lovely fat hen in a big sugar nest, with wee candy chickens in groups near her and also one at each child's plate, standing on a place card. The third will have a duck on a mirror, edged around with green spun sugar and looking just like a tiny pool of water. Twenty small candy ducks will be in the pool, and each one will be tied to a spoon in front of a child's place, so that it will sail toward him when the string is pulled. A spun sugar nest containing candy eggs will be at each place. The fourth table will have another mirror lake with sugar grass at the edges and candy frogs and Japanese dragon flies disporting themselves upon it. A peppermint snake will be at each plate to feed the candy frogs with. The fifth table will have an Uncle Remus group. There will be a tar baby, with Brer Rabbit and Brer Fox, and at each plate will be chocolate turtles.

The supper itself will be simple, including creamed chicken, sandwiches and ices. The latter will be in the shape of little chickens, and the cakes will be egg shaped, with frosting in different colors. After supper a little more dancing will be allowed, prizes awarded and animal souvenirs distributed. A feature of the party will be the bringing in of a basketful of Easter eggs to be distributed.

Canada's Noble Response.

A quarter of a million men have been Canada's contribution to the war to date, and thousands of these have long been mouldering in the mud of Flanders.

But, first and last, it is about 250,000 troops that the Dominion has raised or is raising for the glory of her British Empire.

The announcement has just been made at Ottawa that 145 Canadian infantry battalions, with a total war strength of 160,000 men, exclusive of artillery, engineers, and other branches of the service, had been authorized up to date. Of this number, 55 battalions have already been sent to England or France, and the other 90 are either now in training or organizing in Canada.

Including artillery, engineers, and the various branches with each infantry battalion, the total number of men in the 145 battalions will be more than 250,000.

The zinc industry in British Columbia will receive a big impetus in the establishment at the Trail smelter of a large plant for treating zinc ore, to be operated by the Canadian Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co. The plant is almost completed, and is costing in the neighborhood of $1,000,000.

WON'T BE GERMANIZED.

Budapest Paper Says Teutons Never Will Understand Magyar Genius.

Further evidence that the Magyars of Hungary, while warmly admiring the military talents of their Prussian allies, do not favour the idea of being made a mere link in the "Central Europe" plan so enthusiastically promoted by the Pan Germans, and are inclined to resist any attempt at real Germanization, is found in a leading article in a copy of the Pesti Naplo recently received in London, which contains the following passage:

"The world war has undoubtedly brought us nearer Germany than any other period in our history. We have shed our blood together and have shown our loyalty as allies to the German people. The spirit of the Magyar people has been filled with love and admiration of the great military qualities of the German brother people. The Germans also understand us on the field of battle, but they do not fully understand the Magyar genius, and they never will understand it.

The Budapest paper goes on to complain of the steps taken by the Hungarian Government to model life on the pattern of the military administration of Germany, saying:

"It is impossible to govern Hungarians according to rubrics, calculations, and merciless statistics. The Magyar is a different being from the German. What is a blessing to the one is a curse to the other; what is a pleasure to the one means suffering to the other. We have shown that we know how to die on the field of battle with nobility and dignity without drill."

The writer hopes that German examples and watchwords will be kept away from Budapest and the provinces. He does not want institutions that are a reflection of the German conception of the world, and concludes:

"Let us learn and imitate the self-reliance, pride and political self-consciousness of the German citizen, his hatred of corruption, his worship of honour. Let us learn their energy, capacity for work, consistency, and ambition, but do not let us copy the externals of German life, customs and regulations, which do not suit Magyar individuality. The strength of Magyardom lies in its Magyarism. Let us live our life, and not the life of others."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Skating "Accident"

By OSCAR COX

"Jim," said Charlie Bates excitedly, "what do you suppose has happened to Alec Winston?"

"What?"

"Fell on the back of his head on the ice and has been unconscious for two hours."

"That's strange. Alec is a splendid skater."

"It wasn't his fault."

"Whose fault was it?"

"Billie's."

"You mean Wilhelmina Ripley's."

"Yes; she's the liveliest girl in town. She's an imp of mischief. Her principal object in life seems to be to make trouble."

"You mean among the fellows. Why, they stick to her like flies to molasses."

"The more fools they."

"If report says correctly you are one of the biggest fools of the lot. But how did Miss Ripley injure Alec Winston?"

"You see, they were skating together, Alec skating backward, Billie forward. For some time she had been trying to stir up bad blood between Alec and Horace Farrar by exercising that diabolical smile of hers"—

"You mean that seductive smile."

"Whatever you like to call it. Anyway, she first encouraged one, then the other. She was skating with Alec. He, having his eyes in the front instead of the back of his head, couldn't see Farrar skating behind him with Josie Emerson. Both men being back to back, Billie thought it would be a fine thing to steer Alec against Horace. When they struck Alec's feet went up in the air, and he went down on the back of his head."

"That's too bad. I hope he didn't crack his skull."

"The doctor says not. He says there's concussion of the brain."

"Was Billie hurt?"

"Hurt! No. Such persons never get hurt. They are protected by Satan, whom they serve. Billie went down, but forward, not backward, and fell partly on Alec."

There was a pause in the dialogue, at the end of which James Barnet said to Charlie Bates:

"Charlie, this is a serious matter for all you fellows who have gone daft on Miss Ripley."

"What do you mean?" asked Bates, looking at his friend anxiously.

"Why, she'll be badly broken up at the serious result of her innocent playfulness."

"Call it devilishness."

"She'll inquire a dozen times a day after Alec, sending him spoon fodder and flowers. As soon as he gets well enough to see her she'll go to him, cry a little, wonder if he'll ever forgive her, and the result will be that he'll take her in with no more resistance on her part than a jellyfish."

"He'll be a fool if he does!" cried Bates excitedly, and, cramming his hands down into the bottom of his trousers pockets, he strode up and down the floor.

"You seem averse to Alec's being roped into the meshes of this imp of a girl," remarked his friend.

"Naturally. I've been there myself," replied Bates.

"Where?"

"In Billie's good graces."

"Oh! You have, eh? How long did you stay?"

"An evening."

"And the next day?"

"I was reduced to the ranks and Alec was promoted."

"I should think that you'd covet revenge on Alec."

"Oh, Alec is an inoffensive sort of a fellow. He was quite a smart boy before he had that fever. I don't blame him. My wrath is all for the girl."

"You'd better keep it hot."

"What hot?"

"Your wrath. Suppose it should cool and Billie should take hold of you again. Where would you be?"

"Do you take me for an idiot?"

"I take you for what we men all are in the matter of women. So long. I must be moving on."

A week later the two friends met again.

"I say, Jim," said Charlie, "you were all wrong about how that matter between Billie and Alec would turn out."

"How is that?"

"Alec was only stunned. He was up and about the next day."

"How about Miss Ripley?"

"The thing sobered her."

"How do you know?"

"How do I know? Why she told me so."

"When?"

"Last night."

"At what hour?"

"At what hour? What's that to you?"

"Tell me the time you left her last night and I'll explain."

"I didn't exactly leave her last night. It was this morning. I think it was about half past 1."

"No explanation on my part is necessary. I knew very well when you were telling me about the accident that you were fired by jealousy. You didn't care what happened to Alec, unless perhaps you hoped death would take him out of your way. When you told me you had left your fiancee"—

"My fiancee! How, did you know that? It isn't out yet."

"I guessed it. Lovers just engaged don't leave their girls at 10 o'clock in the evening, or 11, or 12. It's more likely to be 2 or 3 in the morning."

"How do you know all that?"

"I've been there."

New Vigour and Strength For The Run-Down System

More Proof That Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is Accomplishing Great Good in This City—Many More Cures Reported

PETERBOROUGH, Ont., March 19.—In the most simple and natural way imaginable this food cure is restoring to health and vigor people who have been ailing for years and apparently getting no lasting benefits from the medicines used. Here is the reason:

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is composed of the elements from which Nature forms new, rich blood and thereby nourishes the cells and tissues of the body. By supplying these elements in condensed and easily assimilated form so that the most delicate digestive system can make use of them, the Nerve Food brings health and strength to the weak and suffering.

It works in a different method to most medicines, and as a result the benefits obtained are both thorough and lasting.

Mrs. John Roach, 581 Elm St., Peterborough, Ont., writes: "About four years ago, I received splendid results from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I had been troubled with nervous debility, sleeplessness, and my system was run down generally. At times the pain in the top of my head was unbearable; and I also had severe pains across my kidneys. There would be nights and nights that I could not sleep. I had tried many remedies as well as doctor's medicine, without their doing me any good. A friend recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to me, so I secured some and commenced using it. Finding myself benefitted, I kept on using them until I got better. Before long I could eat and sleep well, and my headache was all gone. I have recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to many friends, as I think there is nothing better for nervousness or run down system."

Mrs. J. Riedeman, 165 Adeline St., Peterborough, Ont., writes:—"I was troubled with nervous headaches, which, at times were so severe that I could not do my work. I also suffered from indigestion and pains in the back. From reading in the newspapers of the benefits other people were deriving from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, I was encouraged to try it. I began using them, finding good results from the beginning, so I continued the treatment until I obtained great benefit. Now I do not have the nervous headaches so frequently or so severe. My appetite is much better, and in fact, I am better in many respects. I would not wish to be without Dr. Chase's Nerve Food in the house now. I have recommended this treatment to many of my friends, who also find good results from their use.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

The Prompt Answer.

YOU feel almost like shaking hands with a man when he comes to his telephone the moment the bell rings.

¶ If he answers by saying at once "Mr. Blank speaking" instead of using the time-wasting "Hello" or "Well" you are still further pleased for you have saved valuable time and perhaps avoided a whole series of unnecessary questions to find out to whom you are speaking.

¶ To always answer promptly and to announce yourself at once instead of saying "Hello" "Yes" or "Well" will go far toward keeping up the quality of your telephone service.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally if You Eat Meat Regularly

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

STOMACH MEDICINES ARE DANGEROUS

DOCTORS NOW ADVISE MAGNESIA

Just how dangerous it is to indiscriminately dose the stomach with drugs and medicines is often not realized until too late. It seems so simple to swallow a dose of some special mixture or take tablets of soda, pepsin, bismuth, etc., after meals, and the folly of this drugging is not apparent until, perhaps years afterward, when it is found that gastric ulcers have almost eaten their way through the stomach walls. Regrets are then unavailing; it is in the early stages when indigestion, dyspepsia, heartburn, flatulence, etc., indicates excessive acidity of the stomach and fermentation of food contents that precaution should be taken. Drugs and medicines are unsuitable and often dangerous—they have little or no influence upon the harmful acid, and that is why doctors are discarding them and advising sufferers from indigestion and stomach trouble to get rid of the dangerous acid and keep the food contents bland and sweet by taking a little pure bisurated magnesia instead. Bisurated Magnesia is an absolutely pure antacid which can be readily obtained from any drug store. It is absolutely harmless, is practically tasteless and a teaspoonful taken in a little warm or cold water after meals, will usually be found quite sufficient to instantly neutralize excessive acidity of the stomach and prevent all possibility of the food fermenting.

WHEN I AM DEAD.

Yet I shall know how days pass over me:
Springtides and summers and autumnal rains;
And I shall say: "Now April comes to be
Earth's wistful girlhood," or "Now summer stains
And gardens with new flowers, and the bees
Are droning through the drowsy afternoon,"
Or yet again, "Now wood-smoke fills the trees,
And grey, cold rains are falling late and soon"—
And knowing this, shall I not know as well,
That day of days when you shall pass the place.
So close above me I shall feel the spell
Of magic at the nearness of your face?—
And shall you not, in some strange, secret way,
Still sense my yearning toward you—through the clay?

—David Morton, in the Poetry Journal.

WEEKLY MARKET REPORT

Butter sold down as low as 33c on the market but this was scarcely the ruling price. In fact it was mostly an accident, for the market, as with eggs, has been holding with unusual steadiness to prices that have been quoted for weeks past.

Potatoes are down to $3 a bag with a tendency to drop still further. Potatoes brought in from the west are quoted below that price and the movement is all in that direction.

EGGS AT TORONTO.

The egg market continues to be unsettled and while last week a reduction was expected there was actually a rise in price of 3c between the first and the last of the week, when eggs were finally brought in at 37c per dozen. The lower price had resulted in an increased demand while bad roads had hindered the delivery and the rise was entirely justified. This week Gunns quote 36c per dozen delivered in Toronto but this is not guaranteed as it is hard to forsee the market many hours ahead.

HIDES.

The price of hides is as follows:

Beef hides, per lb.	19 to 20c
Farmers' hides per lb.	17 to 18c
Veal skins	25 to 28c
"Deacons" each	$1 to $1.50
Yearlings "runner-kip"	15 to 17c
Sheep skins	$1 to $3
Tallow per lb.	7 to 8 1-2c
Washed wool, per lb	42 to 43c
Unwashed wool, per lb.	32 to 34c

GRAINS AND SEEDS.

The following prices are quoted locally this week with trade steady:

Wheat per bush	$1.80
Oats, per bush	65 to 68c
Rye, per bush	$1.35
Barley, per bush	$1.45
Small peas, per bush	$2.56
Blue peas, per bush	$2.00
Buckwheat per bush	$1.15 to $1.20

The grain buyers quote the following prices:

Red Clover	$9 to $10
Alsike	$7 to $9
Timothy	$3 to $4

The finest seed is retailing locally at:

Clover seed	$12 to $15
Timothy	$4 to $5
Alsike	$12 to $15

HOGS ADVANCED.

Live hogs are quoted at $15.50 by Matthews-Blackwell Company this week, returning to a new high level. The market is strong at the new price.

Sunday School Lesson Questions

Jesus Raises Lazarus from the Dead (Easter Lesson.) John 11:17-44.

Golden Text: Jesus said unto her, I am the resurrection and the life. John 11:25.

1. Verse 17. What is the reason that the longer men live in sin, the less their chances are of yielding to Christ?

2. Verses 18, 19. If it is true, as we verily believe, that Christians when they die go into a conscious state of never ending bliss, why should their friends, who are left here, need "comfort."

3. When people are in distress, and their hearts rent with grief, what is the message of the gospel to them?

4. Verse 20. Which manifests the more implicit faith, when in great trouble, to rest in confidence that God will come to our relief in due time, or give vent to our sorrow and keep praying with anguish of heart?

5. Verse 21. Why is it never wise, or profitable, to find fault with God, or to think he could have done something better for us?

6. Verse 22. What so called calamity can come to a true Christian, which God cannot turn into opportunity, and make produce the most desirable things?

7. Verse 23, 24. What is the evidence that the dead will all be resurrected, and when will it take place?

8. Verses 25, 26. Jesus here states in effect, that the matter of the resurrection of our bodies rests with him, what is the proof that his claim is true?

9. All unconverted people are spiritually dead, and Jesus alone can resurrect them, under (what) conditions may such dead people be made alive?

10. When by faith a man is joined to Jesus, what spiritual powers are born in him which can never die?

11. Verse 27. How can you prove that Jesus is satisfied with the love and loyalty of our hearts, even if we do not understand the full import of his words?

12. Verses 28, 31. What would result to the world, if every Christian woman loved Jesus, and responded to His call as Mary did?

13. Verse 32. Why did Jesus plan not to be present before Lazarus died?

14. Why is it improbable that Mary would have found fault with Jesus for his absence, if she had known the reason for it?

15. Is it or not, and why, possible to have Divine wisdom to interpret all painful circumstances, in harmony with God's goodness, and our highest interests?

16. Verses 33, 34. Is it either wise, or right for us, to weep because of the death of God's children, any more for example, than we would if they were going across the ocean to take possession of a beautiful home and a fortune.

17. Verses 35, 36. Why did Jesus weep.

18. Verses 37, 38. What is the only cure for such unbelief as was manifested by Martha and Mary and these Jews?

19. Verse 39. Seeing Jesus could raise the dead with a command, why did he not roll away this stone in the same way?

20. Verses 40, 44. Jesus here performs a most wonderful miracle in raising a man from the dead who had laid in the grave four days, why did this not convince the Jews that he was the Messiah?

Lesson for Sunday, April 15, 1917. Jesus The Good Shepherd. John 10: 1-18.

I HAVE A RENDEZVOUS WITH DEATH.

By Allan Seeger, U.S.A., Killed in Action With Foreign Legion.

I have a rendezvous with Death
At some disputed barricade,
When Spring comes back with rustling shade
And apple blossoms fill the air—

I have a rendezvous with Death
When Spring brings back blue days and fair.

It may be he shall take my hand
And lead me into his dark land
And close my eyes and quench my breath—
It may be I shall pass him still,

I have a rendezvous with Death
On some scarred slope of battered hill,
When Spring comes round again this year
And the first meadow flowers appear.

God knows 'twere better to be deep
Pillowed in silk and scented down,
Where Love throbs out in blissful sleep,
Pulse nigh to pulse, and breath to breath,
Where hushed awakenings are dear—

But I've a rendezvous with Death

ARABIA HAS BEEN CLEARED OF TURKS BRITISH AND RUSSIANS JOIN FORCES

General Maurice Announces Officially That Junction Has Been Affected---More Important Progress Has Been Made By the British and French on the Western Front--Villages Are Captured by General Haig's Men.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, Eng., April 5.—The British and Russian troops in Mesopotamia have effected a junction and Persia has been cleared of all the Turkish forces, General F. B. Maurice, in charge of military operations, announced to-day. The British and Russians came in contact at Khanikan.

LONDON, Eng., April 5.—The capture of the villages of Ronssoy and Basseboulogne with twenty-two German prisoners was reported as to-day's progress of the British forward movement on the western front by Field Marshal Haig.

To the east and northeast of Metzencouture, the British Commander-in-Chief reported continued progress "despite considerable resistance," his troops having reached the western and southwestern edges of the wood of Gouzeaucourt and Havrincourt. Sixty prisoners were taken. "The enemy was caught on his own wire entanglements at Sonssoy and Basseboulogne, suffering heavily," the statement said.

Ronssoy is about three and one-half miles northeast of Roisel, on the road to La Catelet, and is about three and one-half miles distant from what is supposed to be the Hindenburg defense line running from Cambrai to St. Quentin.

NEW YORK, April 5.—It was General Haig's turn to-day to smash against the Germans. Two more towns were bagged by Haig against the three occupied yesterday by Nivelle. Meanwhile the race between the French and the British troops to see which shall have the honour of taking St. Quentin continues in perfect co-ordination of the Allied forces. This much was plain from the official statements to-day. The main activity reported by Field Marshal Haig was toward Cambrai from the southwest. Apparently this thrust is another part of the Allied plan to cut St. Quentin off from the line of communications. British forces to-day had reached Ronssoy, within four miles of the main road connecting Cambrai and St. Quentin. The French official statement mentioned reconnoitring advances north of Gauchy and Moy, two cities so near St. Quentin as to be suburbs, and the location of massed forces of the enemy.

The Turks in Mesopotamia are now under powerful pressure from four different armies, a British force advancing north toward Jerusalem in Palestine, under command of General Murray; General Maude's British army advancing north of Bagdad; General Baratoff's Russian army, advancing west from Persia; and what was formerly the Grand Duke Nicholas' Russian army, advancing to the west from Armenia. All the Turks have now been driven out of Persia.

LONDON, April 5.—Six hospital ships have been torpedoed or mined by the Central Powers since the beginning of the war, Thomas J. Macnamara, Secretary of the Admiralty, told the Commons to-day, with the loss of 247 lives.

PROBABLE REDUCTION IN HARD COAL PRICES

It is with extreme satisfaction we announce to our trade, that our order for the coming season's supply of Hard Coal has been again placed with the D. L. & W. Coal Co., whose excellent service to the Province of Ontario was so marked during the past winter months, and who when the Canadian Railways found themselves unable to grapple with the existing condition in transportation were able to arrange with the D. L & W. Railway, who in turn supplied for several weeks sufficient engines and train crews to deliver in D. L. & W. cars to Toronto and Brantford for distribution in these and outlying centres two solid train loads of 51 cars each per day of hard coal.

This action modified and relieved largely what was probably the most difficult situation the province has ever faced.

Competative companies have attributed this action to the fact, that Mr. D. E. Russell, General Sales Agent of the D. L. & W. Coal Co., is a Canadian by birth, as is also Mr. E. H. Read, the assistant sales agent, and the Ontario trade being in the hands of Mr. W. A. Martin, born and educated in the coal business in London, Ontario.

Whether or not these facts prompted such a generous spirit to the Ontario trade, it has at least placed in us the maximum confidence that we will be able during the coming year, as we did in the past to fill every order and every obligation we undertake.

It might not be out of place to say in this connection, that we distributed the past year about 3,000 tons more coal than under normal conditions. Our only regret being our inability, through lack of equipment and stock to supply every demand made on us.

We are unofficially advised, that a reduction in the price of hard coal shipped from the mines will be effective this month, which we will later announce.

RECRUITING FOR 57TH REGIMENT TO BEGIN ON MONDAY

Lt.-Col. Walker Issues Orders for the Mobilization of the Rangers' Defence Corps

OFFICERS ARE DETAILED

Recruiting for the 57th Regiment Canadian Defence Forces will commence on Monday night, according to orders issued by Lieut.-Col. Walker, O.C., this morning. An office is being opened in the recreation room of the Armouries, and officers have been detailed for duty each night to superintend the enrolment of recruits. For the present the names of men wishing to join will be taken, the medical examination and the enlistment to take place afterwards. Lieut.-Col. Walker announces that drill will commence as soon as the number of recruits warrants it. The company rooms in the Armouries, which were used as bunk-rooms by the 93rd Battalion, are being made ready for the accommodation of the 57th.

Lieut.-Col. Walker has not yet announced the personnel of his staff.

TRAGIC DEATH OF MRS. ARTHUR RUTHERFORD

A telegram received this morning from Mr. W. Rutherford, of Nelson, B.C., conveyed the sad news to his sister, Mrs. Benj. Shortly of the death of Mrs. Arthur Rutherford at Riverside Cal., resulting from a severe fall, in which the deceased lady injured her hip and had several ribs broken. At her age, 81 years, her constitution could not recover, especially as she had been for the last few years very frail.

Very many friends in the city will regret to learn of her death as her residence here dated from the time of her birth in 1835. She was a daughter of the late Joseph Ford one of the very first of the early pioneers of the now city and district. She married Arthur Rutherford a prominent contractor and builder and whose death preceded her a number of years ago. Under his direction many of the important buildings of the city were erected particularly along the business part of George street here. He was a member of the Town Council in successive years, and enjoyed the confidence of the ratepayers to a very large extent.

The deceased lady leaves surviving members of the family in William Rutherford, of Nelson, B.C., Mrs. R. Mann, of Grand Forks, B.C., Mrs. B. Shortly, Peterborough, Mrs. Birch, Winnipeg, Mrs. S. Strouter, of Chicago, and Mrs. E. C. Gill, of Riverside, Cal., and at whose residence she passed away. It is understood the interment will take place at Riverside, and that the body will not now be brought to Peterborough. The deceased lady was a prominent member of George street church, and identified with many of the church societies and a staunch friend of all good objects put forward by, and in the interests of, the church. Among the older generation she will be remembered as a friend at all times and one who in her days of activity was a valued assistant in many local objects making for the general good.

Death took place on the 4th (Wednesday), the sad news being received to-day.

PREPARATIONS ARE BEING MADE FOR THE DEPARTURE OF 247th

Local Unit Expected to Leave City Before Next Tuesday Only Three Officers to Accompany the Draft--Men Are Being Given Final Examination By Medical Board--To-day's Orders and General Military News.

Lt.-Col. Ackerman of the 247th Battalion and his staff were busy this morning in arranging detail of the departure of the battalion from the city. While definite orders have not yet been received, it is altogether probable that the men of the 247th and those officers who are selected to accompany them will leave Peterborough before next Tuesday. All passes including officers' leave have been cancelled and a mobilization order has gone out calling in the different detachments from around the district. These quotas should reach the city on Saturday if transportation warrants arrive in time.

A medical Board composed of Majors Eastwood and Cameron commenced a final medical examination of the men this morning, thirty-five men including a number of the members of the band being examined. The Board will examine every member of the Battalion as soon as possible.

Only three lieutenants will leave with the battalion and their names will be announced by Lt.-Col. Ackerman this afternoon. The rest of the staff will be absorbed by other units or retire to civil life. Major O'Flynn, who has been second in command of the 247th has left for Belleville, where he will command the 15th Battalion Defence Forces. Several other officers of the 247th will accept positions on the staff.

While nothing definite has been received there is a possibility that the men of the battalion may be given the option of joining the 238rd Queen's Highlanders or going to the 235th. Further word along this line is expected to-morrow. In the meantime, however, preparations are being made to have the entire draft go to the 235th, which is under orders to leave for a point east in short time.

To-day's orders of the 247th Battalion announce the promotion of Pte. A. Stirling to the rank of Sergeant.

Pte. Hales, of Apsley, a member of the 230th Battalion is very ill at his home, suffering from pleurisy. Comstock's ambulance left this morning to bring him into the hospital here. Pte. Hales was taken ill at Ot-

UNION SERVICE

The Ministerial Association of Peterborough have arranged to hold a union service in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church on Good Friday. The service will commence at three o'clock in the afternoon. Everybody interested in the Kingdom of God and the Empire should attend.

The First Good Friday

Then delivered he him therefore unto them to be crucified. And they took Jesus, and led him away. And he bearing his cross went forth into a place called the place of a skull, which is called in the Hebrew Golgotha: Where they crucified him, and two other with him, on either side one, and Jesus in the midst. And Pilate wrote a title, and put it on the cross. And the writing was, JESUS OF NAZARETH THE KING OF THE JEWS. This title then read many of the Jews: for the place where Jesus was crucified was nigh to the city: and it was written in Hebrew, and Greek, and Latin. Then said the chief priests of the Jews to Pilate, Write not, The King of the Jews; but that he said, I am King of the Jews. Pilate answered, What I have written I have written. Then the soldiers, when they had crucified Jesus, took his garments, and made four parts, to every soldier a part; and also his coat: now the coat was without seam, woven from the top throughout. * * * Now there was set a vessel full of vinegar: and they filled a spunge with vinegar, and put it upon hyssop, and put it to his mouth. When Jesus therefore had received the vinegar, he said, It is finished: and he bowed his head, and gave up the ghost.

WAR RESOLUTION PASSED BY SENATE

Vote of 82 to 6 in Favour of the Measure and Opponents Were Denounced For Pro-German Utterances.

IN THE HOUSE TO-DAY

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Hang out the Stars and Stripes among the allied flags that share Canadian breezes with the Union Jack. Within forty-eight hours President Woodrow Wilson will sign the joint resolution of both chambers of the United States Congress, declaring war upon "the enemy of mankind"—a war to be waged, the legislators have expressly provided, with "the entire naval and military forces of the United States of America, and all the resources of its Government." Amid stirring scenes to-night, after an all day sitting, without recess, the Senate adopted the war resolution by a vote of 82 to 6. Meantime the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the House of Representatives has passed it with but two dissentients—Shackleton of Missouri, Democrat, and Cooper of Wisconsin, Republican. At 10 o'clock to-morrow morning the House convenes to deal with it. Continuous sitting is provided for until the vote is taken, probably at night. By Good Friday morning at latest it is anticipated that the President will officially affix his signature.

The Senators who cast the negative votes were Gronna of North Dakota, La Follette of Wisconsin, Norris of Nebraska, Lane of Oregon, Stone of Missouri and Vardaman of Mississippi.

Text of the Resolution.

The text of the resolution follows:

"Whereas, the Imperial German Government has committed repeated acts of war against the Government and the people of the United States of America; therefore be it

"Resolved, by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, that the state of war between the United States and the Imperial German Government which has thus been thrust upon the United States is hereby formally declared; and that the President be and he is hereby authorized and directed to employ the entire naval and military forces of the United States and the resources of the Government to carry on war against the Imperial German Government; and to bring the conflict to a successful termination, all of the resources of the country are hereby pledged by the Congress of the United States."

THURSDAY, APRIL 5, 1917

GOOD FRIDAY.

Friday is the anniversary of the supremest tragedy of the world. This is that time of the supreme tragedy of the world, in its new crucifixion of humanity. And behind the one is the same spirit as was behind the other—blind doggedness of adhesion to unholy self-will and blasphemous self-sufficiency and self-righteousness. If ever we pause to weigh and appreciate the awful solemnity and significance of the first Good Friday, it is at this time when, in an awful way, the tragedy is being repeated. One seeing all these latter day doings—seeing apparent triumph of evil—might doubt of the efficacy of the crucifixion on Golgatha's hill. The disciples of our Lord felt that that tragedy ended everything, but the triumphant resurrection of the slain Lord, will have its repetition in our times. The crucified humanity of today will have its resurrection. It will rise, in more glorious existence and to a new life of freedom and happiness, when the principles for which our Lord suffered death shall have universal and untrammelled dominion over the lives of men and nations.

WHICH HAS THE FRIEND AT COURT?

The argument that increased production is the panacea for healing the ill of high prices loses some of its force under the reasoning of the Dominion Minister of Agriculture. Last week Hon. Martin Burrell declared that he was keeping himself informed as to the supply of potatoes in the country, and was able to confirm the estimate made some weeks ago that there is a "surplus of at least a million and a half bushels of potatoes in Canada, over and above all requirements for consumption and seed." Then he adds:

"It is believed that with the coming of spring and the opening of the pits, an accurate estimate of the supply can be made, and if action is necessary, to provide for the needs of the Dominion, it can be taken."

This is indeed cheering information. After the winter of high prices, almost prohibitory prices of potatoes is over—with a million and a half bushels held for higher prices—then if the potato combines keep up the prices, so that the people will not be able to buy them, the government will, or rather as Mr. Burrell puts it, "can" take action? Isn't this the time to take action if the government's anxiety is to protect the consumers and not the combines that are "holding up" the people by holding up the prices?

It seems possible that the minister may be right in the surmise that there are plenty of potatoes in the country. The other day there was a slight slump in potato prices. This proved that there were potatoes in Toronto. The combine, rather than give the people the benefit of lower prices for potatoes, shipped over, it is reported, forty car loads of potatoes at one time from the city to the neighbouring republic. At 700 bags per car, this shipment of potatoes would amount to 28,000 bags, or 42,000 bushels.

The Dominion Minister of Agriculture or his minions did not take much trouble to "keep himself informed as to the supply of potatoes," when between forty and fifty thousand bushels were lying around loose in Toronto. The minister thinks he "can" take action when he gets "accurate estimates." But if he times the "accurate estimate" with full consideration for the trusts—when the people have been forced to buy potatoes at high prices, then the action he "can" take will be too late to help the consumer and free him from the clutches of the combine. The government might, as suggested, further help the consumer and guarantee him against loss by "forbidding the use of new potatoes till the old ones had been bought up at trust prices."

If it is true that all this winter a surplus of one or two millions of bushels of potatoes (less, of course, what was shipped out to Cuba) have been in the country, held from market, the consumers of the country kept under the thumb of the combines, that were kept under the blind eye of the government authorities; then we must conclude that it is not much use for the people to look to the government for protection through operation of the law framed to penalize combinations in restraint of trade. The people will have to look out for themselves, and plant every available home garden space and every vacant lot; grow their own potatoes and let the combines flourish as best they can under the watchful eye of the government, which postponed seeing so long and mercifully—to the combines. Which has the friend at court, the combine or the consumer?

SHE IS NOW ONE OF US.

When woman was granted the abstract privilege of voting on an equality with man, in municipal and other elections, she gained only the principle of civil equality. Now she will have the machinery of expressing her will, the authoritative means of voting for members of Parliament and the Legislature. "The Ontario Franchise Act of 1917," introduced into the Legislature March 30th, amongst others, has the following ponderous section 4, of Part I.:

4.—(1) Subject to the provisions hereinafter contained every man and every woman of the full age of 21 years, a subject of His Majesty by birth or naturalization, and not disqualified under the Ontario Election Act, and not otherwise by law prohibited from voting, and whose name is not entered on any list of voters which may be used at an election to the Assembly for the municipality in which he or she is otherwise qualified to vote, shall be entitled to be entered on the list of voters to be prepared under this Act for the polling subdivision in which he or she resides.

This is stiff, stilted, statutory language, such as our law-givers are wont to employ to conceal their objects from the public understanding; but it is something that the eyes of women, some of them through vexatious tears, have waited long to see. The only change from the old election law is the addition of three significant words—"and every woman,"—"of the full age of 21 years." There lies the kernel of the matter. Freed from its verbal swarthing, the above paragraph simply means that every woman in Ontario "of the full age of 21 years" can lift up her head, square her shoulders and pose as an absolute equal in voting power, in political contests, with men. And we feel quite sure that, as far as mental qualities and judgment or want of judgment go, women will exercise their voting right as intelligently as men.

But it is evident that women as voters will "queer" the political situation. We can't and shall not be able without a little experience to tell how "the woman vote" will go, though women's mind once made up will go its own way. It may be hard for a woman to make up her mind as between two political candidates, but a lady who can close her choice of an Easter hat among the bewilderment of beauty in an Easter millinery show room, can be counted upon to make a choice between two mere men, even if she has to settle the question by the fact of his necktie matching or not matching his complexion. If women chose their candidate on the same principle that some of them choose or accept their husbands, we shall be more at sea than ever in settling the question of how women will vote. At present it seems that the woman vote is something like a shrapnel shell—one can't tell which way it will explode. But one knows that it will exert its force in some direction. We don't know yet how to tabulate or allocate the female vote; but it will strike somewhere, we may be sure. It is safe to say that women will have a purifying effect on election methods. In the first parliamentary election in which enfranchised woman uses her vote there will be less betting on the result than there has ever been since elections began.

This war time is, however, a time of big revolutions. The big democratic flop-over in Russia has a wide range of effect, but in principle it is no greater vital change than has come in Ontario in the recognition of women's right to equal privilege—making her free of the great guild of democracy, wherein there is universal equality of civil and social rights and privileges.

THE EMPIRE'S CALL IS FOR ENLISTMENT IN THE ARMY OF GREATER FOOD PRODUCTION

All over the world a cry is going up for more food production, and this is the time of year to begin the work. Prices are high enough now and the indications are that they will be still higher next year unless a mighty effort is made to increase the supply. Nor is it entirely a question of prices or of wages. No amount of money will avert starvation if there is a shortage of food. Notwithstanding the high prices, nobody seems to be getting rich. The farmers are paying high rates for labour, seeds, fertilizers, transportation, bags and twine, and have great difficulty in obtaining sufficient of any of them at any price. We want more farmers and gardeners. Too many of us are spending our money, our time, our labour, for that which is not bread. Most of us are getting too far away from the land; from natural conditions of life. This may be permissable in normal times; it is inexcusable in time of war and scarcity.

If one result of the war should be to make us realize this, as other nations are realising it, the hard times will do us good. The man who says "I cannot dig, to beg I am ashamed," is likely to be in evil case, for some time to come; and wise will be the man who prefers digging to begging. The race has been somewhat demoralized by the luxuries and follies of city life and many of us are under the delusion that it is more "high toned" to loaf than to work on the land. The Germans, to do them justice, never made this mistake, and in England our people of the better classes are away ahead of us in getting back to nature. Around Paris many thousands of vegetable gardens have sprung into existence this spring and members of the best families in France as in England, men, women and children, think it an honour and a privilege to work on farms. In doing this they are rendering invaluable service towards the winning of the war because the contest has become largely one of endurance. It is of no use to blockade Germany by British men-of-war, if Britain, France and Canada are to be blockaded by our own laziness or stupidity.

Many of the farmers around Montreal, in this time of scarcity and high prices for farm produce, have practically given up the struggle to increase food production through the difficulty or impossibility of getting labour, and all the time there are thousands of people in Montreal who are worse than wasting their time. This year will be a good one to seek recreation in productive work rather than in golf, baseball, bridge whist, and poolrooms.

Our Empire needs men and women to-day; real men and real women.—Montreal Herald.

Childhood Ailments

The ills of childhood come swiftly and too often before a doctor can be called in or medicine obtained the little one is beyond aid. The wise mother will always safeguard her little one by keeping Baby's Own Tablets in the home. This medicine always does good— it can never do harm. Concerning it Mrs. Napoleon Lambert, St. Ignace, Que., writes: —"Baby's Own Tablets are an excellent medicine for childhood ailments and I am well pleased with their use." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Memorial Service At The Temple

The great memorial service at the Salvation Army Temple to-morrow night will be of a most interesting character. The photos of many of the boys who have been killed at the front or wounded and missing will be thrown on the canvas.

This will include many who are not Salvationists at all. Photos of those who were lost on the Empress of Ireland and many who have been connected with the local corps, having no connection with the war side of things will also be put on.

A white robed choir with special music will add to the impressiveness of the occasion. The service will conclude with some special scenery of the cross and the sacrifice. All are welcome. A special offering will be taken to be given to the fund for huts for boys at the front.

Message From Sir Edward Carson

First Lord of the Admiralty Expresses Thanks For Canada's Gift

Below is a copy of a letter from Sir Edward Carson, First Lord of the Admiralty, to Mr. W. G. Ross, of Montreal, President of the British Sailors' Relief Fund for Canada, and forwarded to Mr. W. H. Dunsford, treasurer of the local branch of the Fund. £100,000 in all has so far been forwarded for the benefit of the men of the Royal Navy and Mercantile Marine of Great Britain and their families:

The Admiralty,
London, 10th March, 1917.

Dear Sir,—I shall be glad if you will convey to the committee of the British Sailors' Relief Fund, Canada, the grateful thanks of the Board of Admiralty for the munificent contribution made through that Fund by the people of Canada towards the maintenance of the various charities, orphanages and hospitals established for the benefit of men belonging to the Royal Navy and of their families.

This generous gift and the cordial message of recognition of the services of the Royal Navy by which it was accompanied, will, I am sure, give great satisfaction to the fleet, whom it it proposed to inform of your communication by a general fleet order.

Your committee will be glad to know that the Statutory Committee which has been set up by Parliament under the Naval and Marine Pensions Act is being asked to arrange for the distribution of the money in the manner desired.

May I be permitted also to express my own and my colleagues' pleasure at the decision of your committee to allocate a similar sum to the support of institutions maintained for the benefit of the Mercantile Marine, whose courage and endurance have deservedly won the admiration and gratitude of the Empire.

Yours faithfully,
(Sgd.) Edward Carson,
First Lord of the Admiralty.

AN EASY WAY TO GET FAT AND BE STRONG

The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on drugging their stomach or stuffing it with greasy foods; rubbing on useless flesh creams, or following some foolish physical culture stunt while the real cause of thinness goes untouched. You cannot get fat unless your digestive tract assimilates the food you eat.

There is a preparation known to reliable druggists almost everywhere which seemingly embodies the missing elements needed by the digestive organs to help them convert food into rich fat-laden blood. This modern treatment is called Extract of Native-Roots and has been termed one of the greatest medicines of its kind.

Native-Roots aim s through regenerative, re-constructive power to coax the stomach and intestines to literally soak up the fattening elements of the food and pass them into the blood, where they are carried to the starved, broken down cells and tissues of the body. You can readily picture what result this amazing transformation should produce as with increased weight the cheeks fill out, hollows about the neck shoulders and arms disappear, and pounds of solid, healthy flesh are added to the body. Native-Roots is inexpensive and Warne Drug Co. and other leading druggists have it and recommend it. Start the treatment to-day.

Supply Huts For Canadians At Front

The Salvation Army in Eastern Canada are endeavouring to raise a sum of money to supply huts for the Canadian boys at the front.

The British Salvationists have special provision made for them by the British Field. The Australians and New Zealanders have special Rest Huts, so the Canadians are endeavouring to do the same. A tag day for this object in Montreal last Saturday gave $5,000.00 for the huts, and maintenance. In connection with the effort special offerings will be received Friday, Saturday and Sunday next by all the members and friends of the Army.

$240,000,000 Army Bill Passes House

WASHINGTON, April 5.—The army appropriation bill for 1917, carrying $240,000,000, was passed by the House yesterday in less than half an hour, in exactly the same form as it passed the House at the last session of Congress. Amendments to bring the total of the bill to $270,000,000 were ignored in the interest of speed.

Why Beauty Fades

The girl who returns home from school or from work thoroughly tired out will be fortunate if she escapes a physical breakdown, because this getting tired so easily is probably the first warning symptom of a thinning blood that must not be disregarded if her health is to be preserved.

When the blood becomes thin and impure the patient becomes thin, pale haggard and angular. She not only tires out easily but suffers from headaches, palpitation of the heart, dizzy spells and a loss of appetite. This condition will go from bad to worse, until perhaps fatal consumption sets in, if prompt steps are not taken to increase and enrich the blood that brings the glow of health, blood that brings the glow of health, no medicine yet discovered can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. If given a fair trial their use brings rosy cheeks, bright eyes, a good appetite and good spirits. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have made thousands of pale, languid girls active and strong. On the first sign of poor, thin blood mothers should insist upon their daughters taking a fair course of these pills. They will not only restore health, but will save further doctor bills.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can be obtained from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

War Resolution Passed By Senate

the sending of American troops to Europe without the express consent of Congress, was made to-night by Representative Fred A. Britten, Republican, of Illinois, a member of the Naval Affairs Committee.

Mr. Britten said that unless such an amendment is included in the war resolution he would oppose its passage. Heretofore Mr. Britten has not evinced pacifist tendencies, and has been one of the radical preparedness advocates.

Hot Debate in Senate.

One of the features of the day was the debate in the Senate on the war resolution. Senator La Follette of Wisconsin bitterly assailed Great Britain, and Senator John Sharp Williams of Mississippi made a stinging speech in reply.

The American Republic will act with the Allies. The temper of both Congressional bodies is pronounced, and unmistakable. It is to be no negative participation. Food, money and munitions are to be unreservedly despatched to the old world powers who struggle against the common foes. But the nation's leaders have sensed the enthusiastic, larger determination of the people to participate in the actual conflict on sea and land, and international machinery is already moving toward this end. President Wilson may preserve certain independence of action as a combatant—he has indicated as much—but it may be taken for granted that the reservation concerns matters of administration and post-bellum policy. The heartiest co-operation with the allies will exist in the conduct of the war in naval enterprise and in the operation of military forces on the field.

Lodge Solidifies Sentiment.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge definitely determined American unanimity on this score when he addressed the Senate this morning, following the presentation of the war resolution of the Committee on Foreign Affairs by Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, its Democratic head. Senator Logie's personal position was well known, but he spoke as recognized ranking leader of the Republican party forces in the chamber, and his pronouncement was awaited with much interest and concern.

"The time," said he, speaking with unusual deliberation, "for temporary alliance or agreement with other nations has arrived. It would be madness to attempt alone to make war on Germany. The allies of the Entente are fighting a common foe. That foe is not ours. We believe in the general policy laid down by Washington, when he advised the people of the United States not to enter permanent alliances, but the man who won the American Revolution through alliance with France would be the last to lay down a hard-and-fast rule that under no circumstances and for no purpose were we ever to ally ourselves with other nations." "I would be glad at an early moment," declared Senator Lodge, amid cheers from both sides of the chamber, "to see the flag of the United States unfurled on the fields of France, in addition to co-operation with the allies on the sea and by large credits and supplies." He urged the immediate seizure of all German vessels in United States ports, and passionately called on the Government not to conduct a "half war."

Two Women Fatally Burned in Toronto Hotel

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

TORONTO, April 4.— Two women employees, Anna Anderson and Thirza Hopkins were fatally burned and two others critically ill as a result of fire breaking out in the employees' annex of the Queen's Hotel, Toronto's oldest prominent hostelry, at 3.30 this morning. The fire started in a line chute, and the women, instead of escaping over the roof as instructed, made their way down stairs and were trapped, until released and carried out by firemen who arrived in three minutes. The quick work of the fire department prevented danger to the main building.

SAVE DAD'S LIFE GET IT FOR HIM

Says It Is Suicide to Cut Corns and Tells How They Lift Right Out.

You simply say to the drug store man, "Give me a quarter of an ounce of freezone." This will cost very little but is sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn from one's feet.

A few drops applied directly upon a tender, aching corn should relieve the soreness instantly, and soon the entire corn, root and all, can be lifted out with the fingers without pain.

This new drug called freezone is an ether compound discovered by a Cincinnati man, who says that while freezone is sticky it dries in a moment, and simply shrivels up the corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin.

Don't let father die of infection or lockjaw from whittling at his corns, but cut this out and make him try it.

JOSEPH H. SHEEHAN,

Americas Greatest Tenor, as "Manrico," in "Il Trovatore," Grand Opera House Wednesday, April 11.

Speaking of the performance, the London Free Press of April 2nd says:

Two large and thoroughly delighted audiences heard "Il Trovatore," one of the world's favourite and most beautiful operas, presented on Saturday, matinee and evening, at the Grand by an entirely capable and well-selected organization of singers, the Boston English Opera Company, with Joseph H. Sheehan, the leading operatic tenor, and Mlle. Nelli Gardini, a soprano of splendid attainment, in the premier roles of Manrico and Leonora.

The fact that the greater part of the opera was sung in English increased, rather than diminished the unreserved appreciation of the audience, and it appealed with new beauties and additional sources of enjoyment to all who previously had only heard it sung in the original Italian.

Joseph Sheehan is a singer whose genuine artistic abilities and always satisfying performance is too well-known to call for critical comment, and suffice, it is to observe that in the role of Manrico the troubadour he has chosen an even better vehicle for the display of his wonderful powers of song than in other well-known operas in which he has appeared before London audiences.

Mlle. Gardini is undoubtedly gifted with a voice of remarkable powers of expression, unusually pleasing tonal qualities and rare beauty of shading and inflection, and a simple, graceful dramatic ability that heightens rather than detracts from her operatic talent.

Miss Elaine De Sellum, as Azucena, is not only a contralto of admirable accomplishment, but an actress of surpassing skill and rendered her parts with an artistic ability entitling her also to claim as an operatic star of unquestioned merit.

Arthur Deane, baritone, as Count di Luna, won high appreciation from the audience, which was delighted immeasurably with his clear, strong, resonant and pleasing voice.

Quite capable support was given by Miss Florentine St. Clair, as Inez, attendant to Leonora; John Wandling as Ruiz, Manrico's aide-de-camp, and Robert Evans as Ferrando, a follower of Count di Luna. An excellent orchestra under the direction of Basil Horsfall, added materially to the enjoyment and the merits of the performance.

NURSERY RHYMES UP-TO-DATE

Old Mother Hubbard went to the cupboard
And found the place was bare,
So away she tore to Paskin's store
And replenished with plentious fare.

Jack and Jill went down the hill
To get the week's supplies,
Jill made straight for Paskin's store,
Says Jack, "Now ain't she wise?"

Little Jack Horner sat in a corner
Eating a pudding of rice,
He gave a sly grin as he tucked it all in,
Said it's from Paskin's, so you kin bet it is nice.

"Our Minister's Honeymoon" was presented by the young people of Knox church in Victoria Hall last night under the auspices of the Great War Veterans' Association. The result was a great success, both artistically and financially. A substantial sum was handed over to the Great War Veterans as a concrete result of the efforts of the young people. Use Cocoanut Oil For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

TO-DAY'S WAR NEWS

PARIS (French Official Communique), April 5.—French troops made reconnaissance of the ground north of Cauchy and Moy during the night as far as the German lines, which they found occupied in force. The report also detailed intermittent shelling east and west of the Somme. German counter attacks on the front from Laffaux to Margival, and attacks northwest of Rheims were all repulsed. Moy and Cauchy are within less than two miles of St. Quentin, to the south. Moy was occupied in force by the French yesterday, according to last night's statement.

OTTAWA, April 5.—The Immigration Department reports to-day that a large number of young men who have crossed into the United States since the war commenced, are attempting now to get back, as they can see that conscription is much more likely in the United States than it is in Canada. The Department have taken means to make sure that these men will not be able to return to Canada very easily if at all.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—The Government to-day took its first active steps for preparation for war. Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo asked Congress to appropriate about four hundred millions for army and navy expenses. Secretary Daniels asked that the navy personnel be increased from 87,000 to 150,000, and the marine corps personnel from about 17,000 to 30,000. The army, McAdoo said, would require $2,932,537,933, and the navy $292,538,790 in addition to regular expenses.

(By Carl D. Groat, United Press Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, April 5.—The House will pass the war resolution probably before night, and Congress will then be ready to receive the Administration plans for waging the conflict against Germany. Getting down to work at 10 o'clock to-day, following the passage of the war resolution by the Senate last night, the House opened its debate. The leaders planned to keep the body in continuous session until the war measure is passed. While they did not think a rule would be needed they declared it would be invoked if necessary to limit the discussion. Congress will heed the views of President Wilson and his Ministers and grant whatever is wanted to assure that the war crushes German auto-ruthlessness. Secretary of War Baker plans to go to Congress with the general staff plans as soon as the House passes the war resolution.

Social and Personal

Mr. W. G. Purser of the "Times," Port Hope, and his sister, Miss Purser, were in the city to-day.

Miss Emily Horsfield, 220 London street, entertained about twenty young people on Tuesday evening at a "miscellaneous shower" given in honour of Miss Carrie Barrett, whose wedding takes place to-day. The guests included most of the members of the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium class, of which Miss Barrett was an extremely popular member. Many beautiful presents were received. Dainty refreshments were served before the party broke up at about eleven o'clock.

Mr. A. Comstock has returned from a short visit with his brother, Mr. John Comstock, St. Catharines.

Prof. and Mrs. D. G. A. Sloane, McDonnell street, announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Kathleen, to Alan, son of Major and Mrs. Moodie. Major Moodie is with the Mounted Police, Saskatchewan.

Miss Essie Wood left this morning to spend Easter with friends in Montreal.

Geoffrey Hilliard, Lieut. Royal Canadian Dragoons, sailed on Tuesday with a draft of the R.C.D.'s for England.

Mr. C. C. Abbott, manager Bank of Montreal, is in Kingston for the holidays.

Mr. C. H. Pennefather is leaving to-day for New York, where he will interview the Chief Engineer of the city in connection with the Dustless Sweeper. It is just possible that the proposition, so far as the United States is concerned, will be taken over by an important New York organization.

Mr. W. H. Proby, East City, received word to-day of the death of A. Murphy Sub-Lieut. of the Aviation Corps. Lieut. Murphy was with the training school aviation camp when he met his untimely end in an accident. He is the son of the late D. A. Murphy, who was superintendent of the Dominion Bridge Works, and well known in Peterborough and Kirkfield. Lieut. Murphy was but 20 years of age and has been in England since December, waiting to proceed soon to France.

Speed Limit Not Raised

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, April 5.—The Legislature this forenoon declared itself against increasing the speed limit for motorists from 20 to 25 miles an hour in rural districts and from 15 to 20 miles an hour in towns and cities, as proposed in a clause of the bill amending the Motor Vehicles Act, introduced by Mr. Geo. E. Gooderham. J. C. Elliott, of West Middlesex, strongly protested against the raising of the speed limit in the country. He declared that the safety of the public would be endangered and the roads damaged by the high power cars. He moved that the clause be struck out. Premier Hearst thought that the clause could well be struck out for the present time. Mr. Gooderham, the sponsor of the bill, said that if the country members were opposed to the increase, he was willing to defer to their wishes. Allan Studholme presently opposed the striking out of the clause, and called for a division. The clause was struck out, upon division, so the motorists must be satisfied with the present speed limit.

Palace Pictures Presents Lenore ULRICH in

THE INTRIGUE

A wonder-play of diplomatic intrigue, with the secret of an American invention of a tremendous destructive engine of war at stake, fought for by the representatives of two warring countries, with LENORE ULRICH as the Countess Sonia Carnli, the intermediary for one, is the latest Pallas Pictures offering. MISS ULRICH'S role teems with exciting incidents and situations. Sent to obtain the secret of the invention from the American engineer, she finds a strange combination of circumstances confronting her, chief of which is that in the young American inventor she discovers her ideal of manhood. The outcome of a serious, deep laid international plot, with the Countess loser and yet victorious, provides the main theme to a wonderful story.

WHERE THE CREDIT WAS DUE.

In the Examiner last night it was stated that the successful basket social which netted over $38 for the Great War Veterans' Association had been arranged by the Soldiers' Wives' and Mothers' Club. Kibble's Original Comp'y

Will Present "Uncle Tom's Cabin" Here—Special Matinee at 2:30

Wm. H. Kibble's world's greatest production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will appear at "The Grand" Tuesday, April 10, with special matinee at 2:30. Mr. Wm. H. Kibble has successfully solved the problem of combining the old and the new "Uncle Tom's Cabin" into a big spectacular play that leaves out nothing worth retaining of either the straight method or the circus method. All worthy features of the old landmarks are retained, while the thread of the story has been cleverly reconstructed, making it more coherent; this with the introduction of a host of high-class specialties thoroughly in keeping with the piece, goes far toward forming an evening's entertainment. It will be a real loss to miss witnessing. Over fifty people are with the company and two Pullman Palace cars, each seventy feet in length, are used to transport this mammoth aggregation from city to city.

Preparing For The Coming Motor Show

A meeting of the dealers and the committee working in conjunction with the Red Cross Society respecting the coming motor show, was held last evening in the Board Room of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company. The enthusiasm shown augurs well for the initial motor show to be held in Peterborough on April 26th, 27th and 28th. Among the automobiles on exhibition will be the Briscoe, Chalmers, Cadillac, Chevrolet, Dodge, Ford, Grant Six, McLaughlin, Maxwell, Overland, Studebaker and Republic Trucks; also bicycles and motorcycles. The accessory dealers and manufacturers will be largely represented. The Dominion Tire Company has offered a tire as a prize to be arranged for by the Association. The space in the Armouries, where the show will be held, is being rapidly taken up and all who desire to place an exhibit would do well to communicate with Mr. Logie at the Bank of Nova Scotia as soon as possible.

Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I am writing to ask if the wood merchants think they are doing a patriotic thing to a soldier's wife when they refuse to let her have wood. When our husbands went away to the front the cry was, "we will look after your wives and family," but they are not living up to their words. For instance, my husband went away in 1914 and has come back crippled for life, and when I go and ask to have some wood sent, I am told we cannot take any orders. Are the merchants holding out for bigger prices than what they are getting? Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I remain.
A RETURNED SOLDIER'S WIFE

Editor Examiner, City.

Dear Sir,—I think that Mr. Gordon's contention is absolutely correct when, at a School Board meeting, he said that a lady first-class teacher should receive as much as a male first-class teacher. Why should the Board fix a scale, that a female teacher with a first-class certificate should only receive the same salary as a male teacher with a second-class certificate? The female teacher with a first-class certificate has put in as much time and it has cost her as much money, as the male teacher with a first-class certificate. Her qualifications are the same and she should receive the same salary.

Yours truly,

President Wilson Signs The Formal Declaration Of War

Steadily Dwindling Cohorts of "Pro-Vandal" Americans Fight Desperately, But Are Crushed By an Overwhelming Sentiment In Favour of President Wilson's Recommendations—Democratic Leader Opposes Resolution—"Uncle Joe" Cannon Denounces Talk and Calls For Action—A Momentous Debate.

STORMY SCENES IN THE STREETS

WASHINGTON, April 7. — In the early hours of Good Friday morning the United States Congress solemnly recorded the decision of the nation to wage war, with all its strength and resources, against Germany, the foe of mankind. The House of Representatives passed the war resolution by a substantial majority. Having the overwhelming endorsement of both Houses of Congress, President Woodrow Wilson signed the formal declaration of war at four o'clock yesterday afternoon. Later in the day all German ships interned in American harbours were seized.

STORMY SCENES IN STREETS.

Shortly before the vote was reached news came to the Capitol of stormy scenes on the streets of Washington city, where cheering, flag-waving and parading crowds shortly after midnight hanged Senator La Follette in effigy from the balcony of a public building on Fourteenth street. The police had to take charge.

But the closing picture in the close and crowded Congress Chamber was solemn and impressive. The question was put in strained silence. The members individually recorded their votes, some with ringing emphasis, others with subdued seriousness. Audible murmurs greeted the occasional "nays" which punctuated the steady procession of "ayes."

MINORITY VOTE SMALL.

The minority vote in the House does not signify Congressional division, now that the die is formally cast. With but three exceptions, the men who voted against war coupled their pronouncements with zealous assurances that with the drawing of the sword their efforts would be wholeheartedly consecrated to the national services against the common foe. Two, in fact, pledged themselves to personally enlist. Representative Miller of Minnesota, who during the afternoon had made the sensational fought with frenzied persistence for their pacifist position. The majority laboured hard to make the verdict as nearly unanimous as possible. But the lines were too tightly drawn. Between the expression of the national spirit and the conscious or unconscious outcropping of the hostile sentiment, "Deutschland uber alles," there could be no truce. By a heartening, great and resolute majority, Congress lines up for civilization and democracy against ruthless militarism and absolutism.

A MOMENTOUS DEBATE.

Crowded galleries watched the progress of the debate all day. It was the final legislative act in the most momentous epoch in the history of the Republic since the close of the Civil War. In fact, somewhat before mid-day it was necessary to barricade the corridor entrances to stay the crowds who still came pleading for admittance. A large percentage of the spectators were women. They sat keenly interested but inactive hour after hour. Patriotic knitting does not yet obtain among the ladies here in public places, but, as the atmosphere grew more sultry and heavy as the hours passed, fans came generally into action.

GREAT WAR GATHERING.

Men and women by the score wore miniature flags and carried streamers. It was a great war gathering. Opponents of the war resolution were heard in strained silence. Champions of the cause of conflict were not infrequently greeted by spontaneous outbreaks of applause, regularly rebuked by the Chair and repeatedly followed by threats of expulsion. Such official reprimands were treated with the most nonchalant unconcern by the enthusiastic offenders, a sentiment apparently warranted by inevitable failure to produce subsequent action.

When Representative Cooper of Wisconsin, a gentleman with bald head, white whiskers, dark-rimmed spectacles and bland demeanor, devoted his energy and effort in opposing the war resolution to an attempted justification of Germany against Britain, there were public murmurs of dissent. He accused the United States Government of instituting ruthless tactics against "pacists of German descent," and declared that Dr. David Starr Jordan had been "howled down by mobs," and generally treated shamefully. The business of the United States, he maintained, was not to assist Briain in "starving the women and children and old men of Germany" and United States women and children should not be permitted to sail the seas in the zones of Teuton submarine warfare.

SOME STALE ARGUMENT.

"Canada won't do it," he exclaimed. "Canada won't allow her women and children to set foot on a vessel sailing the Atlantic." The dismemberment of Germany would, he maintained, be "a world calamity," while, to emphasize his thorough knowledge of the whole situation from the commencement of hostilities, he gravely told the House that "six of the members of the Government of Earl Grey in Britain resigned in protest when Britain went to war." Representative Cooper declared himself a pacifist, but shared with Senator La Follette of the upper House the distinction of making the strongest pro-German speech.

HIS PATRON SAINT THE KAISER

Representative Harrison of Mississippi, a clean-cut Southerner with a wealth of passion and spectacular eloquence, sought to interrupt but the Wisconsin man as steadily refused to "yield." When he finished, however, Harrison took the floor for about ten minutes and made things hum. Cooper's appeal to stip the war should, he said, be made to "his patron saint, the Kaiser."

It made his blood boil to hear a man in Congress extol Prussianism and criticize his native land. He had fully expected Cooper before he got through to defend the invasion of Belgium, "the most barbarous, savage, wicked, devilish performance ever dreamed of outside of the pit itself." Whereupon the galleries brandished flags again and cheered vigorously.

The debate went on steadily all day. Members do not address the House from their places as they do in the Canadian Commons, but proceed to a desk in the centre, just in front of the Clerk's seat. Here they hold forth. There was much repetition, much of extraneous character, much spirited flag-waving and much serious sentiment. At times there were real flashes of illuminating thought and high purpose. Several of the Representatives indicated their own intention to serve their country, and others gave proud assurances that their sons would be represented at the roll call. There was much of serious realization of the task upon which the nation was embarking, and a splendid spirit of determination to do it resolutely and thoroughly.

CLOSING SCENES SOLEMN

The closing scenes were touched with solemnity. They recalled Canada's memorable Parliamentary war session of 1914, when, with the sound of martial music, the beat of the drums, the steady tramp of feet, borne through the August open windows of the now-burned buildings, a young Dominion's politicians became patriots and statesmen, and with shaking disclosures regarding hitherto unpublished portions of the Zimmermann note from Berlin to Mexico, created a profound impression by reading the text of one paragraph from the German Foreign Minister's instructions as follows:

"Agreeably to the Mexican Government, submarine bases will be established at Mexican ports, from which will be supplied arms, ammunition and supplies. All reservists in the United States are ordered into Mexico. Arrange to attack all along the border."

FREE SPEECH OBSERVED.

As the debate advanced there was no doubt as to the final overwhelming victory of the war resolution, but the floor leaders decided to grant every opponent an opportunity to voice his views. The Administration got one jolt when Representative Kitchen of North Carolina, the Democratic floor leader, rose and opposed the resolution. He took the ground the United

PEOPLE OF HAMBURG LIVING ON TURNIPS

Lack of Food Has Now Spread to Kaiser's Beloved Soldiers.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Americans returning from Berlin and other German cities on the Spanish liner Alfonso XII. said they were confident that Germany would be compelled to plead for peace before the end of the year, because the masses of the people were starving. Up to the present the lack of food has only affected the civil population, but now it has spread to the army. When the soldiers have their rations cut in half they will realise that the war is going against ther the passengers said, and this may lead to a revolt.

1000 PEOPLE IN PETERBORO

Are stronger, healthier, and more vigorous since they have taken Bonized Phosphorus with iron. Are you one of these? If you are not healthy your doctor will tell you that 90 per cent. of all the ailments of the liver, kidneys, heart and bladder are caused through impurities being in the blood and the weakest organ of your body suffers. Dr. Mainprize says he can take a person who is run-down, weak, anaemic or nervous and restore them to good health in 20 to 30 days by giving them one to three tablets of Bonized Phosphorus with iron. This remedy is almost immediately absorbed by the system and you can feel the strengthening effects directly after taking it. This is an excellent remedy and owing to so many imitations it is only allowed to be dispensed by one druggist in each city. The agent for Peterborough is F. C. Weber, Charlotte street.

BRITAIN'S BILL FOR WAR TO DATE IS 19 BILLIONS

NEW YORK, April 4.—The end of the British fiscal year, and the closing of subscriptions to the new German war loan fell on the same date, to-day, bringing into the limelight the staggering totals of cash spent on the war thus far by these two belligerents.

England has spent more than Germany, her total to date being nearly 19 billion, or $10,759,240,000. England estimates she is spending approximately $27,907,700 a day in her fight to whip Germany.

Germany has spent $16,750,000,000 in her attempt to whip England. This includes the 4 million dollars sought in the new German loan. Subscriptions for which closed to-day.

It was last December that the British Chancellor of the Exchequer asked for the latest $1,948,000,000. At the same time the call went out for a million more men of all ranks. This million men brings the total number of the British subjects under arms and in training up to 5 million. Germany has approximately 10 million men under arms and in training.

England estimates that she has 8,219,000 women in war service and other occupations. The British casualties daily in killed, wounded and missing are estimated at 38,000.

Casualties for all belligerents in killed, wounded and missing since the beginning of the war to date are estimated at approximately 23,000,000 men.

It is estimated that England's interest on her present war debt for one year is well over $200,000,000. Germany and France face deficits in proportion to this.

For months Germany and England have been mobilizing hundreds of thousands of women to work either directly behind the fighting lines, elsewhere along the front or at home in what is known as civil war service. The voluntary period of enlistment for this service expires in Germany to-day, and to-morrow compulsory service will be inaugurated.

Lineman Killed This Morning

Allan Cassan, a lineman employed by the Peterborough Utilities Commission, was killed about 8.30 this morning while working on a line in the lane of the Peterborough Lock Company's plant, Simcoe St. There is some doubt as to whether the deceased touched a live wire which was lying on the ground or whether the ground was charged. The body was removed to Comstock's undertaking parlours. Cassan was unmarried.

Lime for use as a fertilizer was sold in 1915 in 29 out of the 43 lime-producing states of the Union. Pennsylvania farmers alone used $1,000,000 worth.

Constables Resign: Salaries Too Low

GUELPH, April 4. — The high cost of living and the small salaries paid by the city are playing havoc with the Guelph police force, which is not any too large as it is. Constables Percy Jones and E. V. Westman have both turned in their resignations to Chief of Police Randall, to take effect at the end of the month. Constable Jones claims that $60 a month is not enough to enable him and his family to live decently, and he will make more money in a local factory, while Constable Westman will go back to his farm to assist in the production of more foodstuffs. Good men are hard to obtain at the salaries now being paid.

A Cold Frame And Its Use To Gardener

(By W. T. Macoun, Dominion Horticulturist, Ottawa.)

A cold frame is made much as a hotbed is so far as the wooden frame is concerned but there is no manure in it to give heat and raise the temperature of the soil and air. The cold frame depends for its heat on the sun, and frames must be made snug so that the heat received during the day will last as long as possible.

There are some vegetables that succeed very well at relatively low temperatures in fact in the case of lettuce, particularly, which succeeds better in a cold frame than in a hotbed, and such vegetables can be grown in cold frame. Often, also, plants are started in a hotbed and then transplanted to cold frames when the temperature of the cold frame is high enough for them to succeed. Plants which are started in the house may be transplanted direct to the cold frame and so save all the trouble with the manure. Some plants which can be started quite early from seed in cold frames are lettuce, radish and spinach. Seed of these may be sown about April 1st in most places, or young plants of lettuce may be set out in a cold frame at this time.

A cold frame is much like a hotbed in appearance, but is without manure. It is used either for seeds or for growing plants taken from the hotbed before they can be set out in the open; or it may also be used by those who start plants in the house and who cannot get or do not wish to use manure. A well protected place is chosen, preferably in the autumn, on the south side of a building or close board fence. If chosen in autumn rich friable soil, six inches or more in depth, is put where the frame is placed. This soil and the ground about should be protected from frost by leaves or litter, which should not contain weed seeds. By thus mulching the soil in the autumn, when the time comes for planting in the spring there will be no frost in the ground about the frame. A frame should now be made with sides and ends of twelve inch boards, preferably two inches in thickness and placed on a slope so that the back or north part of the frame is six inches higher than the front. The frame is now placed over the soil. As hotbed sashes are six by three feet in size, the frame should be made to accommodate one or more of them. The soil is now well spaded and the frame protected from frost by earthing up outside or banking with manure. If the glass sash is over the top a few days before it is time to sow, or set out the plants, the soil will be warmed up sufficiently. Plants should not be taken out of the house and planted in cold soil or they will be chilled and injured. The same attention in regard to watering and ventilation should be given to the cold frame as to the hotbed. By the use of a cold frame, plants will be well advanced when it is time to set them out and several weeks will be saved.

A WEAK CHESTED BOY.

"My daughter suffered from inflamed eyelids and eczema on her head," writes Mr H W. Lear, Port Planford, Nfld. "The child was in a bad state and suffered greatly. The doctor failed to help her and on recommendation of a friend I used Dr. Chase's Ointment, which made a complete cure. With a grateful heart write you this letter."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Game of Twenty Questions

By F. A. MITCHEL

Traveling in a parlor car, I swung my chair around from the window through which I was looking, and my gaze fell upon a young woman whose face was partly turned toward me.

She looked up and bowed to me.

I returned the salute, so far as I was able, without betraying the fact that I had no more knowledge of her than of my grandmother, who had died before I was born. Rising from my seat, I walked toward her and said cordially:

"This is an agreeable surprise."

There was an amused look on her face as she made some commonplace remark. I judged that she did not believe I recognized her, but there was just enough uncertainty in her expression to tempt me to continue my pretense. A gentleman sitting in the next chair to her kindly offered to exchange seats with me, an offer I accepted, and sitting down beside my new found friend, I began to pour forth such words as would not give me away while I was racking my brain to place her.

It soon became apparent to me that she was aware of what I was trying to do, but she did not bring the matter to a head. Evidently she enjoyed my perplexity and was willing that I should have plenty of opportunity to remember her. In the course of our chat she said:

"When I saw you last you were single. Have you married since?"

"I am a bachelor. And you?"

"I am engaged."

A look of regret must have crossed my face, for she greeted the look with an amused smile. Glancing at the third finger of her left hand, where engagement rings are worn, I saw that it was bare. I looked up at her inquiringly.

"You would like to know why I do not wear a token of betrothal?" she said.

"I would."

"I will tell you before we part."

"Why not now?"

"Because it does not suit my pleasure to do so," she replied, with the same tantalizing smile.

It was so evident to me that she knew that I had no remembrance of her that I concluded to confess with a view to satisfying my curiosity.

"Come," I said, "you know very well that I am unable to recall who you are. Let us have an end of this fencing. Tell me when and where I have met you before."

She leaned back and chuckled.

"Have you ever played the game of twenty questions?" she asked.

"Many a time."

"Very well, I'll reply to twenty inquiries you may make as to where we were when we last saw each other."

I expended half a dozen questions in fixing the place of this last meeting in a summer house on the grounds of my father's country place. Then we began a new game as to the time of this meeting, and I learned that in eight questions. It was ten years agone. In another game for learning the lady's name I asked all the questions permitted without success.

I was no nearer what I wanted to know than before and was getting impatient, my condition being evidently simply delightful to my tormentor. I asked her what we were doing in the summer house, and she replied that she would give me twenty questions to find out. I got at this very easily.

"What was I doing?" was the first question.

"Holding my hand."

"What was I saying?"

"Telling me that you loved me and would always love me; that you would never forget me."

At this her mirth was excessive.

Memory now came in to do the rest. It carried me back to that summer house when I was a youth of seventeen. My companion there was then fifteen.

"I have at least been more true than you," I said. "I am still fancy free. You are engaged."

"Of course I am engaged. And now I will tell you why I don't wear an engagement ring."

I smiled a sickly smile. In the first place, I had then not possessed funds for a ring; in the second, I had forgotten my love before I could get the funds. A shadow must have crossed my face, for her mirth changed to sympathy.

"Don't worry about it," she said. "If all the things we do that we shouldn't do and all the things we don't do that we should do in youth came up to mock us when we are older we would be very much ashamed."

"Some of those things may be undone," I replied, "or at least may be repaired."

She understood me, for she cast down her eyes.

"I'm very much mortified about that engagement ring," I continued. "I had used up my allowance and was in debt for the next quarter. Better late than never. Wear this till I can get something appropriate."

I took a snake ring from my finger and made a motion to put it on hers. She drew away her hand, but I saw by her expression that the act was not prompted by her heart.

"When we last met, you say, I held your hand. Let us resume where we left off."

I did not take her hand—the place was too public—but, making sure no one was looking, I slipped the ring on her finger.

Canvasbacks on the Wing.

If you have any doubt as to the swiftness of the canvasback on the wing when business calls, just fire at the leader in a string some time when you have the chance. Duck shot when propelled by the proper quantity of powder travels pretty quickly itself, but if your charge brings down any member of that string of ducks at all it will be the fifth or sixth bird back of the leader, and I'll bet a farm on it.

If you would have a chance of dropping the leader you will have to aim not less than ten feet ahead of him. Then he will more than likely run plump against your shot. When he drops it will be a quarter of a mile or so farther on, for he can't stop short of that distance even after he is dead.—New York Sun.

The Curious Opossum.

The American opossum is one of the most curious animals living in the United States. It is the only one that carries its young in a pouch, like the kangaroo. It is the only animal that can feign death perfectly. It is remarkable for hanging by its tail, like a monkey. It has hands resembling those of a human being. Its snout is like a hog's, while its mouth is liberally furnished with teeth. Its eyes are like a rat's, and it hisses like a snake.

How Tradition Marked Holy Tomb

THE Crucifixion of Jesus of Nazareth is a well-ascertained event of history. It took place at Jerusalem, while Tiberius Cæsar was emperor and Pontius Pilatus was procurator of the Province of Judæa. The day was the sixth day of the week. The season was spring, and the Passover festival. The locality was more difficult to place. It was outside the gates of the city, and at no great distance, but whether the gateway though which Jesus and the two brigands sent to die with Him was in the northern, the western, the southern, or the eastern wall of Jerusalem is not stated in the earliest and most authentic narratives.

A tradition which was already current and accepted in the reigns of Constantine (A. D. 306-337) identified a certain site which then lay within the walls, and has ever since been an intra-mural one, as the site of the rock-tomb in which the dead body of Jesus was laid after it had been taken down from the cross. An eye-witness of the Crucifixion left it on record that the place where Jesus was buried was not far from the place where He had suffered death. The identification of the place of burial, therefore, might serve as a guide to the place of crucifixion, the place called Golgotha, i.e., "a skull." As a matter of fact, the "discovery" of the Holy Sepulchre in A.D. 326 was accompanied by that of Golgotha, though the latter was less certain than the former.

At first sight it seems very strange that the exploration work undertaken at the order of the Emperor Constantine for the discovery of the Holy Tomb, should have been set going upon a site lying within, not without, the city walls. The clergy and people of the church in Jerusalem knew perfectly well that the crucifixion took place outside the city. They knew equally well that Arimathæan Joseph's garden, with the rock tomb in it, must have lain outside the walls, for intra-mural sepulture was not practiced in Herodian Jerusalem. Sanitary reasons, if there were none other, placed tombs and cemeteries outside the walls of cities. Of all this the Christians of Jerusalem in A.D. 326 were as well aware as the best of Sunday school children or the keenest of rationalist critics in this our day of scientific illumination and religious progress. Nevertheless, they believed, that the site of Jesus' tomb lay within their city. For nearly two hundred years the knowledge of the locality had been preserved, or assisted to survive, by a somewhat incongrous landmark, viz., a temple of Venus.

This temple dated from the rebuilding of the city by the Emperor Hadrian, who changed the laying out of the new city, which explains why the tomb was inside Jerusalem after it was rebuilt instead of outside.

Local tradition could hardly fail to preserve the memory of "the place called the 'Skull'" and Joseph's Garden and rock-tomb to the year 66, when the Christians fled from Jerusalem to Pella in the country beyond Jordan. They returned, in all probability, some five or six years later. When they returned, they found nearly the whole of Jerusalem a mass of fire-blackened ruins. Three landmarks, however, had been left. These were three great towers which Herod the Great had built on the northern brow of the western hill. The lower part of one of them, surmounted by a mediæval restoration, is still to be seen. It is variously referred to as the "Tower of the Pisans" or the "Tower of David." These three towers were left standing as part of the defences of the camp of the Tenth Legion, stationed there to guard the site of the city, which Titus was resolved to keep desolate.

The Church of the Holy Sepulchre in Jerusalem has occupied, in its various reconstructions and restorations, the same site for 1,581 years. At one time the three towers just spoken of must have been conspicuously visible from that site.

With the three towers serving as fixed points from which to begin their search, and remembrance of the locality still reliable, the fugitives returning from Pella some time between A.D. 71 and 76 would not have much difficulty in finding a certain grotto hewn in the rock which in and around Jerusalem so constantly protrudes through the scanty surface-soil, like the bones of a starving man showing through his skin. That this grotto had escaped destruction is as certain as anything can be. Why should the Romans have wasted time and labor over destroying it?

The grotto—i.e., the rock tomb—having been found again, the discovery of Golgotha might be undertaken.

It is uncertain, however, whether Golgotha would be readily recognizable after the ruin and devastation of the city in A.D. 70. But though it is uncertain, it is not impossible. We may infer that a true knowledge of the site of Jesus' burial and resurrection also, was preserved by local tradition down to the time when Aelia Capitolina was founded. When the new city had been built, and some, if not all, of the old landmarks had been removed, local tradition would become liable to variation and vagueness. But we find that in A.D. 326, nearly two hundred years after, the rebuilding of Jerusalem, the Christians of the locality have a perfectly definite notion of the place of the Holy Tomb. They knew that it is concealed by the mound on which the Temple of Venus stood.

Nevertheless, allowing that some measure of doubtfulness attaches to the traditional identifications since Constantine's day, it would be wrong to set them aside as doubtful. The true sites must be very close to the traditional ones, if they are not actually identical with them.

TOASTS KAISER, IS HANGED.

Man In Wyoming Then is Cut Down and Driven from Town.

THERMOPOLIS, Wyo., April 4.—A stranger, believed to be a German, who shouted "Hoch der Kaiser!" as he stood drinking at a saloon bar here, narrowly escaped lynching at the hands of Thermopolitans.

As the stranger lifted the glass to his lips, after shouting his toast, he was knocked down by a miner, a rope appeared as if by magic, and in a moment the dazed man was hanging from a beam.

Before life was extinct, however, the counsel of cooler heads prevailed and he was cut down by the City Marshal. He was revived with cold water, forced to kneel and kiss the American flag, and then was warned to get out of town. He did.

Great War Veterans Appeal For Assistance on Anniversary of Ypres Should Bring a Liberal Response

Some of the Members of the Association who will be Selling Tags Two Weeks from To-Day were Wounded in the Glorious Stand of the Canadians on that Occasion. Veterans anxious to be in a position to help their Comrades who have still to Return from the Fields of Flanders. Tag Day will give Citizens of Peterboro a Chance to Help the Boys who have done their Bit. Collection should be a Record Breaker.

TWO weeks from to-day the people of Peterborough will have an opportunity of assisting an organization that has recently been formed in this city, and that in the days to come is to play a big part in the life of this community. On Saturday, April 21st, through the medium of a Tag Day, the Peterborough Branch of the Great War Veterans' Association of Canada will appeal to you to commemorate the second battle of Ypres and the glorious stand of the Canadians on that occasion by subscribing to the funds of the Association.

Already well over one hundred wounded and invalided soldiers have returned to Peterborough from overseas. Their numbers are increasing almost every week. From this city have gone forth nearly 3,000 soldiers to fight for the Empire's cause overseas. Many hundred of these will eventually return to their home city and they must be looked after.

Here is where the Great War Veterans' Association will help. It has been felt that there was nobody more capable of looking after the interests of the returned soldiers than the returned soldiers themselves. And so those soldiers who have already come back have banded themselves together into this great association, branches of which are springing up everywhere. Suitable headquarters are necessary, and funds will be needed to carry on the work that lies before the Association of giving a helping hand to the man who has offered his life for the cause of freedom. At present, through the kindness of the Otonabee Chapter of the I.O.D.E., the Great War Veterans are occupying rooms in the Barrie Building, but the club is growing so fast that by next autumn larger quarters will have to be sought.

The Great War Veterans are allied with no political or religious body, but are simply a band of patriotic men who have been bound together by the dangers and hardships they have shared in common. The men who are back are anxious to be in a position to help their comrades who have yet to return, and so this opportunity is being given the public of assisting in the work. The men in uniform who will be selling tags on April 21st will all be men who have been overseas, a number of them indeed men who formed part of the heroic band of heroes who stood in the gap at Langemarck and made glorious history for Canada, when the French troops, overwhelmed by the horrors of the German gas attack, wavered and broke, leaving the road to Calais open, until it was blocked by the flesh and blood of the boys of the Maple Leaf. Men who fought and fell with German bullets in their bodies on that occasion will be among those who, two weeks from to-day, will be asking you to help.

Remember this when you are buying a tag. Remember that these men fought for you, and remember what they are asking is not so much help for themselves as it is for their gallant comrades who are over there in France now, the Peterborough boys who are still on the firing line, and who, many of them, in the days to come, will return battle-scarred from the fields of Flanders, needing the helping hand that the Great War Veterans hope, with the assistance of the generous citizens of Peterborough, to give them.

Help the boys who have done their bit, and the boys who are still doing their bit by a liberal response to the Tag Day Appeal two weeks from to-day.

Little Incidents in the Great War Portray Both Its Tragedy and Comedy

A lonely blockade runner.—The "Rochester" reflected after going aground in a fog in the Gironde Estuary. The vessel was on her way to Bordeaux, and was one of the first vessels to scorn the Germans threat of torpedoing all ships.

A barber's trench dugout on the Somme front with a customer being shaved and another waiting his turn outside is shown above. Health, not vanity, is the first consideration and very properly so. All decorations must go.

This photograph gives an excellent view of the car of one of the smallest naval dirigibles used for scouting and observation, as it appears in flight. These dirigibles were first introduced by our navy and found very useful in tracking submarines, which can be seen when under water in clear, calm weather. It is provided with wireless apparatus to communicate with the petrol-boats, and it is equipped to drop bombs on submarines.

Poison gas affects all living creatures, and special precautions have to be adopted with animals, as well as with men who have to enter the danger zone. The men and horses seen are French. An order requires masking, and this is strictly enforced.

There is great preparation in the army and navy of the United States at the present time and many pictures are coming to hand which give us an idea that this preparation is not just the result of a "Scare," but rather done with all seriousness. Picture is of one of the latest submarines travelling awash.

The Serbs Come Into Their Own - The War on U-Boats

The United States prepares for war. Loading an incendiary bomb firer attached to the uprights of an army airplane. (Above.)

Submarine hunting is now the fashion, and a terrible fashion it is for those who man the "tin-fish." Describing the methods followed by the patrol boats once a periscope has been sighted or else the peculiar wake noticed, M. Raymond Lestonnat says, "As a submerged submarine does not travel fast, the pursuer certain of overhauling it, has only one thing to attend to—not to lose the trail. On arriving above it he launches his bombs into the sea at intervals of 27 yards, keeping ahead all the time. The missiles thus dropped in the wake of the patrol-boat explode as soon as they reach the depth for which they have been registered. Soon an oil patch shows, then they look for another victim. (To right.)

Girl who held up German corps. Mlle. Marcelle Semmer, who won the Legion of Honor and Croix de Guerre at the age of 21. By her courage and presence of mind in lowering a swing bridge over a canal after the retreating French had crossed and throwing the crank (with which the bridge was lowered and raised) into the water, she delayed the march of an entire Germany army corps for 24 hours, and afterwards saved the lives of 16 French soldiers. When arrested by the enemy she said: "I am an orphan, France is my only mother, and I am ready to die for her." She was twice sentenced to death and twice escaped just before she was to have been shot, and eventually she joined the Red Cross as a nurse.

Geo. Richardson, of the 2nd Battalion, and has been constantly on service with his famous regiment for over two and a half years. The 2nd Battalion holds all records (even against the crack British regiments) for endurance in the front line, having "been in" for two straight months during the past winter. On three different occasions Corp. Sutherland was blown up and buried in his trench, but luckily came up smiling each time. His steel helmet saved him from disaster on another occasion.

The Davidson Gold Mine has attained the stage of a producer. When the company put in sight an extensive body of "sweetened" low-grade ore at the 300-foot level, in addition to the extensive ore opened up at upper levels, they found themselves in a position to erect a mill. The first unit will be in operation about July. The company has begun a vigorous exploring campaign below the 300-foot level. Diamond drilling, aggregating 5,000 feet, will explore various levels down to the 1,000 foot level. Arrangements are under way for linking the property with the electric power plant at South Porcupine.

Davidson Gold Mines

An extensive body of low-grade schist ore, "sweetened" by high-grade quartz stringers, has been blocked out on the 300-foot level of the Davidson, thus assuring its permanence as a mine.

Arrangements are being made for the installation of the first unit of a mill, and electric power will be brought to the property shortly.

For a short or long hold we recommend the purchase of Davidson stock. Write for our weekly market letter. It is authentic as a general investment guide.

UNITED STATES IS AT WAR

THE GERMAN SHIPS HAVE BEEN SEIZED

GERMAN PLOTTERS TRY TO BLOW UP THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILWAY TUNNEL

Clash With Troops on Guard and Attempt is Frustrated---Crew of German Interned Cruiser Blow Up Their Vessel in Harbour---Seven Killed By American Soldiers---Little Change Reported Today From the Western Front.

GERMAN SHIPS SEIZED BY THE U. S.

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 7.—An attempt by a party of seven Germans to blow up the Pennsylvania railway tunnel in Western Pennsylvania was frustrated by the troops on guard there to-day. One of the Germans was killed and several were wounded, according to the first reports from the scene of the clash. One of the soldiers was said to have been fatally wounded.

It is confirmed that one soldier was killed by the persons who tried to blow up Brinton Arch, near here, on the Pennsylvania railway tunnel.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—The German interned cruiser Cormorant has been blown up by its crew in the harbour at Guam, the Navy Department announced to-day.

The Cormorant refused to surrender to the American forces when American soldiers went to take her over. Two German warrant officers and five of the crew were killed, and twenty officers and three hundred and forty-two men were taken prisoners by Americans.

Guam is an island off the Phillipines.

LONDON, April 7.—Austria-Hungary apparently has broken relations with the United States.

Foreign Minister Czernin has instructed Ambassador Tarnowsky at Washington to demand his passports.

Count Tarnowsky has never been formally recognized as Ambassador to the United States.

NEW YORK, April 7.—Six incendiary fires, starting within a few minutes of each other, wrecked the buildings at Belmont Race Track and destroyed the grand stand of the Hunt Club on Long Island early to-day. Kerosene acids and explosives are said to have been found.

LONDON, April 7.—A report printed in the Berlin Vossische Zeitung that "England had invited Germany to negotiate peace" was officially branded as ridiculous to-day.

(By William Philip Simms, U. P. Staff Correspondent)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES AFIELD, April 7. — "America has declared war." That was the flash that went jubilantly forward over all field telephone and telegraph lines to the fighting line to-day. "Gee whiz, man, I feel like hugging you," voiced an ordinary quiet staff captain of the Canadian forces, whose mother was a Philadelphian, as we approached the group of Canadian officers at an advanced position. "The Canadians are proud of the United States, just as proud as any American could be," he continued. "This will mean much in our future of neighbourly relations. D'ye see that?" he inquired, pointing at a hurricane of shells bursting over the Germans. "Well, those are our fireworks in celebration." Every man we encountered expressed jubilation over the news of the war declaration by Congress, clinching the joyful news of President Wilson's speech.

Out in the front line trenches the Tommies hoisted up sign boards appraising the enemy—"America's enemy now"—of the news. "Each board ought to be worth at least a thousand shells," grinningly appraised one officer. "We are now going to give 'em some of Wilson's speech in that way also. Some sentences of that speech are better than bombs." It was noticeable to-day that none of the German troops taken prisoners knew anyhing about America's entry into the war.

NEWPORT, R.I., April 7.—Nantucket Shoals Lightship to-day reported a German raider sighted off Cape Henry. Deputy Collector of Customs Walcott told the United Preses he had notified all shipping and advised them to remain in harbour. It is believed naval vessels will immediately be sent in search of raider.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES AFIELD, April 7.—No appreciable change in the positions on the British front was reported to-day.

British artillery caused another big explosion immediately behind the German firing line, and airmen were more unusually active in scouting, bombing railways and other raiding work over Germany's back areas.

There were a number of battles between the British and German machines, but it may be stated that the planes fully achieved their ends.

PARIS, April 7.—(French Official).—Violent artillery actions, with considerable fighting, between reconnoitering detachments, was reported from various sections of the Western front in to-day's official statement.

A German attack south of Ville au Bois was repulsed, and in hand grenade fighting of Champaigneul the advantage was with the French forces.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—The War Bill has passed the House of Representatives 373 to 50, and the Senate 82 to 6, and President Wilson has signed it. One hundred interned German ships valued at $125,000,000 have been seized by the Government, including the 55000,-ton Vaterland. Sixty spies and plotters have been arrested.

NEW YORK, April 7.—Cuba and Brazil will probably both declare war on Germany.

OTTAWA, April 7.—Sir Sam Hughes has offered his services to President Wilson.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—W. J. Bryan wires offering to serve as private if needed.

PETROGRAD, April 7.—Russians smashed Turkish forts on the Bosphorus in an aeroplane raid.

NEW YORK, April 7.—Allied warships will be withdrawn from this side of the Atlantic, and the United States navy will take control here.

LONDON, April 7.—The whole Somme district is now cleared of Germans.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—America to-day sent to Russia a greeting, in which she declared: "This country arrays itself in opposition to the greatest enemy of and menace to the democracy of the world." And expressed rejoicings that the people of Russia have merged into a mighty democracy.

The message made a significant plea for "internal concord in Russia, in order to crush Germany.

A GREATER PETERBORO'

The meeting on Monday evening in the Opera House is open to all citizens and is called for the purpose of organizing an association for the general advancement of the City.

There will be half a dozen short speeches by prominent citizens who are familiar with the entire situation.

The business and professional men and those who have taken an active part in municipal matters of course will be present, and a special invitation is given to all the ladies of the City and the balcony will be reserved for them.

The Trades and Labour Associations are especially requested to attend as well as those who are not members of these organizations, as it is hoped that from now on mechanics and labourmen will be given a better opportunity in assisting the advancement of the City. A prominent labour man will speak.

All citizens are stock-holders in the City of Peterborough, owning as we do our own waterworks, electric light and power system, and will very shortly own the Street Railway and Gas Plant, and it can be readily understood that it is a mutual industrial partnership and all should be vitally interested.

A short musical programme will commence at 7:45 o'clock and the business meeting will start sharp at 8:10.

247th Battalion Is Not Likely To Leave City Until Monday

Officers and Men Are However Ready to Move at Short Notice—Lieuts. Strickland, Latimer and Cameron Selected to Go—Lieut. Dunsford Reverts to the Ranks in Order to Go Overseas—To-day's Orders and General Military News.

Lieut.-Col. Ackerman, of the 247th Battalion, is still waiting for definite orders in regard to the departure of the battalion to join the 235th at Ottawa. Yesterday it was thought that the first draft would be sent this morning, and preparations were made accordingly, but the order did not come through, and it is not likely that any of the men will leave before Monday, although the first draft of fifty has been ordered to parade at the Armouries to-morrow (Sunday) morning at 9 o'clock.

Lieut.-Col. Ackerman has selected the officers who are to accompany the men. They are Lieut. Alan H. Cameron, Lieut. J. F. Strickland and Lieut. Harry Latimer.

Lieut. Sidney J. Dunsford, one of the subalterns of the battalion, has reverted to the ranks to go overseas with the men. He gave up his commission, and was sworn in as a private yesterday. "I'm proud of you," remarked Col. Ackerman, as he shook hands with the new recruit. To-day's orders announced the promotion of ex-Lieutenant and now Pte. Dunsfotd to the rank of Sergeant. He is a son of Mr. W. H. Dunsford, of the Bank of Commerce, and has a brother overseas. Several other lieutenants of the 247th will likely follow his example and go back to the ranks to get overseas.

The detachments from Havelock, Norwood and Millbrook have reached the city and have been examined by the Medical Board. The Buckhorn, Coe Hill and Bancroft quotas are expected to-day, and by to-night the final medical examinations will be completed and the battalion will be ready to leave at any moment. Several of the non-commissioned officers are being transferred to the 57th Regiment, Canadian Defence Force. A number of the men whom the Board has pronounced medically unfit for the infantry are being transferred to the Forestry Draft.

The passing of the 247th Battalion means the passing of the old 93rd Band as well. The bandsmen were boarded with the rest of the battalion and the physically fit members have been selected for the infantry, a number of others transferred to the Forestry draft and the older and medically unfit members will likely be discharged.

The instruments will be handed over to the Speakers' Patriotic League. The band was organized in September, 1915, and, under the skilful direction of Bandmaster Hughes, was recognized as one of the finest musical organizations in the Canadian Expeditionary Force. They accompanied the 93rd Battalion overseas and were then sent home to assist in the recruiting of the 247th. Their work in this regard is at an end, and now the bandsmen are going back with rifles over their shoulders to have a crack at Fritzie.

Lieuts. R. G. Johnston, W. H. Moore and R. H. Leach, of the 247th Battalion, who have been attending the I. S. of I. at Kingston, returned on Thursday evening.

Pte. Wm. Lanoue has been added to the strength of the 247th Battalion.

Pte. W. A. Primeau of the 247th Battalion is promoted Sergeant in to-day's orders.

Mrs. E. Wegg, 223 Antrim street, has received the following letter from her husband, Pte. E. Wegg, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion:

Somewhere in France,
March 13, 1917.

Dear Wife,—I received your parcel last night and everything was in

A GREAT WAVE OF ENTHUSIASM OVER PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

People in England Say the Message is the Greatest Pronouncement Against Germany Since the War Began

THE FUNDAMENTAL ISSUES

By T. P.O'Connor

(From Central News.)

LONDON, April 7.—It would be impossible to exaggerate the great wave of enthusiasm throughout the entire United Kingdom with which President Wilson's address to the United Congress of the United States has been received in England.

There has been a little doubt in this country for weeks past that America would ultimately enter the war, but the blank fog of silence which spread in Washington for many days, gave rise here to much misgiving and there came the expectation, not of the refusal on the part of President Wilson to enter the war, but rather of the spirit in which he would call upon Congress to finally act in this matter.

There were suggestions, too, from the German Press, that another last desperate effort was going to be made by the German Empire, to offer some manner of compromise to America that might entice the President into a last attempt to keep his country out of the horrors of war.

Then out of all this dense fog of silence down came this tremendous, thundering address on this slight fabric anxiety and the manner in which the United States will really enter the war produces a more profound impression upon the people of Great Britain than the actual entrance of America into the war, itself.

President Wilson's address is the greatest pronouncement against Germany and her malicious plans against the liberty of the world, says everybody here, since even the war began.

The Striking Feature.

The most striking feature of the speech is the masterly and relentless and yet with all nude, presentation of the fundamental issues that divide the belligerents, claimly that there are those already involved in the war who maintain that it is not a war for aggression nor yet for new territory. Nor still is the war being conducted, at least upon the part of the Entente Allies for the purpose of killing trade rivalry, which Germany has long maintained through insinuation, was the real cause of Great Britain's entrance into the conflict.

The people of Great Britain are de-

Hear the strains so sweet and clear!
"To the world, an Easter greeting
To young and old, from far and near."

"Christ is risen! Christ is risen!
Go ye forth and join the song.
Tell it to the far-off nations;
Tell of Him who rights the wrong.

Then when all have heard the story
Of the Christ who dwells above,
When the heathen nations hearken
To His messages of love,

He will gather in His children
To His loving tender arms,
And for ever there He'll keep them

PETERBORO' CUT OFF 18 HRS. FROM THE OUTSIDE WORLD

INFORMATION IS WANTED

For some time after the enlistment for service in the war was taken up in this city, employers made certain allowances of pay, or part of wage to be continued to men who went into the service. It is now desired by the Patriotic Fund, at Ottawa, to know if such payments are continued, to whom and for what amounts. Of course several of the public service corporations, railways, express companies, etc., made to employees these payments, but generally for a period of six months, which has now elapsed. There are other patriotic employers who have done so and who may be continuing payment.

It is asked that information in this regard be supplied to the Patriotic Fund Office, in this city. The information will be treated confidential. Only the fact is desired.

ALLAN CASSAN KILLED BY AN ELECTRIC CURRENT

Was Engaged in Repairing the Former Lines Leading into the Plant of the Peterboro' Lock Company

INQUEST TO-DAY

Allan Cassan, a Utilities Commission lineman, was killed by an electric current this morning at 8.30 o'clock while engaged in repairing a high tension lead into the Peterborough Lock Company's plant on Simcoe street. This was one of the wires that had been broken by the heavy snow fall on Friday morning. The lineman, in charge of Mr. Harry Beatty, had worked all day Friday restoring connections and breaks, and the Lock Works job was but one of the large number that were requiring immediate attention.

Three wires, carrying 2,200 volts, were strung from the main syystem on the street into the lane between two buildings of the Lock Works; one of them was down. The first step was to climb the pole at the street line and pull out the safety plugs known as "cut-outs." This was to cut off the "juice" from the wires in the lane. Mr. Beatty then picked up the west wire that was down and examined it. He instructed Cassan to make a new joint while he, himself, went away for a new arm.

When Beatty returned, Cassan was dead. The men who had remained with him apparently did not see exactly what had happened, but they were a unit in their report that the deceased had begun to work on the wire which Beatty had examined just a few minutes before, and which by reason of the "cut-outs" being out, should have been perfectly safe. In other words, the men and officials were unable this morning to determine the exact cause of the fatality. Mr. H. O. Fisk, manager of the Utilities Commission, had the "cut-outs" marked and removed, and personally tested them. That which had been on the western wire, the one that had fallen, was in perfect condition, and responded to the tests to which it was submitted.

An inquest is being held this afternoon at four o'clock at Comstock's.

Allan Cassan was the son of Mr. Thomas Cassan, 376 Homewood avenue. He was born in Seymour, Ontario, and came from Havelock to Peterborough in November. Since then he had been employed with the Utilities Commission. He was in religion a Methodist, in politics a Conservative, and was a prominent Orangeman. He was 26 years of age. He is survived by his father, two sisters and one brother. Aldred and Nellie at home, Mrs. Huffman, Trenton, and William McKenzie, a half-brother, residing in Toronto.

The funeral which will take place in Havelock, will be announced later.

Telegraph and Telephone Transmission Systems Were Broken in All Directions—Some Were Not Yet Repaired Late This Afternoon.

RESULT OF FRIDAY MORNING STORM

IN THE WAKE OF THE STORM.

Allan Cassan, Hydro lineman, dead from electric shock.

Telegraph and telephone lines down in all directions. City isolated for about 18 hours.

Over 250 local telephones reported out of service.

150 Bell Telephone poles down in vicinity of Peterborough. Many rural lines severed.

Two fires Friday morning from wire trouble.

Many houses without electric light last night.

The above is an incomplete summary of one of the most disastrous storms that has swept over Peterborough and Midland Ontario in many years. Thursday's rain was but a prelude to a heavy fall of wet, gluey snow that stuck where it fell. Followed a high wind that played havoc with electric transmission lines, disorganizing telephone, telegraph, light and alarm systems in all directions. Peterborough's experience was common throughout this part of the province, and it will be weeks before the lines are restored.

Tested Transmission Systems.

The unusual and peculiar combination of heavy, stick snow that adhered to the wires applied a severe and general test to the various transmission systems. Lines that had seemed taught began to droop about one o'clock Friday morning and the wind that blew in from the east added to the strain that felt for every weak spot. Early Friday morning, under the combined pressure of wind and snow the wires began to part, arms snapped off and poles broke into splinters.

"Seventeen poles down along two concessions," reported a farmer from the Millbrook district this morning.

"More than a dozen strewn along the tracks near Foxboro, this side of Belleville," explained G.T.R. Conductor McCarthy yesterday when he arrived with his passenger train at 11.30 a.m. three hours late.

Bell Telephone Co. Has 150 Poles Down Around Peterborough

With 150 poles down in and around the city, Peterborough's long distance telephone service suffered a severe blow from Thursday night's storm. At noon to-day the only out-of-town connections reached to Norwood, Lakefield and Omemee. In the city 200 telephones were reported out of order and it was expected that this number would be increased when all the reports from subscribers had been received.

The heaviest pole casualties the Bell Telephone Company recorded were on the Hastings and Centreville lines. Near the Henry Hope factory

THE PLOUGH AND THE SWORD.

Isaiah, the prince of prophets, foretold as a condition of peace, the "beating of the sword into ploughshares."

But we are at war now and the condition demanded is beating the ploughshare into a sword.

That is to say, food production has become one of the mightiest and most important agencies of promoting the success of a contest that has become a fight of endurance.

That coalliance of nations will win that can maintain its armies in the best fighting condition represented by food and munitions.

Adequate food supply is the first essential. To vary Napoleon's epigram, an army fights on its stomach. Munitions come next, and we cannot have the fullest supply of this victorius destruction unless we have—in Britain especially—a well-fed, well nourished populace, capable of working long hours at express speed.

Great Britain cannot use her vast money resources to adequate effect without food, which is growing alarmingly short. The "Tight little Islands" haven't the ground to grow a tenth of their food needs, if war conditions favoured getting the most into and out of the land available. They have to depend on outside sources and the chief of these is Canada.

This apparently superfluous exodium leading up to the cream of this appeal is to prepare the people of Peterborough and district as part of Canada, and impress upon them the need of taking the question of greater crop production seriously—in deadly earnest; and not as a mere figure of speech.

Greater production needs more hands. The farms of the country cannot grow greater crops, because of the shortage of labour.

The war has made a serious drain upon an already serious shortage of labour.

The farmers must have help from the town and cities that have absorbed so many from the farms.

The town dwellers, to respond to this, will have to make some sacrifice; but it will be as nothing compared to the sacrifices our soldier boys and the soldiers of Britain and her allies are making.

They are making these sacrifices for us, and the sacrifices will be greater if we let them go hungry through failure to do our share in supplying them with food.

The allies are not getting enough food. There is a world food shortage. Hardly a nation that is not on short rations, or in a state of semi-starvation or starving.

Bring it home to yourself. If you thought a son, or brother, or neighbour's boy were short of food, wouldn't you strain a point to help him—even take a lot of trouble and do a lot of hard work to get it to the trenches?

Yet, your boy or mine; your neighbour's boy or mine will be in that state if we let the bulk of our soldiers go on short rations by failure to grow and send them enough food.

We should buckle to the task of helping greater production, because it is one of the conditions of victory.

Every pound of additional food we grow will be that much more to feed the people that are spending everything for us.

Even the help of school boys in the towns is demanded and they should enlist. They are too young to fight with guns, but they can fight with pitchforks.

The most important fighters in the battle zone are the men of the supply service, who bring food and ammunition to the front.

Boys and men can be working in the supply service right here in Peterborough county. If they help to grow and reap more food-stuff—they are supplying the soldiers in the trenches.

We need a bumper crop in Canada this year.

The most of Ontario farmers see the necessity and will do their best. But to do their best they must have help from the village cities and towns.

This help can come from High school boys, from retired farmers with enough strength left to drive a seed drill or ride a plough or a reaper, and from the hundreds of men who have been heard to say: "If I was ten years younger I would be in the fighting ranks."

Forty-five is the limit for army service, but thousands of men between forty-five and fifty are "fit" for farm work.

Even the girls can help. Every summer one can see women driving hay rakes and reapers. That leaves men free to do heavier work and so the greater production game can go on.

Get into line now as much as possible and help get the big crop into the ground. It will grow the most of it—without much attention. The help will be needed when the short, sharp harvest season comes.

Then, as the Ontario Commissioner of Agriculture (Dr. Creelman) suggests, if we are in earnest, when harvest comes and help must be had to save the crops, then shut down the schools and the factories, and slow down in things generally till the harvest is gathered in, and we do our best bit in feeding the workers in the Old Country and the soldiers in the trenches.

We can have and help greater production if we think; if we "size up" the situation and get ourselves saturated with the tremendous truth that if we win this war and want to do our bit, we can, since we cannot fight, do it by fighting our hardest to feed the fighters and the people that are feeding them with munitions.

Beat, the ploughshare into a sword.

THE APPEAL TO YOU.

The public meeting to be held in the Grand Opera House on Monday evening next, is an appeal to every public spirited citizen, and that means you. It is to be held under the auspices of the Greater Peterborough Association, and the object is to complete organisation, in order to make the Association practical, and something more than a name.

The proud slogan, "Peterborough has possibilities unparalleled," is a mere jumble of wasted letters and inflated words, without cooperation and coordination of effort to give their spirit effect and realize upon the truth of its spirit.

A part of our "unparalleled" resources is our citizenship. If we do not arouse that and mobilise it for practical service we shall accomplish nothing. It is our chief equipment.

This is a primary object that must be effectively accomplished before one advance step can be taken. No organisation can do the work required with the greatest success without having with it the mass of citizenship, in spirit and co-operation. Every citizen who has a home to be made a better home by being in a little bigger and more progressive city, is interested and should be present.

We expect to see the city council present in body, and as a body, for to the initiative of its head, the Mayor, the movement to culminate in full organisation Monday night, is chiefly due.

The Association no matter how perfect its organisation, and how great its zeal, cannot carry out its plans without the help of the city council: and the city council cannot do its best work without the cooperation and help of the Association.

The latter is calculated to be at once a balance wheel and a spur to the aldermanic body. In fact one of the most important functions of the Association should be to help the council with advice founded on knowledge of needs and conditions in the public interest that should form the basis of action; to be a medium of connection between the body of citizenship and their elected representatives.

Aldermen are not infallible and with a natural desire to do their duty to the best public advantage, will welcome the assistance that the Association can give. Harmony of relationship between the council and the association is the first condition to the only cooperation that can be possible and profitable to the city's interests.

Then the revived Board of Trade can be made a splendid assistance in promoting the objects of the new movement. By constitution and legitimate function it can make itself the right hand of the city council and a splendid co-worker with the Greater Peterborough Association.

It is hoped that there will be a large attendance of ladies. By deference to the old relations between the franchised and unfranchised sexes, the old chivalry of special attention to the ladies is demonstrated by seats being reserved for them in the balcony. Women have a new interest in civic progress, because they have new powers and new responsibilities.

Any civic organization that does not include women, either in the sense of moral or material help, is to that extent imperfect.

Now is the time, now the season, to get the Greater Peterborough idea in motion. The resurrection of nature, the call to new life and new action in nature, should arouse a new resolve and impulse to be seized of nature's spirit of growth, and new beauty and new energy of accomplishment.

To sum the matter in a word, the ambition of a Greater Peterborough is the concern of every citizen, and it is to be hoped that every class and interest of the city will be largely represented at the meeting in the Grand Opera House on Monday night, April ninth.

Peterboro' Cut Off 18 Hours

a cluster of poles were prostrate, and below Downer's corners there was another string completely out of commission. Rural lines radiating in those and other directions were cut off from local connection, and the service was otherwise crippled by the storm, whose full effects are just beginning to be listed.

Rushing Temporary Repairs.

Mr. G. O. Cameron, local manager of the Bell Telephone Company, stated that their line men worked hard all day Friday and would be out again on Sunday rushing temporary repairs to open up lines of communication. Describing the effects of the storm he said that poles had not merely been snapped off leaving jagged stumps, but that most of them had been broken in two and three places. Contrary to what might have been expected, the wires were not severed near the poles, but apparently had sagged and stretched under their load of snow, finally breaking in the middle of the reaches between poles.

Damage Not Estimated.

It was impossible Mr. Cameron said, even to roughly estimate the damage the Bell Telephone Company had sustained. The storm had swept over a wide extent of the Midland section of the province. Many poles, for instance, were down in the Markham district and towns along the lake front had also suffered rather serious disorganization. It would probably be weeks before permanent repairs would be completed, but the immediate work would be confined to temporary restoration of the circuits. Just as soon as possible all the long distance lines will be re-opened for public service.

Fire Alarm System Was Crippled By Many Broken Wires

"The most troublesome storm in my experience in Peterborough," said Chief Howard who was first called out at 11.30 o'clock Thursday night by a break in the south end at the corner of Romaine and Park street. Within a short time the entire system was demoralized, and was not finally patched up until six o'clock Friday night.

"The snow was heavy and sticky," the Chief explained, "and the wires were soon weighed with a load that caused them to sag almost to the breaking point. Then when the wind blew along they came in contact with other power wires. First the insulation would burn and the exposed wire melt. There were breaks and grounds at Auburn, East City, near St. Luke's church, near the C.G.E. and the De Laval factories and at other points."

The Chief was out repairing breaks until about five o'clock Friday morning when the brigade was called to the fire at Mr. Alex Reid's. The men had scarcely returned to the hall when another alarm called them back to Mrs. Ratchford's home on Edinburgh street. Both these fires the Chief attributed to the disarrangement of the electric service system.

All day Friday repair work was continued by the Chief and several of his men until the alarm system was patched up about 6 p.m. But the lines have been so stretched that they will have to be completely examined and tuned up. The Chief believes that in many places, due to the strain of their snow burden, the wires have sagged and are swaying in danger of touching adjacent wires and causing more trouble.

A Statement From Mr. Stevens

The following statement signed by Mr. W. Stevens, Secretary of the Trades and Labour Council has been handed in for publication. It refers to an article that appeared in Thursday's issue of a local evening contemporary. The statement reads as follows:

"On referring to the records of the meeting, Mr. Stevens finds that having written his report of Mr. Elliot's remarks from memory, that while the report was substantially correct, yet some of the incidents were not stated just as Mr. Elliot stated them. Concerning the statement that Mr. Elliot expected to meet rabid people in the Trades and Labour Council. As Mr. Elliot as many warm friends in the Council, some of them almost lifelong friends, as indeed Mr. Stevens is himself, Mr. Elliot very naturally knew of the high standing of the membership of the labour representatives and would not express himself in this way.

With reference to Mr. Elliot stating that the merchants were going to elect a labour mayor and labour aldermen. The merchants have not yet had a meeting to discuss these matters with the labour representatives, and Mr. Elliot never prophecies except when he has a sure thing. He has no mandate from the merchants to speak on their behalf. Very naturally this part of Mr. Stevens' article relates rather to his hopes."

Sure! High Heels Cause Corns But Who Cares Now

Because style decrees that women crowd and buckle up their tender toes in high heel footwear they suffer from corns, then they cut and trim at these painful pests which merely makes the corn grow harder. This suicidal habit may cause lockjaw and women are warned to stop it.

A few drops of a drug called freezone applied directly upon a sore corn gives quick relief and soon the entire corn, root and all, lifts out without pain. Ask the drug store man for a quarter of an ounce of freezone, which costs very little but is sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet.

This drug is an ether compound and dries in a moment and simply shrivels up the corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. Clip this out and pin on your wife's dresser.

SEND a Dominion Express Money Order. Five dollars costs three cents.

Union Meeting Held Yesterday

A union Good Friday service was held yesterday afternoon in St. Paul's Church, under the auspices of the Ministerial Association. Rev. R. B. Grobb, President of the Association, presided. Rev. Mr. Whattam read the Scripture. Rev. Mr. Pogue offered prayers. Two short addresses were given by Rev. J. R. White and Rev. Mr. Peever. A solo, "Nearer My God to Thee," was sung by Miss Dorothy Allan, also a duet, "Love Divine," by Miss Allen and Mr. McKeown. Mr. Grobb closed the service by asking the congregation to engage in silent prayer. He also made special petitions for the armies on active service.

UTILITIES COMMISSION HAD BETWEEN 100 AND 150 BREAKS IN SERVICE

The storm's effects did not leave look the Utilities Commission electric transmission system, and roughly estimated there were close to 150 grounds and breaks to be patched and fixed up. To illustrate the weight of snow that fell Mr. H. O. Fisk stated a span of wires across the river near the old Dickson bridge that had been 20 feet above the water had been borne down by their burden of snow until they were partly submerged in the river. And they were capable of holding up under a strain of 800 pounds. Mr. Fisk pointed out that copper wire has 38 per cent. elongation or stretching quality.

Below Smith street there were no wires across the river. They had all gone down under the weight of snow, and when the Murray street lines broke, Ashburnham's lamp went out. The south ward houses, or quite a number of them, were in darkness last night. St. Luke's and St. John's churches conducted services by lamp light, and only an auxiliary gas plant prevented a postponement of the memorial service at the Salvation Army Temple.

Germans Told What They May Wear In 1917

BERLIN, April 4.—A new and sweeping clothing ordinance, which is going into effect on April 8 throughout the Empire, has just been promulgated "for the purpose of limiting the consumption of outer and under clothing, linen and shoes." For issuance of permits to participate in clothing, the Imperial Clothing Bureau has issued directons which include the sensational novelty of setting up an official list or laying down just what and how many articles of clothing are to be considered sufficient for one person.

For male residents in Germany, the following wardrobe is considered sufficient: One week-day and one Sunday suit, one overcoat or cape, two work blouses and two work pants, two vests, two professional shirts, one pair of winter gloves, six handkerchiefs, two nightshirts, three pairs of under-drawers, four pairs of socks.

Officially, an adequate 1917 wardrobe for women consists of two week-day dresses, one Sunday dress, one dress skirt, two blouses of jackets, one overcoat or cloak, one shawl, one wrapper, three aprons, one pair winter gloves, six handkerchiefs, four day skirts, three night gowns, four pairs of drawers or combination under-garments, three petticoats and four pairs of stockings.

In addition, the official wardrobe for both sexes includes three pairs of shoes or boots, one pair house shoes or slippers, three pillow slips, two bed sheets, two bed covers, one blanket, three hand towels, two kitchen or dish towels, three dust rags or cleaning cloth.

EVEN MEASUREMENT PRESCRIBED.

Every applicant for a clothing permit must in future furnish the authorities with a truthful inventory of his wardrobe, and if he or she has the above mentioned number of garments the appliacnt is not entitled to obtain a permit to purchase any further clothing.

In case of doubt, the authorities may require the applicant to submit a signed affidavit of the extent of his wardrobe in writing and false statements subject the applicant to a heavy penalty.

To stretch clothing stocks to the maximum, measurements for garments the applicant is not entitled among other saving devices it is forbidden to make "gents" pants in the future with upturned cuffs.

They are absolutely free from injurious drugs and cannot possibly do harm—always good. Concerning them Mrs. Jos. Morneau, St. Pamphile, Que., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets and am well satisfied with them and would use no other medicine for my little ones." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Internal Bathing's Rapid Growth

It is but natural to expect that a relief from Constipation and the many ills which it causes, which is so effectual and so natural as Internal Bathing, should quickly make many converts.

But its general use has increased so tremendously in the past few years as to suggest other reasons, and these are found in the statement of users that they feel as if "made over" the morning after an Internal Bath.

The elimination of the pernicious ad poisonous waste which is ever present in the Lower Intestine gives Nature a chance to work unhampered. And one rises in the morning clear headed, able, bright, confident and eager for the day's duties.

Mr. F. E. Smith writes:
"Dear Doctor,—Your Cascade' made a new man of me at the age of 49. I persuaded my wife to use the treatment also, and to-day she has better health than ever before. Since the use of the 'Cascade' she sleeps better and can walk for hours without fatigue. Fainting spells have become a condition of the past; can eat anything on the bill of fare and drink all beverages. Does not take cold when exposed; hot weather does not cause oppression."

The "J.B.L. Cascade," the most efficient device for Internal Bathing, is being grown and explained in detail by the Warne Drug Company, Peterborough. Ask for free booklet, "Why Man of To-day Is Only 50 Per Cent. Efficient." If you prefer, write to Dr. Charles A. Tyrrell, 163 College Street, Toronto, for same.

Kropotkin Tells Why Army Joined People

BRIGHTON, England, April 5. — Prince Peter Kropotkin, the aged Russian exile, who more than forty years ago attained international fame because of the revolutionary stand he took on the side of the people of his country to-night received a correspondent of The Associated Press in his home here and gave his views on why the army joined in the revolt in Petrograd.

"The revolution which broke out in Petrograd was, of course, the result of a long struggle against autocracy," said the Prince. "Matters came to a crisis by the complete disorganization into which all the life of the country and the transport of supplies to the great centres of population had been brought by the continual change of Ministers, owing to the occult influence which prevailed at the Court. It was evident not only to those who stood in close contact with the Administration but also to the mass of the population that if this state of affairs continued longer Russia would unavoidably be running toward a great disaster.

"The agricultural population feeling that there was no security in the life of the country, refused to bring provisions to the city, and the army began to feel that the support it had received from the very outset of the war from the whole of the Russian nation, especially since the sale of spirits had been prohibited, was going to be disorganized totally.

"The campaign begun by Minister Protopopoff against the two unions of the Zemstvos and municipalities added to the general discontent. The two unions had taken care of the hundreds of thousands of wounded soldiers whom they took from the bases behind the battlefield lines to distribute them in hospitals created by these unions all over Russia. In addition they organized in the rear of the fighting lines medical supplies and necessaries for the army as well as tents, hot bath trains and feeding stations, and had won the sympathies of the army by their continual care for the needs of the soldiers.

"Protopopoff decided to destroy these unions. He prohibited their general meetings and ordered that at every committee meeting an officer of police (who might report everything to the Germans) should be present.

"This continual intercourse between the nation and army explains why the army so rapidly joined the revolt."

"I am delighted with to-day's news and regard the fall of the autocracy as final. After victory is gained by the nation the effort of Russia will have to be directed to getting rid of the Germans and establishing a free and independent Poland. United as it is in the army and has been for the last two and a half years, the Russian nation will win the war and help the Germans, I hope, to free themselves from the Hohenzollern yoke."

BROCKVILLE JOINS

In amassing testimony to the cures effected by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. During the last few weeks everybody seems to be talking about this great food cure. Persons who are week, nervous or anaemic have found in this well-known restorative the very assistance they needed to regain health, strength and vigor. This is the way they tell their experiences:

Dizziness

Mrs. E. O'Neill, Anne Street, Brockville, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with nervousness, heart trouble, dizziness and a general run-down condition of the system, and it was only with difficulty that I could do my work. I had doctored for some time without much result, until a friend in Ottawa advised me to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I did so, and after taking a treatment found a great improvement. I can now get a good night's rest and am able to do my work much more easily. When I am not feeling just up to the mark I take a few of the Nerve Food Pills, and find great benefit from them. I am glad to recommend the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to anyone suffering from nerve trouble of any kind."

Could Not Sleep

Mrs. T. Hutt, 47 Church Street, Brockville, Ont., writes: "My nerves were in a very serious condition—I could not sleep at night, had frequent headaches, and would not stay alone in the house. Any little noise would set my nerves all going. Seeing your ad. in the newspapers, I sent for a trial box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, tried it, and before finishing could see such an improvement that I continued the treatment until I was completely cured of all nervous trouble. I have no difficulty now in getting a good night's rest, and do not mind staying alone at all. I have recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to many of my friends, who have used it with splendid results."

Nerves Exhausted

Mrs. F. Robinson, 30 Havelock St., Brockville, Ont., writes: "I suffered from nervousness, sleeplessness, headaches and dizziness. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food was recommended to me by a friend, so I commenced using it, and found it of such benefit that I continued the treatment until I was completely relieved. I was also troubled with constipation, and I find that this treatment has relieved me of that, too. I have recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to many of my friends, who have also obtained good results."

Easily Fatigued

Mr. Wm. H. Moore, Buell St., Brockville, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with dizziness and sick stomach for some little time; my heart action was weak and circulation poor. I became restless and easily tired. I commenced a treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and found almost immediate relief. I have taken about six boxes of this splendid remedy, and intend to still continue their use, as they have been of such benefit to me."

Gained in Weight

Mrs. J. F. Clow, 20 King St. West, Brockville, Ont., writes: "I had nervous indigestion so bad that I could not eat anything, and failed from 170 pounds to 130 pounds. I consulted doctors, but they did not seem to understand my case. I saw Dr. Chase's Nerve Food advertised, and as it seemed to fit my case I decided to try it. Even from the first the Nerve Food seemed to agree with my stomach, and I was soon able to eat and digest my food. I continued the treatment until I fully recovered, and now I would recommend the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to anyone suffering from nervous indigestion."

Sick Headaches

Mrs. E. H. Hutt, 262 Brock St., Brockville, Ont., writes: "Last winter I was bothered with severe sick-headaches, biliousness, nervousness and sleeplessness. I also had trouble with my hands; they used to go to sleep, and sometimes there was no feeling at all in them. I could not wash dishes, knit or do anything like that. I had been doctoring for some time without results. One day a friend said to me: "Why don't you try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food? It will help you." So I decided to try it, and while taking the first box I began to feel a little better. I therefore continued the treatment until I found I was greatly improved. I certainly cannot speak too highly of the wonderful cure of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

Nervous Indigestion

Mrs. F. A. Meager, 1 Park St. South, Brockville, Ont., writes: "I suffered for years from nervousness, sleeplessness and weak spells. I had neuralgia pains through my body and very severe pains through the back; my nerves twitched something dreadful. I had indigestion, and could not eat any solid food at all. My heart action was weak, the circulation very poor, and my gums and lips used to be blue. I went to see the doctor, but he told me there was no cure for me. I therefore tried Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and am pleased to say that they have helped me wonderfully. I can now eat much better, and can take solid food without any difficulty. I have taken four boxes, and during that time have gained twelve pounds. I am so much better that I mean to continue the treatment, for I am confident they are the things to take to build up the system, give strength and make one feel like oneself again. I had tried lots of other medicines, but they did not do me any good. I hope this letter will help others who may have suffered in the same way as I have."

Suicide's Wife Had Asked For Divorce

At least one of the reasons which probably impelled David William Dalley, proprietor of a chain of grocery stores in Pennsylvania and Detroit, Mich., to kill himself at the Vanderbilt Hotel, came to light, when it was learned that his wife's application for a divorce is on file in the County Clerk's office.

Justice Bijur, in the Supreme Court, awarded to Mrs. Verna Dalley, of Waddle, Pa., an interlocutory decree February 13 last, and the final decree was to have been handed down on May 13, after the necessary three months had lapsed. In the trial of the action it was shown that Mr. Dalley's friendship for a woman had aroused the ire of his associates in business, as well as disrupting his own home.

In the effects of the dead man, which are in the Coroner's possession, is a letter to Mrs. Dalley which Mr. Dalley wrote just before killing himself. His income was estimated at $15,000 a year in the testimony as the divorce trial.

"Although I Had Little Faith in Them"

That is the feeling of hundreds who have been helped by Gin Pills. They admit after the cure that when they used Gin Pills it did not seem possible that such a simple remedy could relieve such severe suffering. The line above, for instance, is from the letter of Mr. M. P. Herbert, Plessisville, recommending

Gin Pills
FOR THE KIDNEYS

He says, in part, "I suffered from Kidney trouble for several years. I have tried numerous remedies and used medical prescriptions without having permanent relief, my case being chronic. I decided to try Gin Pills although I had but little faith in them. The first does gave me relief. Since, I have taken four boxes of these pills and I find myself completely cured."

If you have lame back, swollen joints, constant headaches, urinary troubles, stone, gravel, rheumatism, remember Mr. Herbert's experience and try Gin Pills.

DOG DAYS.

(Toronto Globe)

A dog is entitled to one bite before the menaced man has a legal right to adopt defensive measures. This is a heritage from the time when the people who owned the dogs made and administered the laws.

TWO REASONS.

(Kansas City Star.)

It is easy to understand why Holland and Greece remain neutral. Holland looks into the barrel of a gun, and Constantine looks across the family table.

FROM THE MOTHER OF PARLIAMENTS.

(Buffalo Commercial.)

The telegram of congratulation sent to the new Russian government by the English Premier rings with honesty. "It is with sentiments of the most profound satisfaction," says David Lloyd George, "that the peoples of Great Britain and the British dominions have learned that their great ally, Russia, now stands with the nations which base their institutions upon responsible government." Well said!

MERE MAN NOT WANTED.

(Milwaukee Journal.)

In Brasil, Ind., there is a woman saloon keeper, a woman garage keeper, several merchants, a lawyer, a doctor, the owner and proprietor of the lumber yard and mill, a hospital owner, a photographer, a farmer, furniture store owner, two rug weavers, the heads of two machine shops, a professional truck gardener, the city treasurer, deputies in three county offices, an automobile saleswoman, who sold twelve big cars last summer, a hotel keeper, a caterer, two restaurant keepers and a telegrapher.

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK.

(Boston Monitor.)

The Lost Property Office at Westminster, notifies the British public that it has in its possessiin two stock ings full of Treasury notes found in a public carriage. It seems to have scandalised some people to think that there were still folks to be found who secreted their money in stockings. Money kept in that way has come to be figurative of miserliness, but after all a stocking is quite a handy receptacle for a cottager's savings, and it is quite as good as any others for carrying savings to the post office in support of the Exchequer. The great thing is that they should get there.

A MILITANT PACIFIST.

Mr. Porter Emerson Browne, of Norfolk, Conn., writes as follows to the New York Sun: If we must have (God help us!) an Americanism like that advocated by those human bookworms that are trying to make us a nation of dirt eaters (I refer to Messrs Bryan, Mann, Moore, Daniels, Villard and their sort) let us at least be consistent.

First, let us change the national emblem from an eagle to a skunk. Then let us drop the red, white and blue flag which now floats over us and replace it with a nice white one having a wide yellow stripe down the middle. Following which we will turn to the wall the pictures of Lincoln, Washington and Grant and the other poor roughnecks who are not too proud to fight, and after all joining in the well known anthem, "My Country, 'Taint of Thee," we will extend a cordial invitation to Germany to come right in and murder our women and children on shore where it is drier.

For being a darned fool is just like anything else; if you have made up your mind to be one, why not try to be a good one?

PRESIDENTS ATE WITH KNIFE.

(Magazine of American History.)

There are innumerable men and women who would rather be found guilty of violation of any of the ten commandments than to be guilty of eating with their knives. John Quincy Adams was the first American president who ate with his fork. He acquired the custom in France, and Mrs Adams found it necessary to explain to the guests at the White House that "Mr. Adams couldn't overcome the habit." Andrew Jackson "restored Republican simplicity" by eating with his knife, as George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, James Monroe and James Madison had done.

BEFORE SHE GOT WISE.

Mrs. Peavish says that what makes her mad is that she had been married six months before she discovered that the people who were always waiting at Mr. Peavish's office door were not clints, but bill collectors.—Dallas News.

CERTAIN inherent qualities are essential in paint to ensure your permanent satisfaction with its application.

Of these, the more important are Endurance and Covering Capacity. The extent to which these qualities are present, accurately determines the real value of your paint.

B-H "ENGLISH" PAINT 70% Pure White Lead, 30% Pure White Zinc, 100% Pure Paint made in over fifty artistic shades, combines these virtues in such a manner as to produce a result no other paint can excel, and few can equal.

It is economical because it will cover more surface and wear longer than other paints. A cheap paint does not permit of the use of the best ingredients, and always is expensive in the long run.

B-H "English" Paint—costing but little more than a cheap mixture—produces a better job that lasts three to four times as long.

ON THE JOB AT NINETY.

OTTAWA, April 7—John R. Booth, the veteran Canadian millionaire lumberman, is a nonagenarian today. Except for the fact that he took a brief time off Thursday morning to say farewell to his nephew, who left for the front Thursday morning, he was right "on the job" at the mills as usual. His employees presented him with ninety roses.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

MISSES' AND SMALL WOMEN'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

The simple little frock in this illustration is made noticeable by the addition of a separate yoke belt of contrasting goods and a collar of unusual cut developed in material to match. The trimming fold on the cuff is a detail that adds to the originality expressed by the design.

The waist is cut very full and bloused at regulation waist line, where a three gore gathered skirt with the popular panel front is joined. A full length sleeve, with quite some fitted effect, is set in without fulness. It adds to the youthful lines of the dress to have the closing at the back, and a back closing is always decorative. The small buttons trimming the collar and yoke belt have decided style value.
